Bonduel's Rouse receives 40 Under 40 Award

Bonduel High School alum serves on school board, handles communications for St. Norbert College

By GREG SEUBERT
Correspondent

A Fox Cities-based business magazine has singled out a Bonduel resident as a 40 Under 40 Award recipient.

Nina Nolan Rouse, director of communications and marketing at St. Norbert College in De Pere, is one of 40 people from throughout northeastern Wisconsin to receive the award from Insight Publications. The award recognizes and celebrates the accomplishments of young professionals who have made significant civic and professional contributions to their communities.

Rouse and the 39 other award recipients attended an awards ceremony May 31 at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay's Weidner Center.

Nominees for the award must be under age 40 and reside or work in Inside Publications' New North Region, which includes Shawano, Oconto and Menominee counties, among others.

"I was very surprised, but also honored to be recognized as one of Insight Publications' first-ever 40 Under 40," said Rouse, who graduated from Bonduel High School and represents the village on the Bonduel School Board.

"I'm passionate about leaving people, places and circumstances better than I found them, so it's a particular point of pride to receive this award, which recognizes young leaders who are working to create better futures in all areas of life," she said. "From early on, my parents, Dan and Nancy Nolan, demonstrated the values of generosity and care."

After attending Bonduel High School, Rouse moved on to St. Norbert College, graduated with a bachelor's degree in 2007 and received her master's degree in liberal studies in 2021.

"My professional career has been very serendipitous," she said. "A student internship in the Office of Communications affirmed my professional interests in marketing and communications and brought me in touch with an incredible set of mentors who have shaped not just my career, but my life. That internship led to my first job out of college, communications specialist in that same office. That first professional job paved the way for my next appointment on the team.

"This happened twice more, and now I have the privilege to lead the team where I began as an intern. Simply put, my job is to continually elevate the rank and reputation of St. Norbert College by ensuring our SNC story is shared far and wide through a range of integrated marketing and communications activities."

"We are very proud of Nina and all she has accomplished at St. Norbert College," said Edward Lamm, the school's vice president of enrollment and communications. "Nina has a lot on her plate, but handles it with grace, kindness and hard work. She has done an exceptional job managing her team and being a leadership model for her staff."

Those accomplishments include leading St. Norbert's website design and dealing with the COVID-19 pandemic.

"The pandemic was challenging for many sectors, but it was a particular challenge for those of us working in education," Rouse said. "In the university setting, we quickly and continually assessed how to preserve the health and safety of the 2,000 people in our span of care. We temporarily pivoted the delivery mode of our educational services and resumed in-person education as soon as we were sure it was safe to do so."

"I was part of the COVID-19 response group that met weekly to assess the current landscape, identify issues or challenges and prescribe solutions. One of my primary responsibilities was to ensure we were getting the right messages to the right audiences at the right time."

Besides serving on the school board, Rouse is a board member of the Northeast Wisconsin Chapter of the Public Relations Society of America. Her past volunteer involvement included board and committee work with the Shawano Area Community Foundation and the Women's Fund of Greater Green Bay.

She lives in Bonduel with her partner, Shane Rouse, and their children, Finn, Owen and Kate.

"As a student at St. Norbert College, I came to more deeply understand my gifts and how I could use those to respond to the needs of our global and local communities," Rouse said. "I feel fortunate to live in the Shawano area, where we have largely a great quality of life, but I know I can't take that for granted. Healthy, happy and high-functioning communities don't happen by accident. Each of us is responsible for doing our part to create the types of communities we want to be a part of. I'd like to leave readers with the question: 'What are you doing to enhance your community?'"

Shawano Lake water level to remain at higher level

Battle has been ongoing for 8 years

By KEVIN PASSON
Editor-in-chief

How much of a difference can 5 inches make when you're talking 800 feet? Well, if you're referring to the water levels of Shawano Lake, those 5 inches are significant.

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) announced July 18 it will provide an exemption to the Shawano Paper Mills Dam's permit, which will allow lake levels to remain at historic norms and benefit recreation on Shawano Lake.

"This decision will ensure that users of Shawano Lake and connected waterways can safely enjoy the recreational waters and continue to be an economic driver for Shawano County," said Todd Dobberstein, president of Shawano Area Waterways Management. "SAWM has worked since 2015 in conjunction with the dam operator NEW Hydro to secure several temporary water level amendments to operate at 802.9 msl."

This final ruling allows the dam to operate at the higher level permanently.

"While a 5-inch difference in lake levels may not seem like a lot, in the relatively shallow Shawano Lake, lower lake levels may harm the safety, well-being and property of those who enjoy recreating on or around the lake and those who rely on the estimated $39 million in economic activity generated by the lake," added state Sen. Robert Cowles, R-Green Bay. "The approvals of the temporary amendments to the dam's operating water levels provided a Band-Aid, but a long-term solution was needed. Today, Shawano Lake finally received that solution, hopefully ending an eight-year fight and ensuring that Shawano Lake will remain ready for anyone looking to recreate all summer, every summer, in perpetuity."

The dam had a normal target impoundment elevation of 802.5 feet msl, but had been operating through 2015 at the higher level of 802.9 feet msl due to safety concerns on Shawano Lake caused by the lower water level.

However, starting in 2015, when Shawano riverside resident Brian Knapp filed a complaint about high water levels and ice damaging his property, FERC ordered the dam to hold water at a lower level.

The Shawano Paper Mills Dam owners will operate the water levels for Shawano Lake at 802.9 feet, as ordered by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission's (FERC) on July 18. The dam power station is a 360-kilowatt hydroelectric generating station located on the Wolf River, adjacent to the Little Rapids mill. The facility is equipped with two Leffel turbines. The Shawano power station produces approximately 3 million kilowatt-hours of clean energy in a typical year. The facility began commercial operation in 1913.

That level was ordered to be dropped to 802.5 feet.

The break from historic water levels resulted in concerns from lake-goers for their safety and ability to recreate due to hazards on Shawano Lake. Numerous obstructions on the lake bottom, including sand bars and driftwood, can damage watercraft and may threaten the safety of passengers. Additionally, at a lower lake level, the ability to use common access points — including beaches, shorelines, docks and boat launches — may not be available. This reality drove concerns from local residents that lower lake levels would not only impact human welfare and property, but potentially the economic well-being of the area.

Since 2015, through the series of five temporary amendments, the firm has received authorization to maintain a normal pool elevation of 802.9 feet msl either year-round or seasonally, as prescribed in each order.

After the last temporary order, FERC required the dam owners and interested parties to conduct studies, consult other state and federal regulators and present an application for a permanent amendment.

Earlier this year, the National Park Service (NPS) filed comments stating the higher water level is not likely to adversely affect the upstream portion of the Wolf River that is a National Scenic River. No protests were filed.

FERC's final order notes that "Commission staff finds the exemption's proposed raise the normal target impoundment elevation would increase recreation and boater safety," that the proposal "would not adversely affect the environment" and that the proposal "would have a beneficial effect on recreation resources," including "land-based recreation, use of boat docks and boating opportunities ... due to the proposed additional 0.4 feet of elevation in the reservoir."

"Shawano Lake is a dynamic recreation hub to visit and a fun and relaxing place to call home," Cowles said. "This order is very welcome news to allow residents and visitors to continue enjoying their weeknights and weekends like they always have: safely on Shawano Lake."

Dobberstein acknowledged the help received from NEW Hydro/Eagle Creek, Gomez and Sullivan Environmental Consultants, Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources, state Sens. Cowles and Mary Felzkowski, U.S. Rep. Mike Gallagher, former state Rep. Gary Tauchen, state Reps. Peter Schmidt and Jeff Mursau, former SAWM board member Tim Day, current SAWM board members Tony Zielinski, Jeff Puissant and Bill Monfre, and many others who supported this effort the last eight years.

Wolf River Pond is hydrologically connected to the 6,215-acre Shawano Lake via the Shawano Lake Outlet Channel, a major tributary to Wolf River Pond that enters from the east. Shawano Lake has a mean depth of nine feet and a maximum depth of 39.5 feet, with a drainage area of 16.6 square miles.

Shawano Lake is located outside of the project boundary, but is influenced by project operations, although it is uncertain as to what extent due to limited studies on the subject. Shawano Lake residents have expressed that reservoir elevations at the project have a direct influence on water levels in Shawano Lake.

Shawano Lake water levels are adjusted by the dam at the Little Rapids facility on the Wolf River. The dam is owned and operated by Eagle Creek Renewable Energy. Under their license, Eagle Creek is required to maintain the water level at the dam reservoir between 802.1 and 803.17 median sea level, a range of about 12 inches. Eagle Creek has no discretion to hold back water or to release water. They monitor the headwater elevation to adjust gate openings to ensure they are maintaining the water level within the required range.

This is different from how the dam had been operated in years past. There was a time when releases were done to generate more water flow and, as a result, create more electricity during times of high demand for power. When power demand was low, water would be held back. This practice led to fluctuating water levels and was discontinued many years ago.

National Night Out coming to communities

Events connect law enforcement with members of the community

By KEVIN PASSON
Editor-in-chief

For four decades, police and community partnerships have been strengthened by the annual National Night Out event.

Traditionally held the first Tuesday in August, the event is meant to heighten drug and crime awareness, generate support for anti-crime efforts, and strengthen neighborhood spirit and the partnership between police and communities.

Several Oconto County communities, as well as Menominee County, will celebrate the event Aug. 1.

In Lena, National Night Out will be held from 5-8 p.m. at the St. Anne Parish Church grounds, 221 E. Main St.

Events will include the Eagle III Flight helicopter landing a little after 5 p.m., Oconto County Sheriff's Department K-9 demonstration, tae kwon do demonstration and Lena Fire Department demonstration. On display will be a Lena police vehicle, Wisconsin State Patrol vehicle, Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources/forestry vehicle, Lena fire trucks and Oconto Falls ambulance.

There will be chances to win a new bike and lunch with the Lena school principals. Activities include a coloring contest, an inflatable bounce house, bungee run, face painting and games. Also, there will be informational booths and special games provided by the Lena Friends of the Library, a Lena High School National Honor Society dunk tank and other games.

Free hot dogs, a bag of chips and a cupcake will also be provided.

Events will also be held from 4-8 p.m. at the parking lot of Oconto Falls High School, 210 N. Farm Road, sponsored by the Oconto Falls police, fire and ambulance services.

Free ice cream, a Ping-Pong ball drop with a chance to win a bike, a giveaway for a football, basketball, baseball and volleyball, and the Oconto County Farmers Market will be part of the fun.

In Gillett, events will be held from 5:30-7:30 p.m. at the public library, 200 E. Main St. Events will include live music, face painting, K-9 demonstrations, a dunk tank, raffle items, fire trucks, food vendors and EMS squads.

In Oconto, the event will be held from 5-7 p.m. at City Hall, 1210 Main St.

The Menominee Tribal Police will hold National Night Out events from 6-8 p.m. at the Middle Village Fire Department, N2169 White Cedar Road, Gresham.

Officers will serve up free food, while attendees can view an emergency helicopter, police and fire vehicles, watch demonstrations by the Menominee County and tribal police K-9 units and check out the informational tables and children's games set up at booths of various tribal departments.

In Shawano, National Night Out will be celebrated a week later than most others — from 5-8 p.m. Aug. 8 at Franklin Park, 235 S. Washington St.

"We understand one night is not the answer to crimes, drugs or violence," Shawano Police Chief Bradley Rabideau said. "This is an opportunity for you and your family to meet the people who provide these emergency services within our community and learn about the programs offered."

Events will include a free throw contest, a chili cook-off contest at 5:30 p.m., a police K-9 demonstration at 6:15 p.m., a drone demonstration, and an EMS and fire demonstration at 7 p.m.

CMN hosts USDA undersecretary at event

Aquaponics program seen as key part of effort to recruit future agriculture producers

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

The College of Menominee Nation showed off two new hoop houses that are serving as the hub of its aquaponics program while hosting Chavonda Jacobs-Young, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's undersecretary for research, education and economics, on July 18.

The college received a $2.5 million grant from the USDA's National Institute of Food and Agriculture. Brian Kowalkowski, CMN's dean of continuing education, said the grant was the "big kahuna" for all the grants offered by the institute.

"A lot of hard work has gone into this, and we're excited for the opportunity to have everybody visiting and to share this moment," Kowalkowski said. "This is the first of its kind at a tribal college, for us to have a USDA National Institute of Food and Agriculture food research initiative sustainable agriculture systems grant."

Kowalkowski said the project is a partnership between CMN and other institutions like Central State University in Ohio, Kentucky State University, the University of Kentucky, Mississippi State University and the University of Arkansas.

CMN President Chris Caldwell, who headed the Sustainable Development Institute prior to becoming president, noted the big project coincides with the 30th anniversary for the college, as well as the 50th anniversary of the Menominee Restoration Act that made the Menominee a federally recognized tribe again.

"We have many deep connections to our tribal communities, to the surrounding rural communities, through the education and research and outreach that we do," Caldwell said. "Our impact is made throughout the communities as many of today's leaders, scientists, practitioners and managers are today's alumni, as well."

CMN was originally created to serve the Menominee people, but its mission has gone beyond that; Caldwell sees the sustainable agriculture systems program as a way to serve other tribal and rural communities.

"In this way, we've built relationships and allies throughout Menominee ancestral lands, and our partnerships, especially through this grant," Caldwell said. "We work to impact policy to provide more opportunities like this."

Jacobs-Young presented Caldwell with sunflower seeds prior to the ribbon-cutting ceremony as a symbol of the USDA's continued partnership with the college. She said the seeds, which were developed using traditional breeding approaches, have oils that contain high levels of omega-6 fatty acids, a requirement for human health.

Jacobs-Young expressed excitement for celebrating CMN's first land grant week and noted that the new aquaponics program, which includes raising lettuce and fish, will be of benefit to the Menominee and others beyond the reservation's borders.

"Between your aquaponics program and these high-omega sunflower seeds, we should have a lot of healthy people," Jacobs-Young said. "It's a symbol of one of the many foundational contributions made by the Native Americans."

CMN's aquaponics will not only help in the here and now but will also benefit society in the future, Jacobs-Young said. This program and others funded by the National Institute of Food and Agriculture will help to build the next generation "of our food, agriculture, natural resources and human sciences workforce, including the future USDA workforce," she said.

Jacobs-Young noted that only 9% of current Native American and Alaskan agriculture producers are younger than 35, with the average age of farmers and other food developers being almost 57. About $262 million from the institute is funding 33 projects like CMN's in 24 states, which is expected to churn out 20,000 new agriculture leaders.

"If you're like me, you've been around the ag community for a long time," Jacobs-Young said. "This is unprecedented and a historical investment for us."

The aquaponics program is expected to recruit students into science and health programs, as well as provide hands-on experience. Jacobs-Young said that the statistics she noted about Native American food producers are not far off from the statistics for the whole United States.

"This nation is facing a looming problem," she said. "More and more farmers are at or fast approaching retirement age. This is a real challenge. We need to build the pipeline for the next generation of the ag sector or we're in trouble."

Even at the USDA, 2,700 of its employees are eligible to retire in the next three years, or 38% of its workforce.

"CMN, you have a lot of work to do," Jacobs-Young said. "We need to up our game in recruiting the next generation, and we need people interested in all things. Science, yes, but we need human resources, machine maintenance, animal caretakers, computer scientists, you name it. We need a trained generation to come back and take over these leadership roles, and we need that generation to look like all of the people we serve."

How does Medicare cover preventive health?

How does Medicare cover preventive health screenings? I'm due to get a physical and a colonoscopy this year, but I want to find out what I'll have to pay for before I go in.

Dear Just Turned:

You'll be happy to know that Medicare covers a wide array of preventive and screening services to help you stay healthy, but not all services are completely covered.

Most of Medicare's preventive services are available to all beneficiaries (through Part B) completely free with no copays or deductibles, as long as you meet basic eligibility standards. Mammograms; colonoscopies; shots against flu, pneumonia, COVID-19 and hepatitis B; screenings for diabetes, depression, osteoporosis, HIV, various cancers and cardiovascular disease; and counseling to combat obesity, alcohol abuse and smoking are just some of Medicare's lengthy list of covered services.

To get these services for free, you need to go to a doctor who accepts Medicare "on assignment," which means he or she has agreed to accept the Medicare approved rate as full payment.

Also, the tests are free only if they're used at specified intervals. For example, cardiovascular screening blood tests once every five years; or colonoscopy, once every 10 years, or every two years if you're at high risk.

Medicare also offers a free "Welcome to Medicare" exam with your doctor in your first year, along with annual wellness visits thereafter. Don't confuse these with full physical examinations. These are prevention-focused visits that provide only an overview of your health and medical risk factors and serve as a baseline for future care.

There are, however, a few Medicare preventive services that do require some out-of-pocket cost sharing. With these tests, you'll have to pay 20% of the cost of the service after you've met your $226 Part B yearly deductible. The services that fall under this category include glaucoma tests, diabetes self-management trainings, barium enemas to detect colon cancer and digital rectal exams to detect prostate cancer.

For a complete list of services along with their eligibility requirements, visit www.medicare.gov/cov-erage/preventive-screening-services.

If you're enrolled in a Medicare Advantage (Part C) plan, your plan is also required to cover the same preventive services as original Medicare, as long as you see in-network providers.

You also need to know that while most of the previously listed Medicare services are free, you can be charged for certain diagnostic services or additional tests or procedures related to the preventive service. For example, if your doctor finds and removes a polyp during your preventive care colonoscopy screening, you will pay 15% of the doctor's service fee. If during your annual wellness visit, your doctor needs to investigate or treat a new or existing problem, you will probably be charged here, too.

You may also have to pay a facility fee depending on where you receive the service. Certain hospitals, for example, will often charge separate facilities fees when you are receiving a preventive service. And you can also be charged for a doctor's visit if you meet with a physician before or after the service.

To eliminate billing surprises, talk to your doctor before any preventive service procedure to find out if you may be subject to a charge and what it would be.

Small-town values proven with chair's return

Sunday, July 16, was one of those days where it felt like I was 70 years old or something. It was a fun but physically draining day — taking pictures at the Lakewood Mardi Gras parade — and it had a sequel that proved my faith in humans and small towns.

For a town with a population much smaller than the other towns that have summer parades, Lakewood brings out a crowd. Thousands of people, it seemed, lined state Highway 32 through downtown. I parked in the downtown parking lot and hauled the camera and my canvas chair out, setting up camp next to a tree at the trailhead.

It proved to be a nice, central location. I ended up walking along the parade route all the way up to Sweet Memories Candy Shoppe and down the street to the Pour Haus, so it was nice to have a place to rest for a couple of minutes here and there. After the parade, I wandered over to Memorial Park to capture some of the softball, music and carnival activity. (If you haven't been to newmedia-wi.com to check out this and other photo galleries, you really ought to.)

After that long hike, I was moving slowly at the end of the day as I made my way from the park back to the parking lot and my car. As I drove back down from northern Oconto County, I reflected, not for the first time, on how beautiful this part of our world is.

I slept long and hard, and on Monday morning when I went out to the garage, it finally occurred to me that I'd forgotten something. Yep, I looked in the back of the car and did not find a canvas chair there. In my exhaustion, I'd completely forgotten the chair sitting next to the tree by the trailhead.

Here's the part where my faith in humans and small towns was proved. I emailed the Lakewood Area Chamber of Commerce on Monday afternoon, explaining the situation.

"If the chair has made its way to a lost and found pile somewhere, please let me know how to retrieve it," I wrote. "If not, I'll consider it my donation to someone in your fine community who needs it more than I do."

Within a half hour, I had a reply from chamber secretary Kathy Rank promising to pass the word, and Tuesday morning she put me in touch with Randy Jackett, a retired gentleman who looks after the parks for the town.

Randy had found the chair under the tree on Monday morning, tipped over from the overnight rainstorm, and tucked it away in the trailhead shelter for safekeeping. I arranged to meet him when he started his rounds Thursday morning and was reunited with my chair, ready for duty at the next parade or festival or fair.

It's kind of weird, but I never really thought I had lost that chair forever. Maybe in a bigger town or city, someone might stumble across an abandoned chair and help themselves, but it didn't seem like a long shot to contact the Lakewood chamber for help, even though it was more than 24 hours after I left Mardi Gras.

Small-town folks watch out for each other and lend a hand when they can.

It's a rare treat for me to go to Lakewood twice in one week. I even got to test my brakes on the way back, as I rounded one curve to see a deer and her fawn sauntering across the highway. I screeched to a halt to avoid a disaster, and I had time to drink in the sight as the beautiful creatures scampered away unscathed.

Thank you, Kathy and Randy and Lakewood, for being who you are.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dual sports should be reinstated in Suring

To the editor:

The Suring School Board sits here every month and talks about moving forward and giving children more opportunities but yet has voted to eliminate a non-cost-needed opportunity. This was a pilot program when it was started in 2000 and was ended in 2023. I'm calling on the board to reinstate dual sports. We can have restrictions on it.

When Trent was a freshman, wrestling was in Gillett, and I never even considered the option because of logistics. When wrestling moved to Suring, this became a viable option, and Trent and myself looked into it. I believe with the co-op school team that dual sports practice would have to be at the same school. I have messaged other athletic directors at schools; they say it is trying at times but have no plans of banning or eliminating this option for students.

With lowering class sizes and lack of participation on the rise in extracurricular activities in rural schools, viable options like dual sports are more needed than ever before. This is so heartless to strip this opportunity from Trent after having done dual sports for the past two years going into his senior year. Trent will be 18 going into his senior year and fully capable of understanding what is going on around himself.

It is also alarming to see the self-proclaimed athletic historian since 1972 sit there and listen to former athletic director Greg Lechleitner clearly misrepresent factual information when he said Isaia Houska only participated in dual sports for one year in 2000 when he competed for three years. I have the receipts.

People are saying it is extremely hypocritical for a board member to vote to cancel dual sports. One of the reasons people feel this way is because the members' sons participated in dual sports for several years about 20 years ago.

It is insulting as a father to have my son's commitment to his school and teams put in question.

You can ask anyone that has coached or competed against of his total commitment to school and the team. It is insensitive and misguided for anyone that hasn't coached or been a teammate to make this type of comment.

The blame shifting needs to stop. The successful boys athletic of the M&O conference option to their advantage. There is one of two reasons this option can't continue like it has for over 20 years: Our athletes aren't as good and committed as others in our district, or our administrators and coaches aren't as talented.

WE NEED YOU!

Good news reporters are in short supply. As the big-city newspapers cut their staff to the bone, they also restrict the supply of timely information to their readers, leaving them to look to the unfamed internet to get "facts" about what's going on.

At NEW Media, we're not cutting staff. In fact, we're hiring. We want people with curious personalities, stellar research and writing skills, and an eye for catching the perfect photograph for any story. Contrary to popular belief, you don't have to work for a metropolitan newspaper to find out wild and interesting stories. We get plenty of public officials displaying dubious behavior, heartwarming volunteers who go above and beyond the call of duty and events that bring people out for a good time.

Anyone working for NEW Media will find a lot to report on—we're in the heartland of Wisconsin's agriculture scene, home to three thriving Native American tribes and have more arts and entertainment venues than other rural communities.

To apply for one of our reporter positions, send a resume with writing and photography samples to editor-in-chief Warren Bluhm at wbluhm@newmedia-wi.com and put "Reporter" in the subject line.

OBITUARIES

Richard John 'Dick' Dodge

Richard (Dick) J. Dodge, 86, of Shawano, passed away unexpectedly on July 17, 2023. Dick was born on April 17, 1937, in Shawano, the son of Sherburn and Jeanette (Krietzner) Dodge. He was a lifelong resident of Shawano having attended Sacred Heart Catholic School and Shawano High School. Dick graduated from the University of Wisconsin-Madison in 1959 with a Bachelor of Business Administration in finance. Dick married his best friend and soulmate Sandra Jeanne "Sandy" Stuewer on Oct. 24, 1959, at Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Shawano.

Upon graduation, Dick embarked on his working career in the finance industry. He worked at Wisconsin Finance Corporation as assistant vice president and controller; the Eldorado Corp. as secretary-treasurer; Grosskopf Oil, Inc. as secretary-treasurer and part owner; Gary Matz CPAs as office manager; and Shawano Medical Center. He retired in 1997 from Shawano Medical Center as its chief financial officer. Dick was proud to have passed the test to be an IRS Enrolled Agent.

Dick was active in the Kiwanis Club, Shawano Club (previous treasurer), Shawano Gun Club (previous treasurer), Rotary Club, Sacred Heart Church (previous trustee and usher), and the Shawano City Housing Authority (board member).

Dick was an avid outdoorsman who enjoyed hunting and fishing. Most notably, he loved to hunt whitetail deer in and around Shawano and enjoyed the occasional hunting trips out west with his son and grandson for mule deer, elk, and antelope. In his spare time, he also liked to pheasant, turkey, duck, and goose hunt and go fishing in Canada. He was also known for spending time at the Shawano Gun Club target shooting with family and friends.

Dick enjoyed boating and loved to pontoon up and down the Wolf River and on Shawano Lake. He also enjoyed spending time on his deck with family, friends, and a cocktail. This included watching the birds in his many bird feeders, the other wildlife in his yard (including bear, pheasants, raccoons, and deer) and the boats going up and down the river. He was a golf fanatic and was an active member at Golden Sands Golf Course in Cecil. Dick had three hole-in-ones during his golf career.

As a UW alumnus, Dick was a loyal Badgers fan and supporter. He was also an avid Packers fan and would attend an occasional home game at Lambeau Field. When not going to the game, he loved to attend pregame tailgate parties with his family and then head home to watch the game on television. Dick also enjoyed trips with his wife to London, Hawaii, Florida, Arizona, and Branson, but always said there was no place like home.

Dick is survived by his daughters Kathy (Bill) LaBrake of Naples, Florida, and Karin Deehring of Green Bay. Dick is also survived by his four grandchildren, Katelyn and Andrew (Emily) Dodge, Alexander and Kristin Deehring; step-grandson, Zachary Michael; and great-grandsons Leo Richard and Royce William Dodge. He is also survived by his sisters Mary Olfson and Patricia Winton, brothers James (Jeanne) Dodge and Michael (Rosie) Dodge, sister-in-law Bette Heck and numerous nieces and nephews and their children, as well as his special friend and companion Sandy Davel.

Dick was preceded in death by his wife, Sandy; his parents; son, Kevin; brothers-in-law, John Olfson, James Winton, and Richard Heck; and niece, Kim Dodge.

A memorial service for Dick will be held at 11 a.m. on Friday, Aug. 18, 2023, at Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Shawano with the Rev. Edward Looney officiating. Visitation will be on Thursday, Aug. 17, 2023, from 5-8 p.m. at the Swedberg Funeral Home in Shawano and on Friday at the church from 10:00 am until the time of the service.

Online condolences may be expressed at www.swedbergfuneralhome.com. In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions can be made to the Dodge Family Scholarship Foundation, Inc., a 501(c)(3) organization, which provides scholarships for post high school education to Shawano Community High School students pursuing a career in business or nursing.

The family wishes to express their thanks to his friends and neighbors. Dick will be greatly missed by his family and all of those who knew him.

Kathleen 'Kathy' (Bohr) Froemming

On July 14, 2023, Kathleen "Kathy" (Bohr) Froemming, 71, fell asleep in the arms of Jesus after battling cancer. Kathy was born to Joseph and Irma (Bratz) Bohr on July 5, 1952, in Shawano. She attended Sacred Heart School and graduated from Shawano High in 1970.

Kathy then went on to attend Northeast Wisconsin Technical College and received the Medical Assistant of the Year award graduating from her program. Later, she was employed at Bay Area Foot Clinic, then ThedaCare Physicians in Shawano. During her time there, she worked for all the providers and most all of the specialties. Kathy ended her career working with physiatry and orthopedic surgery.

On Sept. 23, 1972, she was united in marriage to Mel Froemming, and they recently celebrated 50 years of marriage. They were blessed with a son, Jason (Angela) Froemming and their children, Kyle, Kaylee and Erin; a daughter, Kristin (Tyler) Krowiorz and their son, Simon. They truly were the loves of her life.

Kathy enjoyed music and playing the piano. She shared the story of when she was about 11 years old, the priest approached her on the playground and said that he just purchased an organ for the church by her home, and she was going to be the organist! He handed her a music book and told her to practice. He also added that there would be no payment, but she would be rewarded in heaven. (I'm sure Kathy checked into this already.)

Kathy also loved to hop on the four-wheeler and ride to her river garden. On the trail to the river were green and white street signs she made with the names of her grandchildren. She also carved everyone's name into the "family tree." Kathy spent countless hours by the river just listening to the rapids or having a campfire and roasting the "perfect" marshmallow.

Over the years, she crafted and painted many projects for all special occasions. Kathy was the kind of person that saw something she liked, then went home and made it. She also made the best caramels and seafoam candy.

Besides her immediate family, she is survived by other relatives as well as nieces, nephews and friends.

She was preceded in death by her parents, Joseph and Irma Bohr; sister, Karen (Tom) Schwitzer; a sister in infancy and in-laws Fred and Helen Froemming and Al Thaves.

A memorial service for Kathy will be held at Swedberg Funeral Home in Shawano on Saturday, July 29, 2023, at 4 p.m. with Pastor Steve Conratt officiating. Visitation will be from 2:30 p.m. on Saturday until the time of service.

"How lucky am I to have something that makes saying goodbye so hard."

Kathy's family would like to extend a sincere thank you to ThedaCare at Home Hospice for the wonderful care. www.swedbergfuneralhome.com

Ski Sharks take second place at state tourney

Skiers returns home with several team, individual awards

By KEVIN PASSON
Editor-in-chief

The Shawano Ski Sharks saved the circus, and in the process, they finished in second place in Division 2 at the National Show Ski Association (NSSA) state tournament in Wisconsin Rapids on July 18-21.

All told, the team racked up more than a dozen awards as a team and individually.

“Our team was the most prepared we have ever been and we went to the tournament with high expectations,” said Dave Passehl, president of the Ski Sharks. “After our three largest acts crashed during the tournament show, we were expecting a poor placement in our division. Until the awards ceremony, we heard so many positive comments about our show, and we learned that we were certainly our most harsh critics. Placing second along with highest scores for overall production and sound/announcing along with many of the acts scoring first or second in points helped us land a second-place finish.”

In addition to the overall second-place award, other team awards were best sound and announcing, best production, second place pick up boat, third place tow boat driving and several acts scoring first or second.

“Something I’m most proud of is how our team never showed defeat even in the worst times of our show,” Passehl said. “The team stayed focused and positive, and the crowd and judges took notice and our team placed second for showmanship scores, which is a large part of show skiing.”

Individual honors went to Faith Passehl, third place in open swivel; Ryan Strachan, second place in endurance figure 8 barefoot event; Ava Pleshek and Carsten McHugh, 11th in the doubles competition; Elizabeth Salerno and Brad Keuschel, 13th in the doubles competition; and Katie Weiland and Sandor Anday, 16th in the doubles competition.

“I couldn’t be more proud of our team and our show directors, Sam, Jack and Ryan Strachan,” Passehl said. “They kept us focused all season and pushed our acts to be larger and larger each week. The talent on our team right now is the best we’ve ever had, and the dedication to making our shows great has helped us perform at a high level.”

This year’s theme, Ski Sharks Save the Circus, was developed by the Strachan brothers.

According to the Ski Sharks’ website, the show is described as, “The circus, once a thrilling and captivating performance, now struggles to capture the attention of an audience. Things are looking grim, and unless something changes, the circus will be forced to close its doors. In a search for a spark to reignite the magic, the circus looks for new opportunities to draw in viewers. Fear not, the Shawano Ski Sharks are here to save the circus as they bring it to the water. Welcome to the Greatest Show on H2O.”

Founded in 1976, the Ski Sharks today have about 40 skiers with another

50 or more who help as spotters and drivers, as well as with the concessions and other behind-the-scenes work.

“We get one, two or three new members each year,” Passehl said. “Not all of them will stick around a lot of years, but we do have several families who have been part of the team a long time.”

Passehl’s family is one of them. He’s been part of the group for 30 years, with his wife and children joining him.

“We believe this is one sport you can do as an entire family,” he said. “It’s not like the parents are sitting in the stands watching the kids play. It’s a lifestyle. You’re side by side on the water, performing together.”

While the team welcomes everyone, Passehl admits they could use more older teenagers or adults with the strength to lift others and be on the bottom of pyramids. Also, there are twice as many female members as males, so more men is another need for the team.

Passehl said there are about 30 amateur waterski teams in Wisconsin, and most compete at the state tournament, enough to put about nine teams in each of the three divisions.

Roughly, large teams have 60 or more members, medium teams have between 30 and 59, and small teams have fewer than 30 members.

Passehl explained that how teams finish at state determines their placement the next year. For example, the first-place Division 2 team automatically moves to Division 1 the next year, against larger teams. Conversely, the last-place Division 1 team falls to participate in Division 2 the next year.

Passehl said skiing in the state tournament is impressive and important, but team members know that at the end of the day, the performances that really matter are the ones held weekly at Smalley Park in Shawano.

“We perform for our friends and neighbors, and they help us pay the bills,” he said.

J&H to host state sporting clay tournament

Navarino site one of six qualified to host event

By GREG SEUBERT
Correspondent

A local game farm is gearing up to host a state sporting clay competition in August.

The Wisconsin Sporting Clay Association will hold its annual state tournament Aug. 2-6 at J&H Game Farm in the Town of Navarino.

Diane Redmann, the club's co-owner, office manager and event coordinator, is helping to organize the meet, which J&H has hosted five times since 1993.

"The Wisconsin Sporting Clay Association holds a yearly state shoot," she said. "There are six clubs that qualify to have it once every six years."

Two clubs in the Waukesha area are also qualified to host the meet, as well as one each near Hudson, Frederic and Warrens.

J&H last held the meet in 2017, according to Redmann.

"We have about 300 people signed up now," she said. "It's a five-day event, and it takes 100 workers to pull this off. They're not all there every day, but there are 50 to 60 every day to make it run smoothly."

Sporting clay shooting is the closest thing to actual field shooting. Instead of skeet or trap shooting, where clay birds are thrown from standardized distances, targets are thrown from any angle or distance to simulate wingshooting. Different sizes of clay targets are used to further give the shooter the experience of actual hunting conditions. Courses are designed to simulate the hunting of ducks, pheasants, other upland birds and small game such as rabbits.

Shooters are divided into classes. The top competitors are in the Master class, followed by AA, A, B, C, D and E.

"You start in the lower level, and as you shoot in tournaments and win, you win points and work your way up," Redmann said.

Different targets are used. Some are launched into the air, while others are on the ground.

"The standard (target) is a 108 and is usually orange and the underside is usually black," Redmann said. "There's another one that's smaller that's called a 90. There's also a rabbit one that's flat and most of those roll on the ground."

Anyone can register to shoot at the state meet.

"Anyone can walk off the street and participate," Redmann said. "If you're a National Sporting Clays Association member, you have to shoot a minimum of 300 targets before you enter the state shoot. Otherwise, they penalize you one class. If you're a (class) A shooter, you'll be shooting one higher with AA shooters."

Top shooters at the state meet receive trophies and cash, according to Redmann. Some competitors are hunters that use the sport as a way to hone their shooting skills.

"You're going to get people like the farmer up the street and the high-end people with really expensive guns," Redmann said. "It's a wide range of ability, and they all meld together. A lot of people don't want to hunt and kill something, so they do this instead, because you're just shooting at a clay target."

Sporting clay targets – also called birds – are typically shot in squads of two to six people and played over a course of 10 to 15 shooting stations. Course designers are not limited in target speed, angle or distance, so each course is different. The targets are about 30-40 yards away.

"Your group will come up to the station and the first person will be in the shooting box," Redmann said. "Two targets will come out and they'll shoot. Then, they'll reload and shoot at another. Most of the time, there are six or eight targets thrown at each station for each person. You take your turn and move to the next station. If there are 15 stations, you will have a group on every station. Everybody starts at the same time and you keep moving until you hit them all."

Redmann said competitors will come from throughout the United States.

"I didn't see them on the list yet, but there's a group from Canada that comes down," she said. "I don't know if they'll come, but we usually have at least 18 states represented. It's not just Wisconsin. I know we get some from California and Florida and a lot from Green Bay and Appleton."

Most of the competitors will be at the meet for at least three days and will stay at hotels in Clintonville and Shawano, while others will bring their camper or tent to the hunt club.

"The main events are 100 (targets) on Saturday and 100 on Sunday," Redmann said. "We have two different courses set up, and they'll flip-flop so they shoot both sides. We'll have vendors here, like people who fix guns, people who sell safety classes and hearing protection. They'll set a trailer up in the parking area and shooters can walk by, talk with them and buy stuff if they want."

Spectators are invited to watch the competition.

Pulaski punches ticket to state

Season ends for Wittenberg, Bonduel

By DUSTIN RIESE
Correspondent

Despite the 16U and 17U tournaments taking place over the weekend, you also had varsity Legion regionals getting underway as a trio of local teams aimed to continue their season for at least one more week.

Not all of the results were the best, but there were some great showings including in AA where Pulaski punched their ticket to the state tournament next weekend in Ashwaubenon following a pair of impressive games Saturday.

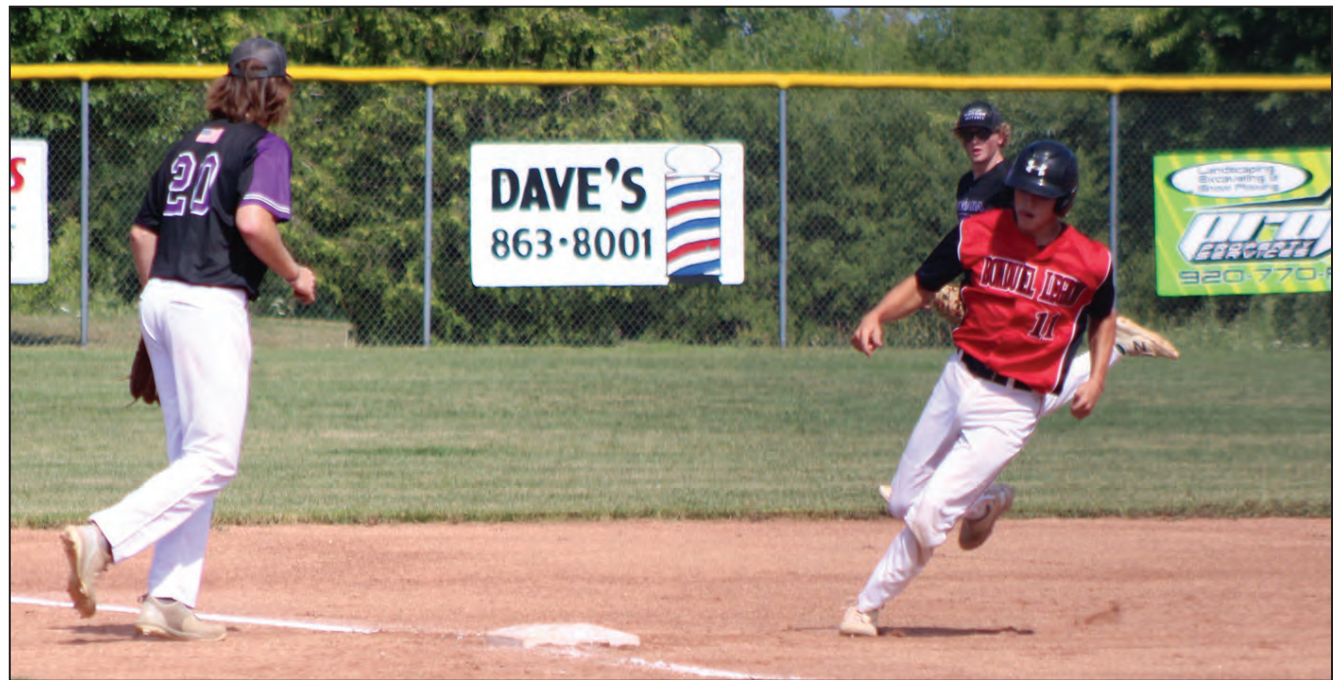

The weekend didn't get off to the best start for Pulaski as they were pegged against Kewaunee County to open things up. The Lakers would go on to flex their muscles in that game as they took down Pulaski 6-2 and put them on the brink of going home. Despite that disappointing showing to open the week, coach Jack Anderson was pleased with what he saw from the players.

"It was a tough one for us on Friday, but we did get some good outings on the mound," he said. "Hunter Money and Jace Olson did what they had to do against a very good hitting Kewaunee team. Unfortunately, we weren't able to capitalize with runners on base, which can't happen."

Perhaps a game against Reedsville would be the game they needed to get back on track as they defeated them 11-1 earlier this season. As expected, this game was vastly different from their first meeting, but it was the pitching that held up once again as Pulaski lived to see another day, winning 2-1 and setting up a rematch with Kewaunee for a trip to state on the line.

With Ashwaubenon hosting state, all Pulaski needed to do was defeat the Lakers to clinch a spot in the championship game and their dream of state would become a reality. Led by Tate Gerth on the mound, Pulaski did just that as they got their revenge against Kewaunee and took them down 5-3 to clinch a spot in the state tournament.

"We got a really great outing from Tate today when we needed it the most," Anderson said. "Unlike the first game against them where we struggled Easton Reinke rounds the bases in one of Bonduel's two games this past weekend. Losses in both ended the team's season.

to drive guys in, we had several great at bats from the top down throughout the lineup. That helped us grab an early lead, and we were able to maintain that lead before adding on late."

Pulaski took on the Ashwaubenon A's for the regional championship on Sunday morning and fell 5-0. Pulaski will face the winner of the River Falls regional at 9:30 a.m. Friday.

Wittenberg

Pulaski wasn't the only team to put forth a great weekend as the Wittenberg varsity squad hosted its own regional at the A Ball level and was looking to join their 16U in state. In what may have been one of the more exciting regionals of the weekend, Wittenberg opened up its weekend with an intense battle with Crandon where they came out on top 10-8.

Down 4-0 after the first inning, Wittenberg got two of those runs back in the top half of the second, but it was in the fourth inning when they took the lead for good as they used a seven-run frame to take a 9-5 lead before holding off Crandon in the end.

Keegan Schmid opened up the inning with an RBI single before Mason Meverden added a second single later on. Throw in a bases-loaded double from Owen Dickman, and Wittenberg stormed in front 7-5. They weren't done there as four bases-loaded walks led to two more runs in that inning before they had to hold off a thunderous Crandon rally late in the game.

As if that game wasn't exciting enough to kick off the weekend, Wittenberg found themselves in a tight contest with Marathon only to pick up a run in the final inning to secure the 3-2 victory. That put them in a position to reach the regional final should they figure out a way to defeat a dominant Stratford team.

Despite their best efforts on Saturday, the Tigers were too much as Wittenberg suffered the 5-3 loss and was put back in a win or go home matchup with Marathon on Sunday.

Unfortunately for Wittenberg, their season would end there as Marathon got revenge from earlier in the weekend with a dominating 10-1 win. Wittenberg closes out their season with a 8-9 record as they came within one win of reaching the regional championship game.

Bonduel

While those two teams had plenty of success over the weekend, Bonduel didn't as it went 0-2 in Denmark to see its season come to a close. Friday was an especially painful loss for the Grizzlies as Niagara put together a pair of four-run innings to pick up the easy 9-2 win. The first of those innings came in the first as Bonduel didn't do themselves any favors.

Not only did walks kill Jayden Stuhr on the mound, but he also hit a few batters as command was an issue early. That was followed by several well-struck balls and a series of errors as Niagara opened up a 4-0 lead before the Grizzlies even came to bat. Bon-duel got one of those runs back in the bottom of the first as Easton Reinke was hit by a pitch with two outs before advancing to second on the Noah Weier single. The very next batter was Colin Margelofsky whose single up the middle drove home Reinke to make things 4-1.

Despite Niagara adding an additional run in the top half of the third, the Grizzlies managed to answer once more as a pair of singles led things off ahead of the Weier sacrifice fly to make things 5-2. That was as close as the Grizzlies would get as Niagara used another four-run inning late in the game to pull away 9-2.

Bonduel would see their season come to an end on Saturday as they fell to the Wrightstown Rockets 4-3. What makes this loss even tougher to stomach is the fact that the Grizzlies came out strong and scored all three of their runs in the first to grab an early lead. Reinke opened the scoring with an RBI single while a pair of sacrifice flies led to all three runs for the Grizzlies.

Like Bonduel, the Wrightstown offense got off to a great start, scoring one time in the first and then three more in the second as they made that 4-3 lead hold to end the Grizzlies season.

"It just wasn't our weekend," coach Jeremy Reinke said. "There were times when we played well as a team, but for the most part, we were outplayed. You can't make the amount of mistakes we made in that first game and expect to be here for a long time."

New faces reach speedway's victory lane

Stankowski, Frank, Wedelstadt, Raab, Stueck the winners

Mitch Stankowski, Gunner Frank, Mike Wedelstadt, Zachary Raab and Calvin Stueck picked up feature wins on July 22 at Shawano Speedway.

Up first was the IMCA Stock Car division, with Larry Buckwheat and Dillon Sexton on the front row, but the man of the hour would be Stankowski.

As the green flag flew, Stankowski used his sixth place starting spot to jump to an early lead on the outside and lead by lap number four. He was followed by Travis VanStraten, and those two would begin to break away from the rest of the field.

Midpack saw Travis Welch, Vern Stedjee and Dan Michonski battling for the top six positions. By lap ten, Michonski had caught the leaders, and he, Stankowski and VanStraten jockeyed for position.

Stankowski held his ground and fought off the challenges of his fellow competitors. In the final laps it was Vern Stedjee, Michonski and VanStraten all chasing Stankowski, but Stankowski would not be denied as he raced his number 5s into a long overdue trip to victory lane.

In the Late Model division,

Mike Wedelstadt earned the IMCA Modified feature race victory on July 22 at Shawano Speedway.

CONTRIBUTED

former feature winners Joel Bennett and Gunner Frank led the field to green. At the drop of the green, Frank shot off the cannon and took the lead on lap one, as Brett Swedberg, Lucas Postl, Kyle Raddant and Todd Frank were trying to chase down the front runners.

By lap seven, Troy Springborn fell victim to mechanical failures and ended his night but was able to save the race from a caution. With Swedberg chasing down Gunner

Frank in the closing laps, Gunner Frank answered the call and held off the charges of Swedberg and Bennett to go on to victory lane.

The IMCA Modified division, racing for $3,000 to win, saw Johnny Whitman and Mike Wedelstadt be the escorts for the 25-car A main event. When the green flag flew, Whitman used that front row starting spot to distance himself between him and the rest of the field.

Mike Wedelstadt, Jerry Muenster, Tony Wedelstadt, Kevin Feck and Kelsy Hayes would all start swapping positions, but the man on the move from his 10th place position was Mike Mullen as he was making his way to the front. Lucas Lamberies, Wyatt Block and Jayden Schmidt all were hard charging to the front as well.

Up front it was all Whitman dominating the rest of the field. On lap 17, the field came to an abrupt halt as Marcus Yarie took a tumble in corner one, bringing out the red flag. As track crews attended to the situation and after Yarie was checked out by the medical personnel, green flag racing resumed, with Whitman again jumping out to a commanding lead.

As the checkered flag flew, at the line was Whitman, Mike Wedelstadt, Mullen and Konnor Wilinski. However, after post race inspection track officials deemed Whitman was disqualified for a weight infraction, which gave the victory to Mike Wedelstadt.

In a caution-filled IMCA Sport Mod feature, Doug Belongia Jr., and Dustin Marquardt sat on the front row. Tommy Rindt and Bryce Clements would be their dancing partners for the front two rows.

At the drop of the green, Clements would quickly work his way up to the top spot and lead for several laps. After three spin out cautions on the restart, Clements again was leading, but local hot shoe of Raab was weaving his way to the front. After several more cautions and a single file restart, Raab, Tyler Sobiesczyk, JJ Vanderloop and Jeffery Teske were the front runners.

As the white flag flew, Sobiesczyk was starting to close the gap between him and Raab, but Raab continued to lead the last two circuits and pilot his number 74 to victory lane.

In the Mighty 4 division, Stueck used his fifth place starting spot to maneuver around Justin Haufe, Alexis Michonski and Clint Malueg.

Stueck's dominance would show over the next few laps, but former IMCA Stock Car pilot Nate Michonski and point leader Tanner Westphal would soon catch Stueck. Meanwhile Brad Wedde would also toss his name in the conversation for the top four spots.

As laps dwindled down in the 12-lap event, Stueck held off the charges and went on to claim victory.

The meeting is planned for Tuesday, August 15th in the Community Room at City Hall located at 127 S. Sawyer St, Shawano, WI 54166. This will be an open house style meeting between 5:00 pm and 7:00 pm. Interested persons are urged to attend, ask questions and provide comments.

The existing concrete pavement on West Green Bay Street is showing signs of deterioration and is in need of improvement. The public is encouraged to attend the meeting to learn more about the proposed improvements and provide input. This meeting will specifically discuss the proposed typical sections, project schedule, traffic control, and to gather input from the public on these improvements. Restoration depicted in Menominee pageant

Pageant players come up with original scene, mixed with classic scripts, to honor 50th anniversary

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

The latest presentation by the Menominee Pageant Players will feature segments from older Menominee pageant scripts combined with a new scene that pays tribute to the Menominee Restoration Act, which celebrates its 50th anniversary later this year.

Titled "Onakow," the Menominee word for "yesterday," the pageant will be performed at sunset on Aug. 2 at the Woodland Bowl on Fairgrounds Road in Keshena. "Onakow" is adapted from previous work done by Menominee writers Joe Keshena, James G. Frechette and Mani Boyd.

Pageants, which feature a mix of pantomime, live music and dancing, were regular exhibitions on the reservation when there was a regular fair in Keshena, running from the 1930s to the mid-1970s, according to College of Menominee Nation theater professor Ryan Winn. The pageants were revived in 2015 at the request of tribal members with CMN students and community members reprising some of the original pageant scripts, and they have since preceded the start of the annual Menominee Nation Contest Pow Wow in August.

"The idea came, with this being the 50th anniversary of Menominee restoration on Dec. 22, and it came from the powwow committee," Winn said. "(Menominee Tribal Legislator) Myrna Warrington is on the committee and she said that she thinks it would be great to have something in the pageant honoring the milestone."

The Menominee lost their status as a tribe in 1961 through termination as a result of a congressional act, but the restoration 12 years later helped to bring the tribe back to prosperity. Upon hearing the idea of adding the restoration scene, the pageant players spent about a month developing it.

"We thought that, rather than going point by point, it'd be kind of nice to show that process of tribal unity reflected throughout Menominee history, so we used scenes from other shows that fit the pattern," Winn said. "It worked out that we have a scene from every show that we've done."

The challenge with writing the new scene, according to Winn, is that the effort for restoration involved thousands of people, so it was important to make sure the scene showcased the right voice. Writing one scene that encompasses all of those values was difficult, he said, but it would have been a longer process writing an entirely new show about restoration.

Dawn Wilber, one of the narrators for "Onakow," sets the scene during a dress rehearsal for the pageant July 19 at the Woodland Bowl. Wilber is a granddaughter of James G. Frechette, who wrote Menominee pageant scripts in the past.

"So much of the legal parts of termination and restoration are so complicated and go back to treaty times," Winn said. "When we started looking back at talking about the values, it made us recognize that the previous generations of pageant writers had written about those values."

The pageants in the 1960s were written by people living through the termination era, so it made sense to utilize some of those scripts instead of starting from scratch, according to Winn.

"It became intuitive to lean into the wisdom of those earlier writers," he said.

Menominee pageants differ from other theatrical productions because the show's oration is recorded and then enhanced with sound effects, according to Winn. Then the performance has the actors speak their lines along with the recorded track, as well as showcase a variety of dances.

Dawn Wilber, granddaughter of James Frechette, has been part of the pageant players since the pageants were revived in 2015, and she recalled how excited her mother was when the initial request for information about past pageants came.

"It just so happened that, after her elder brother, my uncle Jim Frechette, after he had passed, his son had brought some artifacts back to the house, and as she was going through those boxes, she came across some artifacts that were from that time," Wilber said. "There were scripts, newspaper clippings, some photos and pamphlets."

Wilber said the artifacts are currently in the college's care, being used to help develop pageants in the future, and she plans to continue being a part of it all, this year serving as a narrator.

"Being here (at the Woodland Bowl) and being a part of this, I think about our ancestors that did this before, the first time and the second time around, and now here we are doing it a third time around," Wilber said. "You're remembering them. Our ancestors like to be remembered, and this is a good way to do this."

Winn feels that "Onakow" will bring to light the issues of restoration in a way that's informative and entertaining.

"It's a really powerful testament to the endearing quality of Menominee values over the years," Winn said. "The pageants embody that with everyone who comes to enjoy them."

If the restoration scene is well received by the audience next month, Winn hopes that will inspire the pageant players to come up with a full show of original material in the future.

The show runs around two hours, with an intermission during which food and beverages will be sold by local vendors. The pageant is perfect for all ages, according to Winn. Admission is free, but any donations received will be used to fund the 2024 pageant.

For information, contact Winn at 715-799-6226, ext. 3070, or rwinn@menominee.edu.

Old Glory Candy moves to new location

Shawano sweets shop swells to more than seven times its size in downtown spot

Visitors to downtown Shawano may have noticed a familiar retail favorite in a new spot.

On June 23, Old Glory Candy officially opened the doors to their larger location in the heart of downtown. This move expands their retail space from 400 square feet to almost 3,000 square feet.

In addition to remodeling and re-locating their store, Old Glory Candy is celebrating the milestone of its 10th anniversary. Owners Curt and Karen Preston and James and Jenny Maltbey had previously discussed finding a larger retail location when the right opportunity appeared.

"We had wanted a bigger space for a long time," said Karen Preston. "We simply needed more space, and we knew we wanted to stay in the BID (Business Improvement District) in downtown, but there was nothing available that was accessible to us until this building sold. We looked at it the night they closed, and we decided to go for it. The decision to move, if I could sum it up in one word, was sudden."

Transforming the location from a former clothing store to a candy store with a large kitchen occurred over the course of several months. The remodel began in February and included acquiring new equipment, coolers and a soft serve ice cream machine. It also included changes in the office and moving inventory and displays, such as shelving and the bulk wall. It was a challenge, especially considering the former location was continuing operations, during the remodel.

"We had a soft opening because the opening date kept changing," Preston said. "With a remodel, you are going to have delays. So we just went with it. It was a very busy spring for all the owners."

By all accounts, summer will likewise be busy as the owners and staff focus on moving the remainder of inventory and supplies to the new location.

"Most of the product is still sitting at the old location, we have that 'til the end of July," Preston said. "So we need to inventory and get it processed through the system. As soon as we threw the doors open, the customers have been here and that has been the top priority — to meet the needs of the customers. So all of that behind-the-scenes stuff has to take place away from them."

The owners are very grateful to the customers and staff who have been so supportive in the process. It was a team effort, which all helped make the move a success.

"We are so thankful," Preston said. "The community was incredibly patient. You would not believe the outpouring of support. One of the coolest things is how we typically would have one staff on a shift because we were so tiny. Now we have multiple people on a shift. It's a lot of young people; we have a couple of adults, but it's mostly high schoolers. They have really stepped up and have done an amazing job with customer service, learning a new system, working together and problem solving. All of that has just been awe inspiring. We have a lot of gratitude thrown their way, too. They've made it happen."

Customers will notice a lot of welcome changes, new additions and old favorites at Old Glory. Given the larger space, accessibility has improved so patrons can feel comfortable bringing in strollers, walkers and wheelchairs. Likewise, there is more space for staff, and customers can have a full view of kitchen operations, such as fudge making. There are several tables in the back where customers can visit and enjoy an ice cream cone. In 2013, Preston purchased a reproduction colonial American flag which hung at their old location. This has been brought to the new store and is proudly displayed.

Customers can visit Old Glory Candy at 126 S. Main St. in Shawano. The store is operating under its summer hour schedule of Mondays through Fridays from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sundays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Updated information can be found on its Facebook page and www.oldglorycandy.com.

Archery events sharpen bowhunting skills

Bowhunting season has a way of sneaking up on me and probably most other archery deer hunters, too. The Sept. 16 opener is now just a month and a half away. It's hard to dream about cool fall mornings in the woods, waiting for that buck to walk by during summer's warm, sticky weather, but this is when the work begins.

If you want to make that shot count when everything aligns to bring that deer within bow range, you need to make sure your archery gear is working properly and you can hit what you're shooting at.

Whether you practice in your own yard with hay bales or bag targets, or take advantage of several Shawano-area 3-D archery and field target events, time spent with your bow and friends is always time well spent.

Here are a few archery events coming up in the next few weeks. Non-members are welcome to these club shoots. These events are a good time to make new friends, share club ideas, fling a few arrows to get the cobwebs off your equipment (and muscles) and perhaps even join.

- Shawano Archery Club has a Two-Man Scramble 3-D shoot Aug. 12 at the club range, N5820 Old Lake Road, Shawano. Each two-person team must register for the 20-target event by 11 a.m., with a shotgun start for the event at 11:30 a.m. Hunter's rules apply. The fee is $40 per team with a 70% cash payback.

- The Shawano club will host a unique Cricket Tournament shoot Aug. 25. This two-person event combines darts and archery, with the paper targets resembling a dartboard and scored the same, explained club President Rick Habeck. Registration begins at 7 p.m., and shooting is under the lights. Food and drinks are available at both Shawano shoots. The fee is $30 per team with a 70% payback. Contact Habeck at 715-853-6800 for more information.

- Raised at Full Draw, a nonprofit organization dedicated to promoting archery, hunting and outdoor education, will host a women's bowhunting retreat at noon Sept. 28 through Oct. 1 in Almond. The cost is $250, which includes lodging, meals and a shirt. Contact Donise at Donise@raisedat-fulldraw.com for more information.

Clintonville Bow Hunters recently revamped its permanent 28-target club course at N11517 Boy Scout Lane, Clintonville, and hosted a competition with the course July 22-23. The club will host a 28-target 3-D competition Aug. 26-27. Shooting hours are 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Aug. 26 and 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Aug. 27. Food and beverages are available. Various categories are available at sign-up, depending on your equipment and age.

Entry fee is $10, $2 for age 14 and younger, which includes hot dogs, chips and soda. There are no cash prizes. Tickets also are available for its reverse raffle on Aug. 27, with only 300 tickets sold. All tickets are drawn and placed on a large board. Every 10th ticket wins $50, the 100th and 200th tickets drawn win $200, and the last ticket wins $1,000. Those present for Columnist Ross Bielema enjoyed last year's Clintonville Bow Hunters 3-D archery shoot, using his long-bow to make it even more challenging. Area 3-D and other archery shoots are a great way for bowhunters to get ready for the Sept. 16 deer opener.

ROSS BIELEMA

the 6 p.m. Aug. 27 drawing can enjoy free beer.

Club members can use the field course any time outside deer season. The club, currently around 35 members, is seeking new members. In addition to the club range, members may hunt on two land parcels totaling 353 acres for a modest fee after a one-year probation period. John Schoenike founded the club and donated the land for the club's range and hunting woods. At one time, John Schoenike's Stalker Archery Co. in Clintonville was the largest archery shop in Wisconsin.

Schoenike, who died in 1996, was one of only five hunters to kill a deer with a bow during Wisconsin's inaugural bow season in 1940. He received a personal letter from state natural resources staff congratulating him on his harvest. That letter remains one of his grandson's most prized possessions.

If you know of other archery events in the area that you would like to publicize, let me know and we will do our best to get the word out. May all your arrows find their mark this bowhunting season.

Yellow-headed blackbirds special visitors

It is a special delight this spring and summer to be seeing yellow-headed blackbirds in our area. We see lots of red-winged blackbirds and look forward to their early insistent “konk-la-ree” calls heralding in spring. Seeing yellow-headed blackbirds has the feel of a “guest” in the neighborhood or a special traveler stopping our way.

According to The Cornell Lab All About Birds website (AAB), the yellow-headed blackbird is similar in size and shape to the red-winged blackbird and shares much of the same habitats, i.e., wetlands and shallow areas of ponds and rivers in our part of the country. They have a stocky body, a large head and a rather long conical bill.

It's hard to miss the males with their striking yellow head and breast and sleek black body sporting a white patch on the wing that expands into a neat white triangle when the bird takes flight. Females are less showy, dark brown in coloring with splashes of yellow on the head and breast.

According to AAB, male yellow-headed blackbirds establish and defend territories during breeding season. Their aggressive behavior can drive red-winged blackbirds and marsh wrens from prime nesting spots in a marsh. Males are polygamous and may attract up to eight females to the territories they defends. This surely creates a large extended family.

Cathy

Females construct cup-shaped nests that they attach to marsh vegetation such as cattails, bulrushes or reeds, and sometimes willows or wild rice. In these secure, well-camouflaged nests, they raise two to five chicks that fledge (leave the nest) after about 14 days.

The bird's diet varies with the seasons. AAB reports that they feed on insects in the summer, catching aquatic insects at the water's surface and eating beetles, grasshoppers, dragonflies, caterpillars, flies, ants and spiders. During migration and in their wintering areas, their diet shifts to grains and seeds. The birds hunt for food by flipping over stones and probing into soft ground. Their bills are wonderful tools that can open up and explore leaf sheaths for savory morsels hidden within.

Yellow-headed blackbirds are considered medium-distance migrants, according to AAB. Most spend their summers on their breeding grounds in Western Canada and the Western and Midwestern United States, as far south as northern Texas, New Mexico and Arizona. They winter in the Southwest United States and throughout Mexico with males tending to winter farther north and females wintering in the southern limits of their Mexican range. In the fall, they migrate during the day in large strung out flocks and, liking company, spend the night at wetlands roosting with other blackbird species.

During migration, it's impressive to see one of the large “rolling” flocks of blackbirds feeding in wetlands or fields. Hundreds of birds hover just above and in the vegetation, a high energy black wave of birds turning, dipping and moving as one. Birds in the rear are constantly taking flight and landing at the front of the flock, keeping the black wave “rolling” along.

The Wisconsin Natural Heritage Working List (2021) lists the yellow-headed blackbird as a special concern species. Special concern species “are those species about which some problem of abundance or distribution is suspected but not yet proven. The main purpose of this category is to focus attention on certain species before they become threatened or endangered.”

Considering their special concern status, it is important to preserve breeding and wintering habitat for these birds to keep their populations healthy. We have yellow-headed blackbirds here in Oconto and along Green Bay because of the wetlands surrounding the bay that provide nesting and feeding habitat for the birds. This summer, we have seen both males and females at Oconto harbor; they like working the lawn and the boats moored there for insects, their summer diet.

I hope you get a glimpse of the yellow-headed blackbird this year. In the summer, look for them around wetlands and harbors, and in the fall, in those black “rolling” waves that pass through the fields and marshes as they ready themselves for their fall journey south.

Cathy Carnes is a retired biologist in Oconto who worked with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service Green Bay Field Office and, prior to that, with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Regulatory Branch in Buffalo, New York. As endangered species coordinator for the USFWS, she helped conserve and recover federally listed threatened and endangered species in Wisconsin.

Parallel parking and other driving horrors

When I went to Antigo last week, I had to parallel park. Thanks to side-by-side and angle parking, I don't need to parallel park that often. That's good, because I can't do it in what might be called textbook fashion, so I avoid it whenever possible. I surprised myself that day by squeezing into a space just a few feet longer than my 2021 Ford Escape Hybrid.

I was proud of my success, which got me reminiscing about the summer of 1963 when I had to climb the proverbial hill into adulthood by passing a driver's license examination. I am one of eight siblings, third in order of appearance. St. Mary Menasha High School didn't offer formal driver's education, but my older brother, John, had been driving tractors since he was 10 and Mom taught Marge how to drive. They both successfully became licensed on the first try, and now it was my turn.

I was eager to earn that laminated little card (complete with jail-booking photo) that bestows on said holder the freedom of the road. I wasn't worried; driving seemed so effortless when I was a passenger. My mother was super busy that summer so she gave me the crash course version. I easily memorized the rules of the road in the handbook but didn't log much time practicing by actually, you know, driving. Still, she assumed I was ready, and we were both confident I would pass. The only part I dreaded was parallel parking. Silly me.

On the day of the test, everything was going peachy until the DMV Tester Man directed me to make a left turn. I started doing that, and then abruptly discontinued the maneuver when he screamed stop. There was a dump truck coming in the opposite lane. Honest to God, I didn't know I didn't have the right of way. If that poor DMV examiner hadn't yelled, and I hadn't immediately obeyed — yikes.

Unsurprisingly, he ordered me back to the test center immediately. The officer jumped out of the car, hurried inside and told my mortified mother in a few sharply clipped sentences that I really needed to learn how to drive before I got somebody killed. After that, I received an exceptionally comprehensive education in RoseMary Brantmeier's Driving School for Wayward Daughters. I passed my second test with flying colors, even delivering a well-executed demonstration of parallel parking.

Now I know I'm crossing into gender-specific behavior generalization territory, but thinking about parking brings to mind an unscientific study on male-female differences. My conclusion: To a large extent, men and women have very different parking habits. Ample evidence is available right here in the Marsh household.

Obviously, successfully parking a vehicle is dependent upon what you're driving. It matters a lot if Jon is behind the wheel of my Escape or his F150. We both appreciate my Escape's safety features, technology that wasn't available when we bought his pickup. There's a dashboard screen for backing up, sensors that alert you to road hazards, alarms that could wake the dead. But that's our only parallel when it comes to parking.

Like almost all of the women I ride with, I find the closest open space, pull in, park and proceed to the destination. Jon, like almost all of the men I've traveled with, does not do this. He cruises the lot, surveying all potential choices. No matter how long it takes, he dithers around in search of the perfect space. Evidently, finding the best piece of real estate to claim as your own for as few as five minutes is a big deal for men, as is the necessity to severely critique how other drivers (always assumed to be females, of course) have parked.

Once Jon does find the perfect spot, he seizes it, but not without backing up and going forward as often as necessary to fit neatly within the designated area, making sure each side of the vehicle is equidistant from the white lines. Nearness to the intended destination is just not that important, even in pouring rain or freezing cold. In the interest of marital harmony, I won't even get started on how long it takes him to unlock my side of the vehicle.

Though I find this behavior bewildering and exasperating, I've learned the hard way that men do not appreciate constructive criticism of their driving skills. Luckily, I happened upon the perfect solution: old-fashioned chivalry. Jon drops me off at the door where I stay while he parks. When we leave, he fetches the vehicle while I wait, dry and comfortable, for him to pick me up. Why, it's like having my very own Uber driver. Isn't life wonderful when everybody wins?

Kathleen Marsh is a lifelong educator, writer, and community advocate. She has published eight books, four on the history of Townsend, where she and husband Jon are happily retired on the beautiful Townsend Flowage.

Nsight Telservices and Cellcom have announced that almost two dozen teens will be receiving scholarships for higher education this fall.

Nsight has selected seven graduating high school seniors from across its service area to receive $1,200 scholarships, including Carter Hill and Molly Haines of Oconto Falls High School and Braeden Hensel of Pulaski High School.

MACKENZIE BAILEY

DACOTAH YONKER

Cellcom has selected 16 graduating high school seniors from across its service area to receive $750 scholarships, including Mackenzie Bailey of Suring High School, Dacotah Yonker of Marion High School and Megan Wagner of Gillett High School.

Recipients were selected based on community involvement, academic record, potential to succeed, leadership and participation in school activities, honors, work experience and an essay on community impact. Applicants were also required to reside within a county where Nsight or Cellcom operates and be planning to enroll in a full-time undergraduate course of study at an accredited two- or four-year college, university or technical school.

"Nsight Telservices is proud to award scholarships to a remarkable group of students who have already made an impact in their communities," said Cindy Durand, senior director of marketing communications at Nsight and Cellcom. "Each of our recipients has been actively involved in their schools, and their demonstrated leadership qualities will allow them to successfully pursue their career goals and continue to positively influence communities. We wish these students and the entire class of 2023 the best of luck on their upcoming endeavors."

Legion hands out 1,500 poppies, raises $3,850

Mary Ellen Krizek with the Wabeno Sylvan American Legion Unit 44 filed her final report on the unit's 2023 poppy drive.

Successful distribution of 1,500 poppies enable the unit to donate exclusively to many veterans and veteran organizations, according to Krizek. The unit also received $3,850 in donations from the community for their support of the poppy drive, which will be spent on veteran programs including hospitals, homes, assisted living and health care systems.

Krizek noted the auxiliary and volunteers gave much of their time distributing poppies. The business communities of Lakewood, Townsend, Mountain and Wabeno allowed poppies to be distributed at their establishments.

Each year, the auxiliary promotes the red poppy in memory of those who served and are serving in all branches of the U.S. Armed Forces.
