

A coon hound, later named Atley at the Shawano County Humane Society, was found on the side of a road Feb. 9, apparently left to die after suffering what appear to be gunshots to the face. After surgery to repair her broken jaw, the dog is recovering in foster care.

Medical costs top $11,000; donations sought for humane society

Donations are rolling in to the Shawano County Humane Society to help cover the medical expenses of a dog allegedly shot in the face and left to die on the side of a road.

On Feb. 9, Allena Muth found the wounded animal near Olson Road and County Road C east of Cecil. She brought the dog to the humane society and then filed a police report with local authorities.

"I wish I could've done more and kept her myself; she is the sweetest thing, even in so much pain," Muth wrote in a social media post. "Spread the word help me find the person who shot this poor girl and just left her on my road. You didn't kill her just so you know, went in her nose and out her neck."

From Shawano, the female coon hound was taken to Clintonville Hometown Veterinary Service. X-rays showed a broken jaw and four entry/exit wounds. If the wounds are from a gun, it was most likely from a .22 caliber gun or smaller.

Atley, as the dog has become known, is estimated to be about 2 years old. She had surgery on her broken jaw Feb. 13 at Blue Pearl Animal Hospital in Appleton. Atley was placed in a foster home to complete her recovery but was returned to the hospital the next day after a setback. She continues to be monitored.

"The support has been very heartwarming," said Pam Nowak, executive director of the humane society. "Individuals and businesses have offered assistance and donations. It's also helped raise awareness of the shelter."

An area woman who wants to remain anonymous has started to gather funds for a reward leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the dog's injuries.

Nowak said medical costs for Atley are now more than $11,000.

Shawano's animal shelter is funded solely by donations; it does not receive any government funding.

Considered a no-kill shelter, animals are only euthanized under the most extreme circumstances, and then only at the recommendation of a vet.

Nowak said the shelter is usually full with a waiting list of people who want to surrender their pets.

Gallagher won't seek re-election to Congress

Local GOP leaders in wait-and-see pattern regarding next candidate

By KEVIN PASSON
Editor-in-chief

U.S. Rep. Mike Gallagher's announcement that he won't seek another term in Congress is opening the way for a new face in Washington, and local GOP leaders are optimistic it will be a Republican again.

Richard Kucksdorf, Shawano County Republican Party chairman, said the the party is expected to have a rigorous vetting process.

"First, we'll want to know if the candidate lives in the district," he said. "Then, we'll ask how long they've lived here. If they just moved here as a carpet-bagger, how well can they represent the 8th District?"

That may have been an early critique of potential candidate Alex Bruesewitz, a supporter of former President Donald Trump and a GOP consultant. Bruesewitz is a former Wisconsin resident now living in Florida.

It was also an acknowledgement of the mistakes the party made in 2022 after Rep. Peter Schmidt won the Republican primary for the Wisconsin Assembly.

After the primary, it was revealed Schmidt had previously been charged with a felony but later convicted of misdemeanor disorderly conduct. As a result, the local party withdrew its support of Schmidt. He was also censured by the county party and prohibited from participating county GOP activities.

At that time, Kucksdorf said the Shawano County GOP failed to vet the six candidates before the primary.

Gallagher announced Feb. 10 he would not seek a fifth term in Congress.

"Eight years ago, when I first ran for Congress, I promised to treat my time in office as a high-intensity deployment," he said. "Through my bipartisan work on the Armed Services and Intelligence Commit-mittees, chairing the Cyberspace Solarium Commission and chairing the Select Committee on the Chinese Communist Party, we’ve accomplished more on this deployment than I could have ever imagined.

“But the Framers intended citizens to serve in Congress for a season and then return to their private lives. Electoral politics was never supposed to be a career and, trust me, Congress is no place to grow old. And so, with a heavy heart, I have decided not to run for re-election.”

Kucksdorf said Gallagher often partnered with a Democrat to bring forward bills regarding term limits. However, former Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi would turn the Democrats’ vision, he said, and he or she would back down before the matter came up for a vote, so it never worked out.

“I know his wife (Anne) is not a fan of the political life,” Kucksdorf said. “He wants a civilian job. Washington, D.C., is very intoxicating. When he was named chair of the Committee on the Chinese Communist Party, they dangled other committee chairmanships in front of him, then told him just a few more terms and then it’s the Senate. After that, it’s the presidency.”

Kucksdorf also related that Gallagher had recently been receiving death threats. He also was victim of swatting, in which someone had called Brown County authorities and told them Gallagher was dead and his wife and children were being held as hostages. A SWAT team was called to Gallagher’s home that night, Kucksdorf said.

“I think that was the straw that broke the camel’s back,” Kucksdorf said.

However, even before Gallagher’s announcement, Ken Sikora, Oconto County Republican Party chairman, was urging party leaders to consider an alternative in the 2024 election cycle.

Gallagher was one of a handful of Republicans who voted with Democrats against impeaching Department of Homeland Security Secretary Alejandro Mayorkas for not stemming the flow of immigrants on the nation’s southern border.

Sikora, in a letter to GOP county chairman in the 8th District, said Gallagher was expected to do the right thing, hold people accountable and vote for impeachment instead of giving lip service.

“I believe it is time that we start seriously considering Gallagher alternatives,” he wrote.

Sikora said Bruesewitz would have his support if he opted to run and invited Bruesewitz to address the county GOP.

“We are excited to welcome him to Oconto County and North East Wisconsin to help promote conservatism and the MAGA movement,” Sikora wrote.

Bruesewitz was scheduled as the featured speaker at the Oconto County Republican Party 2024 Caucus on Feb. 17 in Lena.

Bruesewitz had repeatedly attacked Gallagher on social media following Gallagher’s vote against impeaching Mayorkas earlier this month.

Roger Stone, a former Trump adviser, wrote on X that Bruesewitz “would have the full support of the MAGA movement” if he ran.

Former state Sen. Roger Roth, an Appleton Republican, said just hours after Gallagher’s announcement that he would run for the seat.

Roth served as state Senate president from 2017-21 and ran for lieutenant governor alongside GOP gubernatorial candidate Tim Michels in 2022.

He previously ran for the 8th District in 2010 but was defeated in the GOP primary by former Rep. Reid Ribble.

State Sen. Andre Jacque, a Republican from De Pere, is also reportedly considering a run.

No Democrats were firmly running for the seat before Gallagher’s announcement. However, former journalist Kelly Peterson, Navy veteran Alicia Saunders, and women’s health Dr. Kristin Lyerly all expressed interest in running at an event held last month by Women Win Wisconsin.

Congressional candidates must file their paperwork to run in Wisconsin by June 1 to be on the ballot for the primary, set for Aug. 13.

Kucksdorf said he doesn’t intend to bring any undeclared candidates to meet with local party members.

“Electoral politics was never supposed to be a career and, trust me, Congress is no place to grow old.”

Board hires Waukesha County for collections

Shawano schools have $83K in outstanding debt, could reach around $100K

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Plans to utilize a collection agency to get back more than $80,000 in outstanding debt from families drew mixed reviews from the Shawano School Board.

The board voted 5-3 on Feb. 12 to hire the Waukesha County Collection Division to attempt to collect five years worth of food service, technology and other fees from families. According to finance consultant Cory Kaisler, the district has tried and failed to get the families to pay the district back, and customers of a collection agency have a 25-50% successful collections rate.

There are no upfront fees to hire the collection agency, and it will take 28% on any fees collected. About 70% of the $83,000 in outstanding fees are technology fees caused by lost, broken or damaged devices, according to Kaisler. Food service negative balances account for about $13,000, while the rest — about $10,000 — is a combination of athletic fees and uniforms, classroom and library book fines, damage to school property and parking permits.

Kaisler noted there’s another $16,000 in fees for the current year that could be turned over to the collections agency by the end of the year if not paid.

He pointed out that the food service fees were halted during the pandemic in 2020 by the U.S. government covering the costs of school lunches for almost three years. The district stopped its practice of notifying families of outstanding debt during the pandemic, as well.

“During that time frame, the outstanding fees ballooned a little bit,” Kaisler said. “However, at the end of COVID, the U.S. government stopped covering costs for food services, and we went back to implementing the processes we had before.”

He said the district has tried mailing invoices, making phone calls and sending emails to families alerting them that they owe the schools money, but it has not gotten the job done.

“The district decided we were going to look at other options to collect some of our fees,” Kaisler said, adding that besides the collection agency, district officials considered utilizing small claims court, which was seen as costly and time-consuming, as well as writing off the debt by using the district’s fund balance.

Kaisler noted the collection agency has options the district doesn’t, such as garnishing tax returns, creating payment plans and garnishing pay.

“We really want to work with the person who owes us money to be able to try to collect without it being a financial hardship on them,” Kaisler said.

Board member David Cullen, who voted against the measure, feels the move is more antagonistic than cooperative.

“I think that would create a lot of bad will,” Cullen said. “We’re talking about $80,000, which sounds like a lot of money, but in reality, it’s a drop in the bucket. If I was a parent, and I got a bill for this, I would be ticked.”

Cullen argued that the food service fees might be hard to collect because people might still believe the government is covering food costs, but board member Bobbi Lemerond countered that she received a notice from the district last year saying that the grace period for meal compensation was coming to an end.

Board President Mike Musolf said he wanted to foster a positive relationship with parents but waiving off the debt would be setting a bad precedent, in his view.

“Next year, if people found out we just waived this debt, they’re not going to pay,” Musolf said. “As much as I’d like to say let’s do it, I can’t.”

Kaisler reiterated that most of the debt is related to tech, not food, with money owed for lost and unreturned iPads and other technology. He said there are currently 360 individuals with outstanding debt to the district, with the average debt being $254.

“As we continue to keep going down this road, I’m sorry to say I don’t see this going backwards,” Kaisler said. “Other people have paid their bills.”

Board member Jeana Winslow was another no vote against the collection agency, and she questioned why the fees are in place when families don’t have an opt-out for the technology.

“We require them to pay for them if they’re broken,” Winslow said. “I feel when we are requiring students to use these, I would be one of the parents who would opt out. I’ve said this from the beginning. It’s going to be money, money, money. We require the kids to have these, and stuff happens at school. Students are mean. They break other kids’ iPads. They take their charging cords. It’s not their fault.”

Regarding the food debt, Winslow recommending lobbying the state to cover food service costs fully to eliminate the need to charge families.

“I think we’re going to do more damage to families,” Winslow said. “I just don’t think collections is the way to go.”

Board member Al Pyatskowit was the third vote against the collection agency but did not speak during the debate.

Kurt Krizan finalist for West De Pere superintendent

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

Shawano School District Superintendent Kurt Krizan appears to be looking for other employment, as the West De Pere School District announced Feb. 16 that Krizan is one of the finalists for its vacant superintendent position.

Krizan sent out an email to parents and the media about the upcoming referendum, as well as the news about him being a finalist.

“As I’ve said before, my priorities are my family and my work here,” Krizan wrote. “As some of you know, I live over an hour’s drive from Shawano. There are many, many opportunities for superintendents in today’s job market. Only when my wife and I see a possible good fit for our family, do I investigate. Last evening, I was notified that I am a finalist for the School District of West De Pere. The district is publicizing the finalists today, and I want you to hear it from me first.”

This is the third time that Krizan has been a finalist for a superintendent position outside of Shawano. In 2023, Krizan was a finalist for the Menasha and Wrightstown school districts.

“Regardless of the outcome, I remain wholly committed to Shawano, this referendum, and leading this district effectively,” Krizan wrote.

“Just today (Feb. 14), someone found eight puppies and brought them in. Two were immediately taken to the vet, and we found homes for the other six,” Nowak said.

The shelter has a capacity for 22 dogs and upwards of 70 cats.

“We will do everything

we can to help,” she said.

When animals without a home are taken in, photos and information about the animal is posted on the humane society’s Facebook page.

“If they are going to be reclaimed, it’s usually within 48 hours,” Nowak said. “Our goal is to have the animal reclaimed by its owner or adopted by someone else within 14 days.”

Animals brought to the shelter are spayed, neutered, microchipped and vaccinated.

“Those costs add up, so we end up losing money on each adoption,” she said.

Donations can be mailed in or dropped off at the humane society at 1290 Jaycee Court, Shawano. Office hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to noon Saturday.

Donations can also be made through the humane society’s website at www.shawanohumanesociety.com.

Variety of vendors populate flea market

Indoor selection of items range from Amish jam to 1980s computers

By LYNN ZAFFRANN
Correspondent

Bad winter weather on Saturdays doesn't keep people from attending Zurko's Midwest Promotions Indoor Flea Market at the old Shawano Community Hall, 115 E. Division St.

The markets started Jan. 6 this year and will continue through March 23, running from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The popular Sunday flea market on the Shawano County Fairgrounds moved indoors for the winter in 2005, according to Tim Zurko.

"This is our 19th year," he said. "We purchased the building in 2005 from the city, renovated it, because we like old buildings. We've had it ever since. We do auctions here, as well."

Admission is free and there is ample parking in the building's lot and on the street. The flea market is held on the building's main floor, which is accessed by heading up a ramp that is decorated with multiple antique signs.

According to Zurko, there are usually about 25 vendors for the Indoor Flea Market.

"Some of the vendors only display at this market, but some of them are regulars at the fairgrounds," Zurko said, noting that they draw vendors from Wausau, Appleton and Green Bay.

One vendor at the Jan. 27 market was Travis Pipes, from Milwaukee.

"I wanted to come up and see what this is all about. I had a free Saturday, and I'm glad I came up. I've been doing this for about five years," he said.

It was his first time at the indoor market, but he Don Adams, of Menominee, Michigan, makes a purchase from vendor Travis Pipes, Milwaukee. "I've been coming to this market, and the outdoor one, for years. My house is full of junk. I shouldn't come. I never get out of here without a pocketful of things," Adams said.

LYNN ZAFFRANN

said that he's displayed at the summer market three times. His wares are varied, with many antique and vintage collectibles.

"I attend a lot of rummage and estate sales, it's relationships and social-networking to find things that I like to display and sell," Pipes said.

Items for sale at the indoor flea market are quite varied. They range from Amish jams and homemade wooden puzzles, to antique jewelry, to a new Amazon Alexa Dot, vintage comic books or an old VCR.

Gordon Fecyk, owner of Great White Retro, displays 1980s computers, parts and systems, items from his vintage computer museum.

"I do this only for the indoor market," he said.

Fecyk buys, sells, trades and shows parts and systems at the market.

"A good chunk of it came from Tigerton, a lot from Green Bay, Pulaski," Fecyk said. "A person just north of here, who was getting rid of her collection, had an Atari 400 that wasn't working well, but I was able to get it fixed up. I'm trying to encourage people to dig stuff out of their closets and see if we can get it to work."

Patricia Owen, of Shawano, has run the snack bar at the Indoor Flea Market for about five years. Her granddaughter, Jordan Woltemath, helps out with the snack bar, while selling her hand-crafted jewelry at the flea market.

"We have donuts, coffee, tea, hot chocolate," Owen said. "We also do chips, macaroni and cheese and ravioli microwave lunch bowls. We don't have a food vendor's license, so I can't make hot dogs, or hamburgers. It fits the needs of the vendors and customers."

Woltemath has been working at the flea market for about a year. She has her own business, JOBUGG Designs.

"I make and design everything that I sell," Woltemath said. "I watched a YouTube video and got inspired to do this."

Carol Fuqua sells vintage jewelry, glassware, pottery and collectibles with her husband, Scott, at the flea market.

"It's something to do in the winter. We've been doing this for about five years, interrupted by COVID," Fuqua said. "It's been a fun thing meeting people and getting out in the community. It's fun selling things, wheeling and dealing. Prices aren't set in stone."

Fuqua said she enjoys the other dealers and have made friends with a number of them.

"There are quite a few husbands and wives here," Fuqua said. "Some of the people do it year-round, but we just do it during the winter months."

Patricia Owen and her granddaughter, Jordan Woltemath, wait for customers at the indoor flea market snack bar, located in the Zurko Midwest Productions building in downtown Shawano. Owen supplies customers and vendors with a variety of candy, drinks and chips. Woltemath helps out behind the counter, while selling her own hand-crafted jewelry.

LYNN ZAFFRANN

Gordon Fecyk, right, displays his items at a recent Saturday Indoor Flea Market in Shawano. He has been buying and selling 1980's vintage computers, such as Commodore 16s and Apple IIc's, since 2022. Tim Zurko, left, is the son of Irene and Bob Zurko, owners of Zurko Midwest Productions. Tim manages the Saturday flea markets, where many pieces of vintage memorabilia are displayed, such as a sign from Angie's Main St. Cafe.

Plea deal offered to Pedro Noriega-Avila

New hearing set for April to determine if trial needed

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

A plea offer is in the hands of attorneys representing Pedro Noriega-Avila, they told Shawano-Menominee County Circuit Court Judge William Kussel Jr. on Feb. 14, but they need some time to decide whether to accept it or proceed to trial. Kussel granted the request and set a new hearing for 3 p.m. April 10 in Branch II in the Shawano County Courthouse, where it's expected there will either be a plea, or arrangements will be made to set a new trial date.

Noriega-Avila was originally scheduled to stand trial in August 2023 on one count of sexual assault of a child under age 13, two counts of sexual assault of a child and two counts of incest with a child by stepparent. The trial was halted after his attorney at the time, Sara Stertz, stepped down due to being in the late stages of pregnancy and disagreement with her client on defense strategies.

Since then, Noriega-Avila had been without representation. Court records show James Scoenecker was appointed Jan. 4 to represent the defendant, and Joe Furnstahl was also appointed on Feb. 1.

The criminal complaint states that Noriega-Avila allegedly went into his stepdaughter's room between September 2009 and June 2010 and assaulted her. It goes on to say that additional incidents occurred in 2014 and 2015. Noriega-Avila married the victim's mother on July 9, 2010.

Noriega-Avila initially appeared before Kussel on June 10, 2016, and subsequently posted a $5,000 cash bond. Noriega-Avila was then ordered to appear on June 20, 2016, but he did not show up, and a warrant was issued for his arrest.

Noriega-Avila faces a maximum of 40 years in prison and $100,000 fine for each of the incest counts and the latter two sexual assault counts. For the child sexual assault in 2010, he faces up to 60 years in prison.

Noriega-Avila was missing from the court for almost five years until his arrest in Arizona in 2021. Law enforcement responded to a U.S. Border Patrol station on March 13, 2021, regarding the warrant issued by the Shawano-Menominee County Circuit Court for Noriega-Avila, and the defendant was already in custody when officers arrived.

In April 2021, extradition documents were issued by the county for Noriega-Avila, who was brought back to Shawano County in July 2021.

Noriega-Avila remains in the Shawano County Jail on a $500,000 cash bond. He has been incarcerated for over two years, mainly because of the difficulty in finding an attorney the first time around. It took until late 2022 before Stertz was found to handle the case.

WRLHS gets grant to educate about opioids

Principal to present workshop on information, alternatives

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Wolf River Lutheran High School is sounding the alarm about the opioid crisis and how, even in Shawano County, the drug problem has taken hold. The school recently received a $5,000 grant from the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction to educate students and the community about drugs in general with an emphasis on opioids. Principal Shellie Kosmerchok recently went through an eight-hour training session to learn the latest on opioids, signs that teens are using them and what parents and others can do if they sense someone is on opioids. Kosmerchok is holding three in-school workshops in February. One addresses opioids, the second concerns marijuana and the third discusses vaping.

“With our kids, they have to take a pre-test, a post-test, and then they have to create a wellness plan,” Kosmerchok said. Kosmerchok will also be leading a community workshop from 9-11 a.m. March 2 at WRLHS, W7467 River Bend Road, Shawano, to discuss opioids in a format geared to parents. She noted that the workshop is not restricted to families with students at her school but is open to the entire community, for anyone who wants to listen. “The rationale is to make parents aware,” Kosmerchok said to explain why she applied for the DPI grant. “This information is from the Prevention Plus Wellness program.” Kosmerchok said the information will help parents ensure their teens are leading “a healthy life.” She noted that the school has not dealt with any opioid problems on campus so far, but that the students are dealing a lot with anxiety and depression, both of which can lead people to turn to drugs for a solution. “It leads them to do unhealthy things in their lives,” Kosmerchok said. “The program here gives them tools, and for the parents, it’s to promote healthiness in their students so they’ll be able to see signs.” Kosmerchok said many parents are unaware of the dangers of opioids. She noted there’s plenty of education out there about hard drugs, but opioids tend to be more insidious. “A lot of it is the prescription drugs,” Kosmerchok said. “It’s not even so much the heroin or the oxy(codone) on the street or whatever. It’s from their friends.” The benefit of Prevention Plus Wellness is that it doesn’t just preach that drugs are bad. Kosmerchok said it also provides healthy alternatives to dealing with anxiety and depression.

The community workshop is expected to talk about the benefits of a healthy lifestyle, survey parents on their knowledge about opioids, give positive messages that can be passed on to teens, symptoms of drug abuse and tips on what to do if someone overdoses on opioids. “This is to give them resources that they’ll be able to learn from,” Kosmerchok said. “There isn’t as much opioid use or deaths in our areas as there are in other areas, but it’s still there. It’s still happening.”

Now’s the time to consider flood insurance

Official suggests not waiting until waters begin to rise

By KEVIN PASSON
Editor-in-chief

One inch of water can lead to thousands of dollars in damage to a home or business, so local and state officials encourage owners and renters to consider flood insurances. Most homeowners and renters insurance policies do not cover flood damage, and on average, 40% of National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) flood insurance claims occur outside of high-risk flood areas. With increasing annual precipitation in Wisconsin, flood insurance is a tool to help prevent financial vulnerability. Federal flood insurance is available to residents through the National Flood Insurance Program if the local community is a member of the National Flood Insurance Program. Flood insurance coverage includes buildings and possessions for residential and commercial customers. It covers many direct losses from a flood, including foundations, basements

Snowmelt and wet weather increase flood risk in spring, but Wisconsinites can protect themselves with flood insurance. CONTRIBUTED and crawl spaces, appliances, debris removal, walls and flooring, electrical, plumbing and HVAC systems, furnaces and water heaters, and more. Insurance can be purchased through the NFIP to cover agricultural structures but not crops or livestock. According to the DNR, here are a few things to consider when contemplating whether to purchase flood insurance. • Since October 2016, 20 of 72 counties in Wisconsin have received federal disaster declarations due to flooding. • A 1% chance flood (or 100-year event) can happen four or more times during a 30-year mortgage. • In Wisconsin, annual average precipitation rose by about 3.1 inches between 1950 and 2006 representing a 10% increase. • Over the next 50 years, the observed trend toward an increase in the annual amount of precipitation is expected to continue, according to the Wisconsin Emergency Management 2016 Hazard Mitigation Plan. Homeowners and renters are encouraged to talk to their local insurance agent or visit floodsmart.gov to learn more.

The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR) floodplain program manages community enrollment in the National Flood Insurance Program, with staff serving as experts on federal flood insurance. “Flood insurance through the National Flood Insurance Program is one of the tools that builds flood resiliency into our Wisconsin communities,” said Sarah Rafajko, State of Wisconsin National Flood Insurance Program coordinator at the DNR. “Don’t wait until flood waters are rising to explore insurance.” There is usually a 30-day waiting period before National Flood Insurance Program policies go into effect, so signing up today ensures residents have coverage in place by the time spring showers start to hit Wisconsin. Those who own property in Special Flood Hazard Areas are required to purchase flood insurance if they have a mortgage from a federally regulated lender. Those not required to have the coverage should also consider their flood risks. Additionally, the Wisconsin Office of the Commissioner of Insurance has a number of resources available to help consumers understand flood insurance at oci.wi.gov/flood and information on mitigating flood risk at oci.wi.gov/disasters. “One inch of water can cause up to $25,000 in damage, so even small or moderate floods can be financially devastating if you don’t have the right insurance,” said Wisconsin Commissioner of Insurance Nathan Houdek. “Whether you rent or own, there is flood insurance coverage available for your needs.” Learn more about flooding and flood insurance on the DNR’s floodplain webpage at <https://dnr.wisconsin.gov/topic/Flood-Plains/insurance.html>.

Crack sealing, microsurfacing bids approved

Shawano streets expected to last longer with 2 projects

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Street projects have already been determined for the city of Shawano for 2024, but the Shawano Common Council signed off on spending nearly $100,000 to help keep the streets not being rehabilitated going for just a little longer.

The council approved a $46,810 bid from Fahrner

Asphalt Sealers for microsurfacing work, the lower of two bids submitted. The council also approved a $49,250 bid from Asphalt Seal and Repair for crack sealing, which beat out three other bidders for the project.

Scott Kroening, public works director, noted that the two programs help to keep the streets going well beyond their typical 20-year shelf life.

“This is probably the biggest bang for our buck to extend the lifetime of our streets,” Kroening said about the city’s crack sealing work. “We’ve been doing it for over 20 years. It’s always been a good program, I believe.”

Asphalt Seal and Repair has won bids the last two years for crack sealing, which prevents water from reaching and damaging the base material of the streets, and Kroening said the company has done excellent work. The company’s bid helped the project come in just under the city’s $50,000 budget, as the other three bids shot well above it.

Microsurfacing on city streets involves putting a slurry coat on the roads, and the program was started by the city in 2016.

“It’s like the slurry coat on driveways, but it’s much more than that,” Kroening said. “This is all to extend the life of that pavement and give her some longevity.”

Street life is usually 20 years, but with the two projects combined, Kroening said the streets can last another 10 years before complete rehabilitation is needed.

Kroening noted he likes the work Fahrner has done recently on Shawano streets, noting their project seems a little thicker, which translates to better patch work. Fahrner’s bid, though the lowest, was over the $45,000 budgeted for the program, but savings anticipated from other capital projects should compensate for the additional $1,810, according to Kroening.

Alderman John Hoeffs believes crack sealing has a better track record at extending street life.

“Crack sealing seems to last longer than the microsealing,” Hoeffs said.

More cameras being purchased for Shawano schools

School board agrees to spend almost $197K to cover all schools

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

The Shawano School Board voted Feb. 12 to use a portion of its remaining $1.1 million of Elementary and Secondary School Emergency Resource (ESSER) funds to purchase additional cameras to make sure hallways and classrooms are covered in case of hostile activity.

The school district will purchase the cameras from Wire Technologies in Kaukauna for Hillcrest Primary School, Olga Brenner Intermediate School and Shawano Community Middle School to the tune of almost $197,000. The district had previously purchased some cameras to the tune of $100,000 but quickly discovered that the number barely covered Shawano Community High School, according to district technology director Eric Brunner. The ESSER funds have to be spent by the end of September.

“We have a need for additional cameras throughout our schools,” Brunner said.

The total number of cameras will be 475 among all four schools once the latest installation is complete. Once finished, there is expected to be complete coverage inside and outside of the schools, according to Brunner.

Board member John Arens made the motion to approve the purchase of the cameras, but he added the caveat that there needs to be an implementation plan submitted to the district’s finance and facilities committee later in February.

“What I’m looking for is who’s on your project team, what their roles are, what the oversight in this project is, because we’re talking about a large number of cameras from an outside vendor,” Arens said. “The vendor’s going to have to adhere to our school safety plan.”

Arens added he wants to implement a plan to include all applicable warranties and who will be doing the maintenance on the cameras, as well as documentation that the cameras were started up and tested properly.

Brunner noted there’s a five-year warranty for the cameras, and there are some security cameras at the school that are still functioning great after eight years.

Board President Mike Musolf said he understood Arens’ concern, especially with the cameras being a large ticket item.

“It’s really important that we do it right the first time,” Musolf said.

Arens said the cameras should also help when crimes are committed at the school. He noted the recent theft of a catalytic converter from one of the district’s trucks. There was a camera there, but the older style made it difficult to make out the thief.

“The thief looked like Sasquatch,” Arens said.

House wrens not just one-note birds in Wisconsin

Sadly, my mom passed away last fall. In the midst of cleaning out her things for auction, I was so consumed with grief that I couldn't think straight. So, when the auctioneer put the birdhouses in a box to sell, I didn't think anything of it. Now, months later, I realize the birdhouse of Mom's annual visitor, a house wren, is gone.

Every summer, a house wren calls Mom's backyard home. When she arrives and begins bringing nesting material into the birdhouse, Mom would call me and announce, "She's back."

Her house wren was very successful in raising baby wrens. It was hard to get a look at the babies inside of the house, so when they first appeared out of the house, Mom would call me and announce, "The babies are out."

Once they fledge, the backyard would turn into a revelry of birds flying here and there, then pausing to try out their vocals and learn the songs. If you've never heard a wren sing, it is equivalent to a glorious opera singer belting out a cheerful melody for the whole neighborhood to hear. One reason their song is so remarkable is that they can hit two notes at the same time.

Mom and I would watch them for hours. We sat on the patio drinking lemonade and eating Rice Krispies bars. It was one of those little moments that have become one of my big memories.

I think I will put up a new wren house in Mom's yard, at the end of the clothes line, where the other had been. When the house sells, I will tell the new owners about Mom's wren in hopes they leave the birdhouse up. They would not need to put up a bird feeder; house wrens are not picky eaters. They eat small flies, spiders and insects like beetles and caterpillars. If you set out mealworms, they wouldn't complain.

There are 10 species of wrens in the United States. Wisconsin has four — the house wren, winter wren, sedge wren and marsh wren. I have seen all but the winter wren. I hear him often in the Northwoods. He doesn't fly away when I walk by, but instead he continues to sing. The thickness of the brush allows him to hide from me in plain sight. Perhaps, this year is the year he flies out of the thicket to say hello.

I've also seen four other wrens — the Carolina wren, cactus wren, rock wren and the canyon wren. The Carolina wren lives year-round in the Eastern half of the U.S. but it's range doesn't usually include Wisconsin. I first spotted one at Corkscrew Swamp Sanctuary in Florida. The cactus wren lives year-round in the Southwest U.S. I saw my first one in the Baja California peninsula.

Finding the rock wren and canyon wren are a longer story. In spring of 2023, I spent six weeks hiking and birding in Lake Havasu City, Arizona. On my very first hike there, I saw a rock wren. He was out in the open for all to see. On the other hand, the canyon wren was very elusive. We could hear him in brush alongside the road, but it was too thick for us to spot him.

We often returned to where we had heard him. He was always singing, sometimes in the brush and sometimes in the cliffs above the brush, but we never saw him. On the very last day there, when my husband asked me—where I wanted to go, and without hesitation, I said I wanted to go back to find the canyon wren.

Baby house wrens are trying out their vocals on a fence post.

LISA JANSEN

As soon as I got out of the car I could hear him high in the cliff. I looked up and there he was, on the top ledge, in all his splendor for me to see. It was a glorious sight and a great ending to my vacation.

The last two wrens I've yet to see are the Pacific wren, which lives along, you guessed it, the Pacific Coast, and the Bewick's Wren, which lives in the southern west half of the U.S. and the northern Pacific Coast. I'm going to Arizona in May and will keep a special lookout for him.

I worry about Mom's wren, but I have hope. I hope that when she arrives at Mom's backyard there will be a house ready to welcome her. If not, then soon after she will find a house close by where she can continue the tradition of raising babies in a backyard and singing loud and clear for all to enjoy. Perhaps Mom will help guide her to her new home.

Bears hit triple digits in win over Coleman

Tigerton wins Central Wisconsin North Conference title with victory over Marion

By KEVIN PASSON
Editor-in-chief

Saturday, Feb. 17
Bonduel

The Bears soared into triple digits with six players scoring in double digits in a 103-61 victory over Coleman in non-conference action.

Bonduel led 46-34 at the break and then poured it on in the second half with a 57-27 score.

Ryan Westrich led the way with 21 points. He was joined by Quinn Wesenberg with 18 points, Race Anvelink with 17, Noah Weier and Carter Moesch each with 12, and Cade Johnson with another 10. For good measure, the other players also scored, as Charlie Tauchen had seven, Sam Roberts hit on four, and Colin Margelofsky had two.

Bonduel improved to 22-1 overall.

Lena

A 61-49 loss to St. Lawrence Seminary dropped Lena to 4-18 overall this season.

Caleb Schlosser scored 15 points, and Mason Spice added 11 for Lena. Also scoring were Anthony Seefeldt with eight, Tyler Shallow with six, Logan Graef with five and Luke Koslowsky with two.

The Wildcats were beat 24-17 in the first half and 37-32 in the second half in the 12-point loss.

Friday, Feb. 16

Gresham

Gresham was decimated 80-13 by Almond-Bancroft in non-conference action.

Tigerton tops Marion

With time running out in the regular season and the Central Wisconsin North Conference title still up in the air, Tigerton grabbed that title with its 36-32 win over Marion.

Tigerton holds on to first place with an 8-2 mark, followed by White Lake at 7-3 and Marion at 6-3. Tigerton is 18-4 overall.

Nearly half of the Tigers' points came from James Brady, who dropped in 17 — including 3-of-5 from the free throw line.

Brady also led his team with 10 rebounds, Sam Anheuser led with three assists, and Cameron Carlson had five steals.

Menominee Indian

The Eagles slipped into last place in the Central Wisconsin East Conference after a 68-59 loss to Shiocton.

Menominee Indian led 33-31 at the break, but the game slipped away from them in the second half with Shiocton fighting back with a 37-26 score for the nine-point win.

Barron Waupoose led the Eagles with 17 points, with Mikey Chapman scoring 15 and Kenew Awonohopay adding 10. Ryan Corn scored nine, and Maech Corn, Jordan Cox and Anikohsaeh Corn each scoring two.

The Eagles are 2-11 in conference play and 3-19 overall.

Oconto Falls

Oconto Falls (2-15, 6-17) lost 63-53 to Denmark in North Eastern Conference action.

Jameson Beaman led the Panthers with 19 points, including four 3-pointers, and Alex Haines had 14 points, including one triple. JJ Pytleski's six points came from a pair of 3-pointers.

Haines pulled down 15 boards for Oconto Falls and also led his team with seven assists. Brady Bursa recorded three steals.

Pulaski

The Red Raiders (8-9, 12-11) were blown away by Fox River Classic Conference leader De Pere (16-0, 21-1) 90-60.

Pulaski was behind by 21 points at halftime and lost ground with a nine-point deficit in the second half.

Bryce Wotruba and Dixon Holewinski led Pulaski with 18 points each. Wotruba connected on 3-of-5 from the 3-point line, while Holewinski went 4-for-5 from the behind the arc. Joseph Mijal scored 11 points, and Ethan Schmidt chipped in another 10. Pulaski's other points were scored by Dylan Dorn (two) and Bohdan Schmidt (one).

Mijal led the team with seven rebounds, Ethan Schmidt had four assists, and Bohdan Schmidt had a pair of steals.

Shawano

Shawano couldn't maintain its lead in the second half against Seymour as the Thunder pulled out a 49-46 win in Bay Conference action.

The loss dropped the Hawks to 5-8 in the conference and 7-15 overall.

Shawano led 21-19 at the break, but Seymour was a bit too much in the 30-25 second half as they snatched the victory from the clutches of the Hawks.

Crew Weisnicht led Shawano with 14 points, including 3-of-6 from the 3-point line and 1-of-2 from the free throw line.

Warren Beyer and Anderson Schmidt each scored eight points, and had two 3-pointers. Logan Sipple scored nine points, and Jerzy Brocker had seven.

Brocker pulled down 11 rebounds, Sipple had four assists, and Brocker and Shawano and Green Bay East players watch the ball to see where it will fall after a missed basket Feb. 9 in Shawano. The Hawks won the non-conference game 81-56.

KEVIN PASSON | NEW MEDIA

Beyer each recorded three steals.

Witt-Birn

Wittenberg-Birnhamwood inched closer to second place in the Central Wisconsin East Conference with a 53-43 win over Weyauwega-Fremont.

The Chargers are in third place at 8-5, with Weyauwega-Fremont in second at 9-4. Bonduel is atop the standings at 13-0.

"After losing to Wega by over 20 the first time we played this season, the Chargers dominated from the start tonight," coach Garrett Rogowski said. "It was a great defensive effort holding the Warhawks to 17 points below their season average."

Jett Rogowski was the only Wit-Birn player to hit double digits, but his 23 points clearly helped power the victory. Seven other players scored.

Rogowski and Keegan Schmid each connected on a pair of 3-pointers, and Oliver Fraaza was a perfect 3-for-3 from the free throw line.

Fraaza led his team with five rebounds, and Rogowski led with five assists and four steals.

Thursday, Feb. 15
Bonduel

Race Anvelink's 22 points set the pace for Bonduel in its 70-56 win over Central Wisconsin East Conference opponent Iola-Scandinavia. Of Anvelink's 22 points, including six triples, 19 were scored in the second half.

Ryan Westrich scored 11 points for the Bears, with Cade Johnson and Noah Weier each adding 10. Colin Margelofsky scored seven, Quinn Wesenberg added five, Sam Roberts had three and Charlie Tauchen contributed two.

Bonduel held a slim four-point lead at the half and widened the margin of victory with a 39-29 second half.

Bonduel, 21-1 overall, is unbeaten in conference play at 13-0.

Gillett

Gillett won its last four Marinette & Oconto Conference games to stay one game behind conference-leader Crivitz.

The Tigers' latest win was a 91-71 victory over Coleman.

Ben Matczak and Jesse DeBauch teamed up for 28 points each in the 20-point win. Aydin Franti scored 21 points, and Thomas Carmody added 10. Garrett Klein and Ryan Pensis each scored two.

Gillett (12-2, 15-7) held a commanding 47-28 lead at the break and, although the second half was much closer, they won that contest, too — 44-43.

Gresham

After beating Bowler on Feb. 2 for its first win of the season, Gresham is back on a four-game losing skid with a 61-58 loss to Stockbridge in non-conference action. The Wildcats are 1-20 overall.

Lena

Wrestlers prepare for state tournament

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

Shawano's Drake Herm will represent the Hawks at the boys state wrestling tournament this weekend at the Kohl Center in Madison.

At the sectionals in Kimberly on Feb. 17, Herm battled in the finals match but lost 14-0. In his wrestle back, he pinned Ryan Schmidt of Kaukauna in 42 seconds to qualify for the state tournament. His first match was set for the afternoon of Feb. 22.

"Drake has done such a great job all year long," coach Mike Homan said. "He continues to lead our team, and we are excited to watch him wrestle in Madison this weekend."

Carsen Herm found his way to the finals where he lost by pin to Tanner Hart of Kimberly. He went on to the third-place match and won by fall in 52 seconds over Grant Harris of Hortonville.

"Carsen had a good year. It didn't earn him a trip back to the state tournament, but he had a great season," Homan said. "He has been a rock in our lineup the last three years, and his leadership and wrestling will be missed. We will especially miss the way he earned victories by pin in most matches."

Carsen Herm has the school record for pins in a season at 28.

Drew Chelberg, Connor Chelberg and Brayen Boivin were all out after losing their first-round matches. Homan said all three wrestlers have good years ahead of them.

"Connor has been such a great wrestler for us the last two years," Homan said. "He works tirelessly and has one of the best work ethics on the team. He has battled hard in every position, and his leadership will be missed. He is one of those special athletes that you cannot replace; you are just glad you had the opportunity to coach him."

At 113, Dane Hodkiewicz had to medical forfeit due to an injury, after earning his way into the second round.

Oconto Falls Sectional

Shawano girls wrestling season ends at sectionals

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

Only the first-place finishers at Kimberly's girls wrestling sectionals on Feb. 17 advanced to state. Unfortunately, there are no Shawano girls moving on to the Madison competition.

At 120, Onna Hermann defeated Ramses Trader from Kimberly with a fall in 1:56. In the semifinals, she beat Hannah Huza of Hortonville 8-5. But, in her finals match, she fell to Amari Richard of Neenah 9-2.

Hermann finished her senior year with a 35-8 record.

"Onna did a great job learning the sport in the last two years," coach Mike Homan said. "We will always remember the work she has put into her wrestling and the great matches that she wrestled for us. She will be greatly missed."

Vivian Walburger wrestled in the semifinals at 145. She avenged an early season loss to Erika Hamilton of Menasha by winning by fall in 5:19. In the finals, she lost to Harlow Skenandore of Pulaski in 56 seconds.

"I was proud of Vivian wrestling hard in the semifinals," Homan said.

"The girl that she defeated from Menasha had beaten her about three weeks ago. It was great to see her wrestle much better and defeat her today. I'm looking forward to her working hard this offseason to see what she can do next year."

At 132, Breleigh Thor-nock defeated Issabella Sauter of Appleton West by fall in 1:48. In the next round, she lost to the eventual champion, Lillie Banks of Menasha, by fall in 1:13.

"Breleigh has done a good job this season," Homan said. "She has a lot of work to do but shows some flashes of being a great wrestler. We look forward to seeing her work hard this offseason to see what she can do next year."

At 138, Adalyn Barkley defeated Stella Somers of Appleton West in 1:14 but lost in the semifinals to Leah Kapla of Pulaski in 2:45.

"Adalyn has done a great job in her first year of wrestling," Homan said. "She has made great strides. We look forward to a good offseason of work and a successful season of wrestling next year."

At 152, Courtney Schenk won her quarterfinals match over Savannah Pratt of Pulaski by fall in 1:40. In semifinals, she lost to Renezmai Rhoades of Bay Port by fall in 5:01.

Schenk went 29-13 during the year.

"She has had a great two-year career and will be missed next season," Homan said.

At 235, Lily Tomas won her semifinals match over Emma Vervrick of Neenah by fall in 4:51. In the finals match, she lost to Allison Abel of Menasha 12-8.

"She has done a great job learning the sport in the last two months," Homan said. "We look forward to her working hard this offseason to come back for a great senior season next year."

At 126, Caitlyn Moede lost her first-round match to Anna Behling of Bay Port by fall in 3:46. "Caitlyn was battling some sickness this week, and it showed in her results," Homan said. "Caitlyn has been a great wrestler for us this season. She had a great two-year career, especially this year going 32-9 during the season."

At 114, Jenna Moede lost her first-round match to Scarlet Beckstrum from Green Bay United 11-8.

Shawano falls to conference champs in OT

By DUSTIN RIESE
Correspondent

Not only that, but sophomore Leah Nordin entered the game 12 points away from 1,000 as all eyes were on her.

Backed by an overall strong defensive performance from top to bottom, Shawano gave Xavier all they could handle as a late-game bucket from Nordin helped keep things close before the teams needed to settle things in overtime. In the extra frame, it was the Xavier defense that came up huge as they forced Shawano to commit several turnovers leading to a 61-57 OT loss for Shawano.

"I thought we played very well, especially defensively," coach Ryan Koenig said. "We didn't shoot well from the free throw line, and against top teams, that can't happen if you want to win."

The intensity on the floor was apparent from the opening tip as Halle Vande Hey opened the scoring with a bucket on the inside. She was responsible for four of her team's first six points, but it was Shawano that did its part to keep things close, trailing 6-5 early. That was until Abby Bystol and Ella Stuber connected for five straight points as Shawano opened up their first lead of the game 10-6.

Shawano continued to maintain its lead over the next five minutes, but Xavier battled back as Faith Hafner picked up six points in a two-minute stretch to put her team back in front 18-16. Once again, Shawano answered with Natalie Bystol tying things up with a bucket down low before Stuber connected for another three to put Shawano on top 21-18. That was when the Xavier defense took over, as Elle Krull sparked a 12-4 run to end the first half with Xavier in front 30-25.

Shawano couldn't have asked for a better start to the second half as they came out swinging. Abby Bystol wasted no time getting Shawano on the board as she opened the second half with a 3-pointer from the wing. That was followed by a Nordin put back to tie things up, with Trinity Popelka and Abby Bystol capping off a 10-0 run to open the second half to put Shawano back in front 35-30.

In desperate need of points, Joy Krull put an end to the Shawano run with a bucket on the inside before Carsyn Stempa tied things up with a triple. Stempa would follow that triple up with a steal to move Xavier in front as their 11-2 run gave them a 41-37 lead. The remainder of the second was a mix of sloppy play and stingy defense as neither team made things easy for the other.

Xavier maintained their four-point lead until late in the game when Stuber drove baseline to convert the and one, only to miss a free throw. That was followed moments later by another Nordin bucket as Shawano managed to pull within 46-44 only to tie things up 48-48 to force overtime.

For Nordin, her quest for 1,000 will have to wait as she finished with 11 points to end the game at 999.

With just four minutes standing between them and the end of their regular season, it was the Xavier defense that came out swinging and turned defense into offense. In total, Xavier used a 9-3 run to begin the overtime period and held a 57-51 lead. That brief stretch is what Koenig felt was the difference in the game.

"We had a few too many turnovers in overtime," he said.

Down by six with less than two minutes to go,

Abby Bystol kept things interesting as her and one pulled Shawano within 57-54. Elle Krull extended the lead to 59-54 with an easy layup on the other end only to have Popelka pull Shawano within 59-57 with fewer than 30 seconds to go. That was as close as Shawano would get as Xavier iced the game with a pair of free throws to claim the outright Bay conference title 61-57.

Shawano will return to the court Feb. 23 when they travel to New London for their regional semifinal game.

Panthers hang tough but fall to Wrightstown

By DUSTIN RIESE
Correspondent

When it comes to the Oconto Falls Panthers (6-16, 2-14), things haven't always been pretty, but they have at least been competitive in a lot of games.

That rang true against the Wrightstown Tigers (11-11, 9-7) on Feb. 13 as the Tigers entered their game riding a two-game conference winning streak. Not the same Tigers team of the past, the Panthers held their own most of the night and were within 49-44 with fewer than five minutes to go. That was until a series of turnovers led to an 11-1 Tigers run to put the game out of reach as the Panthers lost 60-50.

One thing about the Panthers this season as opposed to teams in the past is that they have done a much better job starting off strong. Compare that to the past few seasons when they often found themselves down by 20 or more points at the half, and you can see how much improvement this team has made this season. Wrightstown was another prime example of that as the Panthers' defense came up huge several times in the first half to keep the Tigers' offense in check while their offense did what they had to do.

A big reason for the Panthers overall success in the first half was the play of Jameson Beaman and Alex Haines, who continue to lead the way for this group. Haines has a knack for getting into transition quickly, turning fast break opportunities into easy buckets while Beaman has shown the ability to step outside and inside. Both of them combined for 27 points on the night with Beaman leading the way with 17 points and Haines adding 10.

JJ Pytleski come through with 10 points as those three not only accounted for 37 of the teams 50 points, but helped the Panthers secure a 29-28 lead over the Tigers after one half of play. Once the second half got rolling, the Tigers came out with a different sense of urgency as they wanted to speed up the tempo.

For the most part, the Panthers matched that tempo as the Tigers were unable to open up a significant lead. However, once Ethan Cyra got going offensively, the momentum started to shift. Cyra scored a game-high 24 points, with half of them coming from beyond the arc.

With Cyra doing his thing offensively, it came down to the Tigers' defense, especially late in the game. Holding a 49-44 lead with just under five minutes to go, Wrightstown began to toughen up on defense and forced the Panthers to work their offense more than they would've liked.

That resulted in several costly turnovers including a couple of steals by Aiden Humphries who converted three of them into late-game layups as part of that 11-1 run late. Humphries finished the game with 12 points.

OBITUARIES

William 'Bill' Cantwell

William "Bill" Cantwell, 89, passed away peacefully on Friday, Feb. 16, 2024.

Bill was born on Jan. 20, 1935, in Shawano. He was the son of the late Dr. Arthur and Alice (Davis) Cantwell Sr. Bill attended school in Shawano and graduated from Shawano High School in 1953. He attended the University of Wisconsin-Madison where he received a bachelor of science degree.

Bill served in the U.S. Navy as an officer on an admiral's joint staff in Taipei, Taiwan. Later he was assigned to a landing craft as part of the amphibious fleet headquartered in San Diego, California.

Upon finishing his time in the Navy, Bill returned to Madison and earned a pharmacy degree. On June 27, 1964, he was united in marriage to Kathryn "Cassy" Schauder at the First Presbyterian Church in Shawano. Bill was a community pharmacist for 51 years in the Shawano and Green Bay area. Most of those years he worked at the Clinic Pharmacy in Shawano and then later in his career at Dreier Pharmacy. Bill loved his pharmacy customers; he called people by their name, tried to cheer them with a kind word or joke, or offered some of his sage advice.

Bill served as Boy Scout leader and as the Scoutmaster of Troop 32 in Shawano for four years while his sons were in Scouts and was a loyal supporter for many years beyond that. For his leadership and support, he was awarded the Silver Beaver award. In 2015, the Shawano County Commission on Aging recognized Bill as a Living Treasure.

He was a member of the Shawano Optimist Club, Shawano Jaycees, United Way, chamber of commerce board and the Presbyterian Church of Shawano. Bill enjoyed horseback riding, gardening, reading, birdwatching, playing piano, traveling, and he mastered making Special K bars for family and friends.

Bill is survived by his wife of 59 years, Cassy; children, Jane (David)

Schmidt of Burlington, Wisconsin, William Cantwell of Minnetonka, Minnesota, and Curtis (Colleen) Cantwell of Mendota Heights, Minnesota; grandchildren, Daniel (Delaney) Schmidt, Ally (Jared) Perry, John Schmidt, Elena Cantwell, Lily Cantwell, Gus Cantwell, Charlie Cantwell and Leo Cantwell; siblings, Dr. John (Marilyn) Cantwell of Atlanta, Georgia, and Sally (Tom) Basting of Milwaukee; and sister-in-law, Carol Cantwell. He is further survived by several nieces, nephews, other relatives and friends.

Bill is preceded in death by his brother, Dr. Arthur Allen Cantwell Jr., and parents, Arthur Sr. and Alice.

Bill's passion was to care for the environment. He planted numerous trees, recycled before recycling became popular, fed the birds and never took a walk without picking up some garbage.

You can honor his memory by doing the same.

A memorial service for Bill will be held at 11 a.m. on Saturday, March 2, 2024, at the First Presbyterian Church in Shawano with the Rev. Debbie Pagels officiating. Visitation will be held at the church on Saturday from 10 a.m. until the time of service. Memorials may be given to the Bay Lakes Council Boy Scouts of America or to the First Presbyterian Church of Shawano.

Inurnment will be at Woodlawn Cemetery in Shawano.

The family would like to extend a special thank you to the Cottage Assisted Living, Heartland Hospice, Dr. Schlais of ThedaCare and Dr. Carrie Chapman of Heart and Vascular for the care they provided.

NWTC gets grants to reduce energy consumption

Northeast Wisconsin Technical College has been awarded nearly $300,000 to reduce energy consumption and drive positive environmental impact within the community.

Wisconsin's Office of Energy Innovation bestowed a $250,000 grant upon NWTC through the Energy Innovation Grant Program, while an additional $20,000 grant was provided by the Wisconsin Public Service Foundation.

NWTC is utilizing the funds to initiate a battery storage system dedicated to storing and renewable solar energy for its Great Lakes Energy Education Center.

Additionally, this battery system will be integrated into the curriculum, providing students with training in the maintenance and troubleshooting of cutting-edge technology.

"We appreciate the continued support of our community partners and their confidence in the transformation of technical education," said Howard Herrild, associate dean of trades and engineering technologies. "With this grant, we are not just investing in education, we are investing in a legacy of environmental stewardship and empowering professionals who will shape the future of sustainability."

Studies show that Wisconsin consumes almost six times as much energy as the state produces — and a third of that energy is used by businesses industries. To meet industry needs, the job market for solar energy in Wisconsin is projected to more than triple by 2030.

A Northeast Wisconsin Technical College student works on a solar panel.

NWTC is the only technical institution in Wisconsin to offer a comprehensive training program within solar energy. Providing real-world training and swift entry into the job market, technical education plays a crucial role in fulfilling the needs for one of the fastest growing careers on the planet.

"The demand for skilled workers in this industry has never been more critical — we just cannot graduate students fast enough," said John Hippensteel, NWTC solar energy instructor. "As solar power becomes an integral part of our future, these trained professionals play a vital role in harnessing its potential. That's why it's so important for our students to receive cutting-edge training so they are not only proficient in their field, but innovators empowered to create a positive change."

NWTC has consistently demonstrated a dedication to sustainability and environmental stewardship. The college is on the verge of achieving its goal to reduce its carbon footprint 60% by 2030.

Some of the major milestones in this effort include offering sustainable sourced food, creating a half-acre pollinator habitat, expanding electric fleet vehicles, and receiving Tree Campus USA designation.

"While it's crucial for technical colleges to train these skilled professionals, it's equally about fostering a commitment to sustainable practices," Hippensteel said. "This battery system is a step towards an overall journey that NWTC is taking to build a brighter future. After all, who wouldn't want to live on the power of sunshine?"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Lock on legislative control un-American

To the editor:

In a democracy, the will of the people is supposed to be the law of the land. But what if elected representatives focus more on their own desire for control and power than their responsibility to the people they are supposed to represent?

Rigged gerrymandered maps in Wisconsin have resulted in majority control of the state legislature by Republicans for a decade, even when statewide elections often favor Democratic candidates. Finally the Wisconsin Supreme Court has stepped in and said, "Enough!" Now the court is in the process of helping establish new district lines to make our maps more fair, responsive and reflective of the will of the people.

Over this past decade, Wisconsin's Republican-gerrymandered control has left many important citizen priorities ignored.

For example, Republicans voted down receiving

$1.6 billion from the federal government in a spiteful refusal of "Obamacare" Affordable Care Act Medicaid expansion. To date, Wisconsin remains one of only 10 states refusing to participate.

Again, if some Republicans would have joined Democrats after the U.S. Supreme Court overturned Roe, Wisconsin women would still have access to reproductive health care, instead of being forced to travel to other states, or worse, reverting to "the old ways" of dangerous, unhealthy and illegal abortions.

Governor Evers has declared 2024 "The Year of The Worker" in recognition of the hard work and dedication of workers across the state. Part of the plan: an increase to the minimum wage. This year, almost half the states in the nation are increasing their minimum wage — to between $10 and $17 an hour. Wisconsin's minimum wage has been $7.25 since 2008. Will Republican legislators show any support for even this one signature goal of the Democratic governor's plan? Or will they stand in lockstep against it in a show of party solidarity and control? Let's watch and find out.

Democracy does not require our legislators to be of one mind and inflexible on policy 100% of the time. In fact, it is built into our American form of government that we have healthy debate on issues. But, if one party attempts to "corner the market" on control of the government, when do we start calling it for what it is — authoritarian rule? A lock on legislative control is not the American way. Fair maps can't come soon enough.

Jan Koch, Shawano

Don't dismiss 'dictator' comment

To the editor:

Last December, Donald Trump responded to a question from Putin lover Sean Hannity if he would abuse his power on anybody or anything. Trump suggested he would be comfortable being a dictator to deliver on some of his campaign promises, such as securing the southern border. Trump's challenges with the truth, his disregard for the rule of law and his continued campaign of misinformation about the 2020 election make it hard to dismiss his dictator comment as an idle threat.

Most recently, he has tried to derail the efforts of serious legislators to pass a bipartisan bill to improve our broken immigration system and secure our southern border, having been agreed to by both parties. Why would the GOP's champion to secure the southern border try to kill the bill? Perhaps because Trump needs the southern border as a political wedge issue to get reelected and really isn't all that interested in solving the border crisis.

To me, that sounds more like the tactics of an authoritarian dictator than a champion for democracy. Perhaps the rise of a dictator to power in America, sadly and for fear of abandoning democracy, isn't as crazy as it once sounded.

Edward Johnson, Clintonville

Does sturgeon spearing law need warm-weather clause?

Long-time sturgeon spearers and residents living around Lake Winnebago have never seen a sturgeon season like this one and hope they never see another.

The worst ice conditions in modern spearing history didn't stop a few from getting on world's largest lake sturgeon fishery and bringing a few of these prehistoric fish to the snowless ice.

If such an unprecedented preseason warm snap returns to Winnebago and the upriver lakes in a future year, can anything be done to postpone the season's start or otherwise prevent a potential tragedy?

That solution depends on the state legislature, Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources staff says.

The legislature sets season dates and other regulations on tagging distribution and more, so they are the ones who would need to take action.

"We're sort of entering new territory," said Tom Meronek, fisheries team supervisor for the DNR office in Oshkosh. "If we were told to work on that (regulations changes), we would work on that. It's not our job to ensure the ice is safe. They are getting out safely."

Meronek and most ice fishermen agree that there is never ice that's guaranteed safe. Even in the coldest winter, portions of Lake Winnebago typically have cracks with open water, areas of thin ice near currents and air pockets. Local clubs typically plow the snow to create roads for the spearers, install metal bridges over the cracks and mark dangerous ice spots with discarded Christmas trees.

This year, there was no snow to plow, and the ice was too thin to drive on with pickup trucks and other heavy-duty vehicles. ATVs were used to move some shanties in just a few areas, while most spearers opted for hauling lightweight fabric hub blinds or tents in sleds pulled by hand.

That's what Heather Klein and her husband, Scott Klein, of North Fond du Lac did. She waited nine years to finally draw a coveted upriver lakes tag, where shallower water (normally 6-7 feet, compared to 10-15 feet on Winnebago) makes seeing and spearing fish easier. The success rate for upriver lakes spearers is more than 60%, while it's under 10% on the big lake.

Because spearers are more successful on Lake Poygan and the other upriver lakes, the DNR only issues these tags after individuals have applied for typically eight or nine seasons and accumulated preference points. There are no limits on tags issued for Winnebago because of the low harvest rate.

By state law, the sturgeon spearing season starts on the second Saturday in February and continues for 16 days or until any of the sex-specific harvest quotas are reached. The upriver lakes and Winnebago have separate quotas (as well as an overall systemwide quota), so it's typical for upriver lakes spearers to end their season in just a few days. Meronek said the upriver quota is set so spearers take about 5% of the overall 40,000-fish population.

Spearers typically take 702 (2021) to 783 (2023) fish for the entire system on opening weekend, but this year it was just 122 fish, Meronek said.

With fewer spearers and fewer fish taken, could the season be extended this year or upriver lakes tag recipients be reissued tags next year? Not without legislative changes, he explained.

"We have no way to cancel or delay a season to the following year," he said.

Reissuing upriver lakes tags the following year would potentially double the normal 500-tag limit there, likely creating a shorter season and possibly exceeding the harvest quota in a day or two, he added.

Heather Klein has speared for 16 years, entering the Wisconsin tradition because of her husband. She's seen small fish swim past her shack's hole on Winnebago, but this is her first time on Poygan. Scott got her set up there on opening weekend, but the gear was reinvented to accommodate the thinner ice (about 10 inches during the first week, Heather Klein said). A few used ATVs to move their gear, but most just went on foot, as she did, walking more than a half mile one way.

Scott Klein came up with a way to hold the spear over the hole, using a curtain rod and a support arm stuck in the ice. Sturgeon spears have heavy steel heads, much to heavy to hold for the 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. daily spearing hours.

improved floodplain mapping through the FEMA map modernization process.
In addition, failure to adopt the aforementioned changes could result in suspension from the National Flood Insurance Program which would result in prohibiting Federal agencies from approving any form of loan, grant, disaster assistance, payment, etc. for acquisition or construction purposes within the unincorporated areas of the County. The current Floodplain Zoning
Ordinance was adopted by the Shawano
County Board of Supervisors on July 27, 2005.
A complete draft copy of the proposed revision of the current Floodplain Zoning Ordinance No. 6-05 will be available for review in the Shawano County Planning & Development Department offices located in the Shawano County
Courthouse for 2 weeks prior to the March 6, 2024 Public Hearing.
Any interested person may address the Committee by letter or appear in person or by agent and be heard at the public hearing. The Planning, Development & Zoning Committee will discuss, review and take possible action on repeal and recreation of the Shawano County Floodplain Zoning Ordinance at their scheduled meeting to be held immediately after Public Hearing is over.
NOTE: Any person may appear at the public hearing and be heard and/or
