Bonduel village crews worked hard to clear the streets after last weekend's big snowfall, and warmer temperatures in the following days helped, too.

High school senior learns welding via apprenticeship

Aidan Patza, a senior at Gillett High School, applied for a youth apprenticeship this year and is employed at L&N Metal Works in Gillett as an apprentice welder.

L&N Metal Works is a commercial metal fabricator that provides architectural fabrications, including decorative metal railings, cable railings, handrails, guardrails, ladders, bollards, fencing, gates and entrance canopies for commercial and residential customers.

As a youth apprentice with the New North Youth Apprenticeship Consortium, Patza has a checklist of welding and employability skills that he is working to perfect over the course of the year. To round out his youth apprenticeship training, he has also taken related classes in Northeast Wisconsin Technical College welding, general metals, metal fabrication, manufacturing (Tiger Enterprise), cabinetshop and building trades.

"Aidan has been a leader in class and is willing to take on challenging projects," said Preston Zimmerman, Gillett YA adviser/technical education teacher and events coordinator for the New North Youth Apprenticeship Consortium. "Aidan is currently the CEO of our Tiger Enterprise class, which involves managing numerous tasks and classmates. Aidan is also a member of the GHS Skills USA chapter."

Jenny West, office manager at L&N, also noted that Patza has been a great addition.

"Whatever needs to be done, he is quick to step up and help in any way that he can," West said. "He is a very responsible and respectable young man."

L&N agreed to be a part of the Youth Apprenticeship program because they say it is a great way to collaborate with the school and provide students with additional educational opportunities.

"We see it as a chance for students to see what actual employers look for and expect from their employees," West said. "Students get on-the-job training, allowing them to apply and expand on the knowledge they are getting in school.

AIDAN PATZA

There seem to be fewer and fewer students interested in working in the trades. It gives us the chance to mentor a student who is truly interested in learning more about our industry and the career opportunities that are available."

Patza recently enlisted into the U.S. Marine Corps and will be going to basic training upon graduation. Patza's hobbies are working out and reading literature on personal growth.

"His good work ethic and passion to learn new skills will give Aidan a huge advantage as he graduates and moves on in life," West said.
