Luke Hodsdon, Stevens Point, clears broken tree limbs from a power line on County Road A northwest of Shawano on July 27. He and a crewmate were working for Asplundh, a company contracted by Alliant Energy to help restore power to the 3,500 customers whose power was interrupted by a line of storms late on July 26 and July 27. The storms brought heavy rain and winds of up to 70 miles per hour to northeast Wisconsin, according to the National Weather Service office in Green Bay.

Shawano County jail staff could see pay increase

Use of ARPA funds will require county board to come up with future plans

By LEE PULASKI

City Editor

Workers with the Shawano County Jail could see a significant pay hike in their future in the hopes of halting the high turnover at the facility, even though county officials see the action as a Band-Aid for solving a long-term issue.

The county's public safety and executive committees met separately on July 22 and voted to recommend a $3 pay hike across the board for corrections officers, jail sergeants, cooks and other lower-echelon staffers, with the money expected to come from the federal American Rescue Plan Act. The county has received almost $4 million in ARPA funds this year and is expected to receive a similar amount in the future, and the jail pay is expected to cost the county over $750,000 in that time period.

However, that funding is only available to the county through the end of 2024, which is going to require a plan to figure out what to do in three years' time. Counties are subject to spending caps by the state, so Shawano County cannot merely raise local taxes to provide workers with a fair wage, according to County Board Chairman Tom Kautza.

While the pay issue is common with almost all departments with the county, it's more pronounced with the jail because of the public safety factor, according to Chief Deputy George Lenzner.

"We're losing employees. It started during COVID, and one of the big problems is finding people to even hire when you're losing employees," Lenzner said. "It's pretty common to lose employees at the jail, but now it's going up more. We're losing our local people who live in the community."

Lenzner noted that it's not just losing employees to other counties. Recently, corrections officers have found better pay or the same pay and better scheduling working at Walmart, Charlie's County Market, Torborg's and other private-sector businesses. Lenzner told the public safety committee that one corrections officer recently left to work for Calumet County because he would get $15,000 more annually there.

Many of the corrections officers remaining are quickly burning out as many of them are working 18-hour shifts, according to Lenzner. With the corrections officers, county policy dictates that overtime doesn't kick in until they have worked 86 hours in the 14-day pay period.

"There are a couple of officers that are looking for jobs because now what's happening is you're getting low staff," Lenzner said. "The jail has to meet that magic number, and so it depends what their schedule is. They may work 18 hours, and then six hours later, they have to be back to work. It's starting to burn people out."

The $3 pay increase is expected to bring the wages in line with the starting pay for corrections officers. According to Kautza, Shawano County's starting pay is $17.95 per hour for corrections officers, while Marinette County starts at $19.94 and Oconto County offers $20.57.

"They can leave here, if they're fully trained and go to Oconto, which will start them out at $22 because they're already trained," Kautza said.

Hiring people is still a factor, Lenzner noted. He said the sheriff's department had at least eight applicants lined up for potential interviews, but only two have confirmed. The department has made offers to prospective employees only to be turned down because they found other jobs. That's from the ones who have called Lenzner and other officials back, he said, adding that oftentimes potential hires will ghost him — not call back at all.

"For some reason, people do not want to work right now," Lenzner said.

The alternative to not raising wages would be to farm out inmates to other county jails, but that is expected to cost Shawano County more in the long run, according to Lenzner. At the cost of $135 per day, the county could pay $100,000 annually to other jails holding Shawano County prisoners.

"That's a huge cost to the county," Lenzner said. "I can't just throw in patrol officers to work in the jail because they're not certified jailors. Plus, there wouldn't be anyone left to work on the road, right now, as we had a lot of turnover with traffic this spring, too."

Lenzner noted that the county is holding more inmates than normal due to the pandemic freezing the county's ability to have jury trials for more than a year.

"They're not happy because they've been in there longer than most of them expected and what we expected," Lenzner said. "They take it out on the corrections officers."

Kautza pointed out that county supervisors will need to knuckle down and re-evaluate priorities across all departments, because the county cannot provide current services indefinitely without other revenue sources.

"We can do this for a couple of years until we do a revamping of the whole county," Kautza said. "The whole county has to be looked at, and we've got to get back to a few of the basics and concentrate on doing that."

Supervisor Mark Bolin urged the public safety committee to move quickly to come up with a plan that will sustain the jail and other departments beyond 2024.

"The fact of the matter is the can has been kicked down the road for years, and it's come to a head," Bolin said. "We've got a serious freaking problem, so let's just deal with it and take care of it."

The overtime issue is expected to be resolved by the public safety committee in August.

FERC approves increased water levels on Wolf River, Shawano Lake

Application for permanent increase must be submitted by the end of 2022

By WARREN BLUHM
Editor-in-chief

The U.S. Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has granted a two-year amendment allowing Eagle Creek Renewable Energy (ECRE) to bring the water level in Shawano Lake, the channel and the Wolf River pool above the Shawano dam to its historical level of 802.9 feet above mean sea level year-round.

The level was drawn down to 802.5 above msl in 2015, starting a lengthy controversy.

The amendment granted July 21 is the latest step in implementing an agreement to set the levels permanently at 802.9 msl, which records indicate was maintained at least from 2000 to 2015 with no significant environment effects.

ECRE announced the following day that it had begun the process of raising the water elevation at the dam. Due to recent dry conditions, relatively low reservoir inflows, and the necessity of maintaining downstream flows at acceptable levels, the utility estimated that the process of raising the elevation at the dam would take four to five days.

The two-year amendment was requested in May, and FERC took comments on the proposal during June. Five individuals living downstream of the project and the downstream Town of Matteson filed comments expressing concerns related to possible downstream flooding, but the order approving the request said flooding can be prevented by limiting the drawdown rate so it does not significantly increase downstream flows.

The FERC document does take ECRE to task for filing its application just before the proposed start date, and said this has happened on several other occasions since the 2015 drawdown.

"While Commission staff has obtained enough information in this instance to act on the exemptee's application, in instances where there is a recurring issue at a project, the Commission generally disfavors piecemeal, temporary changes to license or exemption conditions, particularly on such an expedited basis," the order states.

Accordingly, FERC is requiring that the expected application for a permanent amendment setting the 802.9 feet msl level be filed no later than Dec. 31, 2022.

The commission ordered ECRE to develop an operations plan within 90 days in consultation with the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service "that details the actions and processes that will be used to ensure compliance while temporarily operating the project at the higher normal target impoundment elevation."

The effort to raise levels permanently has the support of Shawano Area Waterways Management, the DNR and several local fishing groups. The agreement is contingent on ECRE reaching a cost-sharing agreement with SAWM.

County looking at Shawano library's future

Library board tasked with determining future of facility, plans for new building

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

The Shawano County Executive Committee tasked the library board July 22 with examining the best and most cost-effective way to improve or build a new library in Shawano while examining ways to improve the other five branch facilities.

Pending maintenance cost projects are expected to cost close to $700,000, according to Administrative Coordinator James Davel. Long-term projects included in the county's capital improvement projects list including eliminating black mold and sewer gases coming into the community, he said, along with replacing the heating and air conditioning systems, replacing the library's elevator, upgrading the library's lighting, replacing the boiler system and upgrading the foundation.

"What I think is important for the committee to consider is to form a committee to determine the way ahead for what the plan is for the library," Davel said. "We cannot continue to do the Band-Aid on the current library as it stands right now. To me, we're putting the money in and even if we put the $700,000 out, we don't know if we fix the problems."

Options, according to Davel, include renovations of the existing facility, building a new facility on the current site, building a new facility elsewhere in the community or finding an existing facility that could be remodeled into a library.

"I think it's the next big build for the county," Davel said, noting the issues with the library are significant.

Supervisor Tom Kautza pointed out that the county knew the library was going to be an issue when it took over sole management of the facility several years ago. Prior to that, the city and county shared the costs of maintaining the Shawano facility.

"When we took that building on, we knew it was a piece of junk," Kautza said. "It was free, and we got a sizeable piece of property right downtown."

Kautza is recommending that some of the $3.9 million the county has in funds from the American Rescue Plan Act be used to create a new

The Shawano Public Library, first constructed in 1960, has a number of structural issues that need immediate attention, leading the Shawano County Executive Committee to task the Shawano County Library Board to come up with a plan for a new or renovated facility in the near future.

LEE PULASKI | NEW MEDIA

library. With a new library being a one-time expense, there would not be much of an issue with the county maintaining it once funds run out in 2024.

"It's not debt for the next 20 years like (the) health and human services (complex)," Kautza said. "There are a lot of ways where, with this funding, we can collect a lot of it back."

Supervisor Kathy Luebke said it was likely the ARPA funds could be used, if the county board approves, as issues like black mold constitute a health and safety issue.

"I wouldn't put $2 million into that building," Luebke said, suggesting another location might be more appropriate.

When concerns were expressed about whether the new facility could still be relevant in the future, given the changes in technology and focus with the library, library director Kristie Hauer pointed out that the library board has already done a study on future library needs, taking on the task before the coronavirus pandemic hit in March 2020.

The current facility on South Sawyer Street was built in 1960, and a remodel was done and addition completed in 1990 — increasing the square footage from 12,000 to more than 21,000 square feet. However, the library study indicates that, to continue effectively serving the needs of county residents, the building will need to almost double in size to 40,000 square feet, Hauer said.

"A suitable space, size-wise, is going to be one of the bigger considerations," she said. "That size of a building gets to be more complicated if we keep it in the middle of the city."

Hauer suggested that, in addition to the ARPA funds, the county should consider applying for funds from the Institute of Museum Library Services, which has received a "sizeable chunk" of money for libraries to utilize.

Supervisor Kevin Conradt recommended that the existing library board take the lead on developing plans for a new facility instead of a separate committee being created.

Conradt said the board could potentially solicit additional people for help, if needed.

"Let them keep moving forward and give them direction," Conradt said. "If there are some other monies out there, let's start pursuing them so we know our options."

The county administration and committee members acknowledged that the problem would not be resolved right away, but now is the time to start planning.

"We're not going to solve this overnight," Davel said. "I think if we come up with a decent schedule and framework, then we can go forward. If we can use these (ARPA) funds for the library, it will be one shot, one kill, and we won't be putting ourselves into debt."

In the order for the library board to look at how best to use ARPA funds, the executive committee also urged looking at improvements for all six library facilities, even though the greatest need is with the Shawano library.

Stubborn Brothers beer sales helping volunteers

Every Hometown Hero American ale sold donates $1 to volunteers

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

A new beer is taking over Stubborn Brothers Brewery in Shawano.

The Hometown Hero American ale has become a new staple for the brewery. What separates this ale from the others at the brewery is that every beer that is sold sees $1 go towards volunteer first responders. The money goes to helping them, whether it be for equipment, staffing or budgeting issues.

"We wanted to do our best to help those in the community that help others," said Stubborn Brothers co-owner Aaron Gilling. "We want to honor those who may be underappreciated and undervalued."

Gilling said that the gluten-reduced, light ale has been selling very fast.

"We have sold about 80 gallons in the last week," said Gilling.

With the ale now being part of the selection of beers to drink, Gilling said that Stubborn Brothers Brewery has been packed to the gills. He said though, that the inclusion of the ale was not a marketing tactic to bring more people in, but a strategy to show recognition and help those that play a major part in the community.

"This was not a marketing ploy," said Gilling. "This is not about increasing our business, but rather about supporting those individuals in the community."

With the high amounts of beer that are selling, Gilling said that employees at the brewery will continue to make more of the ale.

He said that the money that is being made and donated to local volunteer organizations will alternate as weeks go by. Right now the proceeds are going to the volunteer fire fighters, but Gilling plans to also include other emergencies services like the search and rescue team, the EMS employees and law enforcement.

Gilling believes that offering this ale and the money that goes to the groups is a positive in for the Shawano community.

"We are lucky to be able to tie our beer into good deeds," said Gilling. "This is good for the Shawano community as a whole."

He said that the public reaction has been very positive as customers have enjoyed the light taste of the ale, as well as have enjoyed donating to a good cause.

According to Gilling, accounts in Wausau and Green Bay, who have been selling the beer have been constantly asking for half barrels of the ale as they want to donate as well.

In a Facebook post promoting the ale, Gilling urged other businesses in Marion, Green Bay, Clintonville and New London to match his donation of $1,500 to the local volunteers.

All together, Gilling said that he wanted to be able to help those who help others in the community, and he found it appropriate to do so through the ale.

"I am very fortunate to be able to help others," said Gilling. "It is great to have people drink a good beer that goes to a good cause. It is important that we are making our community stronger by helping out those that are in need."

The new Hometown Hero American ale is available at Stubborn Brothers Brewery. Every beer that is sold sees $1 donated to local first responders.

Russell "Russ" Paul Schmidt, 92, of Shawano, passed away Wednesday, July 21, 2021. Russ was born in Reedsburg on Feb. 8, 1929, to the late Paul and Elsa (Drieschmeier) Schmidt. He attended St. Peters Elementary and Reedsburg High School. He continued his education at UW-Madison, earning a degree in Agricultural Marketing.

Upon graduation, he was commissioned in the U.S. Army Transportation Corp and served one year in the United States and one year in Korea.

After his honorable discharge, Russ was employed by Cenex Corporation as a field representative in Marshfield. There, he met his soon-to-be wife, Sally Salter, and they were united in marriage on Dec. 9, 1960. After 10 years at Cenex, Russ became manager of the Marshfield Farmer Cooperative for four years. Following that, he was hired to build and manage the Marshfield Holiday Inn, which he did for five years.

In 1973, Sally and Russ purchased Steinhart's Cheese in Shawano, renaming it The Cheddar Box Cheese House. They operated the business until they retired in 1993. They were active members of St. James Lutheran Church.

In addition to spending time with his family and granddogs, he also enjoyed hobbies such as carving waterfowl, painting and fishing. Russ was an ever-curious man with a strong desire to learn. He was always reading and took classes into his 90s. He loved to share his knowledge with his family, friends and the younger generation. James S. LaChapelle

James Stuart LaChapelle, 87, was welcomed through heaven's gates on July 24, 2021, with family by his side.

James (Jim) was born Jan. 23, 1934, to the late Stuart and Lillian (Riebe) LaChapelle. Jim was born in Green Bay and graduated from West High School. Following high school, James proudly joined the United States Navy and served during the Korean War. Upon his completion of service, Jim joined the workforce and retired as a laborer in construction.

Jim will be remembered as a great storyteller who loved hunting and observing nature at his home along the Oconto River. He also loved a good fish fry, caring for his dog, Elvis, and spending time with his family. Above all, in his later years his most cherished role was that as a grandfather. He emphasized to them the need of knowledge, an education and realizing their full potential. He was always there for them, and he was so proud of their successes and of the adults they became.

Jim is survived by the "love of his life" (his words) Nanci LaChapelle. Together they raised six children — Lori LaChapelle, Curt (Cindy) LaChapelle, Teri (Randy) Carlson, Jon (Paula) LaChapelle, Lori Bomske and Amy (Scott) Koerner-Lorentzen. He was a grandfather to six grandchildren, Rase (Kelly) LaChapelle, Tier LaChapelle, Matt (Jessica) Carlson, Thomas (Rachel) Carlson, Weston (Melissa) Malcore and Lake LaChapelle. Jim also had three precious great-grandchildren, Brody and Blake Carlson and Zuli LaChapelle.

He is survived by three brothers, Clark (Cathy) LaChapelle, Wayne (Lea) LaChapelle and Chuck (Veronica) LaChapelle and many nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by one son, Gregory Peter LaChapelle.

The family would like to thank Unity Hospice and their staff. We could not have asked for better people to care for and help Jim transition to his eternal home.

Funeral services for Jim were held at 11 a.m. Wednesday, July 28, 2021, at Faith United Lutheran Church, 11465 Old U Road, Gillett, with Pastor John Laatsch officiating. Military honors took place immediately after.

Kuehl Funeral Home is honored to serve the family.

Shawano native will be interim UW vice president

University of Wisconsin System President Tommy Thompson has named Jeff Buhrandt as Interim Vice President for University Relations, replacing Scott Neitzel who is resigning his position after helping guide UW System during the coronavirus pandemic.

“Scott’s budget and management experience was key to helping me navigate the many challenges presented by the pandemic this past year,” Thompson said. “His senior leadership enabled us to do many things we would never have been able to do without him accepting this role. He has my sincerest thanks and appreciation.”

Neitzel, whose last day will be July 18, was instrumental in helping craft UW System’s community and student testing program and the Sys-tem’s legislative budget approval. Buhrandt, who begins his new role July 21, has a bachelor’s degree from UW-Stevens Point and a master’s degree from UW-Milwaukee. He has served in a variety of roles at UW System since 2014, most recently as the Associate Vice President for Government Relations in which he oversees the System’s interactions with the executive and legislative branches of state and federal government.

The Office of University Relations oversees corporate relations, government relations, and communications.

Prior to joining UW System, Buhrandt worked for eight years in the Wisconsin Senate after beginning his career working in the office of longtime Wisconsin U.S. Rep. David Obey. Buhrandt grew up in Shawano.

Vintage plane fans fly Ercoupe

A member of the Ercoupe Owners Club supports the club's mission to keep the vintage flying as he participated in a 21-plane fly-in to the Shawano Municipal Airport on July 23. Club members flew from Wausau to Shawano, ate lunch at the Lighthouse, then flew to Clintonville and back to Wausau. Club members then plan to fly to Oshkosh for the Experimental Aircraft Association convention.

Ercoupe vintage airplanes line up at Shawano Municipal Airport before taking off for Clintonville and Wausau on July 23. The airport and the Lighthouse, a neighboring restaurant, hosted pilots, friends and family members of 21 of the small planes, built between 1937 and 1970. The Ercoupe was billed as a plane anyone can fly.

Golfers need offseason prep to avoid injuries

Golf enthusiasts are in their glory as golfing weather has returned to Wisconsin. Some players may find themselves suffering game-limiting injuries if they haven't prepared for the season properly.

"If golfers are only playing in those months when the weather is favorable in Wisconsin and are not exercising much in the offseason, that can increase their risk for injury," said Dr. Ryan Wagner, an orthopedic physician specializing in sports medicine with ThedaCare Orthopedic Care. "Injury prevention is key to being successful in most sports."

He offers some reminders as golfers hit the links.

"One of the important factors with golf is making sure the golfer does a proper warm-up and stretching routine prior to going out to play," Wagner said. "There is increased risk of injury going directly onto the course and starting to hit off the first tee without warming up. Stretching the hamstrings, calves, obliques, back, shoulders and wrists is important."

In addition to stretching, there are other suggestions to follow.

"I recommend swinging the golf club a few times, gradually increasing the range, motion and swing speed instead of going to the first tee and swinging as hard as you can," Wagner said. "Doing a few swings at the driving range as a warm up to get the blood flowing to the golfer's muscles and extremities can also prove beneficial."

Wagner noted that the most common body areas where golfers suffer injuries are the elbow, back and rotator cuff. Those areas are followed by injuries to the knee, wrist, foot, ankle, neck, hand and fingers, per Golf Fitness magazine.

"The majority of golf injuries are the result of overuse," he noted. "We see a lot of repetitive use injuries here at ThedaCare Orthopedic Care, whether it's playing golf, baseball or gymnastics. Repeating the same golf swing motion over and over places significant stresses on the same muscles, tendons and joints, which can lead to injury over time, especially if golfers are only playing during the short Wisconsin season."

Wagner said golfer's elbow, officially known as medial epicondylitis, is one of the most common injuries.

"It is an inflammation of the tendons that attach at the inside bone of the elbow," he said. "Pain can occur while playing, and some golfers will keep playing through the pain. If a golfer is experiencing that kind of pain, it's important to listen to his or her body, stop playing, ice and rest the tendons to prevent exacerbation of the injury. Playing through pain is not a wise choice. Rest your body and seek professional health care advice if the problem does not resolve after rest. Many golfers benefit from occupational or physical therapy to relieve golf injuries."

Back pain is another common ailment for golfers, and this can be caused by poor body mechanics during golf swings.

"Swinging the golf club causes rotational stresses, and this can place significant torque on the spine — especially the muscles along the spine," Wagner said. "Spending some time with a golf instructor or teaching professional to work on appropriate swing biomechanics can help prevent injury."

The third most common golf injury involves damage to the rotator cuff.

"The rotator cuff supports the position of the shoulder," Wagner said. "It can become injured due to the repetitive nature of golf swings or by hitting the ground with the club, which can cause a sudden jar to that muscle area. Golfers may notice decreased motion or swing speed, which is a sign of a rotator cuff injury. Evaluation by a medical professional should be considered."

Starting slow at the beginning of the golfing season is another point Wagner recommends.

"When you go to the golf course at the beginning of the season, start off slowly and increase the length of play and intensity over the course of the season," he said. "Avoid trying to go 100% on the first time out; that can increase risk for injury as well."

In the offseason, it's important to focus on good aerobic conditioning, as well as core muscle strength to improve swing mechanics.

"There are a number of online exercise programs that can help golfers keep in shape during the offseason," Wagner said. "A good home exercise program that a golfer completes multiple days per week is a great offseason training regimen. When the season comes around, the golfer will already be in reasonably good shape, which will provide endurance to play longer and the capability to finish a round of golf at the optimal level."

Wagner said another opportunity for experiencing injury on the golf course occurs when carrying golf bags or lifting bags in/out of a cart.

"Sometimes golfers carry their own bags and that can cause shoulder or back injuries," he said. "Other golfers ride in carts or push their carts. In each case, making sure to use appropriate body mechanics such as keeping a straight back as well as lifting with the knees can prevent injury. Golf bags are heavy and cumbersome, which can create unusual stresses on a golfer's body."

Lastly, Wagner reminds golfers to wear appropriate-fitting golf shoes to support their ankles and backs, dress in layers for ever-changing weather conditions, wear a hat, sunscreen and sunglasses and drink plenty of water.

"I recommend golfers carry a water bottle at all times and hydrate regularly," he said. "After playing in the sun for a few hours, golfers can develop heat stroke or become dehydrated. Drinking water regularly will help prevent those events from happening."

Wagner wants everyone — from advanced golfers to beginners — to enjoy the game, and receive the benefits of physical activity.

"Playing golf is a great way for people of all ages to exercise and keep in shape," he said.

Extension could share family living, ag employees

Shawano County looks to split staff with Oconto, Marinette counties

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Shawano County is hoping to cut costs by sharing some of its University of Wisconsin-Extension employees with Oconto and Marinette counties.

The subject was brought up by the executive committee July 22 as it was discussing approving a $12,000 contract for services to provide Strong Bodies classes, formerly known as Strong Bones, for older residents. The classes had been very popular throughout the county until the pandemic forced most in-person programs to shut down.

According to Terri Brunner, coordinator for Shawano County's extension program, the Strong Bodies program had previously been managed by a family living educator, but there is no one in the position currently.

"Through county budget cuts and different transitions with the UW, the county voted years ago to go with a county hire for a healthy families and communities coordinator," Brunner said. "That person was able to handle the program because she was an instructor with the program and had been trained by the UW, so she was able to continue in that role."

Brunner said that coordinator moved to a different office with the county and a new one was hired, but then coronavirus broke out — leaving the new coordinator unable to do much in the position. That person left the county last fall.

"Since then, we've looked at whether we replace the position, which is a 50-50 hire with no benefits, and we were looking at $22,000 (for the county's portion) of funds for that position," Brunner said. "Since then, we've done a needs assessment to determine that, because our programs haven't been going for so long, the people using the programs had found other resources to support what they needed. The only exception has been Strong Bones, now referred to as the Strong Bodies program."

Brunner noted the contract is contingent on how the county fills the healthy families and communities coordinator position. She said that, since the position is not being filled at present, there is money in the budget for the contracted work.

County Board Chairman Tom Kautza said that things are going to have to be done differently in the county when it comes to job positions, because lackluster wages have been causing county employees — especially with the sheriff's department — to leave for better-paying jobs. He suggested that the healthy families and communities coordinator and the agriculture agent, both of which are full-time positions covering one county, be shared with Oconto and Marinette counties, which would make Shawano County responsible for one-third of the pay and benefits with those positions.

"When I was on (the) ag and extension (committee), we tried to reduce the ag agent from full time to half time, and it lost out with the committee," Kautza said. "At the end of the year, if they don't pass it through ag and extension, we should force them, through the budget process, to go through and join with Oconto and Marinette."

Kautza added that the other two counties have expressed an interest in merging the positions, and that it's been something the three counties have discussed for over a year.

"We've only got so much to work with, and we've got to evaluate the priorities," he said. "They've got theirs whittled right down. They spend almost nothing compared to what we do."

Report: Broadband keeps older people connected

Adequate internet can stave off social isolation, connect patients to health

By SHAMANE MILLS
Wisconsin Public Radio

Wisconsin is investing millions in broadband after its importance was underscored during the pandemic when it allowed some people to work from home and students to attend school virtually. But some say more needs to be done.

This month, Democratic U.S. Sen. Tammy Baldwin was in several places in the state, including Green Bay, urging Congress to pass bipartisan legislation to expand access to reliable, high-speed broadband across Wisconsin. The legislation would help close the digital divide in Wisconsin, Baldwin said, by investing $65 billion to bring affordable, reliable coverage to every family in America.

Spotty or slow internet was a sore point for those trying to work from home during the pandemic, and it made virtual schooling difficult in some districts. It also took a toll on Wisconsin's older adults who relied on computers and smartphones for doctor's appointments and socialization with friends and family.

America's Health Rankings, compiled by UnitedHealth Foundation, ranked Wisconsin 33rd for the percentage of people 65 and older who have access to high-speed internet. The organization said lacking that access contributes to widespread levels of social isolation, especially in Ashland, Menominee and Milwaukee counties.

Data for the America's Health Rankings Senior Report was compiled before the pandemic, which temporarily stopped visits at nursing homes and prompted senior centers to close.

"It's great if you can use FaceTime or Skype or Zoom, but if they don't have a broadband connection, you're resorting to people standing out in your front lawn if they happen to live close enough for a window visit, which in the dead of winter in Wisconsin isn't likely to happen," said Janet Zander, policy coordinator for the Wisconsin Aging Advocacy Network, which recently issued its own report on internet access for older adults.

High speed internet increased 10% nationally between 2016-2019 for those 65-plus, according to America's Health Rankings Senior Report.

In 2019, 78% of households with adults ages 65 and older had high-speed internet, compared to 88% of households of all ages with high-speed internet.

The report said 75% of older households in Wisconsin had high-speed internet via computer or smartphone before the pandemic. It was one of several challenges cited by the report to health among older adults along with excessive drinking and obesity.

Dr. Rhonda Randall, chief medical officer for United Healthcare, said many older adults obtained health care through virtual visits with their doctor during the pandemic. Because of this, she expects better internet access will be "one of the measures that will have significant improvements" in the future.

In July, Gov. Tony Evers signed a two-year budget which includes $129 million for the Broadband Expansion Grant Program. Evers, a Democrat, and GOP lawmakers agreed on the need to improve broadband across Wisconsin but disagreed on how to fund it. The Republican-controlled budget-writing committee approved $129 million through bonding. Evers, who wanted $200 million, said bonding would cost taxpayers more in the long run, but nevertheless agreed to it in the final budget.

Groups representing older adults expressed their disappointment in the level of funding for broadband, which AARP Wisconsin said "is no longer a luxury for folks of all ages — it's a necessity."

"We have great faith that our state lawmakers can work together in a bipartisan manner to pass legislation this fall that truly reflects the critical wants and needs of our most vulnerable citizens. In order to achieve this, however, we ask them once again to put politics aside and act in the best interest of all Wisconsinites," said AARP State Director Sam Wilson in a statement.

CMN gets grants for solar panels, trail, comics

3 grants will help to align college with its strategic plans

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

The College of Menominee Nation was recently awarded three grants for the 2021-2022 fiscal year.

The grants that were received were EBSCO Information Services' 2021 EBSCO Solar Grant, worth $60,000, the Second Nature's Acceleration Fund, worth $7,000 and the American Indian College Fund's Community Based Learning and Sharing Grant, worth $20,000.

"I am humbled that we are able to receive the grants," said Rebecca Edler, interim director of the Sustainable Development Institute. "Receiving these grants really reinforces the hard work that everyone here is contributing to."

Edler and other CMN officials were notified that they had received the grants in early July.

The use of the EBSCO Information Services Solar Grant will be used to install solar panels on the S. Verna Fowler/Menominee Public Library's roof. This will make the library the second building on campus that will use solar energy through panels.

According to a press release from CMN, installing these solar panels will help to reduce the school's reliance on fossil fuels. This also helps to CMN's hope to change to a carbon neutral campus, abiding with the college's 2016 Climate Action Plan.

"The library currently use geothermal and propane energy," said Edler. "We are hoping to eliminate fossil fuels."

The second grant, being the Second Nature's Acceleration Fund is going to be used to help in providing a better equitable access to the Phenology Trail and the Learning Path. The Phenology Trail is an important part of the school, as it gives students and staff an opportunity to learn about different species of plants, where the stations state the scientific name, as well as the Menominee name, said the press release.

The information stations will also include details about the life span, uses, and how climate change impacts the phenology. Sticking with their plan to become carbon neutral, they will introduce a solar-powered golf cart to help those who need assistance explore the path.

"It is nice to inform people about a change to a new energy source," said Edler.

The American Indian College Fund's Community Based Learning and Sharing Grant will be used to create a project that details past Menominee teachings in a comic book. The project is called Collaborating Our Model In Contemporary Sequential-arts. The hope of this project is to portray the importance of Menominee culture through a modern art.

"We want to bring information about past teachings and lessons through modern day means," said Edler. "This can be a way for people of all ages to enjoy."

Edler believes that using these grants to support various projects will continue to build the school as a role model within the Menominee community.

"We want to be a model in the community," said Edler. "This will provide people with a place to go."

She believes that these grants help to reinforce that the CMN is open to everyone and that everyone can use the school for their needs.

"CMN is open to everyone," said Edler. "We want to focus on bettering the community and to provide everyone with the resources that they need."

For the future, Edler said that officials within the school will continue to look for grants that align with their strategic plans.

Inspiration theme of county's 368th barn quilt

Connie and Mike Rohloff have sponsored Shawano County's 368th barn quilt.

Named Inspiration from Within, it is on display on a recently built workshop at N3992 Green Valley Road, Pulaski, where Connie will work on a multitude of projects to sell in stores and online for her company, CR Inspirations.

"The quilt design was chosen to represent the inspiration and ideas that dwell in all of us," Connie said.

The workshop was built on an old alfalfa field that Mike and Connie purchased from her parents, Roger and Emily Neumann, in 2002, shortly after they got married. Looking further back, the land was sold by the State of Wisconsin to Shawano County in 1880. In 1890, Anton Marszelski purchased the land and it remained in their family for 74 years. From there, it was owned by the Anderson (1964-68) and Matczak (1968-77) families before Connie's parents purchased the land in 1977.

Inside Connie's new workshop are plenty of reminders of their agricultural pasts, as both Connie and Mike grew up on dairy farms and remain active in the dairy industry to this day. The inside walls of the workshop are decorated with barn boards from Connie's parents' barn, which was damaged by a tornado in 2017. There are also several old farm antiques that line the walls of the workshop. Connie enjoys working with barn boards and other farm type antiques, which is the focal point of her business.

Mike and Connie have a son, Bryce, who will be a high school senior, and a daughter, McKenna, who will be a freshman at Pulaski High School. Mike works with dairy farmers and veterinarians at Boehringer Ingelheim Animal Health and Connie milks cows part-time at a local dairy farm.

The Rohloff barn quilt was painted by the Shawano County barn quilt committee and was put on display by LeRoy Raddant and his grandson, Keenan, both of whom work for Raddant Electric in Shawano.

Community members remember former mayor

Russ Schmidt served as Shawano mayor for six years

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

Former Shawano Mayor Russ Schmidt has passed away at the age of 92.

He passed away on July 21.

He played a large part in the Shawano community as he was on the Shawano Medical Board of Trustees, the Shawano Area Community Foundation Board of Directors, the Valley Bank Board, the M&I Bank Board, the BMO Bank Board and the Shawano County Board. He was also a part of the Shawano Rotary Club. He was an alderman on the Shawano City Council for 20 years and he served as the mayor of Shawano for six years.

One family friend of his said that she always looked forward to going to his cheese shop, The Cheddar Box Cheese House.

"I was friends with his daughter," said Kathy Braun. "I was always excited to see him when we went in."

Braun also mentioned that Schmidt was a very nice guy and would often smile when meeting new people.

"He was always very friendly," said Braun. "He had a great sense of humor and was someone who would be happy to talk to you."

Schmidt and his family were also a part of the St. James Lutheran Church.

At the church, Schmidt took part in bible classes that were offered by the principal of the St. James school, Will Kleinschmidt.

"I saw Russ a lot," said Kleinschmidt. "I was the principal of his children and was teaching bible classes that he attended."

He added that Schmidt would always be willing to learn more and speak up in discussions.

"Russ always sat next to me during the discussions," said Kleinschmidt. "He liked to be involved in the discussions, but he never tried to dominate the discussion."

Kleinschmidt went on to say that Schmidt was a positive part of the community as he tried to help others out before himself.

"He was always a good community member," said Kleinschmidt. "He always looked out for the community. We need more people like him in the community."

With the ammount of community involvement that Schmidt had, he met Shawano residents through different events. J.R. Habeck, a retired Shawano-Menominee County Circuit Court judge and Rotary Club member, said that his experiences with Schmidt came from events and duties around the community.

"I knew him from church, his elected duties within the city and our common attendance at Chamber of Commerce events," said Habeck. "He was consistently in good spirits and looked for ways to improve the community."

Smoking reduces life, can be tough to overcome

The history of smoking dates back to 4000 B.C. and was used in spiritual rituals. But the first scientific report on smoking was not published until 1964, and it is still famous among health care researchers. In that study, researchers divided 40,000 British doctors into four groups (non-smokers and light, moderate and heavy smokers) and used mortality as the outcome measure.

The study's 10-year results showed much higher lung cancer mortality and all-cause mortality in smokers, with a "dose-response" relation (heavy smokers died at a higher rate than moderate smokers; moderate smokers died at a higher rate than light smokers, etc.).

A medical research team analyzed smoking and smoking-cessation data collected from the U.S. National Health Interview Survey of over 200,000 adults linked to the National Death Index. The rate of death from any cause for current smokers was about three times that for those who had never smoked. The likelihood of surviving from 25 to 79 years of age was about double for those who had never smoked compared to current smokers. Smokers lose at least a decade of life expectancy compared to those who have never smoked.

Smokers also have more heart disease, stroke, aortic aneurysm, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, asthma, hip fractures, cataracts, pneumonia, erectile dysfunction, low back pain, intervertebral disc disease, inferior patient outcomes following surgical interventions, increased rates of postoperative complications and a higher risk for the nonunion of fractures. So if you want these conditions, smoking is a good choice.

Quitting smoking by the age of 40 reduces the risk of death associated with continued smoking by about 90%. The Centers for Disease Control recommends the following strategies:

- Don't smoke at all. Smoking even a few cigarettes a day can hurt your health. If you try to smoke fewer cigarettes, but do not stop completely, soon you'll be smoking the same amount again. Smoking "low-tar, low-nicotine" cigarettes usually does little good, because nicotine is so addictive. If you switch to lower-nicotine brands, you'll likely just puff harder, longer and more often on each cigarette. The only safe choice is to quit completely.

- Write down why you want to quit. Really wanting to quit smoking is very important to successfully quitting. Smokers who live after a heart attack are the most likely to quit for good — they're very motivated. Find a reason for quitting before you have no choice.

- Know that it will take effort to quit smoking. Nicotine is habit forming. Half the battle in quitting is knowing you need to quit. This knowledge will increase your ability to deal with symptoms of withdrawal, such as bad moods and the "urge" to smoke. There are many ways smokers quit, including using nicotine replacement products (gum and patches), but there is no easy way. Nearly all smokers have some feelings of nicotine withdrawal when they try to quit. Give yourself a month to get over these feelings. Take quitting one day at a time, even one minute at a time — whatever you need to succeed.

- Be encouraged by the fact that half of all adult smokers have quit, so you can, too. Millions of people have learned to face life without cigarettes. Quitting smoking is the best step you can take to stay healthy.

- Get help if you need it. Many groups offer written materials, programs and advice to help smokers quit for good. Your doctor or dentist can also be a good source of support. Look for national and local groups with resources to help you quit. A great one in Wisconsin through UW-Madison is the Wisconsin Quit Line at 800-784-8669.

The Marion High School baseball team tied for second place in the Central Wisconsin Conference-North Division this spring and had six players honored for their play after the season wrapped up.

Sophomore Jaden Stuhr was named the conference's Player of the Year, while junior Alex Zimmerman also made the first team. Senior Carter Goke landed on the second team, while seniors Koy Brei and Myles Peterson and freshman Ryan Malueg were honorable mentions.

Stuhr had an impressive first season of high school ball at the plate and on the mound.

As a hitter, the sophomore had a .423 batting average for the season and drove in 21 runs. He doubled four times, tripled three times and homered twice. He also walked 18 times.

On the bump, he covered 53 1/3 innings, striking out 112 batters while walking just 20. He had an earned run average of 1.44.

"Being named conference Player of the Year means a lot to me," said Stuhr. "I want to thank my coaches and teammates for all of their support, and the good Lord blessing me with the opportunities I have."

"The honor of being Player of the Year gives me the motivation to want more, set higher goals and achieve them. I still have things I believe I can improve on, and I'll come back next year with those improvements ready to play ball."

Zimmerman finished his junior season with a .447 batting average and drove in 11 runs. He also walked 15 times and legged out five doubles.

On the mound, Zimmerman logged 18 innings, striking out 24 batters and finishing with a 3.89 ERA.

"It means a lot to me knowing I was able to get second team my freshman year, and I just wanted to get better and better year after year, and getting first team this year is exactly what I wanted," said Zimmerman. "But I know I can do better next year and hopefully push for being Player of the Year. So I just don't wanna give up because I can always get better."

Goke finished the year with a .245 batting average, and also got on base 16 times by walking. He also drove in seven runs.

The senior also covered 17 innings on the mound, striking out 16 batters along the way.

"Making second team all-conference in my last year of high school shows that my hard work and all the support I've received have culminated in this honor," said Goke.

Brei had a .302 batting average for the Mustangs, while also drawing nine walks. The senior drove in 16 runs.

Peterson capped his high school career by hitting for a .297 average and driving in seven runs. He also walked six times.

"Making an all-conference team my senior year means a lot to me and makes me feel I am proving my skills and abilities on the field as a senior leader for my team," said Peterson.

Malueg hit .321 in his freshman season and legged out five doubles. He also drew seven walks and drove in 12 runs.

"It means a lot since I was just a freshman and got honorable mention, and I know I gotta work harder next year and hopefully get second team or maybe first team," said Malueg.

Marion went 7-3 in conference play before picking up a playoff win. The Mustangs were eliminated in a regional semifinal contest against Reedsville.

Gresham

Gresham tied for fourth in the conference with a 3-7 record and saw two players receive all-conference recognition.

Junior Lukas Pecore earned a spot on the first team, while junior Austin Sperberg made the second team.

In conference action, Pecore hit for a .480 average. He homered twice, drove in 10 runs and stole eight bases.

On the mound, he earned all of the team's conference wins and struck out 54 batters over 29 innings.

Sperberg earned his second-team spot after hitting .423 in conference play.

The Wildcats also earned a playoff win before being eliminated in a regional semifinal clash against Three Lakes/Phelps.

Bonduel, Shawano fail to qualify for state

Both team earn regional wins

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

The Bonduel and Shawano Legion baseball teams each earned wins in their regionals, but both fell short of qualifying for state.

Bonduel finished 2-2 at the Class A Clintonville Regional, which Denmark won. Clintonville also qualified for state after placing second because Denmark is hosting state and earned an automatic spot at state.

Shawano finished 1-2 at the Class AA Kaukauna Regional. Kaukauna won the regional.

Bonduel

Bonduel opened up regional play in Clintonville with a 10-0 win over Mishicot in five innings on July 21.

Mason Bohm starred for Bonduel on the mound, surrendering just one hit across five innings. He struck out seven batters and needed just 50 pitches to get through the game.

Mishicot's lone hit came in the third inning, but Bonduel eliminated the baserunner, so Bohm faced the minimum.

Noah Beilfuss drove in three runs to lead Bonduel at the plate. Isaac Boldt and Easton Reinke drove in a pair each, while Jack Johnson also earned a RBI after walking with the bases loaded.

Garrett Engel, Johnson and Beilfuss scored two runs each.

Bonduel scored three runs in the first and two runs in the second and third innings before a three-run fourth capped the scoring.

Bonduel then faced Clintonville on July 22, dropping a pitcher's duel by a 1-0 score.

Beilfuss was dealt the tough loss on the mound despite allowing just one run in the sixth. He struck out eight batters across six innings.

Bonduel only had five runners reach base in the contest. Boldt reached base twice for the Grizzlies.

Bonduel kept its season alive with a 12-4 victory over Little Chute on July 23.

Brett Margelofsky reached base four times and scored three runs for Bonduel. Cole Anderson, Johnson and Engel each scored two runs.

Bonduel scored twice in the second inning, once in the third and three times in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings.

Boldt picked up the win after pitching the first 5 1/3 innings. He allowed three runs in the first before settling in. Anderson worked the final 1 2/3 innings.

Bonduel then faced Clintonville again on July 24, this time losing 15-5 in five innings.

Bonduel scored all five of its runs in the opening three innings. Carson Robaidek, Engel, Beilfuss and Anderson all reached base twice for the Grizzlies.

Bohm started for Bonduel and pitched the first 1 2/3 innings before Anderson got the next six outs. Johnson then worked 2/3 of an inning. Clintonville hit the 10-run rule in the bottom of the fifth frame to end the contest.

Shawano

Shawano had a tough start to regional play in Kaukauna, losing 14-0 in five innings to Seymour on July 22. The Patriots had just one hit in the contest.

Andrew Popp had Shawano's lone hit and also stole two bases. Jake Polzin walked for the team's only other baserunner.

Andrew Popp took the loss on the mound after allowing eight runs over three innings. Only three of the runs he allowed were earned after three Shawano errors. Bryce Popp got the final three outs for the Patriots.

Shawano bounced back with a 10-2 victory over Freedom on July 23.

The Patriots had a 4-1 lead before a six-run sixth inning blew the game open.

Braedyn Kowalkowski, Joey Sperberg and Polzin all drove in two runs for Shawano. Carson Popp had three hits, while Ashton Henning, Kowalkowski and Sperberg had two each. Ethan Demunck, Popp and Henning all scored twice.

Bryce Popp started on the mound and allowed a run over 1 2/3 innings. Polzin worked the final 5 1/3 innings, allowing an unearned run.

Shawano then took on Seymour again on July 24, this time losing 9-4.

Shawano trailed 6-1 after four innings and tallied three of its runs in the bottom of the seventh. The Patriots committed five errors in the loss.

Andrew Popp had two hits and two RBIs to lead Shawano at the plate, while Henning drove in a run, posted two hits and scored twice. Polzin had the team's other RBI and reached base three times.

Demunck took the loss after pitching the first two innings. Henning worked the next four innings before Sperberg pitched the seventh.

3 Marion players make all-conference teams

Fischer lands on first team

By MORGAN RODE

The Marion High School softball team had three players earn spots on Central Wisconsin Conference-North Division all-conference teams after the spring season wrapped up.

Junior Ashley Fischer, freshman Morgan Schwartz and sophomore Dacotah Yonker were the Mustangs recognized.

Fischer, who pitched along with spending time at first and third base, made the first team.

“Personally, when I had been named to the all-conference first team, I was very shocked,” said Fischer. “As a freshman getting second team, all of sophomore year without a season into my junior year,

I had to show all the work that I had put in during the offseason to better myself to get past the second team award. I don’t think I could’ve gotten the award without my teammates giving me the support of my change of positions this season.

“This award gives me a lot of motivation moving forward and also shows me I have a lot of work to do in order to be even better. I just have to stay focused and keep working hard to show that the awards I have received were truly meant for me. We have a big season ahead of us next year, and I’m super excited to Schwartz landed on the second team in her first season of high school ball. She also pitched and played first base for Marion.

Marion won two of its eight conference games this spring.

Anvelink wins twice during Mid-Summer Classic

Mullen earns 2 wins on 1st night of event

By DAVE BUSS

Special to NEW Media

Fans were given two opportunities to watch racing action at the Shawano Speedway as the Mid-Summer Classic kicked off on July 23 and wrapped up July 24.

The Street Stocks joined the program on Friday and brought some great action to the show. Mike Mullen was the story of the night though, picking up wins in two divisions in very impressive fashion. Joining Mullen with wins was Nick Anvelink, Jayden Schmidt and Jeff Richards.

Saturday night provided just as much action, with Anvelink making it a clean sweep in the Late Model division with another top finish. Marcus Yarie, Jeffery Teske, Chucky Forstner and Lucas Hacker also found victory lane.

The IMCA Sport Mods kicked action off Saturday with what looked to be another great run by Max Oreskovich jumping to the early lead. Oreskovich led the early part of the race with Schmidt giving him a stiff challenge for the top spot. Jeff Schmuhl and Teske joined the battle up front.

As the leaders entered turn one, Oreskovich's engine expired, taking him to the outside wall collecting Schmidt. Schmidt was able to continue after a trip to pit lane. Schmuhl also suffered mechanical issues during the caution and retired his car for the night.

Teske assumed the top spot on the restart. Teske drove off to a dominating win.

The IMCA Stock Cars took the track next, and it looked as if the race was over before it started as Travis Van Straten led the field to the green flag. Van Straten jumped to the lead early and built a lead.

Meanwhile, Forstner started in the fourth row and began to move forward and soon found himself in second, nearly a second-and-a-half behind Van Straten.

Forstner began working the high side as Van Straten stuck to the bottom. Forster caught Van Straten and made his move to the outside grabbing the top spot.

Forstner drove away from Van Straten and cruised to the win. Van Straten took the runner-up spot with Jeremy Christians third and Trent Nolan fourth.

Troy Springborn looked to dominate the Late Model feature from the front row starting spot. Springborn jumped to the advantage as Anvelink moved into the second spot.

Anvelink caught Springborn and the two engaged in a battle for the lead. Two drivers who have dominated the division for the years fought side by side for the lead, with Anvelink eventually grabbing the top spot.

As Anvelink began to get away, Ron Berna was powering forward back in the pack, grabbing the third spot. Kyle Raddant followed Berna forward grabbing fourth.

The IMCA Modifieds took off with Jerry Muenster and Yarie on the front row. Yarie wouldn't let his top spot go to waste as he jumped out and led the 20-lap feature from green to checkers.

Meanwhile, Wyatt Block rocketed to second. Most nights Block would have dominated the race, but with Yarie checked out, he had to settle into the runner-up spot. Johnny Whitman charged from his fifth row starting spot to grab third, while Jerry Wilinski grabbed fourth. Brecken Kleinschmidt also charged up seven spots to grab a top-five spot.

The Mighty 4s concluded racing action in the Mid-Summer Classic with Hacker fighting off Tanner Westphal at the start to grab the lead.

Once out front, there was no looking back for Hacker as he grabbed another checkered flag. Westphal, Brad Wedde and Nate Michonski completed the top four.

Bucks' title gives state's sports fans relief from heartbreak

For most of my life, and especially the last decade or so, Wisconsin sports teams have provided plenty instances of heartbreak. The curse was finally broken with the Milwaukee Bucks' NBA title.

MORGAN RODE

The Green Bay Packers, Milwaukee Brewers and Wisconsin Badgers have provided their share of heartbreak, with the Bucks joining the party in recent years.

Leading up to the most recent NBA season, the Bucks had put together back-to-back seasons in which they held the NBA's best regular season record. Giannis Antetokounmpo won a pair of MVP awards and Milwaukee seemed destined to snap a long NBA title drought.

Nope. Instead, the team was eliminated in the Eastern Conference finals by the eventual champion Toronto Raptors one year before being erased by the Miami Heat in the conference semifinals.

After making a multitude of roster changes — and having another big transaction wiped out — the Bucks hoped to get over the hump and back into the NBA finals.

This year's regular season wasn't as successful as the last two, with the Bucks only securing a No. 3 seed for the postseason and Giannis not being named the MVP despite having another big season. Honestly though, the lower level of hype surrounding the team coming into the playoffs was actually kind of a breath of fresh air for me.

The Bucks' heartbreak looked like it might start even earlier this season with the Heat serving as the team's first-round matchup. Milwaukee didn't look good in the first game of the series, but escaped with a win in overtime after a game-winning shot from Khris Middleton.

You obviously already know that the Bucks went on to sweep the Heat, but I truly believe if the Heat had taken game one, Miami might have upset Milwaukee again.

The Bucks and Nets second round series — which I believe was the best of the entire playoffs — was one I was looking forward to all season, but it lost some of its luster after injuries to Nets' stars Kyrie Irving and James Harden during the seven-game showdown.

Milwaukee fell in an 0-2 hole before tying up the series with two home wins. Just when it looked like the Bucks had found their footing, Brooklyn won game five to take a 3-2 lead. Again, the Bucks were able to defend home court though, taking game six to set up a game seven in Brooklyn.

Milwaukee overcame a late deficit and had a four-point lead with just over a minute to play, but the game was far from over. An offensive rebound helped the Nets get to within two points. The Bucks got a big offensive rebound of their own on the other end, but weren't able to capitalize as the team turned it over on a shot clock violation.

Another break went the Bucks' way after Kevin Durant appeared to hit a game-winning 3-pointer, but the front of his shoe was on the 3-point line, making it just a two and sending the game to overtime.

Certainly then would have been a good time for a Wisconsin sports team to fold under the pressure, right? It looked like the Bucks were on that path after not scoring for nearly four minutes, but Antetokounmpo and Middleton hit clutch shots before Brook Lopez iced the win with two free throws.

Milwaukee's win coupled with a surprise loss from the Philadelphia 76ers meant the Bucks would take on the Atlanta Hawks instead in the Eastern Conference finals.

Just when the thought of reaching the finals was creeping in for Bucks' fans, the team inexplicably lost the first game of the series on their home floor.

Milwaukee rebounded and took game two before Atlanta star Trae Young hurt his ankle in a Bucks win in game three, yet another break for the Bucks.

Surely now was when fans could be at ease? Not so fast. Milwaukee was blown out in game four and lost Antetokounmpo to an injured knee. Not only was the series now tied, but it appeared that Antetokounmpo was done for the season and the team's luck had run out.

At that point, I still hoped the Bucks could advance to the finals, but questioned whether it would have been as special with the star player out. Milwaukee showed its resiliency without Giannis and won the final two games of the series, and the team got another good dose of good news as its star avoided a devastating injury.

As the finals approached, the likelihood of Giannis returning seemed to increase by the hour, upping the Bucks' chances at the same time. It was at that point that it felt like the stars were finally aligning.

Giannis played well in the opening game of the series, but the Bucks were unable to slow the Suns' pick-and-roll game in a 13-point loss. Antetokounmpo scored 42 points in another loss in game two. Despite the two losses, many Milwaukee fans remained positive and believed the team could come back.

The Bucks rattled off four straight wins with Antetokounmpo leading the charge to complete the Bucks' quest for a title.

Just like that, the hurt and pain of the last couple Bucks' seasons — and many other heartbreaking losses by the Packers, Brewers and Badgers — were erased. Okay, maybe those thoughts are still trapped in my brain somewhere, but it'll sure be hard to wipe off the smile that's been on my face since the waning minutes of game six of the finals.

Bucks in six!

Cleveland's goodbye to 'Indian' name a good thing

I found myself thinking about the late Richie Plass recently as I was browsing for news. He's fairly well known among locals, but for those who aren't aware, he was a Menominee and Stockbridge-Munsee who found out the painful way decades ago that being an Indian mascot isn't all it's cracked up to be, as people from opposing teams heckled him, threw things at him and spit on him.

He took that traumatizing experience from high school days and turned it into a crusade to point out how Native American mascots are basically co-opting a culture without permission. He created a traveling exhibit called "Bittersweet Winds" that showcased a myriad of instances where Native Americans became caricatures for amusement instead of a culture to be respected.

Richie came to mind as I came across a story about the Cleveland Indians baseball team announcing it would be changing its team name to the Cleveland Guardians beginning in 2022. Team officials said they heard the complaints from Native American groups who called the Indians name racist and that they wanted to change it to something more respectable.

The team had already said farewell to its Chief Wahoo mascot three years ago, so the decision to end the Indians name shouldn't have come as a big surprise. However, that's not the way that Sen. Ted Cruz, a Republican from Texas, saw it as he tweeted: "Why does MLB hate Indians?" Cruz didn't stop there, though, as he begged Boston in a follow-up tweet not to change the name of its Celtics baseball team, as he is half Irish. (By the way, that isn't happening.)

I'm not too surprised at the senator's response. After all, this is the same man who fled from Texas in the dead of winter when the power grid failed a few months ago, but it does provide a reminder as to just how ignorant many people are to Native Americans and the strife they've endured over the centuries as they hold onto their culture and identity against a society that would eagerly exploit it.

I suppose we shouldn't condemn the senator too much, as Texas only has three federally recognized Native American tribes in its borders. However, I'm wondering if the leaders of those tribes are putting in calls to Cruz's office to defend Cleveland's decision and educate him on how derisive and divisive the Indians moniker is. That's the only way he'll learn, assuming he would be open enough to learn on the experience.

I consider myself fortunate that my high school mascot was a cougar and therefore fairly safe from controversy — assuming that a roving band of older women who have a thing for younger men doesn't develop to picket outside the school gates.

I also consider myself fortunate that I've been exposed to a number of Native American cultures and have a number of friends from those tribes who have talked with me about the appropriation of those cultures by a primarily white society. They've helped to show that having a name like "Indians" or "Braves" or "Redskins" is not an honor for them as much as it is an insult.

I wonder, if Cruz had the same people who talked to me talking with him, that it might show him that having a comical portrayal of a Native American is akin to a white person acting in blackface, which is also considered racist. Would he get the point if something like "Bittersweet Winds" was presented to him and showed him how icons and images have denigrated tribes for decades?

It's a shame that Richie Plass isn't alive today, as he would likely load up his traveling exhibit and head for Washington, D.C., to show Cruz the folly of his ways, the same as he did for almost 20 years nationwide. Richie's efforts helped to get more than 30 school districts in Wisconsin alone to change their mascots, but the fight is far from over.

I remember seeing the exhibit for myself a couple of years ago and, despite being well educated on Native American issues, being surprised by just how many sports teams, products and even works of art had negatively exploited tribes. Some items, like a T-shirt with the name "Caucasians" and a whitewashed version of the former Cleveland mascot, flipped the script and showed how denigrating it would be to other cultures if their image was exploited for money and chuckles.

With the continued debate on racism in this country, it might be time for Congress to pass a law that bans sports mascots that are degrading to Native Americans and other cultures. Cleveland has stepped forward to make the change, as has Washington's football team when it killed its Redskins moniker, but there are plenty of school and professional teams that still haven't gotten the message yet, so it might be time for a clean sweep.

Such a bill probably won't get a yes vote from Cruz, though.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Town hall needs to open to public again

To the editor:

Abuse of the COVID-19 Emergency Order of Wisconsin is happening in the Town of Little Suamico. The town is still claiming an emergency order, and citizens do not have full access to their town office now since April 2020. Over 1½ years later, and the town still feels the emergency order should be in effect when everything else is open. When this happens, citizens have no access to monthly check information as previously provided at meetings (i.e. we have no clue what our tax dollars are being spent on). When transparency is lacking, you lose trust.

I have requested a copy of our monthly expenses to include the check register and documentation for a particular month that we used to receive at town meetings and was denied.

Without transparency, citizens are not aware of what is being spent in our town monthly. Specifically, when checks are being written for approximately $9,000, $7,000, and $3,000 reimbursements to town employees as listed in the audit book of 2020, we deserve a full explanation.

Taxpayers deserve to have full access to our town hall and not just by email or call. We, as a town, need to demand of our leaders that our office be open full service as we deserve and pay taxes for. Enough is enough; please open up the Little Suamico Town Hall so we have normal full access to our town that the citizens of Little Suamico deserve.

It's the summer of the hydrangea

My favorite flowering shrubs of the summer season are the beautiful, lush hydrangeas that fill our landscapes and gardens with their billowy blooms and elegant form. A must-have for every garden and providing a long bloom season from July all the way through Halloween, hydrangeas come in many forms, colors and sizes. Chances are there's a hydrangea for every spot in your yard and garden.

ROB ZIMMER

While garden centers are filled with colorful hydrangeas during the spring gardening season, it is important to do your research and select varieties that will grow here in our area. Many of those sold at garden centers are not reliably hardy here in northern Wisconsin. Visit a reputable, local nursery or garden center to select your hydrangea varieties. The ones covered in this column are perfect for our area.

Hydrangeas come in five basic types, or forms. There are the smooth hydrangeas, such as the ever popular Annabelle. These are normally lush, mophead varieties.

There are panicle hydrangeas, or those that resemble cones or pyramids in bloom. Many popular hydrangeas for our area are panicles.

Big leaf hydrangeas are the ones that are often tricky to overwinter here in our area. This includes the popular Endless Summer series and many others. Special care needs to be taken with these plants over the winter season.

Climbing hydrangeas are lush, woody vines that can grow quite large and feature massive, white, lace cap blooms.

Oakleaf hydrangeas are also touchy here in our area but provide fascinating foliage that is especially colorful during fall. Many people grow oakleaf hydrangeas for the foliage alone, not caring if the plant blooms or not.

Hydrangeas in the Annabelle series or smooth hydrangeas are quite simple to grow in our area. Many of these require a bit of shade, so be sure to site accordingly. Research online or follow the directions on the plant tag. Smooth hydrangeas come in more than white. There are many varieties that are pink, even reddish

Twist and Shout is a big leaf hydrangea that requires a bit of extra care here in our area.

ROB ZIMMER

in color. Some of my favorite smooth hydrangeas are Mini Mauvette, that blooms in reddish pink, Incrediball, Incrediball Blush, Invincibelle Spirit, Garnetta and Limetta.

The panicle hydrangeas are becoming the most popular variety of hydrangeas in our area. This group of hydrangeas includes the highly popular Limelight, as well as Pinky Winky, Quick Fire, Vanilla Strawberry, Bobo, Little Lime, Firelight, Diamond Rouge and many more.

Panicle hydrangeas, along with smooth hydrangeas are the easiest to grow here in our area and require very little care. They bloom on newly formed wood each year, so can be cut back in fall or late winter to about 1 foot in height. I recommend allowing the beautiful flower heads to remain standing all winter, because they look amazing when tufted with fresh snow.

Most panicle hydrangeas transform through several color phases throughout the season. Panicle hydrangea start out creamy white or lime green, then gradually turn pink, even red throughout summer and fall. By September and October, many of these hydrangeas are a deep, rich red in color.

Big leaf hydrangeas are the tricky ones to grow here in our area. This is because they bloom on old wood each year, the branches that were formed in the previous season. If you cut them back, or if they freeze off during the winter, then you will get lots of leaves the following year but very few blooms. For this reason, it is important to protect the entire plant, stems and all, over the winter season. Many gardeners have found the best success by simply digging the plant up overwinter and storing it in an unheated basement or garage where temperatures won't fall severely during winter.

Big leaf hydrangeas include the Endless Summer series, as well as Cherry Explosion and others. Again, take care with these plants. Even though the root systems are hardy here, the flowering branches and buds must be protected gea will bloom on both new and old wood, making them a better choice for our area since they will still bloom even if the flower buds on old wood have frozen off.

Climbing hydrangeas are popular for large spaces since they grow quite extensively. Often, we see them creeping up the sides of silos and barns.

Often, gardeners assume that hydrangea color can be changed by altering the pH of the soil. While this is nice in theory, in reality it rarely works. While chemicals are sold that can be added to the soil, it generally is never enough to fully transform the color. Additionally, this process only works on certain big leaf hydrangeas. It will not work on smooth hydrangeas or panicle hydrangeas as the colors they bloom in are their permanent color. Don't be taken by this gimmick.

Enjoy the summer of the hydrangea.

Signs of emerald ash borer in Shawano County

The first confirmed report of emerald ash borer for the county occurred in the city of Shawano last summer. Since then, there has not been any other confirmed reports to the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection within the county.

KIMBERLY SCHMIDT

You can stay up to date with Wisconsin Emerald Ash Borer (EAB) Detections Look-Up Tool found at <http://datcp-services.wisconsin.gov/eab/index.jsp>.

The confirmed presence of emerald ash borer in the county means homeowners of ash trees should be aware of what the emerald ash borer looks like. As adults they are small, only 3/8- to 1/2-inch long and 1/16-inch wide, metallic green beetles. They emerge from late May to mid-July and live for 3-6 weeks, so they may be visible on ash trees now. There are some insects that look similar, such as the blister beetle, so confirmation before treatments are done is recommended.

In addition to finding adult beetles, decline of ash trees can be an indication that further investigation is needed. It takes years for emerald ash borer to kill an ash tree. Before it dies, it will show signs of decline, such as canopy thinning and crown dieback, sprouting shoots at the base of the trunk or on main branches, or woodpecker damage. These signs of decline are not just specific to emerald ash borer but can be clues to investigate further.

Other signs to look for is the damage created by the emerald ash borer. Larvae, which are cream-colored with bell-shaped body segments, cause the most damage to ash trees by feeding on the cambial layer. While feeding on the cambial layer, they create distinct S-shaped tunnels or galleries under the bark. When large amounts of these galleries occur, the cambial layer becomes too damaged to transport water and nutrients through the tree.

When adult emerald ash borers finish maturing, they emerge from the bark, creating distinct D-shaped holes. Visit <https://eab.russell.wisc.edu/> or <http://www.emeraldashborer.info/index.php> for information on identifying emerald ash borers. If you

Emerald ash borers have been spotted in the city of Shawano. Property owners of ash trees will need to keep an eye out for the invasive species.

CONTRIBUTED

suspect you have emerald ash borer, please contact the EAB Hotline at 800-462-2803 for confirmation.

Homeowners with ash trees may want to treat their trees for emerald ash borer. However, there are some considerations. Currently, insecticide treatments for emerald ash borer are suggested only for ash trees located within 15 miles of a confirmed site, or for trees located within a quarantined area. That does not mean that all ash trees should receive treatment. Homeowners need to determine if the ash tree is valuable enough to justify insecticide treatments.

Things to consider are the overall health of the tree and its contribution to the property's landscape as well as others. A tree that is infested with emerald ash borer should not be treated when the canopy has thinning greater than 50%. The Extension fact sheet "Is My Ash Tree Worth Treating for Emerald Ash Borer?" gives detailed information and can be found at https:// eab.russell.wisc.edu/eab-news-and-resources/#Management_Factsheets.

There are insecticides available to homeowners to use to treat emerald ash borer. When using insecticides, read and follow all label directions. Depending on the circumstances such as the size of the tree, a homeowner may want to work with a professional, due to their access to specialized equipment and insecticides that are not available to the general public.

More information on insecticide treatments available to homeowners can be found in the Extension fact sheet "Homeowner Guide to Emerald Ash Borer Insecticide Treatments" at https://eab.russell.wisc.edu/eab-news-and-resources/#Management_Factsheets.

Homeowners can also remove ash trees, healthy or declining. If this is the option a homeowner chooses, properly managing the infested wood is important to preventing the spread. It is an option to work with a certified arborist and have them handle the removal of the tree and proper processing of the wood.

The Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection also has a document discussing how to properly use ash wood titled "Ash Wood Processing Options for the Homeowner," which is posted on <https://eab.russell.wisc.edu/considerations-for-homeowners>. Firewood is strongly recommended to be burned in the county it originates in to help prevent not only the spread of emerald ash borer but other invasive species as well.

If you are interested in hard copies of these fact sheets, they are available at the Shawano County Extension Office at the Shawano County Courthouse, Room 109, 311 N. Main St., Shawano. Owners of woodlots and forested areas should consult a DNR forester to develop a plan to help lessen the impacts of emerald ash borer.

Kimberly Schmidt is the agriculture agent for Shawano County's University of Wisconsin-Extension office.

Astrea announces participation in EBB internet program

Astrea — a division of CCI Systems, Inc. of Iron Mountain, Michigan — has announced its participation in the Federal Communications Commission's Emergency Broadband Benefit (EBB) program to provide relief to customers in need due to the current public health crisis.

"We are excited to be part of this collaborative effort to ensure that vital internet connectivity is available to our customers in a time where so many are in need of extra assistance because of the pandemic" said Cory Heigl, vice president of Astrea. "This aligns with our mission to bring high speed internet to rural communities so that they can continue to work, learn and connect with family and friends."

The EBB program is an emergency program developed in response to the COVID-19 pandemic. EBB will provide a discount of up to $50 per month toward broadband internet services and related equipment for eligible households and up to $75 per month for households on tribal lands. The EBB is limited to one monthly service discount and one device discount per household. The program will end once the program funds are exhausted, or six months after the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services declares an end to the pandemic.

A household is eligible if one member of the household meets at least one of the following criteria:

- Qualifies for the Lifeline program
- Receives benefits under the free and reduced-price school lunch or breakfast program, including through the USDA Community Eligibility Provision, or did so in the 2019-2020 school year
- Received a federal Pell Grant during the current award year
- Experienced a substantial loss of income since Feb. 29, 2020, and the household had a total income in 2020 below $99,000 for single filers and $198,000 for joint filers
- Meets the eligibility criteria for participating providers' existing low-income or COVID-19 program

To learn more or to participate, visit <https://go.astreaconnect.com/ebb>

Astrea currently helps connect over 60 small communities throughout Michigan and Wisconsin to family, health care, work, education and entertainment by providing high-speed internet. Astrea maintains a retail location in Oconto Falls.

ThedaCare doctor says surgery safe during pandemic

A recent survey by Wakefield Research reported 48% of joint replacement patients are currently delaying surgery because of the coronavirus pandemic.

"Hip and knee replacements represent some of the best surgical procedures health care has ever developed to improve quality of life," said Dr. David Liebelt, an orthopedic surgeon specializing in hip and knee reconstruction with ThedaCare Orthopedic Care. "People might think that hip or knee replacement is something they can put off during the pandemic, but data suggests that putting it off may be worse for their health than seeking treatment."

Chronic joint pain caused by arthritis affects one in four adults in the United States, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) reports, with 15 million people experiencing severe pain — level 7 on a scale of 0-10. Additionally, nearly half of all adults suffering from arthritis report persistent pain.

Liebelt noted that pain is one of the top reasons people make an appointment to see their doctor.

"Pain leads to diagnosing the cause and then solving the problem," he said. "Severe hip and knee pain caused by degenerative changes from arthritis can cause severe morbidity in a person's life. Their activities of daily living become compromised. They can't do the things that make them happy, and they can't do the things they need to do to stay healthy in other parts of their life, both physically and mentally."

He wants people to know there is help.

"Hip and knee replacement surgery offers an opportunity to solve those problems and get people back to living their best life," he said. "However, during the pandemic, fear of leaving the house, of being around other people or entering a health care facility has caused many people to delay that care."

Liebelt noted some people have the misconception that, if they're going to get a complete knee or hip replacement, it doesn't matter if they delay the procedure and keep damaging their joint because the surgeon is going to replace it anyway.

"I can replace their joint, that is true," he said. "They're not just damaging their joint. As they become less active, their muscles are weakening and becoming less flexible. As they become less active, patients are deconditioning themselves. When I perform the surgery, it can potentially take more time for them to get back to feeling their best because they might have impacted their overall health."

It's that notion of overall health that Liebelt wants patients to keep in mind.

"We want patients to be thinking about all aspects of health — your mental health, physical health, musculoskeletal health and cardiac health," he said. "We understand the apprehension people may have experienced during the COVID-19 pandemic. As health care professionals, we know delaying health care can have serious consequences and could lead to new concerns for patients, particularly when patients have an emergency, are managing a chronic condition, in need of surgery or a preventative screening."

Liebelt addressed another concern that he has heard from patients — the possibility of needing to spend time in a rehabilitation facility after surgery.

"Most knee and hip replacement patients are able to go home after surgery and can do rehabilitation at home with outpatient therapy," he said. "However, those who delay surgery may need to go to a rehab facility for a while if their physical conditioning is reduced too far."
