Gillett discusses prevention methods in schools

Council considers resource officers, K-9 walk-throughs

By LUKE REIMER

Reporter

The Gillett Police Department is exploring different methods on how to keep children safe in home and at school.

Chief Shane Breitenbach addressed the Gillett City Council during its meeting on April 8.

"I am on the Oconto County Crisis Collaboration Team," said Breitenbach. "The main focus on this month's meeting was the epidemic of methamphetamine. We are dealing with this issue like we have never dealt with it before."

Breitenbach said that the increase in methamphetamine abuse has taken a toll on human services, community members and children.

"We have been trying to brainstorm and think through how we can correct these issues," said Breitenbach.

He said that there has been an emphasis on helping adults with these problems.

"We have been talking about the adult side of this, but nobody is asking or talking about the children," said Breitenbach. "If you want to change the future, you have to get to children first."

Breitenbach said that there are currently a lot of drug, mental health and family issues in schools right now.

"It is happening all over the place," he said.

He noted that school resource programs are being cut or not being used to their full potential.

"I remember back in the '70s and '80s, there were commercials on TV that had warnings around drugs," said Breitenbach. "Do we even see any of that anymore?"

Placing a resource officer in schools is one suggestion that Breitenbach had to help combat this.

"You look at the school districts that have this, and you can tell that there is an impact," said Breitenbach. "You talk to these kids after school and they have memories of their resource officer."

He said that he is going to reach out to the Gillett School District officials for their input on the interest of this.

"I am welcoming any input on this matter from not only the city council, but also the community," said Breitenbach. "I get that things cost money, but there are grants and other ways for this."

Alderman Nanette Mohr said that she has been asking for some version of a school resource program for a number of years.

"I was asking for even just a part-timer," said Mohr. "It is just different with someone in uniform walking through the school."

Alderman Gary Spaulding asked if a K-9 officer could be brought through the school every so often.

"It has to lie in what the school wants," said Breitenbach. "When they request for a dog, it is usually when they see a rise in incidents or get some information about a certain party."

Spaulding responded that a dog should be non-scheduled and should just enter the school at any given time.

"There is no dog that is available for that," said Breitenbach. "Those dogs are utilized so much by so many people. The dogs are not a floating squad, they are assigned an area."

Breitenbach said that Oconto Falls is working on adding one or two dogs in its police department.

"That is easier to ask Oconto Falls to come and do a quick walk-through," said Breitenbach. "It won't take as much if you ask them as opposed to taking a deputy K-9 out of its mix."

Alderman Debbie Rudie noted that the Menominee Indian School District in Keshena is taking a strong initiative.

"I think that it is being more recognized as a necessity and hopefully people can open their eyes to that," said Rudie. "We teach kids to not cross the street unless they look both ways until they are 30. We are teaching children young and I think that needs to happen with this."

Breitenbach called the proposal an investment in the future.

"The future of society is in our children," said Breitenbach. "If you don't set the foundation when they are small, it won't help eliminate these problems."

He also noted that, for some children, school is their safe place.

"They come to school and it is a sanctuary for them," Breitenbach said. "If you can give them those positives in a sanctuary, the more positive it is."

Gillett resident Katie Daul informed the council on a program that is working to help the drug concerns.

"There is Northeast Wisconsin Heroin and Opioid Prevention and Education program," said Daul. "There are a lot of agencies that are a part of this coalition and one of the sub-committees handles prevention in schools. I think it would be really beneficial if the Gillett Police Department joined that coalition. They are working on a lot of different outreaches to help those in need."

District shifts plans after referendum rejected

Oconto Falls school officials say needs are still there

By WARREN BLUHM
Editor-in-chief

The Oconto Falls School District is heading back to the drawing board after a $49.9 million referendum failed April 5.

By a 55% to 45% margin, voters rejected a proposal to build a new middle school and make improvements to the district's other three schools.

During the April 11 school board meeting, Superintendent Dean Hess said administrators, staff and the public plan to work as a team to understand why the community didn't support the measure and to decide whether to move forward with a different proposal in the November election.

"Most people can understand our facility needs still exist, and we hope to work together with our parents, our community members and business owners to create a proposal that will enable us to address these needs before the interest rates climb to a point that the work will be fiscally out of reach," Hess said.

Emilie Trudell, a member of the community task force that worked to develop and support the referendum, expressed frustration at the social media campaign that questioned the district's corporate culture and planning process.

"We've heard an awful lot from people lately who seem to sure know a lot about this board, this district, this administration, but have not attended any recent school board meetings," Trudell said.

Over the years after a building referendum fails to pass, the district does research and hires experts to determine the actual need, only to get voted down again with opponents saying the district did not do enough research, she said.

"Can't you see how frustrating this vicious cycle is?" Trudell said. "And the only way to break it is to get the public's trust that we are learning from previous years, and that we are proposing a sound plan gained from people whose career it is to better the student experience."

Trudell called out new board member Chad Earley for announcing he supported the referendum but not taking a more active role in the campaign.

"You had 266 more votes than 'yes' votes for the referendum," she said. "If those votes against the referendum would have been the opposite, the referendum would have passed and we would be having a much different conversation tonight."

The board also heard administrators were working with the consulting firm School Perceptions to draft a staff feedback survey to be taken in October; most board members urged Hess to get some sort of survey to staff by the end of the school year and continue it annually or twice a year.

Leja recognized for 33 years of service

Oconto Falls School Board president served 11 terms

By WARREN BLUHM
Editor-in-chief

Ron Leja presided over what will likely be his last meeting of the Oconto Falls School Board on April 11, thanking staff, support staff and administrators for their work and support over 33 years.

Leja lost his bid for a 12th three-year term in the April 5 election, finishing fourth in a four-person race that also saw the decisive defeat of a $49.9 million referendum he worked on for about five years.

He referred to that question, which would have authorized a new middle school and improvements to the district's other three buildings, in closing thoughts at the end of the meeting, noting that he experienced a similar fate early in his school board career.

"About 30 years ago, I did get voted off when we ran another referendum for about $13 million," Leja said. "We ended up doing less 10 years later for $28 million, so when taxpayers think they're going to save some money, they more than doubled their burden at that time."

Leja, who has seen his share of controversy over more than three decades, said state law and policies can tie the board's hands in getting its message across.

"One of the most frustrating things about being on the board is knowing there are two sides to every issue, and the worst part is the board can't always tell its side when personnel issues have been involved, and the general community doesn't know that," he said.

Over the 33 years Leja said he worked with 36 different board members.

"A handful ran with an agenda and didn't do what's best for kids, but for the most part it's been very good boards and I appreciate that," he said. "When you run with an agenda, you're generally in for one or two terms and you're done, which is good for the kids, in my opinion."

The board's vice president, Jan Stranz, presented Leja with a certificate of appreciation and plaque from the Wisconsin Association of School Boards.

"For somebody to serve on a school board for 33 years is a big deal, and it's very much appreciated and recognized," Stranz said. "We really appreciate all your work."

Fifteen members of his extended family attended the meeting to show support for the father and grandfather and pose for a family picture.

Superintendent Dean Hess added his thanks for Leja's service to the school district and community.

"I've had an opportunity to learn from your wisdom during these seven years, and I greatly appreciate all that you do for the community that we serve and the students and staff that we serve," Hess said.

School alert systems to get an upgrade

Public address, school bells systems are becoming obsolete

By WARREN BLUHM
Editor-in-chief

Camera Corner/Connecting Point of Green Bay has been tabbed to bring the Oconto Falls School District's phone, clock, public address, bell and emergency notification systems into the 21st century.

The Oconto Falls School Board on April 11 approved the recommendation of Cory Jeffers, its technology director, who led an audit of those systems this winter.

"Oftentimes those are integrated with each other, coming from the same server, they all talk to each other in a lot of cases," Jeffers told the board. "In a good situation that's normally how it would go, and generally where you want to work toward."

The answer to the basic question "What time is it?" differs from room to room throughout the district, he said.

"If you were to go to the store and buy a bunch of manual clocks and put them on the wall, that's basically what we have right now," Jeffers said.

Portions of the schools' PA systems are failing and obsolete, and finding replacement parts can involve searching for them on eBay. The bell systems are also in need of replacement, he said.

The district replaced its phones in 2016 but chose a system that is hard to integrate with the various alert devices.

"The phone system at that time, I understand, this is prior to my time, was in really rough shape, and it was kind of an emergency," Jeffers said. "It was, 'Just get a phone system to be able to call each other,' because even that was starting to not function at that time."

Recent security upgrades have installed "panic buttons" to lock all doors in buildings simultaneously, and they have capability to tie into an emergency notification system that would alert all buildings at once, but that system is not in place yet, he said.

Camera Corner/Connecting Point was chosen among three vendors that responded to a request for proposals. Its initial cost of $420,803 is actually more expensive at the outset, but over time annual software license fees and other costs were higher with the other vendors, and the district will save an estimated $40,000 over 10 years, Jeffers said.

Board member Bryan Baumler said the cost was higher than he anticipated.

"I'm having a little sticker shock, but I do understand that communication is key to our students' safety," Baumler said. "If you don't have a PA system that's going to warn somebody of the danger or an issue, that's not fair to our students."

'Broken Mary' author to speak in Oconto Falls

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

Kevin Matthews, a former Chicago radio personality who wrote "Broken Mary, A Journey of Hope," is scheduled to speak at St. Anthony Catholic Church on April 26.

MATTHEWS

Matthews spent 30 years in radio including 17 years as a popular drive-time host whose characters included a sports commentator named Jim Shorts, but his life changed with a chance encounter when he found a statue of the Virgin Mary that someone had broken in half and left next to a dumpster.

"I heard a voice, a voice I'll never forget," Matthews says in a short video called "There is hope for the broken." "This stern voice said, 'Will you deny me? Will you deny my mother?' I ended up taking the statue. I took her because she was broken, and so was I."

He took the statue to a priest to have it blessed, arranged to have it partially restore, and that was the beginning of a ministry called The Broken Mary Project, offering hope to people who feel broken.

"The message of Broken Mary is we're all broken. Everyone," Matthews has said. "We're not perfect, we're flawed, but we're loved."

Matthews is scheduled to speak after a 5:30 p.m. Mass at the church, 253 N. Franklin St., Oconto Falls. A social is planned afterward and he will sign copies of his book.

The Shawano-Menominee Relay for Life could be declared a success as soon as it started after AmVets Post 10 announced it was donating $10,000 to the cause April 9.

Stu Kohlin, the local AmVets post commander, received applause as he presented the check to local Relay for Life representatives at the start of the six-hour event. He noted that the post's mission has been to help community first, and that the fight against cancer impacts the people in his fold as much as it does everyone else.

"It might seem out of place to donate funds in such a large amount to cancer, maybe something not related to a veterans cause," Kohlin said. "Really, I believe, and the post believes, cancer is a serious problem within the veterans community."

Kohlin noted that the veterans fighting wars have come home

The opening lap of the 2022 Shawano-Menominee Relay for Life on April 9 saw moving feet and smiling faces as survivors of cancer took the first of many steps that day to fight the disease.

with various diseases. He cited such wartime dangers as Agent

Orange, which impacted many who fought in Vietnam, and the burn pits for the more recent soldiers who fought in Iraq.

"Cancer really is a huge opponent in the veterans community," Kohlin said.

Besides the monetary donation, the AmVets color guard presented the flags for the opening ceremony, accompanied by Wolf River Harmony, who sang the national anthem.

Organizers also took the opportunity to remember one of the relay's longtime supporters, Robert Voss. Voss had been planned to be the honorary survivor for his 100th birthday in 2020 before the coronavirus pandemic forced the event's cancellation.

"Unfortunately, Mr. Voss passed away on June 20, 2021, at the age of 101," said local chairwoman Vicki Szucs. "Mr. Voss is an example of an amazing survivor."

In 2007, Voss became a cancer survivor at the age of 87 after being diagnosed with bladder cancer, which was beat back with treatment and surgery. Two years later, Voss was diagnosed with gall bladder cancer, which took him a little longer to conquer, according to Szucs. She added that Voss joined the Relay for Life five years ago.

Szucs recognized the fact that the Relay for Life could once again be held in the Shawano Community High School gymnasium, where cancer survivors and their supporters could "celebrate, remember and to fight back against cancer."

Megan Schreck, senior development manager for the American Cancer Society, noted that the people in the gymnasium were there for the same reason — to work toward a day when cancer no longer exists. She said the reasons differ among the people participating, but the goal remains the same.

"During the next few hours, we will bring the fight as a community to defeat our biggest rival — cancer," Schreck said during the opening ceremonies. "You are joining forces with millions of people worldwide who want to save lives, who want to lead the fight."

Folk singer Claudia Schmidt plays her song "Long Long Time" for an intimate crowd of under 20 on April 10 at the Waukechon Town Hall. She noted that she wrote the song around the time of the #MeToo movement, and it was on her album "Slow Steady Heart." The concert was sponsored by the Shawano Folk Music Festival, and Schmidt has performed at the festival several times — the first being in 1981.

Shawano Ambulance to be on 'World's Greatest!'

Trinko hopes to show hard work that goes into service

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

A local EMS service will be on display for all to see in the coming days. "The World's Greatest!" series will feature the Shawano Ambulance Service on April 16 at 2:30 p.m. The episode will air on Bloomberg TV. DirecTV viewers can tune in on channel 353 and DISH Network viewers on channel 203. The show will run a second time on the same channels at 2:30 p.m. April 23.

"I became aware of it and threw our hat in the ring," said Patrick Trinko, Shawano Ambulance Service director of operations. "I wasn't sure that there was a good chance to be featured, but you can't hit a ball if you don't swing a bat."

Trinko said the Shawano Ambulance Service was up in competition with eight other services.

"Everybody in this field has a lot of pride in what they do," said Trinko. "I differentiate ourselves from other services. We are an independent organization and can go our own route. I like to say that we are nimble and able to change directions as we see best fit for the community. I think that message resonated with their producers and viewers."

Trinko said that he was made aware that the service was going to be featured six months ago.

"A month ago, they came and spent an entire day filming here," said Trinko.

Trinko said that having the opportunity to broadcast what the ambulance service does nationally is a very exciting feeling.

"It will show our community what we do every day," said Trinko. "It shows our dedication, attention to detail and what we can do for our patients. We think that we do a good job and it pays off in some aspects."

Individualistic ideas are what Trinko cited as a reason why the ambulance service stood out to the television show's producers.

"Our ability to change directions and do what we feel is best for the community is a reason," said Trinko. "We don't really answer to a board or anything of that nature. As medical people, we can look at a situation and make our decisions right then and there and implement them rather quickly. We don't have a corporate hierarchy."

He called the service a high-level care provider that other rural areas don't have the capability of.

"We are a very busy service for our population," said Trinko. "We really make sure that our people have the tools and the knowledge necessary to be able to care for some really high end cases."

According to Trinko, the ambulance service covers 324 square miles — a majority of them being rural areas.

"You don't have the population base to have the funding and everything else, so it is a real challenge to have advanced services in a sparsely populated area," said Trinko.

With this recognition, Trinko said that the service will continue to run day-to-day operations as they have.

"I think we will maintain the course that we always have and maintain our ideals and principles," said Trinko. "It certainly doesn't hurt and it may help morale. If anything, it helps people realize how hard these people are working behind the scenes."

Being recognized for their hard work is something that Trinko believes will have a positive impact on the ambulance service as a whole.

"We don't really toot our own horn or go out of our way to make a big deal," said Trinko. "It is nice in some instances to be able to let people know that we are working hard behind the scenes."

Trinko said that this was not something that the service was trying to accomplish, but it presented itself along the way.

"It just kind of popped out there, and we took a stab at it and got it," said Trinko.

With the opportunity to show national audiences what the ambulance service is about, Trinko said there are some things that people will learn about EMS services after watching this episode.

"Whether it's us or anyone else, people don't realize the level of dedication, especially in smaller towns," said Trinko.

Dairy farmers need real solutions to pricing woes

In the game of Monopoly, there is only one winner. If current dairy “market forces” prevail, we are steadily moving in that direction.

Losing one to two dairy herds per day, as we have in recent years, is not progress. It is a sign that our antiquated dairy policy and ongoing price volatility need to be addressed.

In late March, dairy farmers from local chapters of the Wisconsin Farmers Union and Wisconsin Farm Bureau Federation teamed up to host a series of Dairy Revitalization meetings in western Wisconsin. The success of the events indicates interest and the potential for bringing about the kind of changes we hope for in the future.

I use quotation marks around the phrase “market forces” because the fiscal and public policy of past decades has been intended to continue a trajectory predetermined for us. It is time that we reevaluate these assumptions of “progress” and evaluate the effects of past policies.

We almost had a more farmer-friendly dairy policy in the 2014 Farm Bill, but it was taken out in the 11th hour due to powerful lobbying forces at play. The outcome is that we have spent around $1.2 billion more on government-funded dairy subsidy programs than what would have happened had we adopted growth management in 2014. We have lost countless dairy herds that might still be in business today, if we would have had a mechanism in place to better balance milk supply with demand. We have witnessed the erosion of farms from the landscape throughout the Midwest.

RICK ADAMSKI

Thousands of farms have been forced out of dairy production in recent years because of these bad policies and broken markets. Opportunity seems to be reserved for only a handful of farmers and thus exposes how policy creates a history of American agriculture where the big get bigger and the small get out.

It is imperative that we diligently monitor our deliberations leading up to the next Farm Bill in 2023. Those in power want to continue the trends of the past. They want to conserve power with those who have power. It will be easier for politicians to support subsidy programs over meaningful reform, because there is little accountability for those subsidies. Projections will be created upon false hopes to justify more of the same types of policies.

If we look at these policy options as opportunities to learn from our past, we may create a better future.

A new set of data needs to be considered in these discussions. The lessons learned from a concentrated food system during the distress of the COVID-19 pandemic teach us that a diversified agriculture is a more resilient agriculture. This lesson has been learned by countries experiencing the turmoil of war or the losses caused by catastrophic natural disasters. Depending upon a very consolidated supply chain is not as durable as a distributed, diverse production system. We need farms of all sizes that will be able to supply our basic needs in a very uncertain future.

I believe that if you find yourself in a hole, the first thing needed to be done is to quit digging. The hole that the U.S. dairy industry is in is a trend toward fewer and larger farms, which concentrates our food security into the hands of a few.

We can create a better, more diverse future with the plan presented at the Dairy Revitalization meetings. We can restore a more vibrant rural economy based upon more diverse farms. We can start breaking the addiction to government subsidies to prop up only the farms and agribusinesses that are “too big to fail.”

If you weren't able to attend the meetings, I encourage you to visit www.dairytogether.com to learn about this plan that could increase farm net income, decrease our reliance on subsidies, stabilize the markets and create a future for the next generation of U.S. dairy farmers.

Rick Adamski is the president of the Wisconsin Farmers Union. He and his family run Full Circle Farm near Seymour.

GUEST COLUMN

We see them, they are welcome, and they belong

All of us — no matter our gender, race, or zip code — deserve equal opportunity under the law. Transgender Day of Visibility is an embodiment of that American value.

Observed every year on March 31, the day highlights the triumphs and achievements of transgender citizens across the globe, but also brings to light the work that is still left undone — work that will help put an end to the discrimination, prejudice, and inequality faced by the transgender community.

We are lucky to have progressive leaders like President Joe Biden, Gov. Tony Evers, and legislative Democrats working hard to make our local communities more inclusive and ensure that the sentiment of Transgender Day of Visibility rings true year-round.

Legislative Democrats introduced trans-inclusive bills last year that would ban discrimination based on gender, and would create a task force to ensure Wisconsin is an equitable place for everyone to live — regardless of gender identity.

In response to anti-transgender legislation from legislative Republicans last year, Evers publicly announced his support for transgender athletes, writing in a tweet “I see you. You are welcome, and you belong.”

Evers has also issued two proclamations in support of Wisconsin's transgender community, proclaiming March 31 as Transgender Day of Visibility and Nov. 20 as Transgender Day of Remembrance.

As the rest of us push for progress today and every day, Republicans in Wisconsin are pushing to move us backward.

In 2021 alone, Republicans in the state legislature introduced three anti-transgender bills — one that would ban transgender athletes from competing in women's college sports, another that would ban transgender athletes from competing in K-12 women's sports, and a third that would require parental consent for Wisconsin students to learn about gender expression in school.

Yet, this dangerous agenda from conservatives isn't just an issue contained within the state legislature. We also see it in other Republican figures representing the Badger state — like Sen. Ron Johnson, who earlier this month described transgender women as “creepy” when discussing their freedom to use the bathroom of their choice.

Republican Attorney General candidate Adam Jarchow wrote in a March 18 tweet that it's “disgusting” for transgender women to compete in sports alongside their fellow female athletes, and in a separate tweet called

President Joe Biden's support for the transgender community, “silly, pandering nonsense.”

It's clear that conservative politicians like Sen. Ron Johnson and Adam Jarchow don't share our values — because Wisconsinites know that what's truly “disgusting” and “nonsense” is stripping someone of their freedoms simply because of their gender, race, sexual orientation, or otherwise.

If Sen. Ron Johnson and Adam Jarchow could have it their way, there wouldn't be a Transgender Day of Visibility — because the transgender community would be invisible.

Call, tweet, and write your local legislators to let them know Wisconsinites are unified in support for the transgender community, and unified in upholding Evers' message to transgender Wisconsinites: we see them, they are welcome, and they belong.

Chris Walloch is the executive director at A Better Wisconsin Together.

Introducing our new regional features section

You may have already noticed we've rearranged the furniture again this week, with our entertainment pages reinvented as a new section called "Living in Northeast Wisconsin."

When the pandemic started, we merged all of our products into the hybrid you receive every week, with local news for Shawano, Oconto and Menominee counties on about 45% of the pages along with shared pages that include the classified ads along with other news of regional interest. Now that we've emerged from the pandemic, we have time to consider how best to organize all this local content to make it easiest to find week by week.

A few weeks ago, we started putting all of the local, regional and state sports stories into a single section. Reaction was so positive we're now doing the same with our feature coverage.

The revamped Living in Northeast Wisconsin section will include many of the features that already appear in all three weekly papers — like Rob Zimmer's gardening column — or, this week, the return of Ross Bielema's column.

The new section will also feature stories that previously have appeared only in one or two papers. Shawano County readers, for example, have missed stories about new businesses or events and activities in Oconto County, like the Easter cantata at Gillett's Clock Church.

WARREN BLUHM

Oconto County readers have never seen our stories about the Rubber Soul Productions concerts at Wittenberg-Birnamwood High School and don't know that bands like Asleep at the Wheel perform fairly close to home. That changes now.

The comics and puzzles will still appear in the Living section, along with all of our arts and entertainment news, business features, outdoors features and neighbor profiles for Shawano, Oconto and Menominee counties.

To make room for this unique local coverage of our neighbors in three counties, we have moved the TV grids into the regular news section. Our plan is to stop carrying the grids — which are already delivered electronically to nearly every modern television set — after May 6 so that we can focus our resources on providing the local news and information that we do best.

We hope you agree that Living in Northeast Wisconsin establishes more clearly where things can be found each week while expanding each individual paper's coverage. Let us know what you think. Send feedback to me at wbluhm@newmedia-wi.com.

Town of Angelica woman dies in single-vehicle crash

A Town of Angelica woman died following a one-vehicle crash April 10 on state Highway 29.

The Shawano County Sheriff's Department responded to the crash just after midnight on eastbound Highway 29 at St. Augustine Street in the Town of Maple Grove. Brown County Sheriff's Department deputies arrived on scene initially and provided information to other responding units and began rendering aid.

According to Lt. Jesse Sperberg, the preliminary investigation indicates the vehicle was eastbound on Highway 29 when it entered the south ditch line, drove up the embankment and struck the St. Augustine Street overpass. The driver and lone occupant of the vehicle was pronounced dead on scene.

Shawano County was assisted on the scene by the Brown County Sheriff's Department, Tri-County Fire Department and NEW Paramedic Rescue Squad.

The incident is under investigation, and no further information is available at this time, according to Sperberg.

Hospital volunteers at heart of service

Boettcher, Dobratz make difference by giving time to help patients

By ERIC CREST

Special to NEW Media

As National Volunteer Week is set to begin April 17, HSHS St. Clare Memorial Hospital recognizes the work of its volunteers on whom the not-for-profit, faith-based ministry has relied on since its establishment as Oconto Falls City Hospital (later, Community Memorial Hospital) 100 years ago.

In 2021, volunteers at St. Clare donated more than 2,100 hours of service including helping patients and visitors navigate the hospital campus, comforting ill patients, assisting with record keeping and much more.

Among those volunteers are Regina Boettcher and Vicki Dobratz.

Before beginning her volunteer work, Boettcher was employed with St. Clare for nearly 30 years. After retiring in 2019, she wanted to continue to be a part of the hospital's mission and offered her breadth of knowledge as a volunteer at the hospital's welcome center. The role entails not only greeting everyone who walks through the doors, but also helping them find their way to appointments on the hospital campus. In some cases, volunteers also serve as a comforting presence for patients dealing with difficult situations.

"I have even sat with patients as they undergo chemotherapy treatment," said Boettcher. "I just try to keep their mind off the task at hand and help them relax and not stress about what they are there to do."

During Boettcher's decades worth of work at the hospital, she says HSHS St. Clare Memorial's volunteers have continuously been served as positive, public representatives of the facility — not only onsite but also within the Oconto Falls community.

"Oftentimes, our patients are the same people we go to church with and bump into at the grocery store," said Boettcher. "Our volunteers truly are ambassadors for the hospital."

Like Boettcher, Dobratz also spent most of her career at St. Clare. After retiring as a registered nurse, she wanted to be a part of the team of former colleagues, local teachers and other community members who volunteer at the hospital.

"Our rural hospital might not do everything, but what we do, we do better," said Dobratz. "Our patients can often avoid a trip to Green Bay because we're right here in town, and I love being one of the first faces they see when they get here."

Volunteer Services Manager Mary Ann Brunette knows the value of having hospital volunteers — and ambassadors — like Boettcher and Dobratz within the community. She says while recruiting volunteers has grown more challenging during the pandemic, many still seek out volunteer opportunities because of the tremendous benefit the hospital provides to the community. With a 24-hour emergency department, urgent care, advanced surgical and medical services such as cancer care and orthopedics, HSHS St. Clare Memorial Hospital was recognized this year as one of the top 100 critical access hospitals in the country.

"We are also a warm and friendly hospital, and our volunteers take pride in the service they provide here," said Brunette.

Current volunteer opportunities available at St. Clare include working in the welcome center to greet patients and guests and assisting patients and visitors with wayfinding. Anyone interested in volunteering can call 920-433-8561 or visit www.hshs.org/StClare/Volunteer for information.

Your 2nd Birthday in Heaven

When tomorrow starts without me please try to understand that an Angel came and called my name and took me by the hand. The Angel said my place was ready, in heaven far above. And that I have to leave behind all those I dearly love. But when I walked through heavens gates, I felt so much at home, for God looked down, smiled at me and said welcome home. So when tomorrow starts without me don't think we're far apart for every time you think of me I'm right here in your heart. God Bless you always, we'll forget you never. WE LOVE AND MISS YOU VERY MUCH

WHY ARE WOMEN MORE SUSCEPTIBLE TO VARICOSE VEINS?

There are many gender-specific health issues that affect men and women differently, and varicose veins is one of them. While both men and women can develop varicose veins, women are twice as likely as men to have varicose veins for several reasons. First, let's cover what varicose and spider veins are and what causes them.

What are varicose and spider veins?

Varicose veins are twisted veins that can be blue, red or skin-colored. The larger veins may appear ropelike and make the skin bulge out. Varicose veins are often on the thighs, the backs and fronts of calves or inside of the legs near the ankles and feet.

Spider veins, or thread veins, are smaller than varicose veins. They are usually red. They may look like tree branches or spider webs. Spider veins can usually be seen under the skin, but they do not make the skin bulge out like varicose veins. Spider veins are usually found on the legs or the face.

What causes varicose and spider veins?

Problems with the valves in your veins can prevent blood from flowing normally and cause varicose veins or spider veins. Your heart pumps blood filled with oxygen and nutrients through your arteries to your whole body. Veins carry the blood from different parts of your body back to your heart. Your veins have valves that act as one-way flaps.

However, if the valves don't close correctly, blood can leak back into the lower part of the vein rather than going toward the heart. Over time, more blood gets stuck in the vein, building pressure that weakens the walls of the vein. This causes the vein to grow larger.

Why women?

The primary reasons women outpace men two to one in developing varicose veins are pregnancy and hormones.

Pregnancy: When a woman is pregnant, there's more blood flowing through her body as a new life is nurtured. This places added pressure on the veins. In some cases, these engorged veins disappear a few months after giving birth, but for many women, the enlarged veins remain.

Hormones: Women taking hormonal medications for birth control or menopause have added estrogen, which can weaken the valves in their blood vessels, making them more susceptible to varicose veins.

Other risk factors include having a family or personal history of varicose veins or spider veins, sitting or standing for long periods of time, being overweight or obese, age and conditions that damage the valves.

Should I get medical care for varicose veins or spider veins?

If you think you have varicose or spider veins and they cause you pain or discomfort, talk to your health care provider. Varicose veins and spider veins usually do not cause any symptoms. However, you may want to remove or close varicose veins or spider veins if you are experiencing symptoms or if you don't like the way they look.

Contact your health care provider if varicose veins or spider veins cause you pain or if:

- The vein has become swollen, red or very tender or warm to the touch, which can be a signal of a blood clot.
- You have sores or a rash on your leg or near your ankle.
- The skin on your ankle or calf changes color.
- One of the varicose veins begins to bleed.
- Your symptoms keep you from doing daily activities.

Pulaski drops conference clash to Bay Port

New coach cites execution for downfall

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The Pulaski High School baseball team and new coach Tate McMillan got their spring season underway with a hard-fought 5-4 loss to Fox River Classic Conference foe Bay Port on April 5 in Green Bay.

McMillan said the team's execution was lacking in a few key areas, and it cost the team.

In a back-and-forth contest, Pulaski pulled ahead 4-2 in the top of the fifth inning and looked to be on its way to blowing the game wide open with the bases still loaded and just one out. But a flyout to left field turned into a double play after another out on a play at the plate.

The next half inning began with an error, and Bay Port turned it into a three-run inning and hung on from there.

"We've thrown a lot at these guys in two weeks (of practice). Execution was not great today, but again, that's something we live with and that's something we'll grow with," said McMillan. "As we start to execute, these four-run games will turn into seven-, eight-run games."

Senior Jonah Klingeisen opened the Red Raiders' season with a looping double down the right field line on the first pitch he saw. Pulaski tried to bunt him over to third, but Klingeisen was caught in a rundown and eventually tagged out. The top of the first ended on a caught stealing.

After Bay Port snagged the lead with a run in the third, Pulaski came back with two in the fourth for its first lead of the young season.

Sophomore Kyle Olson walked with one out and moved to second on a groundout. Olson moved over to third on an infield single from junior Brayden Otto.

Junior Caden Rybicki followed with a grounder up the third base line, but the throw to first was wild, allowing Olson to easily score and a hustling Otto to score all the way from first. Senior Logan Hochevar followed with a walk, but he and Rybicki were stranded after a groundout.

The hosts tied it in the bottom half of the frame before Pulaski added its final two runs in the fifth.

The first three batters of the frame reached, with freshman Michael Molthen and junior Michael Wyent walking and Klingeisen singling.

Olson followed with a single to plate Molthen. After a strikeout, Otto walked to force in Wyent.

"I enjoyed just getting back out on the field today. We had a couple games we were supposed to play last week get canceled. We were able to come out here, put the ball in play and really compete hard," said Klingeisen.

"Playing Bay Port (the 2021 conference champions) first game is not ideal, but 5-4, we'll take that any day," said Olson. "And I know for sure next time we play them, we'll want it to be the other way, and by a lot more."

Olson and Klingeisen were two of three pitchers Pulaski used in the contest, with Molthen serving as the other.

Molthen started and worked the first three innings. He allowed one run on three hits but struck out four batters and didn't allow a walk.

Olson then worked the next two innings. He allowed a walk and four hits, but just one of the four runs he surrendered was earned. Olson fanned a pair of hitters.

The sidearm-throwing Klingeisen worked the sixth inning, allowing one baserunner and striking out a batter.

Klingeisen, Olson and Otto accounted for Pulaski's four hits in the contest, with Klingeisen tallying two. The Red Raiders drew nine walks, with Olson, Molthen and Wyent each drawing two free passes.

Another big part of the team's struggles in key situations were strikeouts, with 11 punchouts helping contribute to eight runners left on base.

Oconto Falls' Haines, Wilquet make history with all-state honors

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

No Oconto Falls High School cheerleaders had ever been named to an all-state team, but juniors Amber Haines and Jenna Wilquet recently changed that narrative.

Haines and Wilquet were each named to the Wisconsin Association of Cheer/Pom Coaches all-state team in the non-tumble division. The Panther duo were just two of eight total cheerleaders to make that list out of 30 competitors.

The competition wasn't held in person, instead with Haines, Wilquet and others sending in videos of their routines. The videos were reviewed and then all-state honors were passed out, with participants receiving a certificate and medal.

The non-tumble division performance consists of a cheer, a short dance and a jumps to cap it off. There are no flips, cartwheels or backhand springs in the non-tumble division.

"I am so honored to make it," said

Haines, who is in her sixth year of cheerleading. "It was my mission the past two years to become the first cheerleader in Oconto Falls history. It means that I put countless time and effort into my solo. I spent a lot of time after practices or coming in on Saturdays to try to get there, and it paid off. It means to me that I have dedication and I'm so proud of how much farther I've come."

"We put in months of work to be able to compete in our non-tumble division," said Wilquet, who is also in her sixth year of cheering.

"To be the first cheerleader at Oconto Falls to make all-state is an incredible honor. I felt excited and super proud of the hard work we put in. To be the first in OFHS history makes me realize how much I have improved as a cheerleader personally. We spent every day of the week for two hours and sometimes even more practicing for games, competition season, and all-state."

ATHLETE PROFILE: JAMESEN ENGEL

Panther eager to soak up memories of final season

The Oconto Falls High School softball team is hoping to improve on its 2021 season, when the team won seven conference games. With several experienced players back in the fold, including senior Jamesen Engel, the Panthers believe they can do just that.

Engel was an honorable mention selection in the North Eastern Conference after a strong junior season. She posted a .317 batting average for the season and had four extra-base hits among her 19 hits for the season.

Engel, who primarily plays the outfield, also scored seven times and drove in an additional 11 runs for Oconto Falls.

The senior hopes to keep producing for the team while also enjoying every second of the experience.

ATHLETE PROFILE: WENDELL WAUKAU JR.

Menominee Indian senior ready to lead baseball team

Menominee Indian High School senior Wendell Waukau Jr. is hoping to turn in a strong season on the baseball field this spring.

Last spring, Waukau made the Central Wisconsin Conference-East Division second team. For his full junior season, he tallied a .309 batting average, two homers, seven doubles and 12 RBIs. The first and third baseman also spent some time on the mound for the Eagles.

After his high school career wraps up, he will continue his playing career at Bryant & Stratton College. He signed a letter of intent back in November.

Q: When did your interest in baseball begin?

A: The love for baseball really began when I held my first baseball bat. Seeing my father (Wendell Waukau Sr.) and uncles (Wade and Chief Waukau) playing baseball also had a big impact on how much I began to love the game.

Q: What is your favorite part about the baseball season?

A: I'd like to say playoffs. Every team in the conference plays like it's their last and the level of competition is amazing.

Q: What has the game of baseball taught you over the years?

A: Baseball has taught me many lessons. I'd say the biggest thing baseball has taught me is how to deal with failure, and understanding how to overcome it so it won't happen again. Learning how to fix the little slumps and the mind games is a big role in baseball.

Q: You're headed to Bryant and Stratton to play baseball after this season, so is there anything you'd like to accomplish individually in your final high school season?

A: Personally, I would like to make the most out of this season. First team all-conference is definitely on the list of accomplishments. Knowing that there is a lot of high-caliber athletes in this conference will push me to work harder and achieve that goal.

Q: In order for the team to have a strong spring, what needs to happen?

A: I think we have a lot of talent coming this year, with talent comes work ethic. I think that's the biggest thing that needs to happen. Just for the team to stay together and to keep working on getting better as individuals, will benefit the team to a strong spring.

Q: How did playing football and basketball prepare you for the baseball season?

A: It helped keep me in shape, a lot of the conditioning and weight training definitely helped me keep myself in shape for the spring season.

rituals you go through?

A: I do pray before every game, God has grown into my life drastically throughout my years of playing baseball. He has helped me become a better me on and off the field.

Q: As a senior, how will you try and help lead the team?

A: Helping my teammates when they need it will always be a main priority for me being a leader. As much as I would want to focus on myself, I also want others to succeed, even if it's something little. I will always go out of my way to make sure my teammates find success in anything they do.

Q: What's your favorite memory of competing on the Menominee Indian baseball team?

A: My favorite memory will always be the bus rides, getting ready before a game with my team is always a great time. Playing music and getting our minds right to compete at our best is a memory that will always last a lifetime.

Shawano Speedway season just around the corner

Raceway's opening night now April 23

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

Shawano Speedway is gearing up for its 2022 season, with plenty of returning fan favorite promotions, a few new ones lined up and plenty of entertaining races to come.

Due to wet, snowy and cold conditions in late March and early April, the speedway's opening night has been rescheduled, moving from April 16 to April 23.

The Dirt Kings special that was set for April 16 also had a rain date of April 23, so as long as the season starts that night, fans won't miss out on any of the racing on the original season schedule.

The speedway's practice night of April 15 also got moved back a week to April 22. It will run from 3-8:30 p.m. and admission is free, with food and drink stands open.

When the season gets underway, there will be plenty of specials and events for fans to check out, along with the racing on the track.

Karly Curtin, the new marketing and promotions manager for the speedway and fairgrounds, says she is "more fan focused" than past workers in her position, but she also knows the drivers and racing are what drives the speedway.

While Brad Luepke, the one who previously held Curtin's position, was more driver, racing and pit crew oriented and could often be found inside the racetrack or in the pit area, Curtin said she'll likely be found in the grandstands.

"Talking to the fans, talking to our sponsors is a huge thing for me," said Curtin.

"I've said this in previous interviews, but my main goal is to stand at the end of the ramp (to the grandstands), and say, 'Hello, welcome to Shawano Speedway,' so you can put my face with a name. And then after every race, I'll be standing in the same spot and thanking people for coming, because I just think that is a very personal thing to do."

She added she'd work her way into the pit area at times to talk with drivers but do her best to not get in the way during their busy times.

Curtin said the speedway is going to improve its digital access to fans, allowing them to more easily look up results, the schedule, promotions and more. She added that the speedway website is going to get "a whole new look this year, because I know that hasn't been very functionable in the past."

One of the speedway's most well-liked specials over the past two years was the Mid-Summer Classic, but that has been cut from the 2022 schedule.

"The reason that we cut the Mid-Summer Classic is because we worked with the Seymour fair, and now Seymour is racing that weekend — which in the past they haven't, so that's why we had that special," said Curtin. "So instead of doing the Mid-Summer Classic, there is specials for each division on (the schedule)."

The first special is for the IMCA Modifieds on May 14, with a rain date of May 21. The IMCA Stock Car special is set for June 18, with a rain date of July 2.

There are two Late Model specials on the schedule — July 9 and July 30 — with a rain date of Aug. 27.

The IMCA Modifieds will have another special on July 23, with the IMCA Sport Mod special set for Aug. 6 and the Mighty 4's special on Aug. 13. Aug. 20 will serve as a rain date for the Mighty 4's and Sport Mods.

The IMCA Stock Car division will also race for some extra cash on July 23. Dirt Kings specials are scheduled for April 23 and June 25.

The Spectator Eliminators have been cut off the speedway's schedule this year out of safety and liability concerns, according to Curtin.

In terms of promotional nights, trophy night, where the speedway recognizes its 2021 champions and rookies of the year, is set for April 30. The rookies of the year were Adam Jacobson (IMCA Modified), Gunner Frank (Late Model), AJ Springborn (IMCA Sport Mod), Ryan Westphal (IMCA Stock Car) and Bailey Tate (Mighty 4's), while the champions were Kyle Raddant (Late Model), Marcus Yarie (IMCA Modified), Travis Van Straten (IMCA Stock Car), Jayden Schmidt (IMCA Sport Mod) and Tanner Westphal (Mighty 4's).

May 14 will also serve as fan appreciation night at the speedway. Curtin said it will look a bit different this year but will feature food and drink specials. All of the speedway's sponsors were invited to set up a booth/marketing space from 4 p.m. until intermission that night and encouraged to participate in raffles and giveaways, where they can engage with fans.

"If everyone comes early, they can take advantage of that," said Curtin.

The kid's coin drop event returns to the speedway on May 21 before a tribute to first responders makes its first appearance on June 4. All first responders will get in half price that evening.

The following week includes a tribute to go-kart racers before Hall of Fame night on June 18. There's a tribute to veterans — where all veterans get in free — planned for July 2 before Halloween night on July 16.

Travis Van Straten competes during the final IMCA Stock Car division feature race of 2021 on Sept. 4 at Shawano Speedway. Van Straten won the title in the division.

Racing for a Reason returns on July 30, but with a slight twist from past years.

Luepke started up Racing for a Reason when his son Reed was hospitalized battling leukemia over a decade ago. The event passed the $200,000 mark last summer, with those proceeds going toward childhood cancer awareness.

This year, the same event will happen with a silent auction and bucket raffles, but a committee filled with racing fans, people from the public and members of the speedway's board will determine where the proceeds go, with all of it being dispersed within Shawano County or a nearby county. There will be a nomination process, and then the committee will vote on which individuals or families will receive the funds.

Back to school night replaces backpack night on Aug. 6. It's the same concept and donation process as in the past, but will ensure supplies are more evenly distributed among kids. All school and faculty members can get in for half price that night.

Aug. 13 will serve as the speedway's corn roast night, and also include a new tribute to farmers. Championship night is set for Sept. 3.

There is a new leaderboard on display at the speedway and a different fire safety company is in place. The kid's zone is also getting a mini race car and swings, but those won't be in place the first couple race nights.

Admission prices are the same as past years and can be found at www.shawanospeedway.net/shawano-speedway.

"That's one thing that our board has been pretty strict about not doing is raising prices, because where else can you go where admission is $10 for a full night of entertainment? You can't even go to the movies for two hours for that," said Curtin. "We want to keep prices affordable and make sure that everyone can come here."

Curtin encouraged fans to become more familiar with the MyRacePass app for quicker access to results and more. The Shawano Speedway page can be found at www.myracepass.com/tracks/1874.

Turkey hunting season is finally here

The typical Wisconsin hunter often is most excited about the deer season.

Not me. I live and breathe for the spring turkey season, and I'm thrilled to say that begins this week!

MORGAN RODE

The 2022 youth hunt kicks off the turkey season Easter weekend, with hunters under age 16 getting the first crack at a bearded turkey on April 16 and 17. For more rules on the youth hunt, visit p.widencdn.net/idrhvd/turkeyouthunt.

The woods then gets a two-day break before the first of six time periods open up. Period A runs April 20-26, with periods B-F all running seven days with no breaks. Period F hunters' last day is May 31.

More information on the turkey season can be found at dnr.wisconsin.gov/topic/hunt/turkey.

If you know me, I try and take advantage of every opportunity I have to hunt turkeys.

Currently, I own harvest authorizations for the final four time periods in this area, while adding a couple authorizations in zone 4 where my family has property.

It's the same setup as last year for me, a year where I believe I hunted all but four days during a month span.

Luckily, I hold a job with a majority of work happening in the afternoon, so I'm able to hunt just about every morning. Sometimes that means staying up until midnight to get a jumpstart on the next day of work and other days hunting on just a couple hours of sleep.

For me though, turkey hunting is worth it. After each season, I still somehow want more time in the spring woods.

To help combat that this year, I also plan to do some hunting with family, where I'll serve as the designated caller. So if all goes according to plan, there might only be one time period I won't be out in the woods at some point, and I can guarantee you the only thing I'll be thinking about that week is turkey hunting.

P.S. If you're looking for someone to turkey hunt with, or call for you, this spring, shoot me a message!

Some of you might never understand my love and adoration for turkey hunting, or maybe you can relate but with deer season instead.

A tom works its way into the woods during a snow shower on April 8 in Shawano County.

MORGAN RODE | NEW MEDIA

I actually didn't used to be this obsessed with turkey hunting. It wasn't until I moved to this area and got familiar with public lands that it really jumped to another level for me.

There's just something about learning the ins and outs of a hunting property, patterning turkeys and then finding a way to entice them into gun range that appeals to me. The cherry on top for me is simply being in the woods after a long winter and hearing those first gobbles of the morning.

I could honestly care less if I harvest a bird, even with all the money, time and effort I put into the season. It's all about the experiences for me. I actually tend to remember the hunts I went home empty-handed more than ones I've been successful on.

So whether you get out one time this spring or every single day, enjoy each and every second of it.

I wish you all a successful turkey season, but most importantly hope it's a safe and enjoyable one with stories you can share the rest of your life.

Summer concert series expected to fill Shawano park with people, tunes

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Thursday nights might not be a huge deal any other time of the year, but once summer hits, they'll be synonymous with warm temperatures and hot band concerts.

The Shawano Park and Recreation Department is rolling out its annual Thursdayz at Franklin program beginning June 2 with The Presidents kicking off almost three months of Wisconsin musical talent filling the air weekly with high notes and low notes. This is the fourth year for the summer entertainment held at Franklin Park, 235 S. Washington St., Shawano.

Originally started as a way to bring a variety of entertainment to the area — the first year included hypnotist performances and movie viewings — Thursdayz at Franklin serves as a venue for bands to get people moving. While the pandemic muted much of the 2020 season, some bands were still able to perform in late summer, and Thursdayz came back with a vengeance in 2021, with much of the park filled with lawn chairs as people enjoyed hearing the bands perform cover songs and even some original music.

"We have definitely seen growth every year," said Matt Hendricks, the city's park and recreation director. "We really learned that people just loved the cover bands. That's where we saw the biggest crowds. Our expectation is that it will be at least as sizeable as last year, and that we'll see some growth."

Hendricks noted that the events have grown enough that the city is doing some marketing outside Shawano in the hopes of bringing people in from surrounding areas.

"We think people might travel, so we've picked up some billboards and some other advertisements that are outside the city or the county of Shawano for that matter," Hendricks said, noting that he was surprised it has grown as much as it has.

Bands like The Presidents and Johnny Wad, which performs June 30, are crowd pleasers that Shawano tries to bring back year after year, with Hendricks noting that "they're really fun." However, the bands, which are booked by the city's events coordinator, Dana Krause, are rotated so that some new talent gets to rock on the bandshell at Franklin Park.

"The Cougars is coming back (June 16), by community request," Hendricks said, noting that the city tries to mix things up with alternating country and rock-and-roll bands. "Other ones like Driftwood (July 14) and Bad Habitz (Aug. 4) and Copper Box (Aug. 11) are ones that people will say, 'Hey, I saw so-and-so at the county fair.' We look into them sometimes and make it happen."

The bands start playing at 6 p.m. and continue through sunset, and for those who might get hungry or thirsty, food and beverage venues are set up, some of them being manned by local nonprofits.

"We really value those partnerships, because whether it's SAM25 or Big Brothers Big Sisters, all the money they make off that goes back into their coffers," Hendricks said. "We don't charge them anything because we really view it as a way for our community to support those local organizations. Especially after last year, many of them have struggled with fundraising."

There is talk about, in the future, having kids games or inflatables at the park for the children to enjoy while the parents chill with the bands, but nothing has solidified yet.

"At the end of the day, we really want to be a family-friendly event, low-key," Hendricks said. "We really like the fact that people are sitting in lawn chairs or on blankets as opposed to standing in a mosh pit."

Colon cancer survivor says trust your gut

Johnson diagnosed well before experts recommend screening

Josh Johnson was 42 when he was diagnosed with colon and rectal cancer.

"I'm a statistic," said the now 44-year-old. "I'm the guy who got a cancer you are not typically diagnosed with until after the age of 50."

In fact, age 50 is no longer the recommended age to begin colon cancer screenings. The American Cancer Society (ACS) now recommends Americans get their first colonoscopy at age 45.

"An increased incidence of colon cancer in younger people is the reason for this change of recommendations," said Dr. Xin Yao, oncologist/hematologist at the ThedaCare Regional Cancer Center where Johnson received his testing and treatment. "Colon cancer is now the second leading cause of death by cancer in people of all ages."

Johnson believes his cancer started as much as three years before his diagnosis.

"For a few years, I was having random pain in my lower abdominal area whenever I had a bowel movement," he recalled. "I would feel the pain of something pushing in my stomach. When doctors told me that I did not need to be screened for colon cancer until age 50, I did not really give it a second thought. Now I know that each person is different."

In Johnson's case, his doctor suspected irritable bowel syndrome, a fatty liver or his gall bladder.

"I truly did not think I had cancer," Johnson said. "Other than random pain in my abdomen, I never had any colon cancer symptoms. I'm a strong, healthy guy – 6 feet, 2 inches, 250 pounds. I wasn't losing weight, my appetite was fine, but I definitely thought it was something more than an upset stomach."

Johnson's colon cancer was discovered after he began having heart palpitations and sought care for a possible heart problem. An electrical engineer, Johnson repairs packaging machinery and travels for his job. One night in the summer of 2019, he was working in Tennessee when his heart began

Josh Johnson was 42 when he was diagnosed with colon and rectal cancer. He wants others to understand that younger people should be aware of this disease and follow the screening recommendations. As he reflected about his colon cancer diagnosis and what he has taken away from the experience, Johnson said, "Do something every day that makes you happy. I eat ice cream; it makes me smile."

palpitating, and he thought he might be having a heart attack.

"I went to a nearby hospital and they checked me over and said I wasn't having a heart attack and released me," he said. "I felt fine for the next few days and continued on with my job. Then, the last night I was there, at about 4 a.m., I had an atrial fibrillation attack; back to the hospital I went. Luckily, the atrial fibrillation resolved on its own, and I was released. I came home and contacted my doctor."

In the course of checking out Johnson's heart, his doctor discovered his hemoglobin level was low and suspected he might have internal bleeding somewhere. The doctor ordered an upper GI exam and a colonoscopy in early December 2019.

"The upper GI scope was fine," Johnson said. "When the colonoscopy was complete, the doctor came back and said he found a tumor in my rectum. The doctor explained that he removed the tumor, and I had another tumor in my lower descending colon. He thought both were suspicious. Two days later, the doctor called and said both tumors were cancerous, and we needed to develop a treatment plan soon."

Johnson immediately called his wife, Melissa, who is a registered nurse at ThedaCare. With her as his support system, they were ready to tackle the diagnosis head-on.

"It was scary as hell," he said. "No one believed someone my age, and in my good health, could have

FYI

The American Cancer Society (ACS) estimates that in 2022, there will be more than 106,000 new cases of colon cancer diagnosed. According to the ACS, the death rate from colorectal cancer has been dropping in both men and women for several decades. Dr. Xin Yao, oncologist/hematologist at the ThedaCare Regional Cancer Center, noted that is likely due to several reasons including colorectal polyps are now being found more often by screening and removed before they can develop into cancers, or cancers are being found earlier when they are easier to treat.

The ACS recommends the following colorectal cancer preventive behaviors:

- Maintain a healthy weight
- Get moderate physical exercise — 30 minutes of exercise, five days a week
- Eat a diet low in animal fats (red meat) and high in fruits, vegetables and whole grains
- Limit alcohol consumption
- Avoid tobacco products

colon cancer."

In early January 2020, Johnson had abdominal surgery where the tumor, a section of his colon and 13 lymph nodes were removed. One of the lymph nodes later tested positive for cancer.

"The cancer had moved through the colon wall, which is where the bleeding was happening and causing my low hemoglobin level," he said. "The cancer was graded as Stage IIIB."

Six weeks after his surgery, Johnson began chemotherapy. Because of his frequent travel for work and his desire to not be off work for an extended period of time, Johnson's oncologists recommended four cycles of chemotherapy.

"They warned me that the two chemotherapy drugs they were recommending were very strong, and that I would not feel well for a few days after each treatment," he said. "They were right. I had some very serious side effects, some that are still present two years after the treatment."

The oncologists told Johnson he has a 70% five-year survival rate, at which point he might be considered cancer free.

Johnson firmly believes people should listen to their body.

"Your body will not lie to you," he said. "Trust your gut. People need to pay closer attention to their bodies, and I hope doctors hear their patients when they explain that something just does not feel right."

"No one believed someone my age, and in my good health, could have colon cancer."

Battery-powered bikes boost mileage, fun

I sat on the comfy padded seat of the UBCO Adventure 2x2 electric motorcycle and listened to Valley Snowmobile and Powersports owner Lon Tesch explain how to ride it. Once a button on the handlebar is pushed, it's "in gear," even though it doesn't have gears. With a twist of the throttle, it's ready to rip.

"Go easy on the throttle because it's direct drive," he said, just after explaining his wife crashed her first time on the UBCO.

ROSS BIELEMA

I'd owned and ridden motorcycles before, but had no idea what this battery-powered machine was capable of. As a light snow fell, I drove through the grass next to his backyard showroom in rural Hortonville and was astounded by the instant response of this two-wheel-drive e-bike. Then I took this street-legal version out on paved road and quickly zipped it up to 31 mph.

The silent ride was like nothing else I had ever ridden and was magical. My mind couldn't grasp the power that made no noise, needed no gas, emitted no fumes. This "bike" had no chain—just a 1,000-watt flux motor in the hub of each 17-inch wheel.

After my slightly wet but exhilarating ride, I was ready to sign on the dotted line, but for the slight problem of the $7,200 price tag. That's a lot of money for a 150-pound motorcycle. The white-framed UBCO I drove was street legal with light, digital dashboard, mirrors, turn signals and even a horn. A black version made strictly for off-road work is about $500 less and doesn't have the features above, except for the headlight. Monitoring speed, battery life and other functions of the Adventure (white) model can be done on the black version with an UBCO phone app.

"I'm into the hunting stuff," said Tesch, pointing to some of his all-electric ATVs. He described the American-made UBCO as extremely reliable and durable, with virtually no maintenance needed.

E-bikes and e-motorcycles are a growing industry, but remain a small fraction of total bike sales, Lon Tesch, owner of Valley Snowmobile and Powersports in rural Hortonville, shows off the Adventure, left, and Work versions of the UBCO electric motorcycle. These 150-pound electric two-wheelers feature direct drive in both wheels, a 30 mph maximum speed and 30-pound batteries for up to 75 miles of range on a charge. They are classed as mopeds in Wisconsin and require only a driver's license to ride with no noise or fumes.

ROSS BIELEMA

especially in colder states. During a recent visit to Key West, Florida, e-bikes (and other electric-powered vehicles such as golf carts) were everywhere. Commuters or residents dealing with narrow, crowded streets and a lack of parking space will love the easy-to-ride and fast advantages of a motorized bike.

T.K. King, manager for the Broken Spoke Bike Studio, Ledgewick, which also has bike shops in Green Bay and Manitowoc, said the average e-bike buyer he sees is usually an older retiree or couple who wants to keep riding a bike but may have a disability or just needs a little boost to enjoy riding.

King breaks down e-bikes into two main groups: pedal-assist motorized bikes that require pedaling to complement the motor, and full electric bikes with throttles that can be used without pedaling at all, if desired.

E-bikes come in three classes. A Class 1 bike can move up to 20 mph, a Class 2 bike tops out at 24 mph and a Class 3 bike zips along at up to 28 mph. Some states and bike trails regulate e-bikes based on this classification.

Broken Spoke carries Reid, Santa Cruz, Rambo, Specialized, Marin and Gazelle brands of e-bikes. While most e-bikes use traditional chain drives, normal bike gearing and versions of a Chinese-made Bafang motor, the Netherlands-based Gazelle has e-bike models that use a belt drive for quiet operation, a Bosch motor (designed in Germany and built in Hungary) and an infinitely variable Enviolo hub that is sealed for durability.

In Shawano, Dunham's offers a few models of e-bike, including Swagtron and Jetson, which are geared toward kids.

Most modern e-bikes use lithium-ion batteries, which are quickly charged in a few hours but can be greatly affected by the cold. If you ride in the fall or winter, as hunters using fat-tire e-bikes like the Rambo, Quiet Kat and Bakcou brands do, you will get far fewer miles on a charge than in the warmer months.

Hub motors put the power directly inside the wheel, and typically provide less torque, or pulling power, than mid-drive motors, which are located in the crankset. Motor sizes normally vary from 500 to 1,000 watts.

Some of these rugged, off-road e-bikes even come with accessories like one- or two-wheeled carts that can attach to a rear rack and drag a deer out of the woods or carry tools and gear for farmers and ranchers. Most have powerful LED lights and instrument panels to monitor speed and remaining battery life.

Specialized e-bikes made by Yuba, Tern and others feature extended racks for carrying more gear or children, and can be used by street vendors and urban businesses.

Prices range from about $2,000 for low-end e-bikes to more than $6,000 for models with larger motors, bigger batteries and accessories such as extended racks and cargo boxes.

If you enjoy bicycling but want to extend your range, or miss the sport but because of age or aching joints haven't ridden in years, an e-bike might be just the ticket to new adventures.

Keeping out of garden best thing for now

With temperatures rising and gardeners becoming anxious to get outside and work, it's time for my annual reminder to keep out of your garden, at least for the time being. I know it is difficult, but I say this for many reasons. Believe me, I know the temptation of wanting to get out and work the soil and rake and clean up from fall and winter, but these are some of the worst things we could be doing right now in our lawns and gardens.

The more time we spend walking about in our yards and gardens right now, the worse conditions will be later in summer. Most people will not recognize the connection.

Right now, our lawns and landscape are still not completely ready for human traffic. Walking and trampling all over our lawns and gardens now will compact the soil into a hard-packed, almost concrete-like substance. This will cause problems later in summer when weeds begin to show up and we have standing water.

Many of our worst backyard weeds — such as dandelions, plantain, creeping Charlie and crabgrass — love hard, compacted soil. There is a massive seedbed of these weeds waiting to germinate and emerge. By walking all over your lawn now, or by raking, you are giving these weeds everything they need to explode in number, quietly and unseen until later in summer.

Walking on the lawn now, when the soil is still cold and very wet from recent rainfall and snowfall, creates the compacted soil they love. Forcing out air pockets that plants need and creating a solid barrier of dense, compacted soil that only creates problems later on.

Raking at this time, which is way too early, rips out dormant grasses that help a shade out the weeds. Plus, raking opens up the seed bed to the bright spring sun. These conditions are perfect for an infiltration of weeds that you may not even notice until late June or July.

Compacted soils also create areas of standing water later in the Troubles with crabgrass and many other annoying weeds begin now, when gardeners unknowingly create ideal conditions for them by working in the garden and in the lawn too early in the season.

ROB ZIMMER

Dandelions love compacted soils, which are created by too much activity in the yard on warm days in April. Avoid working in the yard and garden until a lush carpet of fresh green lawn appears and temperatures have warmed significantly for a few weeks.

ROB ZIMMER

summer, as well as brown patches in the lawn, due to the compacted conditions and lack of drainage. Again, this will happen later in summer; you won't even notice, until then, the damage you created by walking all over your lawn in April.

Another reason to avoid doing too much yardwork and clean up this time of year is because many of our native pollinators — bees, butterflies and other creatures — are still overwintering in the stems of garden plants, as well as in and among leaves. Many of our native bees overwinter in the hollow stems of grasses and other plants. Many butterfly chrysalises are formed on the stems of garden plants and grasses and even on the forest floor or in the garden bed beneath leaves and debris.

Beloved favorites like Luna moths form their cocoons right on the ground among the leaves and, by raking them away, we rake away these beloved creatures.

It's best to avoid doing heavy cleanup in the garden until at least the middle or end of April.

It is best to avoid walking on the lawn and heavy raking until fresh green growth appears, emerging from dormancy and forming a cushiony layer that protects the moist, damp soil from compaction.

I know this is not what most people want to hear. I realize that most people want to get outside on that first 70-degree day and work like crazy to clean up and rake. However, please remember: This is usually the worst thing that you can do this time of year.

Enjoy the beautiful weather doing other outdoor activities. Plant potted containers and sow some seeds in pots, or go for a hike in an area nature center or wildlife area. Save the heavy yardwork until the lawn is truly dried up and our amazing insect and pollinators have had a chance to wake up and move out of their winter quarters.

Shawano Area Writers

Shawano Area Writers held its latest meeting March 16 in the Elsie Engel room at the Shawano Public Library. Attendees were Marilyn Kroenke, Wendy Goerl, Lee Pulaski, Svitlana Podgorna, Manuel Moraleda, Trudy Bosman, John Mutter, Tom Thorstenson, Twilla Beyer, and Barb King.

Beyer brought her friend, Roseanne Sanderfoot, who has written a book about emotional healing. She travels throughout Wisconsin giving talks to groups.

Lee Pulaski, vice president, called the meeting to order. The minutes and the treasurer's report were approved.

In new business, Svitlana Podgorna, who is from Ukraine, was asked about the war. She is very worried. Her family is safe so far, because they live in a part of the country where the fighting is not taking place.

John Mutter brought a giant clam shell from the island of Kwajalein that was given to him from a friend in Hawaii. Last month, Tom Thorstenson had read a story that included a large clam shell. At that time, John asked if we'd like to see the giant clam shell he had been given. John explained that these clams can grow much larger. The shell will be displayed in the library along with an explanation.

John Mutter wrote an update of the history of SAW which will be posted on the SAW website, www.shawanoareawriters.org. Through the 15 years of the student writing contest, SAW has received 2,855 entries in the contest, issued 672 certificates of achievement awards and rewarded student writers with $7,586 in cash prizes.

Trudy Bosman wrote a quatrain for a contest on Writer's Digest and placed in the top 10 from all those who entered.

Twilla Beyer told about the little kitten they rescued near the river. He is turning out to be a handful. He's mean to their 17-year-old cat.

Tom Thorstenson, right, reads his essay, "ZAnon," as John Mutter listens during the Shawano Area Writers meeting March 17 at the Shawano Public Library. CONTRIBUTED

Also, he managed to knock over some melted wax and got it on the table, wall, curtains, floor and himself.

Tom Thorstenson entitled his reading "ZAnon". He felt ZAnon should be more important than QAnon because it's the last letter in the alphabet, thus making it more important. Tom says he wants to start new theories and conspiracies. He will quote researchers who come up with their theories after drinking a cheap bottle of wine. His motto will be: "If it's true, you didn't read it here. If it isn't true, it ought to be."

Trudy Bosman read her poem entitled "Spring is Coming."

Manuel Moraleda read from his book, "Exploration of a Novel." The Japanese army attacked the Philippine Islands on Dec. 8, one day after Pearl Harbor. The people of the Philippines fought courageously for four days before being overtaken by the Japanese forces. A puppet government was set up. Many, who didn't agree, formed guerrilla armies.

There was a survey that asked if your country was attacked, would you stay and fight like the people of Ukraine or would you leave? Lee Pulaski wrote a point of view piece entitled, "Tell the Brits They Can Have Their Land Back."

Wendy Goerl read from the first chapter of "Cyborgs of Gabriel" from the Heartstone series.

Marilyn Kroenke read two short stories. The first was entitled, "Thanks, but No Thanks," where Marilyn's "three-ager" granddaughter, Sofia, refused to say the prayer before the meal. Marilyn's second story was called "Ann," Marilyn and her husband ran an insurance agency and later found that their client, Ann, was a widow because her husband was shot along with another Mafia member and buried in a field.

Barb King read from her book "The Children in the Garden." Jillian's neighbors come over to help her start cleaning out everything from the hoarder's house she purchased. She finally learns why people feel the house is haunted.

Roseanne Sanderfoot read from her book "Out of the Fowler's Snare." When Roseanne is 15, her family moves to another town. She is devastated when people bully her by calling her "ugly largemouth bass." With the help of her faith, she is finally able to heal.

Shawano Area Writers meets the third Thursday of every month at 10 a.m. at the Shawano Public Library. The next meeting is April 21.

AROUND THE COMMUNITY

Cantata tradition returns to Gillett

For the first time in three years, St. John's Lutheran Church in Gillett is ready to present an Easter cantata.

"When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," written, arranged and orchestrated by Bradley Knight, is a 45-minute performance that includes many well-known Easter melodies and also some contemporary songs.

A cantata is a narrative piece of music for voices with instrumental accompaniment. The church was in the middle of rehearsing its 2020 Easter cantata when COVID-19 pandemic lockdowns were enforced that March.

"When I Survey the Wondrous Cross" is scheduled to be presented at the church, 101 W. Main St., Gillett, on four occasions during the week following Easter. Performances are scheduled at 7 p.m. April 19, April 21 and April 22, and 2 p.m. April 24.

As it has been for over 12 years, the ecumenical choir is composed of performers from all over the area representing many congregations. This season, singers are from St. Anne Parish (Lena), Our Redeemer Lutheran (Suring), St. Paul's Lutheran (Bonduel), Lena Seventh-day Adventist, Christ Lutheran (Hintz), St. John's Lutheran (Morgan), Mt. Olive Lutheran (Suring), St. John's Lutheran (Hayes), St. Michael's Catholic (Suring), Zion Lutheran (Marinette), St. John's Catholic (Gillett), Maple Valley Community (Suring), and St. John's Lutheran (Gillett).

The cantata features Micki Carlson, Brenda Danielson, John Darga, Judy Darga, Jason Fenendael, Jenny Fenendael, Anita Graziano, Phillip Heroux, Kurt Hicks, Maddy Holmes, Carol Jossie, Darlene Kapelke, Patti Konkle, Emily Limberg, Joe Quade, Daryl Schroeder, Patty Stabbe, Bonnie Tousey, Chique Tousey-Tabar, Mark Vorpahl, Wendy Vorpahl, Cathy Wocking, Sandy Wright, Doug Yahnke and Rick Zill. Wayne Strei directs, and Dan Wright is the sound technician.

There is no charge for admission, but a freewill offering will be accepted. A dessert reception will follow each performance.

Pilot program to aid child care workers

Two divisions within the Oconto County Health and Human Services Department are collaborating to provide education to the county's child care providers.

Students create art from sacrifice

Allison Krause, a fifth-grade student at Sacred Heart Catholic School, shows her interpretation of the 13th Station of the Cross, when Jesus is removed from his cross. Students used watercolors to create the warm color background and then made the silhouette of their chosen station out of black paper. Students were also asked to write a prayer to go with their station.

CONTRIBUTED

The economic support division and public health division have created a program called Healthy Loving Environment, which is designed to support child care providers in their efforts to have safer, healthier spaces for Oconto County's children.

"The robust blend of knowledge between both departments brings diversity to the overall approach, outlook and information, as well as fresh and helpful insights shared via the HLE program," said Heather Ondik, economic support director. "In addition, the two divisions working collaboratively is a stellar way for the Oconto County Health and Human Services Department to provide concise, direct support to child care providers simultaneously across our county."

The program will educate child care providers about health hazards that could be present or could develop in child care homes and facilities and how to make healthy choices to help reduce those hazards.

"The environment children spend time in is important," Oconto County Health Officer Debra Konitzer said. "By keeping children's areas as healthy as possible, we are promoting positive effects on children's health now as well as later in life."

Healthy Loving Environment is a pilot program that begins in April and run for six months. Providers will be contacted by the county's child care coordinator to assist them in signing up.

The Shawano Community Middle School Band traveled down to the state capitol in Madison and filled it with sound during their free performance in the rotunda on March 24. The band, under the direction of Chad Bromeisl, performed in this year's Wisconsin Music Educators Association Capitol Concerts series.

SCMS band performs at capitol rotunda

Shawano School District Superintendent Randi Anderson noted that this was the first time the SCMS band was invited to perform at the rotunda.

"It was a huge honor, and they were absolutely amazing," Anderson said. "I had the opportunity to attend as a mom, and it was wonderful."

Anderson added that many in attendance told Bromeisl how well behaved the students were and also "how awesome they sounded."

The capitol concerts featured performances by students from schools throughout Wisconsin to celebrate Music in Our Schools Month. The events highlighted the importance of music education in schools across the nation by offering local students the opportunity to perform in the state capitol.

Prevea to give tips on parenting via Zoom

Welcoming a child into the world is a life-changing experience that presents different challenges and questions for all parents.

Dr. Shilpa Ullikashi, pediatrician at Prevea St. Mary's Health Center in Green Bay, will host a Zoom presentation at 6 p.m. April 26 to share parenting tips and what to expect in the first several months of a baby's life.

Topics presented will include newborn characteristics and skin conditions; medications, taking baby's temperature and when to call the doctor; swaddling; skin-to-skin; feeding baby — patterns, how much, etc.; sleeping; what your baby's cries mean; cleaning baby; crawling, walking and other milestones; and the importance of play.

Regardless of whether participants have been first-time parents, or it has been a few years since a baby was in the home, Prevea Pediatricians can help by answering and addressing infant care questions.

To register, go to www.prevea.com/events.
