Shawano schools head concerned about county's COVID trajectory

Anderson taking steps to keep public schools from closing

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

COVID-19 Journal

—NEW Media—

Shawano School District Superintendent Randi Anderson made a plea to the public Tuesday during the Shawano School Board meeting for the community to take necessary steps to avoid spreading the coronavirus.

"Shawano, we're not going in the right direction," Anderson said. "Our numbers are continuing to go up, which puts our ability as a school district to stay open at risk. I need your help. As much as we might not agree with it, we need to mask. We need to social distance, and we need to stay away from large gatherings. We don't know how we can mitigate any better than that." Anderson's request came on the heels of data released by the Shawano-Menominee Counties Health Department on Tuesday showing that Shawano County had an additional 36 positive cases in the prior four days, one of the larger surges the area has seen. That brought the total cases for Shawano County to 348.

"As a county, we are at high risk, high burden, and our trajectory is growing," Anderson said. "At that, with the plan the board approved, we would have gone 100% virtual."

Currently, the district has elementary school students in school five days a week, middle school students in school two days a week with the other three in a virtual setting and the high school at one day a week in-person and four days virtual.

The reason the district is not going to all virtual learning now is because it is working with the county health department to establish additional gating criteria so that the county data is not the lone source for determining changing the district's learning plans, according to Anderson.

"Not only are we looking at the local burden trajectory and activity, but we have, thanks to the county, that actual district data," Anderson said, noting the district data also shows high risk and high burden when it comes to coronavirus numbers. "We need to get that down in order to help mitigate and to be able to open up at higher levels."

Additionally, the district is talking with local health providers to determine the capacity for testing, hospital space and contact tracing, according to Anderson.

"We're going to continue to work with the county," Anderson said. "We're going to continue to modify our cases, and if we do — when we do — have a positive case within our system, please know that we will be communicating when it impacts our families and staff."

Anderson added that it's still highly likely the district might to have close down a classroom or an entire school in the event that a positive case shows up involving district students and/or staff.

"Our goal is to keep our students and staff inside our buildings," Anderson said.

derson said.

Board member Chris Gull noted that he owns two homes, and he offered the use of his second home to any district staff member who tests positive to quarantine in.

"It can make life a whole lot better moving a quarantined person out of your house," Gull said.

Board member Mart Grams urged the district to find a way to get students back into school, despite the high level of positive cases, noting the high number of calls and emails he has received about the difficulty participating in virtual learning in some of the more rural areas of the district.

"They have horrendous internet. Obviously, you want to get them educated, but they're being denied a great deal of education, especially the special needs kids," Grams said, noting he received four emails Tuesday specifically in regard to that segment of the student population. "They're being denied. That's got to stop. These people are being discriminated against."

Anderson pointed out that the district has purchased 50 kajeets — hotspots specifically for students — to help mitigate the problem, and there are plans to purchase 50 more.

"We are doing everything we can to provide that wi-fi access to some of our families," Anderson said. "We honestly don't have a true handle on the number. When we did our survey to find out who had internet access and who didn't, our numbers were very, very low for those who didn't. The question becomes the quality of the internet access that they have and their ability to stream."

"Shawano, we're not going in the right direction. Our numbers are continuing to go up, which puts our ability as a school district to stay open at risk."

Shawano-Menominee Counties Health Department has announced that there will be a free COVID-19 testing event Sept. 15-16 for any Wisconsin resident with symptoms or concerns about COVID-19.

new loss of taste or smell," Shawano-Menominee Counties Health Officer Vicki Dantoin said.

COVID-19 cases in Shawano and Menominee counties have continued to increase, she said in a press release. The counties currently have high COVID-19 activity levels.

As of last week, Shawano County was experiencing a growing trend of COVID-19 activity.

The month of August showed the highest number of new cases for each county to date. Shawano County experienced about 128 cases in August while Menominee County experienced 11 cases.

Eight days into September, Shawano County already has almost half of the number of August cases, Dantoin said.

"With a return to school and changes in weather, we anticipate these numbers to continue to increase," she said.

As of Sept. 4, Shawano County had 322 confirm COVID-19 cases with 17 hospitalizations; Menominee County had 29 with two hospitalizations. No COVID-19 deaths have been reported in the two counties. The activity level is considered high in both counties.

"We know following measures to help prevent the spread of COVID-19 is not easy, but we need everyone's help to slow the spread of this virus and prevent as many serious cases of illness as possible," said Dantoin.

Prevention measures include social distancing, hand washing, wearing a mask, avoiding gatherings and staying home if sick.

"Please stay home while you are awaiting the results of your COVID-19 test," she said.

Diemel brothers' service set for Navarino diamond

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

The Bonduel community will have a chance to say goodbye to the Diemel brothers, more than a year after they were murdered on a Missouri business trip.

A visitation and service for Nick, 34 and Justin, 24, have been set for September 27 at the Navarino ball diamond, W5173 State Highway 156, from noon until 3 p.m. Pastor Ty Stoneburner will then preside over a memorial service, according to Muehl-Boettcher Funeral Home's web site.

The Diemel brothers were killed July 21, 2019, at a farm northeast of Kansas City.

The brothers' obituaries note they were living their dream with their Diemel's Livestock business. Brandon, another brother, was also involved with the business.

The two Diemels worked in their family's concrete business before setting up their own venture.

Garland "Joey" Nelson, the Braymer, Missouri, farm's operator, is charged with the deaths including a variety of other felonies.

Nelson has been held since July 2019 in the Caldwell County Detention Center in Missouri without bail. Nelson's last court appearance was in May and no trial date has been set.

Nelson also faces two counts of abandonment of a corpse, two counts of tampering with physical evidence, two counts of "armed criminal action" and one count of unlawful possession of a firearm.

The defendant has sought to have some of the charges dropped as well has asked for a change of venue.

The firearm charge stems from Nelson's felony conviction in federal court for "Fraud Using Property Mortgaged or Pledged to Farm Credit Agencies." Under state law, felons are forbidden to have or use firearms.

Nelson, 25, was first arrested July 29 for tampering with a motor vehicle, a state felony. Court documents show Nelson admitted to driving a white Ford F250 pickup truck, rented by the brothers on July 20, from the Braymer farm on July 21, 2019, about 11:45 a.m. to a commuter parking lot near Holt, where it was abandoned.

A Kansas City, Missouri, television station cited court documents as saying the Diemels were expecting a $250,000 check from Nelson as part of a cattle deal. Nick, 35 and Justin, 24, were owners of Diemel Livestock in Bonduel and had livestock dealings in multiple states. Lisa Diemel, Nick Diemel's wife, has taken over operation of the family business after filing a petition in Shawano County probate court asserting the brothers were dead.

A neighbor reported hearing multiple gunshots coming from the farm between 11:15-11:30 a.m. on July 21, according to the charging documents.

"It is believed Nick and Justin Diemel never left the property after they arrived and were intentionally killed," the charges said.

No additional persons have been charged in the murder investigation.

The affidavit states the bodies were moved to an adjacent pasture in barrels where they were covered with diesel fuel, burned and then placed in a manure pile by a metal barn. Authorities have reported a skid loader was used to crush the barrels and place them elsewhere on the property.

Missouri authorities relied on DNA comparisons to make the first identification of the Diemels.

Authorities said a .30-30 cartridge was located in the bloodstained clothing reportedly belonging to Nelson. They also confirmed DNA tests of blood stains found on the clothing belonged to Nick Diemel.

Additional remains were recovered in November 2019 from a stock trailer purchased in Missouri by a rancher from Hershey, Nebraska in Lincoln County. Local sheriff's deputies confirmed the remains as human and found personal items. Investigators and Missouri State Police flew into Lincoln County and picked up the remains.

Tigerton gets tasty with food truck rally

Event helps fill gap for other cancelled activities

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Tigerton Main Street suffered a blow when it had to cancel its annual Independence Day festivities, and it was due to take another hit later this month when officials decided to cancel Applefest, a favorite in the community for years.

However, officials came up with an event to help with the financial loss, and on Sunday, five food trucks lined up for Tigerton Main Street's first food truck rally.

Among the more unusual items were Rolleaz, a food truck that served up a variety of tastes inside a spring roll, including buffalo chicken, pepperoni pizza and macaroni and cheese. There was also a food truck dedicated entirely to cookie dough that had the first space in the row as visitors slowly came over from the Embarrass River Campground.

Tigerton residents John and Amanda Hunholz brought their 11-month-old daughter, Hannah, out to enjoy the nice outdoor weather and sample some of the cuisine. Amanda Hunholz got the pork nachos from Aftershock, a barbecue-themed food truck from Manawa that was once a bus, while John Hunholz enjoyed a pulled pork sandwich.

"This was something different to try," Amanda Hunholz said. "It's a nice day to get outside. We're planning to get cookie dough afterward."

She added that it was nice to see such an aromatic event come to Tigerton.

"Usually you see something like this in the big cities," Amanda Hunholz said. "It's cool that they got them all together to come out to little Tigerton. It was definitely creative."

While there were plenty of smiles at the food truck rally, there were a few frowns as folks had to wait for the beer from Stubborn Brothers Brewery, which was delayed coming from Shawano. The beer was Tigerton Main Street's source of revenue for the rally,

People chat and wander from food truck to food truck Sunday at the Embarrass River Campground in Tigerton, looking for something tasty to eat. The event was a first for Tigerton Main Street, which came up with the concept after having to cancel two other community events. LEE PULASKI | NEW MEDIA according to Trisha Hoffman, the organization's treasurer.

"We had to cancel our other events, and we're working off of donations, so we didn't have the money coming in during the pandemic," Hoffman said. "I've been wanting to bring something like this down here for a while (at the campground) because it's beautiful out here."

Having a food truck rally brought about an event that could easily be held outside and maintain social distancing, according to Hoffman, even though some lines started getting long quickly. She knew the campground would be busy on Labor Day weekend, and the event was far enough away from the Shawano County Fair to allow both events to flourish.

"We knew we'd at least have the campers to come check it out," Hoffman said, "but it looks like we've got quite a few locals here, too."

With all the participation, Hoffman anticipates bringing the food trucks back next year, where hopefully they will add to the existing events that had to be called off in 2020.

"We might do a different weekend. We might do a fall and spring type of thing," Hoffman said.

Nick Kinziger

Nick "The Bear" Kinziger, 76, was unexpectedly called to his heavenly home in the early morning hours of March 20, 2020, with his wife, Peg, by his side. Battling a few health issues over the past few years, Nick was working really hard to turn his health around. Born on Dec. 16, 1943, he was the first born of eight children to Alfred and Marion (Maloney) Kinziger.

In his early years, Nick attended and graduated from Coleman High School. He helped with the family business at Kinziger Meat Lockers in Pound while pursuing quite an illustrious high school football and wrestling career. As a junior, he qualified to compete at state in the 180 pound division. It was in those days that he earned his nickname given to him by his famed wrestling coach Jim Douglas. He thought it appropriate that Nick be knighted with a title of several names, thus Nicholas George Murray Butler Kinziger Esquire Jr. The Bear was born.

When a Crivitz area dairy farmer, Norbert Doyle, discovered a black bear was crashing through his corn field at night devouring nearly mature corn cobs, he asked Nick and his brothers to rid him of the nocturnal pest. One evening, on a moonless night, Nick set up in the field while his brothers created a noisy diversion, driving the bear toward Nick. In total darkness, Nick heard the beast approach and when it loomed in front of him, barely visible in the dark, Nick fired, killing the bear.

Coleman High School wrestling

Nick went on to teachers college earning his Bachelor of Science and master's degree from University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh. On Dec. 28, 1963, he married Dorothy Mae O'Brien, of Amberg. They had one daughter, Nikkie Lee. Nick and Dodie lived just north of Lena during their married years where they had Nik-A-Doo Farm. They were quite active in raising show and race horses along with a few show dogs.

Bear spent his first two years teaching in the Goodman School District and then took a job teaching science/chemistry at Oconto Falls Washington Middle School where he spent the next 33 years. There, Nick resurrected the wrestling program that Oconto Falls now has today, where he coached them to many titles and state champions. Nick retired in 1999, and a year ago, he was inducted into the Panther Area Wrestling Hall of Fame. It is an honor he still couldn't believe was bestowed upon him.

After his retirement, Bear had ample opportunity to take advantage of coach Jim Douglas learned of Nick's adventure and nicknamed him Nick "The Bear." The media picked up on Kinziger's exploit and nickname and ran with it when reporting the many things he enjoyed to doing. A passion for the outdoors, he was an avid fisherman, hunter and snowmobiler, and in his earlier days Nick enjoyed golfing and riding his motorcycle. Currently his love was watching his judge shows, telling Alexa to play something, morning breakfasts with the boys club at the restaurant and most of all spending time with his buddies, brothers, and nephews at the cabin. Any day on the water/ice was a good day to him. He loved going to his daughters home to play with her puppies.

One wouldn't know it, but Nick was a great cook, and he had an amazing singing voice. Bear was an avid Packers and Brewers fan, but wrestling never left his blood. He was very happy to see his great-nephew John win third place in his state title bout just a couple of weeks ago.

On Nov. 2, 2002, Nick married the love of his life, Margaret (Peg) Winters from Phelps, where she owned Sand Lake Pub and Wintersland Storage. Upon marrying Nick, they lived in Crivitz on Left Foot Lake with his loving dogs Lacey and Gidget (and Moose, Liza Dootlitttle and Budman who have previously passed). There he was able to just walk across the lake to fish.

He took great enjoyment out of watching the deer and birds come into his yard where he could watch them closely from his man cave. In that man cave, Nick ran several side businesses in his spare time. He wasn't happy if he wasn't talking to someone on the phone. His beautiful smile would brighten any room.

For as much as Nick was a conversationalist, he was a journalist. He has kept a daily diary for over 41 years. There's not a date, time or incident that he didn't write down if it was important to him. So dedicated to this lifelong passion, he even journaled when he was on his fishing and hunting trips.

Surviving are his loving wife, Peg Winters-Kinziger; his daughter, Nikkie; brothers, Pat (Joanne) and Fred (Shirley); sisters Shirley Kinziger (Colin), Ann Cornelius (Paul), Kathy Gilbertson (Jim), Kristy Baenen (Wayne) and Michelle Schounard (Mike); his godsons, Nick Gilbertson and Seth Shounard; his many nieces and nephews; other relatives; and his dear friends past and present Darryl Vandriesse, Fred Carlson, Jim (Pug) Douglas, Mike Krause, Gerry Krause, Russell Martens, Bob Koenig, Jack Magnin, Mike Kaczmarek, Dan Stodola, Dan Bieber, Craig Gilbertson, Nick Skolsky, Jerry Polzin, Jerry Martens, Chuck Kesul, Frank Maleski, Jim White and the many, many others.

Preceding him in death were his parents, Alfred and Marion Kinziger; his youngest brother, Colin; brother-in-law, Paul; and nephew, Christopher.

Delayed service date will be Saturday, Sept. 12, 2020 at St. Ann's Church, 228 Main St, Coleman. Visitation will be at 9-11:45 a.m. Service begins at noon. Luncheon to follow at The Cottage, 4010 Old Highway 141, Pound.

Vote For Sarnwick

Why would I, a Republican for all this time, vote for Richard Sarnwick, a Democrat, for Wisconsin Assembly District 6?

Because both you and Richard care about the environment. We both care about the way our actions will affect our kids and grandchildren. Especially our grandchildren!!

Because both you and Richard feel that Democrats have a better chance of solving the Covid Crisis. We both want our kids to get back to school full time, and parents get back to work. We need a consistent policy to follow, not a policy which changes weekly, depending upon the whim of our President Because both you and Richard like clean water. We both want to protect our waters, especially from the giant dairy farms which are destroying family farms.

Because both you and Richard are fiscal conservatives. We both believe that tax and spend is not helpful to our economy.

Because both you and Richard understand that the key to fixing the opioid crisis is to get treatment for folks with drug problems. We both think just throwing them in jail and hoping that they come out of jail "reformed" is not working.

Finally, because both you and Richard want to fix the potholes in our roads.

Come and meet Richard Sarnwick at Franklin Park, in Shawano Wisconsin, September 18 from 5-7 pm. He wants to hear your questions, and your concerns

Livestock auction still lively, even without live animals

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

A livestock auction without the livestock being there in person still brought people out to bid high and bid often during the Shawano County Fair on Sept. 4.

Because of the pandemic, fair officials opted to move the annual auction from the Coliseum to the Crawford Center, and instead of the slow process of bringing animals in one by one to be bid, fair officials hauled in a pair of big-screen televisions that would show a photo of the animal and its owner as said owner was also there in person.

Not seeing the animal in person didn't stop business owners and others from trying to one-up each other as bids went higher and higher and some of the children watched, mystified.

Cole Matsche stood in front of hundreds of people as the bidding went all the way up to $29 per pound for his pig, even though the market price as of Friday was 33 cents per pound. However, the winning bidder decided to put the money he bid into the fair's scholarship fund, and Matsche wound up getting about $800 from the final bid of $3.25 per pound.

"I thought I was going to get $1,000," Matsche said, saying he wasn't sure why the bidding went so high.

For Allie Cerveney, of Gresham, it was her first year participating in the auction, although her sisters have previously participated. Her pig sold for $4.25 per pound, making the 200-pound animal worth $900 to her.

"It feels a little different, because you don't get to show them," Cerveney said. "I don't get to walk around with the pig and do this."

McKenzie Van Haren, whose beef cow was named grand champion crossbred beef carcass, received $5.20 per pound for her cow. This year was her sixth participating in the auction.

"It was very different," Van Haren said of the new format. "It just didn't feel right."

Van Haren noted that she usually is focused on controlling her animal during the auction, but she saw a lot of happy faces in the crowd this year.

After wild offseason, Pack eager to play

Familiar faces will lead the way

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

One of the strangest NFL off-seasons has come to an end, and now it's finally time to play some football.

The Green Bay Packers, who will travel to take on the Minnesota Vikings in week one, head into the 2020 season coming off their best season in a few years. But they seem to have more questions to answer than reasons for optimism.

Green Bay racked up 13 wins in the regular season last season — the most since the team went 15-1 in 2011. The Pack then defended their home turf and knocked off the Seattle Seahawks in the divisional playoff round before getting obliterated by the San Francisco 49ers in the NFC Conference Championship Game.

The season-ending loss seemed to highlight some areas of need for the team, but the organization didn't seem to think so.

Instead of drafting some help on defense — which surrendered 285 rushing yards to the 49ers — or some new pass-catchers on offense — after Davante Adams was the team's only player to record over 500 receiving yards during the regular season — the Pack pulled one of the most surprising moves of the draft.

The move to trade up to draft quarterback Jordan Love left football fans across the world puzzled, and green and gold nation questioning the direction of the franchise.

While the team made a similar move near the end of Brett Favre's tenure in drafting Aaron Rodgers and had it work out, fans were not pleased that the team decided to think about its future when it was just a game away from the Super Bowl.

The team's first-round selection was just the start of things, as the team went on to take a running back and tight end in the second and third rounds, respectively.

Some defensive picks were made in rounds five through seven, when teams are typically drafting to build up depth instead of finding week one starters. The team also didn't address its wide receiver depth, instead drafting players that could play any of the other 10 offensive positions.

MORGAN RODE | NEW MEDIA

After a big offseason prior to the 2019 season, the organization's offseason this go around was rather quiet.

The team replaced long-time middle linebacker Blake Martinez with Christian Kirksey and signed former Wisconsin Badger Rick Wagner to replace Bryan Bulaga on the offensive line. The team did sign one receiver, Devin Funchess, but he opted out because of the COVID-19 situation, citing family health concerns.

Aside from Kirksey in the middle of the defense and Wagner potentially on the offensive line, a lot of the same players fans watched last season will again be leading the charge for the Pack in 2020.

Even so, the offense — which is headlined by Rodgers, Adams and running back Aaron Jones — believes it will improve in its second year under coach Matt LaFleur.

"I feel a lot more comfortable this year than last year," said Rodgers during a virtual press conference on Sept. 2. "A lot of it's just footwork, just being able to progress through my reads quicker.

I think it's allowed me to play on time and be a little more accurate."

Rodgers went on to discuss how some personal decisions have helped him enjoy life more than in past years, which he believes has also led to stronger play from himself as the team geared up for the season.

He also went back over tape from the past few seasons and compared them to some of his stronger years. He found some things that he's since incorporated into his play on the practice field and believes it will translate to the games this season.

Adams will again be Rodgers go-to target this season, with the likes of receivers Allen Lazard and Marquez Valdes-Scantling looking to serve as other reliable options in the passing game. Receivers Equanimeous St. Brown and Malik Taylor also made the roster out of camp, and shifty running back Tyler Ervin should also get some looks as a pass-catcher.

Rodgers likes the group of receivers the team rosters, singling out Valdes-Scantling for his play in practice this year. MVS got off to a hot start in 2019 before an injury hampered his play the rest of the season.

Jones is the big name out of the backfield after a 19-touchdown season last year, but Jamaal Williams and rookie AJ Dillon are also in the mix. Having three guys to tote the ball will not only keep all three fresh, but it also could help open up more play-action passes — something LaFleur liked to call in his rookie campaign.

The team will carry four tight ends into its first game against the Vikings, although rookie Josiah Deguara may primarily serve as the team's fullback as it didn't have one on the active roster.

The Pack's offensive line has some unanswered questions at the moment with injuries to Billy Turner and Wagner. The two injuries leave the right guard and tackle positions open as a tough Vikings defense looms.

On the defensive side of the ball, Kirksey and Oren Burks are expected to start at middle linebacker after an injury to rookie Kamal Martin, who showed some promise in practice.

The Smith Brothers, Za'Darius Smith and Preston Smith, are back at outside linebacker and ready to terrorize opposing quarterbacks after combining for 25 1/2 sacks last season. The Packers defense could take another step forward under coordinator Mike Pettine if second-year pass rusher Rashan Gary improves.

Green Bay's secondary will again start Jaire Alexander and Kevin King at cornerback and Adrian Amos and Darnell Savage at safety. The group played well in 2019, helping the Smiths to several sacks after strong coverage.

Tyler Lancaster, Dean Lowry and the recently paid Kenny Clark will serve as defensive linemen and look to shore up the run defense.

The defense will try and replicate its most recent trip to Minnesota, when it held the Vikings to 139 total yards and seven first downs, a showing that left Vikings fans stunned and quiet and solidified a NFC North title for the Packers.

While the Packers won't need to silence any real fans this year, as U.S. Bank Stadium won't be hosting any because of COVID concerns, picking up a big road win over their division foes could prove big in the team's attempt to repeat as division champs.

PACKERS NOTEBOOK

Young again

The Green Bay Packers have little in common with Rod Stewart, but they are “Forever Young.”

In an examination of the rosters that emerged Saturday night by Philly Voice NFL writer Jimmy Kempfski, the average member of the Packers is 25.5 years old. For the second year in a row, that meant Green Bay had the NFL’s fifth-youngest roster. Green Bay ranked 10th in 2018 (25.7), 11th in 2017 (25.7) and third in 2016 (25.4).

Helping to lower the age was the decision to not re-sign Tramon Williams, the NFL’s oldest full-time starting defensive back last year. Seven of the team’s nine draft picks made the 53-man roster, with the exceptions being sixth-round center Jake Hanson (released but on the practice squad) and sixth-round guard Simon Stepaniak (non-football injury list; knee). In fact, of general manager Brian Gutekunst’s roster moves on Saturday, he released only two former draft picks. The other was running back Dexter Williams, a sixth-round pick last year.

“I think that whenever you make investments in players, you obviously have done a lot of work on those players, so you’re not going to overreact to maybe a bad week here or there,” Gutekunst said of keeping draft picks. “At the same time, I think what the job is, is to put the best team together that has the best chance to win — not only immediately but through the course of the season. And that’s really what it’s about.”

“I do think the players you have more invested in, you’re not going to overreact. But this is about winning. It’s all about winning, and that’s all it’ll ever really be about.”

Opening depth chart

The depth chart published at Packers.com comes with the caveat that it’s “unofficial.” Regardless of its accuracy, the team lists Billy Turner as the No. 1 right tackle, made official that Lane Taylor won the starting job at right guard and listed inside linebacker Oren Burks and defensive tackle Tyler Lancaster as starters.

Whether Turner will actually start Sunday at Minnesota remains to be seen. He sustained a knee injury at practice on Aug. 30 and wasn’t on the practice field when the team reconvened on Labor Day. Veteran Rick Wagner is listed as the No. 2 at the position, though the team could play

“I think we’re looking at every combination,” coach Matt LaFleur said. “The goal is to always get your best five out there to give you the best chance to win. So, we’ll look at everything.”

Not surprisingly, Tim Boyle beat out first-round draft pick Jordan Love to be the No. 2 quarterback. In fact, all seven draft picks are listed at the bottom of their position groups.

“Both Tim and Jordan had excellent camps,” Gutekunst said. “Obviously, Tim’s quite a bit further ahead of Jordan from knowing the offense, being in year two of it, being in year three of the NFL. That springtime, not having that foundation and then not having the preseason games to go through I think hurt all the young players. We feel really good about both our backup quarterbacks and feel they both have bright futures in the National Football League.”

Their bubbles didn’t burst

There were few surprises when Gutekunst cut the roster to 53 players Saturday. Among the noteworthy moves were Malik Taylor beating out veteran Jake Kumerow at receiver, Yosh Nijman knocking off Alex Light for a spot on the offensive line and Randy Ramsey edging Tim Williams at outside linebacker.

All three have interesting paths. For Taylor, it was a hamstring injury that sidelined him for most of his senior year at Division II Ferris State. After big sophomore and junior years, the injury knocked him off NFL radars. He went undrafted in 2019, spent a few days in Tampa Bay and joined the Packers just before training camp. While he failed to make the team, he spent his rookie season on the practice squad.

“For me, it didn’t hit me. It still hasn’t hit me yet. I don’t think it’s going to hit me until we get into the Vikings’ stadium,” Taylor said. “But if anything happened to me, I think it lit another fire. Going into this, I thought the feeling I will have is, ‘I made it. It’s like a big weight off my shoulders.’ But it really wasn’t that feeling. It was more of another flame lit inside of me. It’s just another level of motion, another level of determination and I’m just ready to attack this thing.”

Nijman was the No. 1-ranked prep-school defensive lineman and chose Virginia Tech. During spring practice as a freshman, he grudgingly accepted a move to offensive tackle.

“They were like, ‘Hey, we think you would do a phenomenal job playing offensive line,’” Nijman recalled. “And I was like, ‘Argh.’ I didn’t really want to do that at the time. But I know going to Virginia Tech, that was kind of the lingering topic, so I was like, ‘OK, I might as well play it.’”

Ramsey’s problems were self-inflicted, with poor grades meaning he was bounced from Arkansas in 2015. He took online classes back home in Florida in his mom’s high school classroom.

“That was one of the lowest points of my life,” Ramsey said. “I honestly didn’t know if I was going to play football again.”

Cutdown Saturday can be a stressful time for those on the bubble. Nijman admitted to feeling “anxious.” Not so much for Ramsey, who said he felt calm as the 3 p.m. deadline approached.

“To be here and to make the 53, it’s a surreal moment,” Ramsey said. “I don’t even know how to put it into one word. I just think it’s a testimony.”

Preseason’s not pointless

With training camps starting late as teams wrestled with the COVID-19 pandemic, the preseason was canceled.

Veteran players like Aaron Rodgers certainly didn’t miss the exhibition games, but Gutekunst lost key evaluation time and the undrafted players lost an opportunity to show what they can do under the lights.

“There is a lot of value,” LaFleur said. “The dangers of it are that you play somebody and they go out and potentially get injured, especially if it’s somebody you’re counting on. That’s just the nature of the game. But I do think there’s a lot of value in the preseason in terms of just kind of getting your routine down, whether it’s the preparation that leads up to a game, from the traveling, whether it’s your home schedule, just that process.”

“It’s always good to give everybody a dress rehearsal. You think about the lack of opportunity for some of these young guys that you want to see in game action.”

KEYS TO THE GAME

By BILL HUBER
Correspondent

The Green Bay Packers (13-3 in 2019) travel to take on the Minnesota Vikings (10-6) at noon Sunday at U.S. Bank Stadium in Minneapolis. FOX televises the game.

Coaches

Green Bay — Matt LaFleur, second season (13-3). Minnesota — Mike Zimmer, seventh season (57-38-1).

History

Packers lead 62-54-3 overall. They had dropped their first two games at U.S. Bank Stadium but won 23-10 last year.

When the Packers have the ball

Few coaches have done more to frustrate Packers quarterback Aaron Rodgers over the years than Zimmer. Not that Zimmer has had his number, but he's had some success. Even last year when Green Bay won at Minnesota, Rodgers was 26 of 40 for merely 216 yards with no touchdowns, one interception and a 68.3 passer rating.

This will be a different challenge, though. For years, the Vikings lined up with Xavier Rhodes and Trae Waynes as their starting cornerbacks. This offseason, Minnesota released Rhodes and watched Waynes and Mackensie Alexander sign with Cincinnati.

Minnesota's six corners — Mike Hughes, Holton Hill, Kris Boyd and rookies Jeff Gladney, Cameron Dantzler and Harrison Hand — have played a total of 44 games.

"We've showed them a few plays where he's made some unbelievable, incredible throws," Zimmer said. "If you're not tight on this guy, you're looking to make a tackle as opposed to getting the ball out."

The changes aren't limited to the secondary. Minnesota let run-stopping defensive tackle Linval Joseph sign with the Chargers and elected not to re-sign defensive Everson Griffen. The Vikings signed Michael Pierce in free agency to fill the run-stopper role, but he opted out.

That leaves the unheralded duo of Shamar Stephen and Jaleel Johnson. Green Bay no doubt will want to put those guys to the test with a steady diet of Aaron Jones and Co.

Meanwhile, the Vikings acquired defensive end Yannick Ngakoue last week in a trade with Jacksonville. With Ngakoue and Danielle Hunter, the Vikings will have one of the top pass rushes in the league. Based on history, Hunter will go up against whomever the Packers start at right tackle. That's a potential sore spot after losing longtime starter Bryan Bulaga in free agency.

"He's very, very receptive," Zimmer said, of Ngakoue. "He's been staying long at night trying to catch up on all the different calls and defensive plays and things like that. He's been really good."

There's all sorts of stability at linebacker and safety. At linebacker, Eric Kendricks is flanked by Anthony Barr and Eric Wilson. Kendricks is one of the game's underrated stars. Not only did he lead the team with 110 tackles last season, but he also led the way with 12 passes defended.

Minnesota's safeties are the best in the NFL with do-it-all Harrison Smith joined by Anthony Harris. Harris is coming off a breakout season with six interceptions. Smith, who had three interceptions and three forced fumbles last year, has been selected for five consecutive Pro Bowls.

When the Vikings have the ball

The game plans for both offenses figure to be similar. It's hard to imagine the Vikings won't want to probe a Green Bay run defense that was blown off the field by San Francisco in last year's NFC Championship Game.

The Vikings have the horses to get it done, led by Dalvin Cook. Green Bay dominated Cook in both matchups in 2018, but Cook rushed for 154 yards and one touchdown in last year's week two game at Lambeau Field. He was injured and did not play in the week 16 rematch.

Cook rushed for 1,135 yards (4.5 average) and 13 touchdowns and added 53 receptions in 14 games last year. Backup Alexander Mattison rushed for 462 yards (4.6 average) in 13 games.

The only noteworthy addition to Green Bay's run defense is linebacker Christian Kirksey.

"Most teams are going through that, just not having a gauge of how are we," defensive coordinator Mike Pettine said last week, of the uncertainty with his run defense.

"I know we've done some different things schematically, added some things, taken some things out, and just really dedicated ourselves to it from a coaching staff in the offseason and I think it's carried over to the players. We feel good about where we are but, again, we won't know until we're actually going against somebody else."

Quarterback Kirk Cousins has had two strong seasons with Minnesota. Last year, he completed 69.1% of his passes and posted a career-high 107.4

Green Bay Packers defensive lineman Kenny Clark, top, tackles New York Giants running back Saquon Barkley during the first half of a 2019 game in East Rutherford, New Jersey. All eyes will be on Clark and the Packers run defense after it was gashed in the NFC Championship Game.

ADAM HUNGER | THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

passer rating. However, he didn't have any magic against the Packers. He threw two interceptions in week two and was a feeble 16 of 31 for 122 yards in week 16.

Before the draft, the Viking shipped star receiver Stefon Diggs to Buffalo. Former Pro Bowler Adam Thielen returns at receiver and will be joined by first-round pick Justin Jefferson.

"Offensively, there's a lot of weapons there," LaFleur said. "I've got a lot of familiarity with Kirk Cousins, having coached him in Washington, and got a lot of respect for him. I think he is an elite quarterback, and he's always capable of having big games against you. And then Dalvin Cook, and they still have some darn good receivers, too, (with) Thielen, (and) their tight ends are great.

Special teams

Both teams have their kicking operations intact. For Green Bay, that's kicker Mason Crosby, punter/holder JK Scott and long snapper Hunter Bradley. For Minnesota, that's kicker Dan Bailey, punter/holder Britton Colquitt and long snapper Austin Cutting.

Bailey might have solved the team's longtime kicking problems. He finished last season with 22 consecutive successful field goals. With Colquitt, the Vikings set a franchise record with a 42.6-yard net average. Rookie K.J. Osborn is listed as the returner. At Miami, he averaged 15.9 yards per punt return and 20.1 yards per kickoff return.

Crosby is coming off the best season of his career, but Scott has started fast and faded badly in his two years.

Shawano cancels National Night Out due to COVID-19

The Shawano Police Department has canceled this year's National Night Out event due to COVID-19 concerns.

The event was initially postponed from its original date of Aug. 4 to Oct. 6 in hopes that COVID-19 health risks would have eased by then, the department wrote in a Facebook post.

"We were looking forward to gathering with our community, however we could not guarantee that our event could be held in a manner to keep people safe," the department wrote.

The department thanked sponsors who had donated and said the funds would be applied to next year's event, scheduled for Aug. 3, 2021.

National Night Out is a crime and drug prevention event sponsored by the National Association of Town Watch, which introduced the program in 1984, when 400 communities in 23 states took part.

It has since grown nationwide, and this year's canceled event would have been the third time the Shawano Police Department sponsored the event locally.

National Night Out is designed to heighten crime awareness and promote drug awareness, generate support for and participation in local anti-crime efforts like Neighborhood Watch, strengthen neighborhood spirit and police/community partnerships, and send a message to criminals letting them know neighborhoods are organized and fighting back.

Quilt show contest features work by area quilter

Jean Sredl, of Shawano, and her quilts "Suffer the Little Children" and "New Every Morning," have been selected to compete in the 2020 Great Wisconsin Quilt Show.

Every quilt has a story. In describing "Suffer the Little Children," Sredl said, "This quilt is dedicated to the 30 children accidentally killed by gun violence from Jan. 1, 2014, to June 30, 2016, in Chicago, Illinois."

In describing "New Every Morning," she said, "This quilt celebrates the dawn of a new day and the promises it brings. Techniques: narrow strip piecing, machine and hand embroidery, and appliqué and free motion embroidery."

In 2020, quilters from 31 U.S. states and as far away as Germany, submitted their best work for judging in this year's Great Wisconsin Quilt Show quilt contest.

Quilts accepted in the 10-category contest are judged on visual impact and stitching technique. Awards are given for Best of Show, as well as first-, second- and third-place recognition in each category. One quilt is selected by those who attend the virtual event to receive the Viewers' Choice award. Virtual attendees can vote for their favorite quilt at QuiltShow.com/vote.

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the 16th annual Great Wisconsin Quilt Show will be an online-exclusive, virtual experience Sept. 10-12 at www.quiltshow.com. Free registration is now open for the three-day event.

Proceeds from the quilt show support PBS Wisconsin programs and community outreach projects.

Tauchen receives third Friend of Grocers Award

State Rep. Gary Tauchen, R-Bonduel, received the Friend of Grocers award from the Wisconsin Grocers Association on Sept. 1 at Hanke's Sentry Foods in Wittenberg.

This is the third Friend of Grocers Award Tauchen has received.

The Friend of Grocers award is given to legislators who score highly on WGA's legislative report card, an extensive study of all legislators' performance in the 2019-2020 Legislative Session. Lawmakers are graded according to their actions on certain issues that are especially important to the grocery industry, including alcohol pickup and delivery and personal property tax repeal.

"This session, Rep. Tauchen authored two bills critical to the grocery industry that allow for alcohol delivery and pickup and he also sponsored two more key issues dealing with streamlining bartenders' licenses and personal property tax reform," said Michelle Kussow, WGA executive vice president.

"Rep. Tauchen continues to be one of the strongest advocates for grocers and other retailers in Wisconsin, and we appreciate his support."

The Wisconsin Grocers Association is the only statewide trade group representing retail, wholesale, suppliers and vendors in the grocery industry. According to the Food Marketing Institute's 2017 Economic Impact Statements, Wisconsin's grocery industry employs more than 150,000 people and has a total economic impact of more than $15.6 billion.

Sheriff announces hope's return to community

Bieber encourages fair goers to not give up

By LEE PULASKI

City Editor

Shawano County Sheriff Adam Bieber delivered a message of hope and inspiration to kick off the 139th annual Shawano County Fair on Sept. 2.

Bieber used the fair's opening ceremony as an opportunity to point out that there is good, in spite of "political leaders and the media trying to divide us," and in a short speech to more than 100 people, shifted between faith and patriotism as he encouraged the crowd to remain "steadfast" in their beliefs and in what's right.

"Many in our community, our state and our nation have lost hope," Bieber said. "They've lost hope in our political leaders, our media, our justice system and in humanity, and some have just lost hope in life and in purpose. I'm hear to announce there is hope."

He said the divisiveness comes in the form of labeling people as essential, non-essential, left and right.

"We need to drop the labels and become Americans," Bieber said.

What really matters, the sheriff said, is what happens in people's homes and their minds. He touted the importance of parents passing their values to their children and said it was important to respect equality, freedom, innovation and family, among other things.

"These values have helped to develop the most diverse nation, the most generous nation, the most welcoming nation," Bieber said. "If history has taught us anything, we can overcome any obstacle. History has taught us that, if we turn our back on God, responsibility, hard work, freedom, hard work and civility, we will lose our way."

Bieber went on to say that the people who stand up for their patriotic beliefs can make a difference in the community.

"We can be heroes in our own lives when all seems lost, a few brave souls — us — can preserve everything that we cherish," Bieber said. "I challenge you and ask that you join with me. Don't lose hope. Let's continue to fight for a better tomorrow for equality, for strong families, for our Bill of Rights, for our core beliefs."

The sheriff concluded by encouraging people to put God "back in our homes and in our lives." He also encouraged turning off the media, claiming that ratings are all they care about, along with reaching out to neighbors with love and kindness and going to church every Sunday.

Dale Hodkiewicz, president of the Shawano County Agricultural Society, noted during the opening ceremony that hope shined through as the county was one of the few in Wisconsin to decide to have a fair in light of the pandemic.

"In July, we didn't even know if it was going to take place," Hodkiewicz said, "but we put together a program as best we can and said, 'We're moving forward. We're going to have a fair.'"

Bieber praised the fair staff during his remarks for making the event happen and not letting it be "just another cancelled event."

"Your efforts give us hope," Bieber said.

HIGH SCHOOL SWIM

Shawano drops tight meet to Witt-Birn

Bukoski, Colon earn top finishes for Hawks

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The Shawano Community High School girls swim team lost a tight 86-82 meet against Wittenberg-Birnhamwood on Sept. 3 in Shawano.

The meet was considered a nonconference one, even though it featured two Bay Conference teams. The teams will swim their Bay meet on Oct. 6 in Wittenberg.

Despite no fans in attendance because of the Bay's COVID guidelines this fall, there was still plenty of energy and excitement around the pool, as the meet came down to the final event of the night.

Witt-Birn's 400-yard freestyle relay team of Emma Herb, Alexa Chaney, Annika Resch and McKenna Metropulos took first in 4 minutes, 14.22 seconds to secure the win for the visitors.

The top finish from the Witt-Birn relay was the team's ninth first-place finish across the 11 varsity events.

Metropulos had a big individual night for the Chargers, winning the 200 IM (2:21.28) and 100 butterfly (1:00.12). Her time in the 100 butterfly broke the school record, which she already held.

"I was pretty happy with my 100 fly and breaking my own record. I was hoping to go under a minute so that was a little disappointing, but it was a personal record no less," said Metropulos. "I'm super excited for the rest of the season and am super thankful that our conference was able to come together and figure out a way to make this season happen."

Resch also picked up a pair of first-place finishes. Resch (1:00:33) edged Shawano's Isabel Colon (1:02.69) in the 100 freestyle. Resch posted a top time of 1:22.73 in the 100 breaststroke, an event Witt-Birn had the top three finishers in.

Olyvia Stark and Emma Herb had Witt-Birn's other individual top finishes. Stark won the 200 freestyle (2:27.61), while Herb finished just ahead of Shawano's Macy Monfils in the 50 freestyle (30.57 to 31.31).

Stark, Resch, Metropulos and Chaney teamed up to take first in the 200 medley relay, the first event of the meet. The Chargers 200 freestyle relay team of Herb, Stark, Jessica Storlie and Chaney placed first in 2:00.74.

Chaney placed second in the 500 freestyle (6:59.8), while Jalynn Horacek swam to second in the 100 breaststroke (1:29.63).

"Even though we are a smaller team, this meet showed us that we can win meets against teams bigger than us," said Metropulos. "It's a great confidence booster."

While the top finishes were hard for Shawano to come by, the hosts kept the meet close because of their higher number of swimmers in each event.

Gabi Bukoski and Colon posted Shawano's first-place finishes.

Bukoski eased to a win in the 500 freestyle in 6:22.11, while Colon posted a time of 1:15.97 to take first in the 100 backstroke, just ahead of teammate Alli Brown (1:16.45).

"I was very excited to swim the 500 as it is my favorite event and I haven't been able to swim it since February when swim club season ended," said Bukoski. "I had a lot of adrenaline when I dove in the pool that carried me to the finish. It may not have been my best time, but it was a good starting point for me this season."

Brown, Bukoski, Colon and Monfils teamed up in the 200 medley relay, posting a time of 2:10.59 for second place. Allison Langlois joined Colon, Bukoski and Monfils on the second-place finishing 400 freestyle relay team (4:34.72).

Langlois, Brown, Lydia Quandt and Anne Carrier formed Shawano's 200 freestyle relay team that took second in 2:02.75.

Bukoski was second in the 200 IM (2:43.61), while Rose Bunker took second in the 200 freestyle (2:52.29). Carrier claimed second in the 100 butterfly (1:20.99).

Gresham/Bowler co-op eyeing conference title

Team returns 2 all-conference players

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The Gresham/Bowler soccer co-op is hoping to contend for the Central Wisconsin Conference title this fall.

The co-op, which is coached by Walter Moesch, is coming off a 12-10-1 season in 2019, a year in which the team finished 7-6 in CWC action.

While the team graduated several players from that team, it still returns a number of experienced players, which gives Moesch hope that a big season could be on the way.

"I think Amherst, Columbus Catholic, Pacelli and us all have a shot at winning our conference," he said.

The coach believes starting the year strong will be key, especially knowing that one loss could potentially end a team's chance of winning the conference outright.

Leading the team on the field will be the senior duo of Adin Brei and Jake Hoffman. Brei is a midfielder, while Hoffman will be the primary goal-tender, and midfielder at other times. Both players were honorable mention all-conference players last fall.

Also back with starting experience are juniors Alex Burr (wing), Diego Martinez (wing), Jack Haffner (central defender) and Will Jensen (striker) and sophomores Blade Hoffman (central defender) and Fynn Bennett (striker).

Sophomores Edward Castellanos, Jeremiah Grant and Wesley Theix also have some varsity experience, while junior Ireland Jensen and freshman Porter Hoffman are new players that could also contribute for the co-op.

"To play on this team, it feels like there is no co-op," said Jake Hoffman. "We all get along very well and I am proud to be a part of this team. We win together, we lose together, we stay together."

Kalleigh Schroeder has already helped the Bonduel High School girls cross-country team make history, and now she's trying to end her high school career on a high note this fall.

Schroeder's first year of cross-country didn't come until last fall, but she played a big role for the girls team that won its first-ever Central Wisconsin Conference title and made it to state for a third straight season.

Schroeder placed ninth at the 2019 CWC Meet to help the team to its top finish, then placed 15th at sectionals to help the team qualify for state. She finished 85th at the state meet.

The senior is hoping to help the team to similar accomplishments this fall. The girls team got its season off to a strong start after finishing second in the T-Bird Invitational on Aug. 31.

Schroeder was again a big reason for the team's strong finish, as she crossed the finish line in ninth place.

OPINION

YOUR RIGHT TO KNOW

Expand online access to government records

The COVID-19 pandemic has taught us that many of our jobs can be done digitally and remotely.

We've found that we can process reports, post documents online and share files with ease from our home workplaces. In some cases, providing access to information is actually easier than it was before.

The same thing could — and should — be done with records maintained by state and local governments, removing a cumbersome, unnecessary barrier between the public and the records to which they are entitled.

Simply put, information that would normally be released through an open records request could be posted to the internet.

With a few clicks of a computer mouse, things like criminal charging documents, public-private partnership contracts, and government agency budgets could be put online for all to access.

STEVEN POTTER

Making this happen could be relatively simple. For example, where county court clerks used to file a defendant's motion to an internal server, they would now also file it in the online court history of the case on a searchable and public database.

In some cases, as with the federal government's PACER (Public Access to Court Electronic Records) program, this is already happening, but the practice isn't as widespread as it should be and, consequently, access to public records isn't as open as it could be.

In some cases, this idea has already been put into practice. The Madison Police Department, deluged with records requests regarding the 2015 police killing of 19-year-old Tony Robinson, opted to post all manner of case records on its website. Use-of-force reports, personnel files for the officer involved, and records of the department's internal review of the shooting were all there for anyone to read or download without having to file an open records request. The Wisconsin Department of Justice similarly posted its investigation into Robinson's death on its website.

All of this saved the time and energy of those seeking documents as well as the government agencies that otherwise would have had to respond to multiple individual requests.

The same efficiencies could be achieved by posting, say, the bids from different contractors for a major government construction project, or the cover letters and resumes of applicants for key positions, like school superintendent.

Granted, expanding access to records online would take a fair amount of effort. Besides training office staff to upload the documents, government agencies may need additional computers and server space to hold all of the documents they would be making available.

It would be important work that served the public interest, and it would save agencies time on the back end, when multiple citizens come knocking on the door seeking the same information.

Some government agencies can and will move forward in this direction of their own accord. Others may need a prod from the governor's office or state Legislature. No matter how it gets done, moving to making more records routinely available is an idea whose time has come.

Your Right to Know is a monthly column distributed by the Wisconsin Freedom of Information Council (wisfoic.org), a group dedicated to open government. Council member Steven Potter is a reporter and radio producer based in Madison.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

During time of riots, whose lives matter?

To the editor:

My dad wanted me to work on the farm but I wanted to be a Navy pilot, and I enlisted in 1944.

The Navy had enough pilots then so they assigned me to a submarine net tender that guarded San Francisco Bay. The war ended, and we took our ship to Astoria, Oregon, to put her in mothballs. I was released from active duty.

I came back and finished my mechanical engineering and had a job working on earthmoving equipment.

In 1952, I received orders to the Pearl Harbor Navy Shipyard to serve during the Korean War.

Upon returning to my previous job, I raised a family, and saw our country grow. I was honored to take the Glory Flight to Washington and see the memorials for the men that served. I am very proud of our country and it hurts me to see people tearing down the statues of our heroes and rioting.

I think that it is racist to say that White lives matter.

I think that it is racist to say that Black lives matter.

I think we should say all lives matter.

Lee Lemke, Cecil
