Judge reelected while referendums rejected

Mayors win another term as school board presidents out

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

The Oconto Falls and Gillett school districts will have to go back to the drawing board after referendum questions failed, and two long-time school board presidents were sent packing in the April 5 spring election in Oconto County.

Judge Jay Conley was elected to a third six-year term with 73.4% of the vote over his challenger, District Attorney Edward Burke, in a rematch of the 2010 race when Conley was first elected.

Oconto Falls School District voters rejected a $49.9 million referendum question to build a new middle school and make improvements to the district's other three schools. Fifty-five percent of city voters favored approval, but it wasn't enough to overcome a strong rural "no" vote.

The district must consider asking voters for a smaller package in November that may focus on replacing aging Washington Middle School. Opponents of the referendum waged a social media campaign in the days leading up to the vote, some saying the question should have focused only on the $31 million middle school project and others questioning the administration.

In the Oconto Falls School Board election, recently appointed board member Sarah Schindel earned a full three-year term along with newcomer Chad Earley. Board president Ron Leja finished fourth on the four-person field, losing his seat after more than 30 years on the board.

Suring School Board president Wayne Sleeter also lost to challenger Rhonda Stuart after a winter shadowed by allegations that Superintendent Kelly Casper directed students caught vaping to strip to their underwear in a search for contraband. Sleeter has been on the board for 21 years.

The Gillett School District lost its effort to exceed state-imposed revenue limits for another three years by $450,000 annually. Voters in the city of Gillett favored the question by 53% to 47%, but rural voters rejected it by the same margin.

Oconto Falls Mayor Brad Rice defeated former Alderman Kevin Rusch by a 2-1 margin. Rice has been mayor of the city since 2012.

Gillett Mayor Josh McCarthy won a second full two-year term over former mayor and city council member Irene Drake. McCarthy was appointed mayor in October 2019 and won a full term the following April.

The Oconto County Board will have 13 new faces after the district maps were redrawn following the 2020 U.S. Census. Nine supervisors chose not to run for reelection, Supervisor Dick Doeren died in February, and three supervisors — Al Stranz, Kenneth Linzmeyer and Diane Nichols — were defeated. A 14th incumbent, Leonard Wahl, finished third in a February primary in District 9 behind Stranz and eventual winner Jolene Barkhaus.

Bridger honored with community service award

Veterans advocate Clyde Bridger is the recipient of the 2022 Harold P. Heckendorf Community Service Award from NEW Credit Union.

In addition to a plaque, Bridger would have received a $250 check, and the charity of his choice would also receive a check of $250. He decided to send the whole $500 to the charity of his choice, Little Hearts for Life Inc.

Bridger is a life member of the American Legion, VFW and AMVETS in Oconto as well as the DAV in Oconto Falls. Up until his 86th birthday, he carried the American flag in all local parades and was Legion finance officer for four years. At age 90, he still commands the firing squad for military funerals.

He was born June 23, 1931, in Oconto to Raymond and Evelyn (Shallow) Bridger, attending St. Joseph's Grade School and Oconto High School.

Four days after graduating in 1949, Bridger was in the Air Force. He spent the next 20 years in the Air Force with assignments in Japan, Pakistan, Germany and Vietnam, as well as three years with the National Security Agency in Washington, D.C., and at five of their bases in Texas. From the beginning, Bridger's work required a Top Secret/Code Word clearance. He retired in July 1969 with 22 years' service, having served two years in the Army National Guard while in high school. He retired with the rank of major.

Bridger married twice and survives them both. He and his first wife, Lola, married in 1951 had two sons, William and Robert. With his second wife, Arlene, married in 1988, he also became stepfather to her four sons — Bruce, Randy, Scott and David Retzlaff. Bridger also has two granddaughters, William's children Stephanie and Amanda.

Every Memorial Day, he and Barbara Hager put up 155 flags on the iron fence along the river in Oconto. When vandals spray-painted the Legion's Army tank, Bridger spearheaded the project to get it repainted and install a fence around it. He also took it upon himself to get the trees and branches removed that threatened to fall on ancient, irreplaceable veteran gravestones at Evergreen Cemetery, eliciting funds from Oconto veterans organizations to do so. When extra help is needed, he also drives veterans to VA medical facility appointments.

Working with the Commission on Aging Transportation Program, Bridger drives many area elderly persons to and from medical appointments, on average about three times per week. Although the pandemic lessened the scope of the program, he still drove over 5,000 miles in 2021.

In the early 1990s when many of the septic systems along the bay shore were condemned, it created an impossible situation for the persons residing there. Bridger conceived the idea of a sanitary district with the effluent going to the Oconto Sewage Plant. Along with getting those affected interested in this idea, he also worked with the mayor of Oconto and the Department of Natural Resources. The DNR required three separated districts, thus the Little River, Oconto and Pensaukee Sanitary Districts were formed.

Obtaining support from local veterans organizations, the Oconto County Board, city council, Lions Club, Kiwanis and the Elks Club, Bridger spent almost two years corresponding with and attending meetings with state personnel to get the U.S. Highway 41 bridge over the Oconto River named for PFC Valentine Warrichait, the only Oconto-area soldier killed in Korea. He traveled to Madison and met with Gov. Scott Walker when he signed the legislation into law.

Bridger's hobbies include playing pickle ball at the Bond Center five days a week if his schedule permits, and he also keeps his mind active with crossword and Sudoku puzzles, but admits his favorite pastime is a good nap. Even though he has reached his 90th birthday, he intends to "keep on keeping on" as long as he can help somebody.

Fisheries biologist Brent Ritter plants a PIT tag into a Great Lakes spotted musky fingerling.

Muskies have new home in Shawano Lake

Fish stocking goes high-tech with insertion of PIT tags

By GREG SEUBERT
Correspondent

An electronic device the size of a grain of rice is helping fisheries officials monitor recently stocked muskies in Shawano Lake.

Crews from the state Department of Natural Resources stocked 2,500 Great Lakes spotted musky fingerlings last fall. The fish were collected as eggs in May from the Fox River in De Pere, spent the next five months at the Wild Rose State Fish Hatchery and now have a new home in Shawano Lake.

"We've been stocking muskies into Shawano Lake for quite a while now," said Jason Breeggemann, a fisheries biologist based at the DNR's Shawano office. "Stocking is a way that we're able to sustain the population. Every other year, we stock about 2,500 of these large fingerling muskies in Shawano Lake."

Breeggemann was part of a team that headed to the hatchery in October to prepare the fish for stocking. Shawano Lake received 1,500 fish that averaged 11 inches in length Oct. 21 and 1,000 more the following day.

Ready for stocking

The process included installing tiny electronic devices called passive integrated transponders, or PIT tags.

"It's a small microchip tag," Breeggemann said. "We have a small, hollow needle and we embed it just under the skin of the fish. We scan them with a barcode scanner that activates that number. Every single fish that leaves the hatchery today will have a tag that has its own unique, identifiable number. Ten years from now, we can track that fish back to the exact date it was tagged, when it was stocked and things like that."

Each person working on the project had a job, including measuring fish, recording information and inserting PIT tags.

"We try to streamline it the best we can to minimize the stress on the fish," said Joe Gaber, the hatchery's fish culture biologist. "The shorter amount of time we keep them knocked out and handled, the better. Each person has their specific duty to do just to get those fish back in a tank."

Breeggemann said there's a good reason for stocking the fish in the fall.

"It's mostly to maximize their size, so they get to be as large as they can before we stock them," he said. "We don't typically keep them overwinter in the hatcheries. When the water temps cool off, they don't really grow anymore and we don't have anywhere to put them."

"They handle it really well with this cooler 50-degree water," Gaber said. "If we were to do this when it's 70 degrees out, they don't do quite as well. That's another reason for waiting until fall to handle them."

The fish were raised in a building at the hatchery before being transferred to ponds.

"They grow really fast, 11 inches in five months," Gaber said. "It's all temperature-based, so the warmer the temperature, the faster they grow."

"We collect them out of the ponds and use AQUIS to anesthetize them a little bit," Breeggemann said. "We inject a PIT tag in them, measure them and we also give them a fin clip to note their stocking origin in case they lose their tag. We still know they are from a stocked fishery. We put them in a tank to recover and then they're going to go into a truck and up to Shawano."

"We're trying to manage for about 600 adults or so. It has some good growth potential. We've caught muskies up to 50 inches in our surveys. Habitat, size and forage all contribute toward making it a good fishery."

JASON BREEGEMANN, fisheries biologist based at the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resource's Shawano office

“It definitely fills in a gap for some of the issues that we have with some of the natural populations.”

JOE GABER, fish culture biologist at the Wild Rose State Fish Hatchery

The Great Lakes spotted strain is the native strain for the Lake Michigan basin, Breeggemann said.

“Shawano Lake is connected to the Wolf River, which drains down into the Winnebago System,” he said. “It’s part of the overall Great Lakes watershed. We are trying to stock the native genetic strain to the basin. That’s why we’re stocking the Great Lakes spotted fish: it’s the watershed that we’re in.”

Dark spots make Great Lakes spotted muskies look a little different than other muskies, which often have vertical stripes.

“They’re just a different genetic strain of musky,” Breeggemann said. “Muskies do have different coloring patterns. You’ll even see variations within a genetic strain.”

Quality fishery

Shawano Lake covers more than 6,200 acres and has a varied fishery that also includes northern pike, walleye, largemouth bass, smallmouth bass and panfish.

It also has a 40-inch minimum size for musky.

“It’s managed primarily as a trophy musky fishery, so we keep the density a little lower, about one fish per 10 acres of surface water,” Breeggemann said. “We’re trying to manage for about 600 adults or so. It has some good growth potential. We’ve caught muskies up to 50 inches in our surveys. Habitat, size and forage all contribute toward making it a good fishery. It’s a large lake with some nice musky habitat. It’s a popular musky fishery, so we want to provide fishing opportunities.”

Breeggemann said it’ll take several years for the fish to reach Shawano Lake’s 40-inch size limit.

“The growth rates can be highly variable,” he said. “It could be seven, eight years. It could be 10 years for some of the males.”

Fisheries biologists don’t know how many muskies leave Shawano Lake and enter the Wolf River through a narrow channel that connects the river to the lake.

“There are plenty of fish that stay in the lake to create a fishery,” Breeggemann said. “We don’t have exact data on how many of them go downstream.”

The PIT tags will help answer that question. The DNR’s Shawano team has used the tags to monitor flathead catfish in the Wolf River

Joe Gaber, fish culture biologist at the Wild Rose State Fish Hatchery, empties a net full of Great Lakes spotted muskies into a tub at the hatchery. Gaber was part of a crew that stocked 2,500 fingerlings into Shawano Lake last fall.

“We capture them 10 years later, so we can see how much they’ve grown,” Breeggemann said. “If we get enough information, we can try to estimate survival based on recaptures. We can get a lot of really good data off of them.”

“One of the things we can look at is see how many of the (Shawano Lake muskies) that we tag actually get captured downstream,” he said. “This is the first year that we’re tagging fish when they’re small. We don’t really have any data to really know how many of them move around.”

Besides being caught by anglers, the DNR also captures muskies during netting or electrofishing surveys.

“We scan them for these PIT tags,” Breeggemann said. “We do have adults that we’ve caught out there in previous surveys that are tagged. If they don’t have a tag in them, we’ll give them a tag out in the lake when we’re doing our surveys.”

A new home

Instead of releasing the muskies at a boat landing, the fish were taken out into Shawano Lake and released near their preferred habitat.

“It’ll take a little getting used to,” Gaber said. “They’ve never seen a weed before. They’re used to these rubber-lined ponds. One good thing about boat stocking is you can put them over that prime habitat and get them away from the shoreline and other predators.”

Breeggemann said the fish will learn to adapt in order to survive.

“They have to. Otherwise, they’ll get eaten,” he said. “A bigger musky or large pike could potentially eat them, but they seem to adapt quickly.”

“They tend to stick around for a while,” Gaber said. “Give them a week and they’ll find their own place to call home.”

State-operated hatcheries and stocking programs provide more opportunities for anglers, Breeggemann said. Gaber said.

“Without stocking, we wouldn’t have a musky fishery in Shawano Lake,” Breeggemann said. “There’s no known or very little musky reproduction out there, so we use hatcheries and stocking to provide a nice, quality musky fishery in a situation where it wouldn’t exist otherwise.”

“It definitely fills in a gap for some of the issues that we have with some of the natural populations,” Gaber said. “It fills a niche that needs to be filled to provide that opportunity for more fishermen and help re-establish some of these natural populations like our lake sturgeon program.”

Shawano plans new TIF for downtown area

Part of downtown plaza, Huckleberry Harbor projects included in TIF District 9

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

The city of Shawano is planning a new tax increment finance district for the downtown area to replace the one expiring later this year.

The Shawano Plan Commission voted March 30 to recommend approval of the boundaries for TIF District 9 to the Shawano Common Council, which would include properties along and near Main Street from the city's northern border to Oshkosh Street.

"Tax increment financing is our primary economic development tool that we utilize in the city," said Ed-die Sheppard, city administrator. "In order to do that, we need to establish these boundaries, and there are a number of tests they have to go through, a number of things we have to create to make sure we can spend those funds within the district."

Much of the proposed new TIF district is currently part of TIF District 4, which has been used to help rehabilitate businesses and make improvements. The expenditure period for TIF District 4 ends Sept. 30.

"We've been pretty strategic with creating this district," Sheppard said. "We've outlined some areas that have already been improved, so they're not included, but we've included primarily the downtown area in which we intend to make funding available for future development."

Included in TIF District 9 is $300,000 of the proposed $2.5 million plaza project planned south of Division Street, $200,000 for the new boat dock planned for Huckleberry Harbor and $600,000 for a revolving loan fund. In the future, the city plans to create development incentives totaling more than $2.7 million.

The district will be considered a rehabilitation and conservation district, according to John Cameron, a consultant with Ehlers Public Finance Advisors based in Waukesha. In order for the district to be established, at least 50% of the properties in the boundaries have to have the potential for rehabilitation, which Cameron said the city met the criteria.

When a TIF district is created, the taxes for the established property value go to their standard entities, which include Shawano County, Shawano School District and the technical college district, but the taxes for any increase in value from resulting development go to the TIF district, according to Cameron.

"We're estimating, over the district's 27-year life, approximately $15.1 million in new taxable value within the district," Cameron said.

The hard debt for the district could be paid off as early as 2035, according to Cameron.

TIF districts have been a benefit to the city as various projects have taken place. Sheppard noted that many of the downtown projects were made possible by TIF District 4, and the recent TIF District 7 was able to bring out Belmark, 200 apartments through S.C. Swiderski, and the relocation of Reinhart's, now known as Performance Food-service.

"In the downtown, a lot of our projects are smaller, storefront-type deals that we've been doing through the RDA (Redevelopment Authority) to help some business come in and reinvest a bunch of money to do a building that might have to be torn down," Sheppard said, noting that the Cornerstone Chiropractic project done a couple of years ago was an example. "Main Street needs to be touched up on the public side."

Mayor Bruce Milavitz said he supported the idea of a revolving loan fund being put in place to help new and existing businesses locate to Shawano.

"Who knows what's out there for people to expand or bring their businesses or build or whatnot," Milavitz said. "I think it's going to be an open palette here."

Board urged not to cut staff, programs

Community packs library to urge support of teachers, finding solution to loss of students

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Parents, students and community members spent nearly an hour April 4 urging the Shawano School Board to listen to the people they serve, to find cuts somewhere other than teachers and support staff to close a $2 million budget gap, and to stop initiating new programs that are going to cost the district money until the budget is balanced.

Over 100 people packed the library at Shawano Community High School, and with each speaker delivering a different message, the applause emboldened people to speak out about what some consider to be an atmosphere of mistrust in the schools.

Megan Pyaskowit told the board that spending needed to be halted until there was a full account from the administration on how the district found itself in the red. By continuing to spend on new programs and Apple equipment, she said the board is sending the message that things are more important than people.

"I would point out that there have not been efforts to recover our open-enrolled students. Why not?" Pyaskowit said. "I am not willing to accept any downsizing, because that is what 'right-sizing' really is, unless a real assessment is made of our enrollment and an effort is made to reclaim our students."

Chris Marcks, who'd previously worked at the district office in human resources, noted that a lot of students are going to neighboring districts or the parochial schools, adding she opted to keep her son, who is in kindergarten, at Sacred Heart Catholic School after the teacher she'd hoped to pair him with left the school district shortly before the school year began.

Marcks said that there are 74 students from Shawano in the Menominee Indian School District, contradicting a claim by officials with that district in March that the number was 88. She said there are also 25 students with the Gresham School District and that Bonduel is "maxed out" on its open enrollment numbers, with the bulk of them from Shawano and Pulaski. St. James Lutheran School has a waiting list for some grades, Marcks claimed, and the Wolf River Home-schoolers have welcomed 25 new families in the last two years.

Jackson Smits, a senior at Shawano Community High School, speaks to the Shawano School Board about the importance of teachers and programs in the district during the April 4 board meeting. use this

"It's easy to say that it's going down all over the state," Marcks said about enrollment. "Well, our little neck of the woods, it's going up — everywhere but here. So what's going on?"

Betsy Henning, a teacher at LEADS Primary Charter School, remembered that, when she started her teaching career in Marion, Shawano School District was the place to be for education in the area. Then in 2008, she got her opportunity to be part of the local schools.

"This already was a destination district," Henning said, pointing out the charter school, the performing arts programs and other things that made people want to enroll their children in Shawano.

Shawano is no longer that crown jewel she saw two decades ago, she noted. Initiatives are rolling out so fast, it makes it difficult for teachers to keep up, and it seems like the district is being reactive instead of proactive, dismissing the concerns of teachers, even as they are leaving Shawano in greater numbers.

"Resignation letters are thrown into a pile, and they get a 'If you don't like it, leave' attitude," Henning said, noting she plans to also leave, even though she had planned to work in the district until retirement.

Kris Going, a literacy coach at Hillcrest Primary School, noted she has taught with the district for nearly 30 years, and she asked last October about early retirement because of what she described as a "toxic environment."

"I was told that would be in the best interest of the district financially to do that and that it would be presented to the board," Going said. "That hurt. It still hurts."

Jackson Smits, a senior at SCHS, noted that every teacher and every program in the district has some level of importance. He is the senior class president and will graduate a valedictorian, and he noted that he would not be where he is without the opportunities that have been offered.

"I, myself, am a puzzle of many pieces — music, athletics, academics — pieced together by our phenomenal teachers and staff," Smits said. "Not every puzzle that walks our halls is the same. Many of them are made of pieces of the wood shop, the arts department, machining, welding, auto shop and the list goes on."

Preston McKinnies, another SCHS student, noted he'd been home-schooled for nine years before enrolling in the high school as a freshman. Even though he was in a bad place, the teachers helped him and have had a lasting impact, he said.

"While it might seem a good short-term solution to be cutting teachers, staff and programs, this district, this administration and this board is nothing without our teachers and our staff," McKinnies said.

SCHS junior Leslie Lemerond, dressed in costume for the upcoming school play that was in rehearsal as she was speaking, said the programs being cut were a benefit to her, and the teachers facing layoffs have made an impact.

"These are the people I run to when I need help," Lemerond said. "These are the places I go when I need to express myself."

Parents, children, teachers and former employees with the Shawano School District fill the sidewalks of downtown Shawano on April 2 as they walk in support of school staff and against plans to potentially cut positions to balance the 2022-23 budget, which is expected to be $2 million lower due to declining student enrollment.

Walk shows support for local teachers, staff

Supporters say they're not backing off administrators until solution found for schools crisis

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

The last gasp of winter didn't deter more than 70 parents, children and community members from a walk in support of Shawano School District teachers and staff April 2 through downtown Shawano.

Many carried signs showing their love for the educators who teach their children and their disappointment in district administrators. It was recently reported that there will be a $2 million cut in the 2022-23 schools budget, and officials listed reducing staff as one of the potential options to stop the district from hemorrhaging red ink.

For many in the crowd, it was hard to believe that the teachers who'd taught so many children were feeling demoralized, with many of them planning to leave at the end of the school year or retire early. Michael McKinnies, a local pastor with a son at Shawano Community High School, was one of the first to speak out against how district administrators were informing staff and the community about budget woes — with closing a school being one option, until recently. He said he is hopeful others will join the effort to show how valuable educators are in Shawano.

"I think the turnout is great, in spite of the weather," McKinnies said as snow was turning to sleet in the local skate park on Elizabeth Street, the starting point for the walk. "I truly believe that it shows the support that our schools and our teachers have from the community. I couldn't be more proud of what's going on today."

McKinnies believes that administrators and the Shawano School Board are slowly starting to get the message that they can't arbitrarily make decisions like staff layoffs and school closures without considering the impact on local families.

"We believe that they are hearing us," McKinnies said. "As long as we stay on topic, the board's going to hear what we have to say, and I believe they know how supportive we are to our schools and our teachers. We want what's best for them, as the board does, and so I appreciate that they're opening the tables of communication to us."

He added that board members are starting to see how important it is to include parents in the conversation, as he and others have been diligent about attending board and committee meetings. Individual board members have recently been trying to include the community conversation on agenda topics and talking with people after meetings to make sure everyone understands what's happening.

"I think it's making a difference," McKinnies said. "The big thing is we want the teachers and the community and the board to all work together for a viable solution to our financial deficit."

For McKinnies, the recent situation has also been a wake-up call to the community about what happens when they're not involved in the schools.

"I think eyes have been opened to where we're at, and a little more attention is going to be paid moving forward to our board meetings, the information that's being disseminated from those meetings and taking an active role," McKinnies said.

Sheila Aumann has recently found herself transforming into an activist after hearing that the district might close either Olga Brener Intermediate School or Shawano Community Middle School. Even though administrators have taken the option off the table in light of public outrage, Aumann feels the community should keep the pressure up to ensure transparency.

"We need real answers. We need people who really care and not just say they care," Aumann said. "Too many words and not enough action. It's been lacking. I'm a parent turned community activist in just 10 days. I don't know what happened."

Aumann said the walk and other recent things uniting community members against drastic budget cuts have shown that residents are not going to let major decisions like this go unchallenged. At the same time, she said she's dismayed that some on the school board believe the community will support whatever the administration does.

"To talk to so many board members this week, and for them to still say, 'We haven't heard that from the community,'" Aumann said. "What rock are you living under? How do you not hear it? It's bizarre."

While she finds fault with local officials for the way the budget deficit was dropped on the community, Aumann believes that the state shares some of the blame because of the way it responded to the coronavirus pandemic by shutting down schools across Wisconsin for three months and then continuing to push for schools to close when COVID-19 cases were believed to be too high.

"I think we need to take a long, hard look at how our state responded to COVID and what it's done to our schools and to our children and to our teachers," Aumann said. "Enrollment goes down, what happens? Teachers leave, but those kids still need an education. Where do they go?"

Mart Grams was the only current school board member who attended the event, often being the lone opposing vote on certain actions by the administration. He expressed disappointment in the lack of support for the event from both his fellow board members and from administrators.

Sheila Aumann, right, is among many community members who leapt to action when news first broke that a school could close in order to plug a $2 million hole in next year's Shawano School District budget. Aumann said she plans to keep asking questions and demanding answers until a solution is found.

"You'd think there'd be a principal or somebody out here. I mean, they're going to lose their jobs, too," Grams said, indicating that teachers aren't the only employees in danger of being laid off. "Luckily, we got the building (closure) taken off the list, but the next two options are worse."

The two options to which Grams alluded were to simply cut staff and increase class sizes, or cut programs like technical education, which would likely include some layoffs, as well. Grams said he felt cutting technical education would be a mistake, given the need in the workforce for more people trained in various trades and industrial skills.

"In a community like this, or anywhere in the United States, only 10% of high school kids need to go to college — the doctors, the lawyers, the teachers, the engineers," Grams said.

"If you look at tech, 60% of the kids who graduate need to go to some tech school — the plumbers, the electricians, the carpenters, the landscapers, the folks who are tearing up my road. Why would you even think (cutting technical education) is an option?"

Grams noted that board members have been in the dark on the financial situation until recently, and that it's on Superintendent Randi Anderson to keep the board informed.

"We don't get the information until she gives it to us," Grams said. "Part of her reasoning was, she claims, that she didn't want to upset the community during COVID."

While enrollment has been on the decline for Shawano's public schools for years, Grams said that was no guarantee that it would perpetually drop. With 200 apartments being built on Shawano's Engel Drive and more businesses potentially wanting to locate in the city, that means more families might bring their children here and boost enrollment, which would equate to more money for the schools.

"We look at problems after they happen instead of looking beforehand," Grams said. "We've increased the central office, but yet we're cutting teachers."

Major road work begins on Highway 32 next week

Gov. Tony Evers signed a $7.77 million contract to improve 10.1 miles of state Highway 32 from Trinity Church Road through the village of Suring to County Road AA in the Town of Breed and replace the Highway 32 bridge deck over the south branch of the Oconto River north of County M in Suring.

Construction begins April 11. A full closure of Highway 32 at the bridge also begins that day.

Work includes milling 4 inches and paving 4 inches of new asphalt and increasing the paved shoulder width by 2 feet, as the total shoulder width of 5 feet stays the same. Crews will also replace and repair culverts under Highway 32, construct a new deck surface on the rural bridge over the Oconto River located 1.4 miles north of County Road M, and other things.

Highway 32 will be closed at the bridge over the south branch of the Oconto River from April 11 to Memorial Day. This is a hard closure at the bridge, and no vehicles will be allowed to pass.

Highway 32 will be closed to through traffic between state Highway 64 and County M. Access to businesses and properties in the closed portion of Highway 32 will be maintained. Through traffic will be directed to use County Road M, state Highway 55 and Highway 64 to rejoin Highway 32.

Highway 32 will have lane closures and flagging operations for most work. Highway 32 will be fully reopened to both lanes of travel Friday afternoon to Sunday night.

The highway from Trinity Church Road to County roads M and R will be closed for two weeks in July or August. This is required for culvert and storm sewer work.

Motorists in Suring will be directed to use County Road H and County Road R.

Metal, wood artist opens shop in Oconto

Microloans foster start-ups, aid existing businesses

A young entrepreneur with carpentry skills and an artistic eye has opened a new business in Oconto. Bryce Hearley, 22, recently opened Scrap Yard Industrial Works with the aid of a $10,000 microloan from Oconto County Economic Development Corp. (OCEDC).

Hearley purchased a vacant building on Pecor Street in the City of Oconto to set up shop. He plans to turn his establishment into a metal arts and carpentry shop.

"It's going to give me a spot to really grow my business," he said.

OCEDC provides micro business loans to entrepreneurs who need extra capital to launch a business. Microloans also are available to small business owners who want to expand their existing business, purchase equipment or cover expenses.

"Qualifying for a microloan is slightly different than qualifying for a standard business loan," said Samantha Boucher, OCEDC tourism director, "plus microloans tend to cover smaller amounts and have shorter terms."

fewer than 25 employees and less than $1 million in annual sales may be eligible for a microloan.

"A number of factors are considered for eligibility, so small business owners are encouraged to contact our office to learn if they qualify for a microloan or another type of economic assistance," Boucher said.

Hearley used the microloan to help cover the down payment, giving him a place to set down roots. Before purchasing the building, he worked mostly in clients' homes or in an unheated shop behind his parents' business.

Lynn and Todd Hearley opened a coffee shop, gift boutique and art gallery in 2021. The Shop on Main is located in a historic Oconto building at 821 Main St., and Hearley helped his parents create its vintage industrial décor.

By purchasing the Pecor Street building, Hearley is able to work in a heated shop and build projects in Oconto before installing them at a client's home or business. All of his tools will be in one place, close at hand, and he'll have space to store wood and metal.

By opening Scrap Yard Industrial Works, Hearley is taking over the metal arts business (Iron Maiden Metal Art) that his mother previously operated and is adding custom carpentry to the mix. His artistic style leans toward rustic, and he expertly repurposes wood, antiques and heirlooms into something useful and, oftentimes, beautiful. Clients bring him a variety of materials to work with, including sentimental items.

Hearley said nothing's more satisfying than to see clients' smiles when they view his finished products.

"It's just nice to see people happy," he said.

No two projects are alike — Hearley recently built five walls out of reclaimed wood for a local church, did a custom "man cave" project and built bookshelves made of rustic wood and gas line-style black pipe.

For custom carpentry and metal art in Oconto County, contact Hearley at Scrap Yard Industrial Works, 920-544-3121 or brycehearley@gmail.com.

Missing man's body found in Oconto River

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

The body of an Oconto Falls man was found in the Oconto River March 31, a few hours after he was reported missing.

Oconto Falls Police Chief Brad Olsen said authorities were notified by the fiancé of Jason Samsa, 34, that he had not returned home the night before and she was concerned for his welfare. Witness reports indicated Samsa was last seen in the area of ST Paper in the woods walking towards the Oconto River.

Oconto Falls Police Department and assisting agencies conducted a search along the Oconto River from the point of Samsa's last known location and found his body in the water at about 1:52 p.m., Olsen said.

The incident remains under investigation and additional details of the incident are not being released at this time, the chief said.

Olsen said the Oconto Falls Police Department received assistance from the Oconto County Sheriff's Office, Oconto County Emergency Management, Oconto Falls Fire Department, Oconto Falls EMS, and Brown County Medical Examiner's Office.

Pilot program to support child care workers

Two divisions within the Oconto County Health and Human Services Department are collaborating to provide education to the county's child care providers.

The economic support division and public health division have created a program called Healthy Loving Environment, which is designed to support child care providers in their efforts to have safer, healthier spaces for Oconto County's children.

"The robust blend of knowledge between both departments brings diversity to the overall approach, outlook and information, as well as fresh and helpful insights shared via the HLE program," said Heather Ondik, economic support director. "In addition, the two divisions working collaboratively is a stellar way for the Oconto County Health and Human Services Department to provide concise, direct support to child care providers simultaneously across our county."

The program will educate child care providers about health hazards that could be present or could develop in child care homes and facilities and how to make healthy choices to help reduce those hazards.

"The environment children spend time in is important," Oconto County Health Officer Debra Konitzer said. "By keeping children's areas as healthy as possible, we are promoting positive effects on children's health now as well as later in life."

Healthy Loving Environment is a pilot program that will begin in April and run for six months. Providers will be contacted by the county's child care coordinator to assist them in signing up.

Rough-legged hawk easier to identify on the wing

High in the sky is a soaring bird we've trained our binoculars on studying its shape and colors as it wheels above the fields, wings widespread. It's the underside of those broad wings that seals the identification as a dark morph rough-legged Hawk.

CATHY CARNES

According to The Cornell Lab of Ornithology All About Birds website, www.allaboutbirds.org, like many hawks, the rough-legged hawk has a dark and light morph. The color pattern on the underside of the wings of the dark morph is distinctive; a band of dark brown along the forepart of the wing edged by bright white along the wing's trailing edge. On a light morph, the undersides of the wings are mostly white with only dark patches at the bend of the wing. If seen from the top or back or while perched, the bird is mostly brown.

Their legs are well feathered providing needed warmth during frigid days spent in the far north. Look at the head of the hawk to determine its sex: Females have pale heads along with dark belly patches; male coloring is similar but more mottled. It's hard to identify this hawk while perched, so wait until it flies as the striking black-and-white wing patterns will provide a vital key to its identification, as will the V-shape of its long wings in flight. Watch the tail as well; when caught by the sun, it flashes white at the base and is tipped with black.

While the birds are beautiful to see in flight with their long outstretched wings tracing lazy circles in the sky, they are intriguing to watch as they hunt. Head down, they search for prey and can exhibit another characteristic that helps with their identification — hovering. Facing into the wind they can hover over one spot while preparing for that lethal drop onto their prey. They also hunt from perches high in trees, or from the top of utility or fence posts or haystacks.

According to The Cornell Lab, they overwinter in Canada and most of the United States, where they can be found in more open habitats such as prairies, shrub steppes, semi-deserts, fields, marshes, bogs and dunes. Here they find mice, voles and shrews to eat. Look for them when driving the back roads. Our rough-legged hawks will soon head north to their breeding grounds in the arctic, both in North America and Eurasia. There they nest on cliffs and outcroppings and raise their young.

JOEL TRICK

The rough-legged hawk is an interesting bird to study. According to the U.S. Geological Survey's Bird Banding Laboratory, research has found that adult females winter further north than males for reasons yet unknown. Females are larger than males; the reverse is the usual the case (males larger than females). Male and female plumage is also different; this is not the case with other species closely related to this hawk. This is an intriguing bird from which we are learning much and will learn more as research continues.

The population of rough-legged hawks appears to be stable according to The Cornell Lab. This is good news as we can hope to see more of them come next fall when again their migratory journey south brings them to us. Pay attention to those soaring hawks, and hopefully you too will spy one or more rough-legged hawks before they head back to their arctic breeding grounds.

Cathy Carnes is a retired biologist in Oconto who worked with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Green Bay Field Office and prior to that with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Regulatory Branch in Buffalo, New York. As endangered species coordinator for the USFWS, she helped conserve and recover federally listed threatened and endangered species in Wisconsin.

A rough-legged hawk takes flight at Buena Vista Grassland/Marsh in Portage. Note the dark patches at the bend in the underside of the wing identifying it as a light morph.

YOUR RIGHT TO KNOW

Pull the plug on shadowy business courts

Anyone who doubts that secrecy in government breeds poor public policy should take a look at the Business Court Pilot Project launched by our Wisconsin Supreme Court.

For the last five years, the project has granted large commercial interests outsized influence over our court system's handling of their cases, exactly as intended. The business court pilot debuted in 2017 in Waukesha County and the eighth judicial district (encompassing Brown, Marinette, Kewaunee, Oconto, Door, Outagamie and Waupaca counties). It was expanded to other districts and, in a surprise move, to Dane County in 2020.

Here's how it works: The chief justice, currently Annette Ziegler, receives recommendations from big business and selects a limited number of business court judges. These hand-picked judges then receive training out-of-state from special interests aligned with big business. They follow court procedures drafted by big business lawyers.

The process largely bypasses the voter-controlled and otherwise random judicial assignment of cases. It creates a two-tiered court system — one controlled by business interests and one for everybody else.

It began in September 2016, when then-Chief Justice Patience Roggensack formed the "Business Court Advisory Committee" to develop a specialty court proposed by big business, for big business. Ignoring the Supreme Court's own internal operating procedures designed to promote transparency and diversity of opinion in appointing court committees, the chief justice stacked the committee with lawyers representing business interests.

The committee included no labor or consumer advocates, no one representing the viewpoints of the public and no one speaking for other stakeholders in our circuit court system.

Working privately, the advisory committee soon hatched a petition to establish and control the business court, which it filed with the Supreme Court on Oct. 26, 2016. Less than two weeks later, the court adopted the petition by a 5-2 vote, with no public hearing, no opportunity for public comment and no public notice that the petition was even scheduled for a vote.

Thus, out of public view, our Supreme Court rapidly and fundamentally changed our circuit courts' democratic structure for handling big business commercial litigation, simultaneously degrading judicial independence and corrupting a cardinal principle underpinning our court system — that everyone should be treated equally when he or she comes before the court.

The business court model was forced onto the Dane County circuit court system beginning in July 2020. The Supreme Court is now weighing a petition to extend the pilot program, set to expire on June 30, 2022, for another two years.

The big business takeover of circuit court commercial litigation wasn't the first time our Supreme Court displayed a penchant for secrecy.

For example, in 2012, the Supreme Court majority voted to close administrative rules conferences to the public, reversing an open meetings policy that had informed Wisconsin voters on important court matters for years. "To sit out here in public and philosophize," said Roggensack, "is really not the best use of our time."

A more transparent approach might have led to a different outcome on the Business Court pilot project. It's not too late to comment on the request to expand the project for another two years. Written comments can be submitted to Attorney Laura Brenner at lbrenner@reinhartlaw.com, and should be received by 4:30 p.m. April 8.

This time, transparency may produce a better result — a return to normalcy for our courts.

Attorney Richard G. Niess served as a Dane County Circuit Court judge from 2004 to 2020, including 13 years as presiding judge of the civil division. Your Right to Know is a monthly column distributed by the Wisconsin Freedom of Information Council (wisfoic.org), a group dedicated to open government.

Bargains available in resale shop

To the editor:

We have a special resale shop in Oconto Falls, Kingdom Come, next to the food pantry. We are amazed at such good quality of clothing and household products that are donated. Thanks to everyone for that.

Right now, with gas price and rent going up, it's foolish not to look for bargains for clothing our children and recycling home goods. Everyone likes rummage sales and estate sales. Come give us a look. Sure you will find something.

OBITUARIES

William E. Rusch

William "Bill" E. Rusch passed in peace on April 3, 2022, at the age of 73. He was born April 24, 1948, to the late Ervin and Mary (Zahn) Rusch. In 1966, he graduated from Gillett High School and, at the age of 20, was inducted in the U.S. Army and served a tour of duty in Vietnam. When he returned home, he attended NWTTC in Green Bay and earned a degree in Credit Management. On July 14, 1973, he married the love of his life, Diane Block. He spent 32 years working as an insurance agent for American Family Insurance in Gillett and retired in December 2008. Diane and Bill lived in Gillett until 1995 and then moved to Cecil, where they have resided for the past 26 years.

Bill loved kids and spent many hours with nieces, nephews and other friends' kids enjoying boating, swimming, water skiing, coaching Little League, going to baseball games and pretty much anything they wanted to do. He loved to give each one their own special nicknames. Bill loved talking to and getting to know people. His sense of humor and mild-mannered personality endeared him to a multitude of friends. Bill enjoyed fishing, softball, boating and playing golf with his wife and friends at as many golf courses as they could play at in one summer.

Bill is survived by his wife, Diane Rusch; his sister, Sandy Hubbard; nieces, Dana Gilboy, Chris Schuler, Aliza Block and Kali Southworth; and nephews, Jamie Hubbard, Steve Popp, Robert Popp, Stuart Popp and Kaleb Matthias, and brothers-in-law and sisters-in-law, Rick and Julie Block, and Roxy and Dave Matthias.

He was preceded in death by his parents Ervin and Mary (Zahn) Rusch, two sisters, Lois Popp and Marion Meyer and his in-laws, Melvin Block and Carol Block-Webster.

A memorial service will be held at 11:30 a.m. Saturday, April 23, 2022, at Swedberg-Wendt Funeral Home in Bonduel, with Dick Men-ning officiating. Military honors will be performed by the Bonduel American Legion. Inurnment will be in Wanderers Rest Cemetery in Gillett at a later date. Visitation will be held at 9:30 a.m. until the time of service at the funeral home Saturday. In lieu of flowers, donations may be directed to the Parkinson's Foundation or Patriot K-9s of Wisconsin.

Diane would like to express her gratitude to the amazing caregivers at The Cottages Memory Care Facility in Shawano, who made Bill feel loved and cared for. Also special thanks to Memories Hospice staff who made this difficult time more manageable.

James K. Rifenbergh

On Saturday, March 28, 2022, James Rifenbergh passed away peacefully, owing to complications of dementia. Jim was born in Oconto Falls on Sept. 21, 1930. His birth, during the Great Depression, was a blessing to his parents, the late Kent and Marvel (Peterson) Rifenbergh.

Jim graduated from Washington High School, where he excelled in sports and earned an Eagle Scout badge. He received a BS in electrical engineering from the University of Wisconsin and a MBA from the University of Chicago. Jim served four years in the U.S. Air Force, serving during the Korean War.

Jim's professional career took him to Madison, where he worked for Carl C. Crane, an engineering firm. Then he was on to Chicago, as an engineer for Inland Steel Co. Jim's career in the printing industry began at Poole Bros., a printing conglomerate in the Midwest.

From 1967 until 1995, he worked at Brown Printing Company (now Quad Graphics). Brown is one of the largest printing companies in the United States, printing such titles as "Time," "Sports Illustrated" and the "New England Journal of Medicine." Jim held the positions of president, chief executive officer, and chairman emeritus.

In 2002, Jim and his wife, Jacqueline (Jackie) moved from Minnesota to Lewes, Delaware. He served on the Canal Front Park committee and on the Greater Lewes Foundation board.

Jim is survived by his wife, Jackie; his daughters, Julie Blassick, and her husband, John; Amy Lundberg, and her husband, Andy; his four grandchildren: C.J., Steven, Madeline, and Nicholas; his great-granddaughter, Ava; his cousin Marlene Kreuger; and his loving pets.

Jim's last wishes specified that he wanted his ashes to be sent to his Wisconsin hometown, for burial in the family plot. He also specified that he did not want a funeral or any memorial service.

Jim's favorite song was "Imagine," in which John Lennon envisions a better world. After years of struggling with the debilitating disease of dementia, Jim deserves to be in a better world, maybe one in which his golf score goes down, the stock market goes up, and the Green Bay Packers win the Super Bowl. "Imagine."

The family wants to thank the staff at the Moorings and Seasons hospice for their attentive care.

Final care for Jim has been entrusted to Parsell Funeral Homes and Crematorium, Atkins-Lodge Chapel, Lewes, Delaware.

Please visit Jim's life memorial webpage and sign his virtual guestbook at www.parsellfuneralhomes.com

Donna was preceded in death by her mother, Bette Baenen; stepfather, Jake Baenen; maternal grandparents Lyle and Lila Wolff; paternal grandparents Mildred Lashbrook and Sylvester Bushman; and her in-laws, Marge and Dudley Harris.

Per Donna's wishes, there will not be a funeral. There will be a private celebration of life held by her family.

Rhodes-Charapata Funeral Home-Oconto is assisting the family. Online condolences may be expressed at www.rhodescharapata.com.

The family wants to extend a special thank you to our Green Bay Oncology team, especially Holly and Beth, as well as our Unity Hospice Team.

Evers signs bill changing shoreland zoning laws

On March 18, Gov. Tony Evers signed Senate Bill 867 into law, which was championed by Sen. Mary Felzkowski, R-Tomahawk.

This bill, which passed through the legislature with strong bipartisan support, makes changes to shoreland zoning laws regarding viewing corridors and bridge construction. Viewing corridors for lakefront property, under current statute, are permitted to be 35 feet for every 100 feet of shoreline frontage. The purpose of this statute was to allow land owners to have a beautiful view of the lake they are residing on, while requiring that a vegetative buffer zone be maintained as well.

Due to the unclear language of the statute, counties asked for clarification, as the current interpretation of the law requires at least 100 feet of shoreline before a viewing corridor is allowed. This bill allows a riparian landowner to create an access and viewing corridor that is 35% of their shoreline or 10 feet, whichever is greater.

"One of the greatest natural resources we have in Wisconsin are the thousands of lakes spread throughout the state," Felzkowski said. "These lakes provide prime locations for homes and cabins, where it's only natural to want a view of the tranquil waters you live on. This commonsense, bipartisan bill provides clarity in our laws, and protects the rights of the landowner to enjoy their property to the fullest."

This bill also adds bridges that have received a permit from the DNR to the list of structures that may be built within the 75-foot shoreland zoning setback area — putting county and local bridges on the level as state bridges, which are already exempt.

The bill was signed into law as 2021 Wisconsin Act 200.

The Wittenberg-Birnamwood High School girls and boys track and field teams turned in the top finishes among five area teams competing at the Rosholt Badger Invite on April 1 in Stevens Point.

The Witt-Birn girls placed second with 42.125 points, only behind DodgeLand (47.75). Suring (20) placed ninth, while Bonduel (17.125) was 10th and Gresham/Bowler (7.125) took 19th. There were 26 girls teams that scored at the indoor invite.

On the boys side, Witt-Birn took eighth with 25 points, with New London (57) taking first. Gillett (22) tied for ninth, Gresham/Bowler (16) tied for 13th, Bonduel (13.5) claimed 15th and Suring (8) tied for 18th. A total of 27 boys teams scored at the invite.

Witt-Birn

It was Reese Rogowski who led the Witt-Birn girls to their strong finish.

Rogowski won the long jump with a top leap of 16 feet, 8 inches and the 400-meter dash with a time of 1 minute, 0.46 seconds. She claimed second in the 60 dash (8.25).

Rogowski was also a part of the sixth-place finishing 4x400 relay (4:50.08). Allison Linke, Kit Stewart and Faith Resch filled out the team.

"I felt like I ran a pretty strong 400 but was a little fatigued going into the 60 right after it, so I wish I could have performed stronger for that race," said Rogowski on her night. "I'm looking forward to the outdoor season as it allows me the opportunity to compete on the longer track."

Resch also scored for the team in the high jump and 60. She took fourth after clearing 4-11 in the high jump and was seventh in the 60 with a time of 8.65 seconds. Stewart tied for eighth in the high jump (4-5).

Suring's Olivia Noack, front right, and Bonduel's Ashlyn Kurey, front middle, compete in the 800-meter run at the Rosholt Badger Invite on April 1 in Stevens Point.

Jalynn Horacek earned a pair of seventh-place finishes for the Chargers. She posted a time of 11.17 in the 60 hurdles and a leap of 15 feet in the long jump.

Simon Schairer led the Witt-Birn boys with a pair of top-five individual finishes. He won the 400 (54.96) and was fourth in the triple jump (41-2.5).

Schairer teamed up with Alex Centeno, Connor Groshek and Craig Wendel on the second-place finishing 4x400 relay (3:48.69).

Jacob Tomlinson was the other

Charger to score on the boys side, finishing seventh in the shot put with a throw of 41-0½.

Bonduel

A total of seven Bonduel athletes placed in the top eight to score for their team.

On the boys side, Gaven Vance placed third in the 60 dash (7.42) and was sixth in the long jump (18-8).

"It was for sure a big confidence booster knowing that I can compete with bigger schools," said Vance, who added he was hoping for higher finishes in each event. "Hoping that I can do even better in the outdoor meets for the rest of the year."

Karter Schroeder also scored for the boys team, tying for fourth in the high jump after clearing 5-10.

Ashlyn Kurey led the girls team with a fourth-place finish in the triple jump (32-2) and fifth-place finish in the 800 (2:41.26).

Kendra Troxel placed fifth in the long jump (15-2), while Ava Pleshek was fifth in the 60 hurdles (11.06). Brenna Hertzfeldt also took fifth, doing so in the shot put (33-3).

Kerry O'Harrow tied for eighth in the high jump (4-5).

Suring

Four Suring athletes scored during the invite, with Christine Sleeter leading the girls team and Jeremy Hensel guiding the boys.

Gresham/Bowler's Ireland Jensen runs her leg of the 4x200-meter relay during the Rosholt Badger Invite on April 1 in Stevens Point.

MORGAN RODE | NEW MEDIA

Sleeter cleared 5 feet in the high jump to take second place. She also tied for fourth in pole vault (7-0).

"Well, placing second tonight in high jump out of at least 30 girls is definitely something I'm proud of, especially going against all these talented girls from bigger schools," said Sleeter.

"Making 5 (feet) tonight in high jump is definitely something that will push me the rest of the season now, knowing I can do 5 for sure. Hopefully when I get outside things will start to become a little more normal and I can hopefully get higher this season."

MacKenzie Bailey was one of the girls Sleeter tied for fourth with at 7 feet in the pole vault. Olivia Noack claimed fourth in the 800 (2:40.2).

Hensel finished third in the pole vault (11-6) and was seventh in the 400 (56.77) to account for all of the boys team's scoring.

Gresham/Bowler

Bowler's Emmitt Kietlinski scored in three events to lead the boys co-op.

He broke his own school record after clearing 6-4 in the high jump and placed second. Kietlinski also placed fifth in the triple jump (41-1) and seventh in the long jump (18-7).

"This early in the season, even the best jumpers have inconsistent performances, so I try not to get too disappointed when I don't perform up to my standards," said Kietlinski. "My long jump and triple jump aren't where they need to be yet, but my high jump is where I hoped I would be at at this point."

"I'm looking forward to getting outdoors where I can work more on technique. The UWSP meet is a great building block for the outdoor season."

Bryson Nelson also scored for the boys team after finishing seventh in the 3,200 (12:19.25).

The girls 4x200 relay team of Hannah Cerveny, Willow Demaskie, Valarie Cerveny and Ireland Jensen teamed up for a sixth-place finish in 2:02.7.

Individually, Valarie Cerveny placed seventh in the shot put (32-3½). Jensen tied for eighth in the high jump (4-5).

Maddie Haffner placed sixth in the 3,200 (14:40.17), while Cami Gourley took eighth (18:20.57).

Gillett

The Gillett boys turned in their best finishes in the distance events.

Alex Peterson came in second in the 3,200 (9:59.62), just 0.32 seconds off the first-place finisher, Iola-Scandinavia's Charlie Vater.

"Going into the 3,200 race today, I didn't really know what my time was going to be, so I stuck to what my coach told me to do and it worked out in the end. Just stick right behind Charlie Vater and the rest will take care of itself," said Peterson.

"Even though I didn't win the race, I broke 10 minutes in the 3,200 for the first time which I am ecstatic about! I love running this race, and it was a super fun one tonight!"

Connor Hanson placed second in the 800 with a mark of 2:11.52. Evan Peterson came in third in the 1,600 with a mark of 4:53.11.

No Gillett girls took part in the invite.

ATHLETE PROFILE: ISABEL ROLOFF

Senior track star hoping for best season yet

Shawano's Isabel Roloff is no stranger to success during her high school track and field career. She's hoping for one more big season this spring before she takes her talents to UW-Milwaukee, where she plans to continue competing in the sport.

Her best high school season came as a junior when she qualified for state in the pole vault and 100-yard dash. Roloff took second in the Division 2 pole vault field after clearing 11 feet, and she was fourth in the 100 with a time of 12.34 seconds.

She was the Bay Conference champion in the 100 and pole vault as a junior.

According to the school's record books, she owns the top mark in the 100 (12.22) and pole vault (11-0) and sits in third in the 200 (26.84).

Q: When did your interest in track and field begin?

A: My interest started my freshman year of high school when I decided to try track. After a fun and successful first year, it became one of my favorite activities.

Q: What is your favorite part about the track and field season?

A: My favorite part of the season is at the end of May when conference, regionals, sectionals and state meets are happening. I love the excitement of track meets that qualify you for a bigger meet.

Q: What has the sport taught you over the years?

A: Track and field has taught me perseverance even through challenges. Last year I had a hip injury during the end of the season, but I still managed to run well and go to state.

Q: What is your favorite event to compete in, and why?

A: My favorite event is the pole vault because there is always something to be improved. I enjoy the combination of running fast on the runway and being coordinated in the air.

Shawano's Isabel Roloff competes in the girls pole vault competition during the Division 2 WIAA State Track and Field Championships on June 25, 2021, at Veterans Memorial Stadium in La Crosse.

Q: You are headed to UW-Milwaukee to compete in track and field. With that in mind, what goals have you set for yourself in your final high school season?

A: I hope to go to the state meet again this year and possibly place higher than I did last year. I also hope to set PRs (personal records) in all of my events this season that I can improve upon at UW-Milwaukee.

Q: How did you prepare for the track and field season?

A: I prepared for track in the winter by staying active with competitive dance and practicing at an indoor pole vault facility.

Q: In this early portion of the season, what are you focusing on the most?

A: In the early part of the season, I'm focused on building strength and endurance. Working hard now allows me to be a competitive runner at future meets.

Q: Before competing in an event, do you have any routines or rituals you go through?

A: One ritual that I created at the end of last year's season was to drink a Body Armor at every meet. Other than that, I try to do the same warmup before every race so that I can get in the sprinting state of mind.

Q: What's your favorite memory of competing on the Shawano track and field team?

A: One of my favorite memories with the track team is being escorted out of town last year on our way to state. All the people in town cheering for us and the fire truck and police cars made it very exciting. It was definitely a moment to remember.

Q: Favorite movie, TV show and musical artist?

A: Movie — "High School Musical 2." TV show — "Jane the Virgin." Music artist — Rex Orange County.

Q: Name one thing about yourself that not many people know.

A: I have also showed market lambs since I was in third grade. My family and I travel to livestock shows around the Midwest, and I compete at the state fair and the county fair.

Q: What are some things you hope to accomplish after graduating high school?

A: Along with all of my track and field goals for college, I also hope to earn a master's degree in accounting. My ultimate goal is to one day open a business of my own.

ATHLETE PROFILE: JEREMY HENSEL

Suring senior eyes school record in pole vault

Suring High School's Jeremy Hensel qualified for the state track and field meet as a junior last spring. This year, he's hoping to make a return to state while also breaking the school's record in pole vault.

Hensel cleared 12 feet at state to finish in 12th place. He won the Marinette & Oconto Conference title in the pole vault after clearing 11-6.

Suring's school record is held by Mitch Stegeman at 14-6.

Hensel already has several strong finishes to his name after a few indoor meets. He won the 400-yard dash and took fourth in the pole vault at the Oshkosh Boys Invitational on March 17.

He had the top mark in the pole vault during an indoor meet at Oconto Falls on March 22. Hensel placed second in the 200-meter dash and fourth in the 45-yard dash that night, too.

Hensel scored all of his team's points during the Rosholt Badger Invite on April 1 in Stevens Point after a third-place finish in the pole vault and seventh-place finish in the 400-meter.

Q: When did your interest in track and field begin?

A: My interest in track began in sixth grade. I always loved running when I was a kid, so I decided track was the best sport for that.

Q: What is your favorite part about the track and field season?

A: My favorite part about track has to be meeting new people and pole vaulting.

Q: After making state last spring, what are your goals for your senior season?

A: My goal for this year is just to get to the school record, which is 14 feet, 6 inches.

Q: Pole vaulting isn't for everybody. What drew you to the event, and what makes it fun to compete in?

A: You're right when you say it isn't for everyone. But what drew my attention to the event was that falling from high heights and landing on a soft mat is fun. And what other event to do that in besides pole vault?

Q: In this early portion of the season, what are you focusing on the most?

A: As of now I'm really focusing on my sprints due to the weather outside. I can't get outside to vault and we don't have a pit inside, so it's tough right now.

A: I just stretch and listen to my music to get my mindset on what I'm doing.

Q: As a senior, how do you try and help lead the team?

A: I try leading the team by just trying to help whenever possible and always cheer my teammates on in their event.

Q: How did playing football and basketball prepare you for the track and field season?

A: It just kept me conditioned really well.

Q: What's your favorite memory of competing on the Suring track and field team?

Don't try to make a pudding. Don't even start to try. It will burn inside the pan, and make you want to cry.

Buy a good canned pudding and scrape it into a glass claim you made it by yourself and have your self a laugh!

IF guests want that skin that pudding gets at times, Elmers glue is edible, and it sets up just fine.
