High school principal accepts new position with state DPI

Sharp working with Response to Intervention program

By MIRIAM NELSON
News Editor

WITTENBERG — Continuous improvement is a theme that has always been a part of Principal Jill Sharp's career in education.

It is a theme that will she will be taking with her as she leaves her position at Wittenberg-Birnamwood High School and begins work as the assistant director of the Wisconsin Response to Intervention program Monday.

During the past eight years at WBHS, Sharp has been working toward better training for teachers and meeting the needs of each student.

"What I'm most pleased with is that we have been working as a team to develop strategies and goals that work for both teacher and student," said Sharp.

Part of that work includes having in place a checklist for seniors to help make their post-high school goals — whether it's an apprenticeship or two- or four-year degree.

Twenty-two years ago, Sharp started as a special education teacher in Clintonville and credits the school with the foresight to pair her with a seasoned teacher that first year. She felt it was the best training she could get and helped her develop a deep compassion for students who struggle.

From her position as assistant principal in Shawano to principal in Wittenberg, Sharp has had the opportunity to see firsthand the needs of staff and students and has stayed true to her belief that it's never OK to just be OK.

"It's been a ride," said Sharp. "All of my experience has lead me to this goal of working at the center."

The center is a federally funded through a grant which functions as an arm of the Department of Public Instruction. It collaborates closely with state initiatives and improvement projects and works with DPI and districts to support schools with research-based models so that all students can reach their potential.

"We've already done a lot of system work at WBSD to see that the social, emotional, academic, behavioral and cultural needs are being met," said Sharp. "The work the center does is the work I believe in, that has to be done."

Generally positions in education are posted, interviewed and decided in early June or July so that the vacated positions can be filled before the beginning of the school year. Scheduling issues pushed the posting to Aug. 1, and Sharp was not offered the job until Sept. 19. This created an issue for WBSD because the school year is underway and her position needs to be filled, leaving little time for the transition.

According to Superintendent Garrett Rogowski, Birnamwood Principal Bill Hass is moving into Sharp's position and Randy Berndt, currently a dean of students, will become the Birnamwood principal.

"We are in a bit of a reactionary mode, but I'm very confident Hass and Berndt can lead in these respective roles," said Rogowski.

The two will need to get acclimated to new staff and the student policies and procedures each building follows, according to Rogowski. The plan is to address the dean position once the administrative team is in place. The position covers both Birnamwood and Wittenberg elementary and middle schools, which is approximately 800 students.

"We feel very appreciative of the leadership Jill Sharp has provided for our district, especially at the high school," said Rogowski. "She's been a valuable member of our administrative team."

He noted that Sharp has moved forward all things academic for staff and students, and though he's sad to see her go, he knows people need to make decisions in their own best interests.

If you want to make God laugh, tell him your plans

Life is a series of hellos and good-byes. The road to hell is paved with good intentions. Nobody ever had a rainbow until he had the rain.

The list of life's reflections goes on and on. Basically, these old sayings are just trying to assure us that we need to just suck it up and deal with both the good and the bad.

Some years are better than others, and some test your inner steel. This year, I've been trying to challenge myself into finding the good in every bad situation. After all, if God is indeed laughing at my plans, I might as well try to join in on the joke.

My plan was to work on getting myself into a better state of health. This included finding a primary care physician and catching up on the tests I've neglected over the years. Dutifully, I have been checking off the boxes and taking the necessary tests.

I foolishly assumed that if I was referred to another doctor for further testing that it would be covered by insurance. Let's just say that I won't be making that mistake again. I'm doing my best to be grateful that I can extend the payments over the next 10 months as opposed to having to sell one of my kidneys.

Transportation is sometimes viewed as a necessary evil, especially in rural America. I chose to live here as opposed to New York — the city that never sleeps because it has mass transportation and taxi services available around the clock.

I had hoped to get one more year out of my car and not have to do a car payment until the medical bills had been paid. Again, God chuckled. Now I'm being grateful for the family and friend who helped me come up with a down payment, and a dealer willing to help stretch the financing to keep the monthly payment to a manageable level.

I do grin every time I get into my new-for-me car because it used to belong to my driver's ed teacher, the one who gave me a "D" behind the wheel, which I still proclaim is the very best grade I ever received. It made me a much better driver at an early age, when lifelong habits are formed. Over 40 years later, with no accidents and only two speeding tickets, I'd say I've made the best out of that teachable moment, and I'm forever grateful.

Sometimes when God is laughing, he'll throw in a little bonus. Through the magic of social media, I was able to get a free ticket for a touring Broadway show I've been wanting to see. It was a gentle reminder that life doesn't suck all the time, and that there are good and generous souls in the world to make your day a little bit brighter.

'Fall Into Art' show at the WOWSPACE

Art show is part of Miles of Art event

By MIRIAM NELSON
News Editor

WITTENBERG — Walls of Wittenberg has once again timed its "Fall Into Art" show to coincide with the Miles of Art festival.

"Miles of Art is an exciting time for us at the WOWSPACE, as many of the artists will be on site to talk with visitors — sharing their experiences, stories and expertise," said Elaine Diffor, WOW's event coordinator.

Six artists, three from Shawano County, will have their art on display and for sale at the WOWSPACE, 114 Vinal St.

Scott Lawton, Wittenberg, has a variety of beautiful wooden bowls made out of cherry, ash, box elder and walnut.

Popular photographer Jim Leuenberger has both framed and matted photos on display and for sale. From Shawano, he is well known for starting the Shawano County barn quilts program.

Jean Sredl is also from Shawano and specializes in fiber and textile art. When she retired from her CPA business in 2011, her husband gave her a textile art kit for Christmas. What started out as a hobby has turned into a passion.

"I draw my inspiration from nature, music and emotions of the inner mind, such as joy or frustration," said Sredl.

Generally, the artists are on hand for the Miles of Art weekend, but Sredl won't be able to attend this year as she is also opening a show in Tucson, Arizona. This is the second appearance for her at the WOWSPACE.

David Windey is from De Pere, and this is his first time showing his art in a WOW/Miles of Art show. Earlier this summer, he installed a commissioned art piece in the WOW Art Park.

"Tranquilatree" is a 1,000-pound metal sculpture of a tree with 7,500 leaves of metallicized plastic attached. He has two smaller versions on display in the art park. Inside the WOWSPACE, the dragon and the cactus sculptures are catching the attention and admiration of visitors, according to Diffor.

Hilary Rinke, of Mosinee, specializes in glasswork.

This is Carmen Duran's first show at the WOWSPACE. She makes her home in Stratford and has been building a following with her lively and colorful floral paintings of acrylic and mixed media. Currently, her work is on display at four other galleries.

The artists at the WOWSPACE for the Miles of Art weekend are sponsored by Ho-Chunk Gaming Wittenberg. Miles of Art weekend, part of the Shawano County Art Tour on Saturday and Sunday, will have extended hours, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.
