Another competency hearing set in 1976 murders

Defense attorney asks for a second opinion

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

Another hearing has been scheduled for Oct. 12 to determine if an elderly Lakewood man is competent to stand trial for a 1976 double murder at a campground in Marinette County.

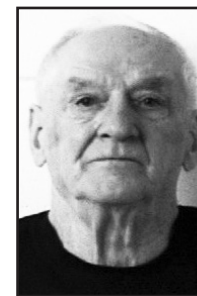

Raymand L. Vannieuwenhoven, 83, is charged with two counts of first-degree murder in the deaths of David Schuldtes, 25, and Ellen Matheys, 24, who were shot to death July 9, 1976, at the McClintock Park campground in the Marinette County

Town of Silver Cliff.

The case went unsolved for decades until modern DNA testing matched evidence found with Matheys' body to Vannieuwenhoven, investigators said. He was arrested in March 2018 at his Lakewood property that he and his late wife purchased more than 25 years ago.

He is currently being held at Mendota Mental Health Institute near Madison and appeared via Zoom video conferencing technology.

An updated psychological report by Anna Garcia, Ph.D., was discussed during a brief scheduling conference Monday in Marinette County Circuit Court. Garcia had concluded in March that Vannieuwenhoven was not competent to stand trial but possessed the capability to regain competence.

Defense attorney Lee Schuchart asked that his client undergo a second examination by Dr. Kevin Miller, a clinical psychologist from Green Bay. Judge James Morrison granted the request and set the Oct. 12 date to hearing testimony about both doctors' reports.

The judge also ordered the defendant to appear in person at that hearing.

School bus drivers in short supply

In COVID-19 era, Oconto Falls among several districts scrambling for help

By WARREN BLUHM

News Editor

Oconto Falls needs school bus drivers.

Finding people to get behind the wheel of one of the district's yellow buses has been a huge obstacle during an already challenging new year of social distancing precautions, Superintendent Dean Hess told the school board Sept. 19.

"We are drastically short of bus drivers," Hess said.

About seven drivers left before the start of the new year, he said. Some had already been contemplating retirement as they grew older, and concerns about driving during the COVID-19 era tipped the scales.

The district is not alone; Hess said he's found other districts are having trouble finding and keeping drivers, as are local private companies that provide transportation for schools.

Information about the positives of serving the community as a school bus driver – and how to apply for a job – have been posted on social media and elsewhere, he said.

Athletic director Jerry Moynihan said he and other coaches are going through the process of obtaining a school bus operator's license.

The bus-driver shortage is one of several COVID-19-related topics that were discussed at the Sept. 19 meeting:

- Significant professional development training has been underway as teachers and other staff work on making a smooth transition to the new schedule, Hess said. Classes are being held in person four days a week, with Wednesdays devoted to synchronous online learning while school buildings undergo a deep cleaning. The district is also serving about 150 families who opted to have their students in synchronous learning full time.

"It's an understatement to say people are going above and beyond," he said, reading part of a letter from a parent who was happy that her daughter "felt like part of the class" using the new remote-learning system.

- About 100 middle school students have been participating in fall sports since the board lifted a suspension on those activities Sept. 2, said Jon Dunks, middle school athletic director.

"They're happy to have some sort of normalcy in their lives."

Moynihan said some changes generated by the COVID-19 pandemic have been positive, including the first two high school cross-country meets hosted by Oconto Falls in 11 years.

Others are likely to disappoint people, including limits on spectators. Volleyball games will be limited to two family members per athlete who must be registered ahead of time.

"There will be no charge to get in, but you have to be on our list," Moynihan said. Junior varsity team members will not be allowed to stay and watch the varsity team play.

Football game attendance will be limited to four spectators per athlete, and they have to sit together at some distance from other groups of four.

Bands, cheerleaders, dance teams and large choirs are prohibited. Moynihan said the administration is planning a cheer/dance showcase at ST Paper Stadium on Oct. 1, possibly with another school district participating, and they're working to find a date for an outside band concert as well.

- The number of positive tests continues to climb among Oconto County residents. Hess said he'd been told the average of new cases in the county had been about four per day at the beginning of August, and the average had climbed to nine a day by mid-September.

The first two weeks of school brought seven cases that required quarantine among staff members and four among students, Hess said. Another 61 students were quarantined because they had been in close contact with people with COVID-19, and 27 were quarantined while awaiting test results.

Suspect arrested in fake cop incidents

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

Oconto County authorities were holding an Oconto Falls man in connection with incidents involving the impersonation of a firefighter or other first responder.

The Oconto County Sheriff's Office said the suspect, 28, had been located and taken into custody on Sept. 14.

On the evening of Sept. 11, sheriff's dispatchers received a call that the driver of a suspicious vehicle was stopping cars and attempting to obtain driver information. The suspect had a beard and glasses and was wearing jeans and a yellow traffic safety vest.

The man is expected make an initial appearance in Oconto County Circuit Court early this week.

Water levels start to recede slowly

U.S. Army Corps of Engineers officials report despite seasonal declines, Great Lakes water levels remain high as fall storms approach.

"The Corps of Engineers urges anyone impacted by high water levels last fall to prepare for similar or worse impacts in the coming months," Detroit District Great Lakes Hydraulics and Hydrology Office Chief John Allis said.

The Corps' Detroit District is responsible for monitoring, forecasting, collecting and disseminating Great Lakes water level information. For the most up-to-date Great Lakes water level information, visit the district's website at www.lre.usace.army.mil/Missions/Great-Lakes-Information.

Fall and early winter months typically bring some of the strongest Great Lakes region storms.

"Even though lake levels are declining, this active weather can potentially bring tremendous impacts to coastlines, including erosion and coastal flooding," Allis said.

Lake Michigan-Huron and Lake St. Clair set new monthly mean record high water levels in August. Lake Michigan-Huron's previous August record was in 1986. Lake St. Clair surpassed last year's record high.

Water levels on lakes Michigan-Huron, St. Clair, Erie and Ontario declined during August and are expected to continue declining throughout the fall.

For information about Great Lakes high water, emergency management or the permit process, visit the Detroit District website at www.lre.usace.army.mil/About/Great-Lakes-High-Water. The site includes information about how to protect property and investments along the coast and related Corps programs and authorities.

Part of County Road Y was closed in the town of Little River earlier this year due to high water.

Fall activities to manage plant disease

This has been a relatively strong plant disease year, again. High, consistent humidity levels in July and fairly consistent rainfall events in June, July and early August led to many fungal diseases having banner years. As the end of the garden season approaches, we can actually do some things in fall to make a big difference in the severity or likelihood of diseases affecting our plants next year.

In general, cleaning up plant debris and checking your plants for problems should be done in the fall for a whole host of reasons — including aesthetics, insect management, plant disease management and compliance with local regulations, in a few cases. On the flip side, going overboard and getting rid of all plant debris can hurt beneficial and native insect populations and reduce winter hardiness of perennials. Balancing competing interests is something that gardeners need to do for themselves.

Conserving overwintering habitat for native insects is a focus of an article in the September 2020 issue of the “Northwoods Journal,” available free at the Marinette County Land Information Department website. The rest of this article will focus on garden plant disease management; if you want to discuss your management practices and how they may impact either beneficial or deleterious insects, fungi or other issues, contact Scott Reuss, Marinette County agriculture/horticulture agent. He can be reached at scott.

SCOTT REUSS

reuss@wisc.edu or through the Marinette office of UW-Madison, Division of Extension, in the courthouse, at 715-732-7510.

In general, it is a very good idea to clean up plant debris from plants that were infected with plant diseases. Roots are seldom affected, so you can cut plants off just above the soil line and let the roots decay naturally, adding organic matter and positive fungi to the soil. We can focus on removing leaves, stem, fruit or other visible tissues that were infected. The following are the most common disease issues on which to concentrate on different plant types.

In the vegetable garden, the two most notable diseases to try to fight now are tomato and potato septoria leaf spot and early blight, and white mold, most commonly found on beans, but can infect many other vegetables. Septoria and early blight were particularly severe this year in most locales. These fungal leaf spots affect leaves, stems and occasionally fruit of tomato and potato, but also eggplant and pepper. Very thorough removal of above-ground material can help slow the diseases down next year, but you will also want to rotate garden location of these plants; use mulch to minimize soil to leaf contact; go vertical with trellises; and watch for disease presence and consider strategies if found.

Septoria/early blight can overwinter on any infected material left in the garden. White mold is a little bit more particular, as this disease forms sclerotia inside of affected plant stems/branches. These sclerotia look a lot like large mouse droppings and act similar to seeds. When conditions are right next year, they grow tissue that produces spores which start the disease cycle in susceptible plants. If you found white, fuzzy growth on any beans, peppers, potatoes or other plants, you will want to make sure to get rid of that material prior to next year.

Tree fruit diseases to consider fighting now are scab of apple/pear/crabapple; brown rot of stone fruits; and leaf spot of cherries. Scab is particularly tricky to clean up, in that it is a disease that affects both fruit and leaves. Thus, you need to make sure to remove all leaves from the tree production area, as well as make sure there are no “mummy fruits” left on the tree.

In small fruits, all of them can be impacted by leaf spotting diseases, so these are worth some work. Raspberries need some extra attention, though, as they are heavily impacted by a trio of diseases that affect the canes. Again, 2020 has been a bad year for those diseases. Make sure to remove all dead canes, as they are often a source of disease inoculum. Also examine young canes and remove any that have dead areas already, or that have flaking material or numbers of purple spots.

Perennial flower plants also were impacted by a number of diseases in 2020. Plants which had foliar or stem issues should be cut off at ground level, or higher if you have examined the stems closely and are sure that there is no disease presence on material you are leaving. Species to particularly examine closely this fall include lilies, iris, peonies, salvia and coneflowers. One extra for the coneflower family is to look for eriophyid mite-affected flowers and cut them off. Eriophyid mites cause misshapen flowers with unusual spiking, incomplete petal formation and other symptoms. On shade trees, there are less severe concerns, but tar spot on maples; anthracnose on ash, oak and maple; and possible other leaf spots may be worth paying some attention to in your leaf removal practices.

Whatever plant material you have removed, diseased material truly needs to have long-distance or complete removal. Consider taking it to the municipal compost instead of your own compost, or manage separate compost piles that you use on very different types of plants and at greater distances. Burning of some debris may make sense, or burying of smaller amounts.

If in doubt, now is a good time to make sure what type of disease or insect affected your plants. Contact Reuss for help with diagnosing the issue and coming up with a management plan for next year.

Oconto Falls School Board to return to video

Some meetings attracted 200-plus viewers

By WARREN BLUHM
News Editor

Livestream coverage of Oconto Falls School Board meetings will probably resume, after several members of the public expressed an interest.

The public had access to live video of board meetings from late March through July, when the board was meeting via Zoom video conferencing technology because of COVID-19 concerns. The live feed ended when the board returned to gathering in person.

The Aug. 17, Sept. 2 and Sept. 14 meetings were held in the high school auditorium with social distancing measures in place: The board met on stage at desks spaced at least six feet apart; every other seat in the auditorium was blocked with yellow caution tape; and all participants and observers were required to wear face masks.

Superintendent Dean Hess told board members Sept. 14 that he had fielded about a half-dozen inquiries from district residents asking that the video feed be continued.

“When we were doing live streaming, it wasn’t uncommon to have 200-plus people who were joining in and viewing our board meetings,” Hess said, comparing that with the dozen or so spectators scattered around the auditorium, most of whom were district personnel.

At one point during the July 29 meeting, when the board was deciding on a return-to-school plan for the fall, the Times Herald noted that YouTube listed 246 viewers were watching the live feed.

“I would say the positive side to that is we are constantly trying to reach out and communicate,” Hess said. “It’s very evident (that with live coverage) there’s a lot more people walking away knowledgeable as to the various things that you as a board are discussing and taking action on.”

The board did agree that the public comment portion of the meetings should be done face to face. About 75 minutes of that July 29 meeting was devoted to reading letters that had been submitted by community members, students and staff.

Hess said he will work with staff to set up a video feed for future meetings. The board usually meets at 6:30 p.m. on the second Tuesday of the month, with occasional special meetings.

OBITUARIES

On Sept. 14, 2020, after a very courageous battle with Multiple Myeloma, Neil "Jim" E. Herning, 75, of Suring, passed away surrounded by his family. He was born April 12, 1945, to the late Edward and Eva (Slimmer) Herning. Shortly after birth, his sister Ora Lee decided that he didn't look like a "Neil" and quickly declared his name to be "Jim" and the name stuck for the rest of his life. Jim graduated from Suring High School with the Class of 1963 and shortly after enlisted in the United States Air Force and proudly served his country from 1963 to 1967. He spent time in the Philippines while serving and would often talk about the experiences he had there. The story about the huge snake that took a dozen men to lift and carry away from the barracks was a favorite of his. When he was honorably discharged, he came home and met a beautiful young lady and on March 1, 1969, he married the love of his life, Sandra McMahon. Making a good life for her and their son was always a top priority for Jim, and for 41 years he worked for the Oconto County Highway Department, retiring on Feb. 19, 2009. Jim enjoyed spending time outdoors with his family, and he and Sandy taught Scott to also enjoy camping, hunting, fishing and trail riding. They spent many summers traveling to campgrounds and seeing the country. He loved living close to all the trails that were available to him and the family so much that many weekends he could be found giving trail rides to all of the kids, both big and small. Jim thought it was important that all of his grandsons were taught proper gun safety and respect, so when they were old enough to go deer hunting they always sat with Grandpa their first couple years and learned many invaluable life lessons. Jim led by quiet example. His son and grandsons learned how to be good men by watching how he treated others, especially Sandy. He was always eager to help when needed and usually without having to be asked. Jim had many stories and was never too busy to spend time laughing with friends and family. He enjoyed looking into his family's genealogy and was able to go back many generations of his family tree. He also enjoyed working on guns in his free time and was a gunsmith for many years. People brought their guns to him to be repaired, and they were always happy with what he was able to do for them.

There are many things that could be said about Jim, but the most important is that he loved his life, his wife and his family, and he cherished the time that he had with all of them. He was a gentle giant of a man who looked intimidating but was wonderfully kind to those he loved. He had huge hands that were soft and gentle when he held his loved ones, especially his grandchildren and his great-grandson. He will be greatly missed by his loving wife of 51 years, Sandra of Suring; son, Scott (Sue) Herning of Suring; sister, Ora Lee (John) Reindl of Suring; three grandsons, Cole (Danielle) Herning, Tyler Herning and Jerid Herning and great-grandson, Asher Herning. He is further survived by nieces, nephews, other relatives and friends. He was preceded in death by his parents and a nephew, Dean Schulz. A memorial service will be held at Gruetzmacher Funeral Home at a later date. The service will be announced when the dates are available. Gruetzmacher Funeral Home is assisting the family with arrangements. Online condolences can be expressed at www.gruetzmacherfuneralhome.com.

Special thanks to the staffs of St. Vincent Hospital, the Oncology Department at St. Clare Hospital and Unity Hospice for the care and compassion offered to Jim and his family during their time of need.

In lieu of flowers, a memorial fund has been established.

James "Jim" Magnin, 85, Oconto Falls, died Friday evening, Sept. 11, 2020, at St. Clare Memorial Hospital. He was born June 12, 1935, in Oconto Falls, the oldest child of Elmer and Ruth "Tommy" (Kilmer) Magnin. Jim grew up on the family farm in the Town of Stiles where he learned to work hard, have fun and the meaning of family. He attended Oconto Falls Public Schools, graduating from high school with the Class of 1953. Following graduation, Jim served in the National Guard for four years.

On Nov. 13, 1954, he married Dolores Delano in Oconto Falls, and they had eight children together. Jim started as a self-employed semi-truck milk hauler before driving cross-country for Frigo Cheese until 1969. He then went to work for Drews Trucking in Oconto Falls until 1976 when he started driving for Klemm Tank Lines for over 30 years. Following retirement, he returned to driving for Klemm as he didn't like to sit still. Along with other community members and his wife, Jim helped organize the Oconto Falls Youth Wrestling and Panther Backer Clubs as well as volunteered for the local snowmobile races for many years. He was a lifelong member of the Oconto Falls United Methodist Church. "Big Jim," as he was known by those close to him, will be fondly remembered for his dedicated driving skills for safety all while being easy on the equipment during the millions of miles he drove. His outgoing personality as well as the love and pride he had for his large family and many friends will long be remembered.

Survivors are his seven children, Cheryl "Maggie" Primeau, Beaver Dam; Ronald (Cindy) Magnin, Lena; Terry (Lisa) Magnin, David "Bear" (Lori) Magnin, all of Oconto Falls; Laurie "Peanut" (Tom) Graef, Lena; twins Jerry (Shelly) Magnin, De Pere; Jimmy (Lisa) Magnin, Luxemburg; one daughter-in-law, Theresa Magnin, Green Bay; 16 grandchildren, 11 great-grandchildren; one brother, Jack (Marilyn) Magnin, Stiles; one sister, Carol Kersten, De Pere; his brothers-in-law and sisters-in-law, Pat Magnin, Oconto Falls; Steve (Lin) Delano, Mesquite, Nevada; Lois Dugre and Marilyn Nunnally, both of Florida; many nieces and nephews. Collared deer legal to harvest during fall deer seasons

During the 2020 hunting season, hunters may spot deer that are equipped with radio collars. Collared deer are part of a mortality study by the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources, and they are legal to hunt with a standard Wisconsin hunting license and harvest authorization.

The DNR Office of Applied Science is conducting a long-term mortality study called the Southwest Wisconsin Chronic Wasting Disease, Deer and Predator Study. Researchers are investigating factors like CWD, predation and hunter harvest, and what degree these affect survivorship in deer. The project crew has put GPS collars on almost 850 deer across the southwest region of the state.

Deer that are collared as part of the Southwest Wisconsin CWD, Deer and Predator Study are legal to harvest. Standard licensing and harvest regulations apply to collared deer, just as they do to uncollared deer.

Online auction marketplace caters to local residents

Pickup site is in Oconto Falls

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

Two Oconto Falls natives have established an online auction marketplace aimed specifically at residents in and around their hometown.

WiscoBid.com allows customers to bid for items online but pick them up locally in Oconto Falls.

"It's all the fun of eBay, with no shipping fee and high-interest items picked specially for local Wisconsin residents," said Kyle Piper, who established WiscoBid.com with Nolan O'Connell. "Registering to bid is free, and every item on WiscoBid.com starts the bidding at just $1 with no reserves."

O'Connell has previous business experience running the online bidding for a large auction company in Green Bay. Piper is the grandson of longtime Oconto Falls residents, the late Audrey and Earl Piper.

Nolan O'Connell and Kyle Piper of Oconto Falls have established WiscoBid.com, an online auction marketplace designed for local residents.

CONTRIBUTED

"My grandma was pretty much the queen of auctions and rummage sales in Oconto Falls for many years," Piper said. "My interest in buying and selling totally comes from her."

Online auctions are one of the fastest growing industries today, especially in the wake of COVID-19 concerns, Piper said.

"We were going to wait until the virus situation was gone [to launch WiscoBid.com], but with people not traveling as much, they are looking for new and interesting ways to shop from home," he said.

The first items are up for auction now on the easy-to-navigate website. Each auction will have a pickup day assigned at the start of the auction. The pickup location is on Main Street in Oconto Falls.

O'Connell said the partners plan to offer items in a wide variety of categories.

"Each auction is unique. We try to have a large variety of items on each auction so there will be something for everyone," O'Connell said. "We also plan to add in some smaller item auctions, such as sports collectibles and even Pokémon."

WiscoBid.com also plans to take in consignment items. For information, contact WiscoBid.com through their website.

Halloween pumpkins are ready

HIGH SCHOOL GOLF

Sadowski leads Oconto Falls in pair of NEC meets

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

Oconto Falls High School senior Kaylee Sadowski led the girls golf team in a pair of North Eastern Conference meets at River Island Golf Course in Oconto Falls last week.

Sadowski posted a nine-hole round of 45 during a meet Sept. 17. That day, Oconto Falls finished with a team score of 215, behind Wrightstown (189) and Marinette (208).

Carli Fischer and Kate Pytleski each shot rounds of 56 for the Panthers, while Morgan Blazek carded a 58. Kearra Champeau was Oconto Falls' other golfer, tallying a 65.

Oconto Falls earned a team score of 222 to top Denmark (228) and Denmark (235) in a Sept. 14 meet.

Sadowski posted a nine-hole round of 50, which placed her first as an individual.

"I am beyond happy with our team; we are exceeding our goals, along with myself," said Sadowski. "This summer has really paid off because I was on a course as much as possible — along with practicing every day — has helped a substantial amount to exceeding my goals in meets."

Pytleski and Blazek each fired rounds of 56 for Oconto Falls. Champeau (60) and Fischer (66) filled out the five-golfer team.

HIGH SCHOOL VOLLEYBALL

Oconto Falls hoping experience leads to success

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The Oconto Falls High School volleyball team has several experienced players on its roster this fall, and the team is hoping that will help lead it to a successful fall season.

The Panthers finished 24-18 a season ago, but finished just 3-6 in the North Eastern Conference. Oconto Falls, which is coached by Rochell Otto, lost both of its all-conference players from that team, but it still has plenty of returning talent.

Seniors Jayden Arndt (middle hitter), Amelia Rice (outside hitter) and Abby Remic (back row specialist) all started last year and will do so again this fall while also serving as leaders for the rest of the team.

Juniors Emmie Magnin (middle hitter), Karlie Kowalczyk (back row specialist) and Hailey Peitersen (setter) also return with starting experience on their side. Senior Kaitlyn St. Louis (outside hitter) also has varsity experience and will figure into the team's lineup.

Among the players that will also try and secure roles for the team are juniors Paige Applebee (outside

Oconto Falls hosted Marinette two times during the first week of the regular season, winning both matchups convincingly.

In the Sept. 17 match that counted toward the NEC standings, the Panthers won by scores of 25-11, 25-9, 25-9.

Arndt finished with a team-leading 13 attack kills, while Rice had eight and Peitersen six. Peitersen also recorded 28 assists. Kowalczyk and Rice led the team with six digs each.

Oconto Falls rolled to a 25-4, 25-13, 25-7 sweep of Marinette on Saturday, a match that was considered nonconference.

Arndt finished with nine attack kills, while Magnin added five. Peitersen contributed four aces, 20 assists and six digs, with Kowalczyk leading the team with nine digs. Eisch also finished with six digs.
