Organization for choice school in Mattoon underway

The old elementary school in Mattoon, which hasn't held students since 2016, still houses photos of graduating classes — with some dating back to the 1920s.

Shepherd's Watch helping to bring schooling back to the village

By LUKE REIMER

Reporter

One local Christian organization is working to develop a school in Mattoon.

Wade Reimer, president of Shepherd's Watch in Mattoon, said the organization is working with the community to create a private choice school at the old Mattoon Elementary School, which has not housed classes since 2016.

"Shepherd's Watch is a group of Christians that are looking forward and want to make a change, focusing on our school system and family values," said Reimer.

Reimer noted that a choice school is funded through Wisconsin's school voucher program.

"Parents can decide where some of their tax money goes, which allows their kids to go to a voucher choice school," said Reimer. "It is designed to work for low-income areas."

He said that what comes out of choice schools is better nurturing for children.

Reimer said he is grateful to be involved in the plan to give Mattoon a place where children can learn areas of study that are suited to them without financial restrictions.

"I am actually being rewarded to have this opportunity by our lord and savior," said Reimer. "That alone is reward enough for me."

He called this an opportunity to not only change children's lives, but also his own.

"We want to make a difference," said Reimer. "This is a long-term difference."

The school went out of service after the Antigo School District centralized schooling and began busing kids to Antigo from surrounding villages. The elementary school is currently being used as a community center.

"Back in 2016, this school, along with four other schools, closed in the Antigo system," said Reimer. "This school has sat empty since 2016. My wife and I wanted to do some missionary work. It was so clear to me that there is a mission right in front of me. We have a lot of opportunity here."

According to Reimer, the Antigo School District did not want the competition of another school opening in the area.

"They fought hard to not let us get this school," said Reimer, citing a lengthy legal dispute. "We ended up losing the legal battle."

Shepherd's Watch did not give up, renewing its efforts in the summer of 2021.

"I approached them again, and the time was right and they said that we could do it," Reimer said.

Reimer said Shepherd's Watch is working to get the doors open by the start of the 2023-24 school year.

In Reimer's eyes, he wants to get students back to the basics.

"Let's teach kids how to read and write," said Reimer. "There are so many children that — whether they are falling behind — will get classified as troubled learners or whatever you want to classify them as."

He said this can lead to negative consequences, like bullying.

Reimer said that income levels in family can determine who can attend the choice school. He said the school is not limited to low-income families, as more affluent families can send their children there; however, those parents will foot the bill, rather than the State of Wisconsin.

"Roughly, there are around 20 kids who can come out of the Antigo School District and go to a choice school," said Reimer.

Having a choice school in Mattoon makes sense due to their lack of prevalence around the area, according to Reimer.

"If they decide to go to a choice school, they are going to Antigo. There is also one in Shawano," said Reimer. "Otherwise, you have to go towards Wausau, or further yet."

Those working on getting the school ready are looking for employees and people to help out.

"In June, we have to have administration in place. We have a couple options but are still looking," said Reimer. "We are looking for people from Mattoon and beyond who are interested in helping."

He said that the organization should have a better idea of how many kids will be attending the school in the fall.

"Right now, we want to be very good and efficient in the number of kids that we allow to come to the school," said Reimer. "We don't want to be huge and not be able to do a good job."

Reimer called the school a need for this community, as well as other small communities around the state.

The school is already running a reading program for people within the community.

"We know this is something that has been an issue with the COVID-19 situation going on, where we have many students who are failing in the reading area," said Laurel Collins, Shepherd's Watch vice president. "We decided to go ahead and start it with the idea that if kids are suffering from struggles with virtual learning or they have dyslexic tendencies, we can help them."

She added that the reading program can also act as a niche for the choice school, to set it apart from other schools.

Reimer said that the subjects that would be taught are those to meet state education requirements, including math, English and Social Studies.

"Being a choice Christian school, we don't need to have some of those secular subjects," said Reimer.

He also added that having the school in Mattoon will help the village grow along with the school.

"Bringing a school back here will help to revitalize this town," said Reimer.

Reimer added that he has heard a positive reaction from people in the community toward the school.

The organization will hold a public meeting in March to better explain the school, its plans and goals.

Bond set at $750K for drug homicide

Victim died of fentanyl, methamphetamine and ethanol toxicity

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

Bond was set at $750,000 on Feb. 1 for a Green Bay woman accused of first degree reckless homicide after drugs she had allegedly delivered caused a death.

Stephany L. French, 27, Green Bay, was charged with one count of first-degree reckless homicide by delivering drugs, one count of manufacturing or delivering less than three grams of heroin, one count of manufacturing or delivering less than or equal to three grams of amphetamine, one count of theft from a person or corpse and one misdemeanor count of duty to aid a victim or report a crime in connection with the Sept. 3 incident at the Mohican North Star Casino Resort in the Town of Bartelme.

Shawano-Menominee Circuit Court Judge Katherine Sloma set a preliminary hearing for Feb. 9.

According to the criminal complaint, police from the Stockbridge-Munsee Police Department were dispatched to North Star Casino after security reported that a housekeeper found a deceased male while cleaning rooms.

The housekeeper stated that at 11:05 a.m. he knocked on room 508 and opened the door, because it was after checkout time. The housekeeper said that when he opened the door, he saw a male sitting on the floor. He closed the door, thinking it was a late checkout. At 12:35 p.m., the housekeeper witnessed a woman exiting the room, walking faster than what he perceived as normal. He added that he saw the woman take the stairs, rather than the elevator.

The housekeeper said he went back to the room 30 minutes later and saw the male sitting in the same position, with a lean to the right.

According to the complaint, the man was sitting cross-legged between the bed and the interior wall. There were two cellphone chargers plugged into the wall in front of him. The document also stated that there were three empty plastic cups on his lap and an empty hotel ice container and a head bandanna next to him. The man's clothes were wet and his head was leaning to the right. Shawano County sheriff's deputies found a white powdery residue on the nightstand next to the bed, but no drugs or drug paraphernalia were located in the room.

Hotel registration showed that Lynn French was listed as the man's guest. After searching his vehicle, authorities found paperwork for the owner of the car. After speaking with the owner, he stated that the victim was with his cousin, Stephany French, and alleged that she had a $400 a day heroin habit. The victim's family stated that the victim liked to drink alcohol, but was not a drug user.

A detective stated in the complaint that the woman in the video was identified as Stephany French. The detective ran records on locating the victim's cellphone, which was not in the hotel room. After finding the location of the phone, he did the same thing with French's cellphone records and found that it matched the victim's cellphone.

After French was arrested in De Pere, authorities received a search warrant for French's car. In the car, they found several cellphones, including the one that belonged to the victim. Other things found in the car included a room key to room 508, three drug smoking pipes and a gem pack of drugs. One pipe and the gem pack tested positive for methamphetamine. Also found were narcan kits. Almost 40 ATM receipts were also found in the car, showing that French spent approximately $310 a day between July 22 and Sept. 20.

During French's first interview with the sheriff's department, she stated she did not know the victim, according to the complaint, and in her second interview, she stated that she had trouble remembering the night but said that there were no drugs involved.

According to the complaint, the cause of death from the autopsy report stated that the cause of death was listed as fentanyl, methamphetamine and ethanol toxicity. It said that the toxicity included pulmonary and cerebral edema.

French was once again interviewed, where she again denied involvement, according to the complaint. After the detective told French that there was video surveillance of her entering the room, she continued to deny her involvement. After showing her still photographs depicting her in the hotel, she stated that she didn't know what happened to the victim, according to the complaint.

After the detective explained that people overheat when using methamphetamine, he asked if the cups and ice tray were French's attempt of waking him up or cooling him down. French stated that she poured cold water on the victim to try to wake him up, according to the complaint.

Puffy coats may be a hazard with car seats

Puffy coats may appear to be the perfect amount of insulation to keep your child warm in the coldest of Midwest winters, but they can pose as a safety hazard for little ones in car seats.

The extra padding might feel snug to the child when they're tightly buckled in, but the extra material will compress in a crash and loosen the harness. According to Safe Kids

Wisconsin, a puffy coat adds four inches of slack to car seat harness straps, which greatly increases the risk of injury to children.

"The trick is to find the perfect balance between keeping little ones warm and safe in their car seats," said Amanda Tabin, safe kids and injury prevention coordinator at Aspirus Health. "Consider dressing them in thin layers, hats, mittens, socks or boots, and using the coat or a blanket over the straps of the car seat."

Parents can try this simple coat check, with steps provided by Safe Kids Wisconsin, to ensure a car seat is secure and there is nothing bulky between the child and the straps:

- Put the coat on your child.
- Sit them in the car seat. Buckle and tighten the harness.

- Without loosening the harness, unbuckle it, and remove your child from the car seat.

- Take the coat off.
- Strap your child back into the car seat without adjusting the straps. If the harness is too loose, the coat is too thick to wear under the harness.

For information about keeping children safe in the car, visit www.aspirus.org/passenger-safety.

School board green-lights fundraising

Scoreboard, weight room items, theater sound equipment expected to cost district over $500K

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

The Shawano School District is going to be looking for benevolent donors with big pockets to help finance some big-ticket items for its sports and fine arts programs at Shawano Community High School after the Shawano School Board gave the green light Feb. 7.

The board gave permission for administrators to fundraise for a new scoreboard for the school's football field, new equipment for its weight room and new sound shells and sound equipment for its auditorium. According to Superintendent Randi Anderson, those four items would cost more than $500,000, and they are not currently in the budget.

"These items have been crucial, and they've been identified for the last couple of years," Anderson said. "We'd like to be able to go out and start to fundraise for them. We really want to start moving this forward as we start driving towards that destination district."

Anderson did not give the board specifics on how the district would raise the money, but it could include offering naming rights to bigger donors, if the price is right. In order for that to happen, though, the board would need to develop a policy outlining how and when naming rights could be offered.

"We do not have the funds inside of our district budget to support these items," Anderson said. "They have been a huge priority for the district for the last several years, so we wanted to move them forward."

Anderson told the board that there is a person in the district to "champion" raising the funds.

Board member Jamie Beyer was among those who wanted to know how the district planned to raise such a large amount of money.

"Are you approaching large companies to have naming rights, or is it bake sales and car washes?" Beyer said.

Anderson replied that it could be a "combination" of things but did not specify, although she said there would be more discussion on the "strategy moving forward."

"If we go to naming rights, if that is the direction we go to, then we'll come back with parameters on what that could look like, based off of board policy," Anderson said. "We have to get approval first, and then we'll look at the specifics."

Board president Michael Sleeper noted that the issue of naming rights has come up previously, and he and board member Diane Hoffman noted that there is no policy in place for giving someone naming rights in exchange for a large donation.

"We have denied things in the past because we did not have a policy," Hoffman said. "It has been a discussion for the last seven years, at least — possibly 12. It is something we need to look at. I'm fine with fundraising, but we shouldn't go down an avenue if we don't have something set up."

Sleeper noted that it would be something that the district's policy committee would be looking at in the future.

Board member Mart Grams, prior to voting, said he wanted to make sure these items were only going to be fundraising items and wouldn't be things that taxpayers would have to foot the bill for. He said he has seen other schools succeed with fundraising and wants to see Shawano do the same.

"I don't want this to become a commercial center, like when you watch soccer all over the world and there's 5,000 ads. All you see is the ads and not the team," Grams said. "Also, I would not like it to be, 'Oh, fundraising failed. Now we're going to make the taxpayers pay.' I have a problem with that, like it's a sneaky way of getting stuff in. If you fundraise it, then I agree with it 100%."

Anderson noted that the four items are vital if the school district is going to be one in which families want to enlist their children.

The four items are also part of a longer conversation the district is having about expanding and renovating athletic and fine arts facilities as a whole. The conversation started in February 2020, before the pandemic derailed things. The board was at that time looking at a plan that could cost about $3.3 million, with the potential of tapping into the district's fund balance, which was then sitting at $7 million.

The pandemic forced Wisconsin schools to close less than a month later, and the topic took a back seat to how to keep education going in a pandemic and how to keep schools open. However, in January of this year, discussions on performing arts and athletics facility improvements came up again. It was during a town hall meeting the district had with the community where it was announced that the district is looking at an estimated $26 million in maintenance projects at all the schools over the next 10 years, a time when enrollment is expected to continue to drop.

After that meeting, the district developed an ad-hoc committee of what it calls its stakeholders to look at the facilities and figure out ways to pay for the maintenance projects. The committee met Jan. 31 and is expected to meet again in February. The committee is expected to bring some recommendations to the board sometime in the spring.

Shawano County moving forward with redistricting map

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

The Shawano County Redistricting Committee is moving forward with its proposed redistricting map.

The decision was made during the committee's Feb. 2 public forum and subsequent meeting. With no one from the public giving input, the committee decided to approve the map that was discussed at its Sept. 30 meeting.

During that Sept. 30 meeting, the only change made to the map was in the Town of Angelica, at the suggestion of Angelica supervisors James and Connie Przybylski.

"We would like some consideration on the maps that we sorted through," said James Przybylski. "The total population works out pretty fine. We have quite a few wards and we would like to keep it at a minimum of at least three."

Connie Przybylski said that the Town of Angelica has talked to Shawano County GIS coordinator David Poffinbarger about the proposed redistricting map.

"Right now, we have four ballots that we deal with," she said. "If we condensed to this, we would only have three ballots."

James Przybylski added that a lot of questions come up around election time, with residents asking, "Why should I vote for this person if they are not in my district?"

During this meeting, Poffinbarger said that in the Przybylskis' proposal, the population is almost identical.

There would be a -1.55 deviation to a -1.56 deviation.

A deviation is how far away a district is compared to the ideal population. The ideal population is taking the total number of people in the county and dividing it by the number of districts. The final map must have every district within 5% of the ideal population.

The Shawano County Redistricting Committee voted to forward the proposed redistricting map to the Feb. 26 County Board meeting.

Elected officials getting pay increase

Clerk of courts, sheriff, coroner to get 4% hike first year, then 3% in subsequent years

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

Pay raises are coming for elected officials in Shawano County.

The public safety committee voted Feb. 2 to give a 4% increase in pay to the county coroner, clerk of court and sheriff. The 4% pay increase would go into effect for the first year, while a 3% pay increase would be for every subsequent year. One other change was made that involved the county coroner, Brian Westfahl, as well.

"The biggest change here would be that Brian Westfahl would move to a full-time salary position and not be paid by call," said Administrative Coordinator Jim Davel. "The biggest change is not necessarily the salary, but Brian would be on benefits."

Being on benefits and having a full-time salary would mean that the coroner would get paid to go to meetings and putting together the budget, among other tasks.

Supervisor Theresa Serrano asked why this was not in place in the past.

"I think this has been an evolution as the position has grown," said Davel. "Back in the day, you didn't need a full-time coroner. We are trying to make this not only beneficial to the county, but we have to get people to at least think about running for that office."

The resolution called for a 1.5% pay increase to begin the meeting.

"That's what the last employees got on the budget," said Davel. "If you want to change that, I have no issues with that. If you are going to change it, I would go no lower than 2%. Last time in the budget, we could afford 3%."

Serrano responded with her thoughts on how much of a pay increase there should be.

"I would say 3% across the board for all of these today (clerk of courts, coroner and sheriff)," said Serrano.

Supervisor Tom Kautza said that if they are giving 3% pay increases to county employees, that money could add up quickly.

"If you don't pay the people, they aren't going to do the job," said Serrano. "Then what are you going to do?"

She suggested that to pay the 3% increase, the county should add 3% to the general fund and to get the solar farm working.

"We can't guarantee that we can get this stuff working," said Kautza.

Supervisor Jerry Erdmann reiterated Serrano's point, saying the county has to make an investment in the staff.

Shawano County Chief Deputy George Lenzner said that they cannot keep going down as a county.

"We can tell you that it is harder and harder to find employees," said Lenzner. "There are other counties that are giving bonuses."

Rec marijuana cash cow for Illinois, Michigan

While Wisconsin Legislature considers medical marijuana, neighboring states reap rewards

By NATHAN DENZIN
The Badger Project

Illinois has collected more than $400 million in tax revenue from recreational marijuana sales in 2021, and Michigan has collected nearly $250 million, according to the two states.

Wisconsin still bans the drug in most forms, but the legislature continues to flirt with legalizing medical marijuana.

Minnesota and Iowa have already legalized the drug for medical purposes, though not recreationally.

In the two years since launching its recreational marijuana program, Illinois has received more than half a billion dollars in tax revenue, according to the Illinois Department of Revenue.

Over $100 million of that will finance programs aimed at investing in communities hardest hit by the drug war, with a large chunk going to fund grants for minority communities disproportionately impacted by gun injuries, child poverty, unemployment and incarceration, the state says. About $100 million was deposited into Illinois' general fund.

Funds from cannabis revenue will also go to local governments, a marijuana regulation fund, facilitating the process of expunging criminal marijuana charges, administrative costs, a public health campaign and research on the effects of legalization.

Recreational marijuana tax revenue is described as a "found money" resource, where one previously didn't exist, by Douglas Berman, a law professor at Ohio State University and the director of the Drug Enforcement and Policy Center there.

"If the money is used well, it can do a lot of good," Berman said. "It's not going to fill every pothole or solve every pension crisis, however it can be wonderful for additional resources."

Of the more than $200 million gathered in Michigan, $20 million will be given annually to clinical trials researching the efficacy of marijuana in treating veterans' medical conditions and preventing veteran suicide, according to state documents. Funds will also go to a K-12 school aid fund, repair and maintenance of roads and bridges, and municipalities and counties where marijuana businesses are located.

Under Wisconsin law, marijuana possession is a felony, though the state has legalized products from non-intoxicating cannabidiol, commonly known as CBD, and the growing of hemp.

Marijuana is classified as a Schedule 1 drug both federally and in Wisconsin, meaning the governments officially consider it to have a high potential for abuse, no currently accepted medical use in treatment in the United States and lacking accepted safety for use in treatment under medical supervision.

Other Schedule 1 drugs at the state level include heroin, MDMA and PCP.

"There's this widespread sense that the harms expressed at the outset (of legalizing recreational marijuana) may exist a little bit, but they haven't been as big a deal as you might think," Berman said.

Marijuana legalization has little effect on the crime rate in either direction, according to an ongoing study by the Cato Institute, a libertarian think tank based in Washington D.C., though it notes the data is still limited. A study from the National Bureau of Economic Research found little to no change in traffic crashes in places where cannabis had been legalized.

Wisconsin state Sen. Melissa Agard, D-Madison, has introduced a bill to legalize recreational marijuana in each of the last five legislative sessions, and it has failed each time. When she first proposed the bill in 2014, it received only five co-sponsors, she said. Her 2021 effort lists 40 co-authors and co-sponsors of the bill, all Democrats. Republicans, who have controlled the legislature since 2011, have ignored the bill in committee, where it must pass before going to a full vote in the state Senate.

The state Senate recently took up a bill that increases penalties for a person who uses a butane torch to extract resin from a cannabis plant. Agard introduced an amendment to the bill that would have legalized marijuana in any form. Republicans killed Agard's amendment and passed the initial bill on a 21-12 party-line vote.

"The fact that Wisconsin is an island of prohibition in the Midwest continues to harm folks in our state," Agard said. "At a time when economic recovery is at the tip of everyone's mind, it's really shortsighted that we are not moving policy forward to welcome a billion-dollar industry that's knocking on the door."

Gov. Tony Evers included a provision in his last budget proposal that would have legalized recreational marijuana, but Republicans cut the proposal before passing the budget.

Senate Majority Leader Devin LeMahieu (R-Oostburg) has said the state should wait for the federal government to legalize medical marijuana before doing so.

Assembly Speaker Robin Vos (R-Rochester) has said he is open to medical marijuana, though he wants it legalized in a limited way that doesn't involve "a marijuana shop on every corner."

Last week, state Sen. Mary Felzkowski, R-Irma, and state Rep. Patrick Snyder, R-Schofield, introduced a bill that would create a new state commission to regulate medical marijuana. Physicians who earn certification from the commission would be allowed to prescribe marijuana.

Felzkowski told reporters at a news conference that LeMahieu is "more than willing" to allow a hearing after a similar bill proposed by her failed to gain any traction in 2021.

"We have a trend in this state to look for more natural types of healthcare," Felzkowski said in the news conference. "Empower those who look to natural immunity, natural healthcare, and beefing up our bodies holistically instead of just using a prescription type of medication."

Medical marijuana is very popular in Wisconsin. A 2019 Marquette University Law School poll found 83% of registered voters in Wisconsin backed the idea. A smaller majority, 59%, supported legalizing marijuana recreationally.

"There's always going to be a sort of rural/urban divide when it comes to marijuana because of the politics, but that divide isn't clear in the policy," Berman said. "Rural communities generally support the idea. You can grow and make profit in those rural communities — or they might be using weed too and people don't realize it."

CLUB NOTES

Shawano Optimists

The Shawano Optimist Club held its 19th annual girls basketball tournament on Jan. 29 at Shawano Community High School and Hillcrest Primary School. There were 24 teams in grades 4-8 including local teams and teams from as far away as Menominee, Michigan. Each team was guaranteed three games.

Winners in each grade include fourth grade, Pulaski; fifth grade, Little Chute; sixth grade, Shawano; seventh grade, West De Pere; and eighth grade, Shawano.

Shawano Area Writers

The Jan. 20 meeting of the Shawano Area Writers was held in the Elsie Engel Reading Room at the Shawano Public Library. Members attending were John Mutter, Twilla Beyer, Manuel Moraleda, Irma Brunner, Barb King, Lee Pulaski, Trudy Bosman, Wendy Goerl and Lana Allen, along with visitor Marilyn Kroenke. Marilyn has not written anything yet but hopes to start.

Lee Pulaski, vice president, called the meeting to order. Minutes were approved.

John Mutter presented the treasurer's report, which was approved.

In new business, John Mutter suggested for the writing contest that we raise what the judges are paid. Judges for poetry would receive 50 cents for each poem instead of 40 cents. The judges for fiction and nonfiction would get $1.25 for each story instead of $1. John said that many of the judges would judge for free, but we agreed that even this small amount showed our appreciation for their time and talent. The measure was approved.

John has started contacting schools about the writing contest and has sent 107 emails to the schools. Deadline for all entries is April 1.

Lee Pulaski will mail everyone the information from Untitled-Town about giving a presentation. Instead of having all presentations in one weekend, they are going on throughout the year.

Discussion was held about where in town Shawano Area Writers could give reading presentations.

Wendy Goerl announced her letter about masking was published in the Shawano Leader.

Barb King explained about her efforts to have her book, "Tug Lake Tales," published by a notable publishing company. She was in the process of writing a query letter, outlining the chapters, and preparing the first 20 pages. Although most publishing companies will not accept unsolicited manuscripts, they will accept unsolicited proposals.

Twilla Beyer started the readings by reading two poems, "Big Foot" and "Legend of the Hodag."

Manny Moraleda read a poem he had written for a co-worker on his 90th birthday entitled "Thanks for the Memories."

Irma Brunner read a query letter she is writing to Trilogy Company. She would like 10 plays published in one book.

Trudy Bosomean took a prompt from Writer's Digest to write a poem about a game. Trudy read her poem about the "Do You Remember?" game her family played while

Barb King read a chapter from her mystery, "The Children in the Garden." Jillian is pondering how to get rid of the creepy gnome statues in the front yard. Her neighbor suggests that she advertise that the gnomes are free if the person can remove them from the property. Jillian also asks a friend to sell on eBay all the unopened products that are stuffed in every nook and cranny on the property.

Lee Pulaski read a chapter from his book, "Night of the Hodag." Trent has been given the witch powers his dead grandma had. He's following a hodag and is led into a cave where he encounters a gathering of hodags of all colors. Will they be friendly, or will they attack and tear him to pieces?

Wendy Goerl reads another passage from her series introducing a new character. Alex is deer hunting with a bow and arrow and gets his deer but also encounters a bear.

Lana Allen has been reading a book on writing entitled "Writing Down the Bone" by Natalie Goldberg. Lana read an untitled poem she had written.

Shawano Area Writers meets the third Thursday of every month in the Shawano Public Library at 10 a.m. to noon. The next meeting is Feb. 17.

Contractor for Highway 47 work honored by DOT

Six Wisconsin construction companies received Excellence in Construction Awards at the Wisconsin Department of Transportation's annual Contractor-Engineer Conference held in January in Madison, and one of the awards encompassed a local highway.

The Excellence in Grading Award went to James Peterson Sons Inc., located in Medford, for work on the state Highway 47 project in Menominee County. Successful coordination among the contractor, DOT and the Menominee Indian Tribe of Wisconsin was key to the completion of this 2.5-mile segment of the highway, according to a DOT press release. Strong communication and ability to deliver through complex construction staging needs helped to keep work on schedule and make the project a success.

"Coordination with industry is key to DOT's mission to provide a safe, efficient highway system statewide," said Beth Canestra, director of DOT's bureau of project development. "DOT is fortunate to have strong working relationships with contractors to develop new ideas and innovations that result in great projects. These awards help to recognize a continued commitment to quality and public service."

The contractor for the state Highway 47 project conducted last year in Keshena was recognized with an award from the Wisconsin Department of Transportation. CONTRIBUTED

Bowler boys falter late in loss to Gresham

Panthers outscored 12-2 late in game

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The Bowler High School boys basketball team was on the wrong end of a late 12-2 run during a 58-46 Central Wisconsin Conference-North Division loss to Gresham on Feb. 4 in Bowler.

Bowler had rallied from a 10-point deficit and trailed 46-44 with just over four minutes to play before conference-leading Gresham scored the next 12 points. The Panthers were unable to grab a few 50/50 balls, missed a couple good looks and turned the ball over during that time.

"The biggest thing was we started getting careless with the ball," said Bowler junior Emmitt Kietlinski, on what cost the team down the stretch. "We had a lot of turnovers and mistakes and had a few silly mistakes. We weren't quite getting back on defense like we should have."

Bowler's 8-0 run before Gresham's game-sealing run started with a bucket from Kietlinski. Junior Beau Brunner then hit a 3-pointer before a timeout was called.

Brunner hit another triple after the timeout, but he always saw the break in the action steal the team's momentum.

"We had a team bond there, and then the timeout was called and we kind of lost it — all the momentum and everything," said Brunner.

Even though the result wasn't what the Panthers hoped it would be when the final buzzer sounded, it was a drastic change from the team's 93-43 loss to Gresham back on Dec. 29.

Bowler traded buckets with Gresham in the early stages of the game before using a 13-6 run to create some separation.

The Panthers eventually were able to work the lead out to nine points, but then they surrendered the final 13 points of the half to trail 33-29 at halftime.

"We came out with a game plan with our guys just to try to work the ball around and slow it down and get good offensive possessions," said Kietlinski. "We really worked on a good 2-3 and matchup zone defense to try and hold them. I was really happy with how that worked the first half and most of the game."

Sophomore Danian Schultz and juniors Nathan Webster and Marcus Malone combined for five 3-point makes in the first half for Bowler, something Gresham usually buries teams with. Kietlinski made three buckets and had six points at halftime.

Gresham tried to pull away in the second half, but Bowler always seemed to have an answer.

The visitors went up seven points before Brunner hit a free throw and then a shot to leave Bowler down just four. Gresham had a six-point lead before junior Tristan Thieux and Malone had buckets to make it 38-36.

Bowler went scoreless over the next six-plus minutes, helping Gresham take a 46-36 lead. That's when the Panthers went on their 8-0 run, but another four-plus minute scoring drought eventually left no time on the clock.

Despite the loss, Bowler hopes to use the solid showing against one of the conference's best as a building block for the rest of the season.

"We build off of it by trying our hardest as much as possible and looking back on this game and thinking what could we do better and what we can improve on," said Brunner.

"It gives us a lot of confidence going into the next conference games knowing that we played pretty well — a pretty good game with a team that's at the top of the conference," said Kietlinski.

ATHLETE PROFILE: GAGE SHUMAKER

Tigerton senior a coach's dream

Tigerton High School senior Gage Shumaker returned to the boys basketball team after a couple seasons off and has become a crucial part of the roster.

While the Tigers had just one win through Feb. 6, Shumaker has kept the team upbeat.

"Gage is the type of player every coach hopes to have," said Tigerton Matt Herrbold. "He is a key part of the team, typically coming off the bench as sixth man."

"Gage also has a great personality; he is always upbeat and gives you 100% no matter the score. On a team that has struggled to find much success this season, Gage always has the locker room laughing and smiling. As a player, he has exceeded expectations, not having played his sophomore and junior years."

Shumaker scored six points in the team's game against Northland Lutheran on Feb. 4. He also had four rebounds in that contest.

Shumaker recorded three steals against Tri-County on Dec. 2, Manawa on Dec. 7 and Wisconsin Valley Lutheran on Jan. 4.

M&M's the last thing that needs a makeover

Many of us have a candy or sweet that we enjoy, something that's considered a treat for achieving something, surviving something or something to munch on to pass the time. I'm particularly fond of M&M's, clinging onto the slogan that the milk chocolate will melt in your mouth and not in your hand. The little candies have never really stayed in my hand that long to put the statement to the test, but I digress.

Besides enjoying the chocolates themselves, we've been entertained by the commercials giving the candies animated form. Most of them followed the antics of the red and yellow M&M's, but over the years, the other colors have been given screen time, much to our delight and amusement. Let's face it. We all enjoy something that moves to the beat of a different drum, and if we didn't like the M&M's as they were, I'm sure Mars would have stopped coming up with such commercials ages ago.

Unfortunately, it seems like even our candy is not safe from the realm of political correctness that has implemented a bigger stranglehold on society than ever these days. Mars, the parent company of M&M's, has decided that the colored candies need a makeover — not of the candy itself, thank God, but the way the candies portray themselves in the commercials.

For starters, there will be no more go-go boots for the green M&M, and no more high heels for the brown one. A change in footwear I can live with, but apparently there's going to be a massive rewrite of their personalities, stating in a press release that they hope to showcase "a world where everyone belongs."

When exactly did round, colorful candies make people feel like they're not welcome or wanted? There's a staggering difference between the debate about whether a transgender person should be played by someone who has been comfortable with his or her gender since birth and commercials where chocolate caricatures make us laugh.

Of course, the announcement from Mars didn't stop there. It went on to state that the candy characters' "more nuanced personalities to underscore the importance of self-expression and power of community through storytelling."

Pardon me for just a moment. My mouth needs a thorough scrubbing to get the taste of political correctness out of it.

Once again, we've delved into the procedure where the needs of the one outweigh the needs of the many, where the rest of us must suffer because someone found the previous personalities of the M&M's offensive. I'm a storyteller, and oftentimes I've found — both through journalism and writing fiction — that most folks react better to what they need to know, as opposed to what makes them happy.

There's a fine line between modernizing fictional characters and turning them into symbols for corporate sociopolitical activism. In the press release, the green and brown M&Ms will now "throw shine and not shade" while the red M&M will be "nicer," and the orange M&M, who used to be the paranoid one, will now "embrace his true self."

How exactly are these changes going to convince more people to buy the candy? I personally liked it whenever the green M&M put the smug red M&M in his place. I got a laugh from seeing the not-so-smart yellow M&M try to stuff a brownie into the tiny candies when the company announced the brownie-flavored M&M's. Changes and evolution should always be subtle, not the equivalent of clubbing someone over the head with "values."

If we're going to be inclusive with the M&M's, why are we taking away the genders? Mars has announced that they will no longer be referred to as "Ms. Green" and so on. Men and women do still exist, you know. None of us could have come into being without them.

Inclusivity goes well beyond genders, too. When are we going to see a farmer M&M, herding his chocolates in from the pastures at night? Where are the M&M's in a loving, same-sex relationship? Where's the Native American M&M to symbolize the company's commitment to caring for the earth? When are we going to see a baby M&M? An elderly M&M?

In changing the personalities to try and bring the world together, Mars has actually polarized its audience. I've seen a number of views on the change, although Fox News commentator Tucker Carlson takes the cake. He said: "M&M's will not be satisfied until every last cartoon character is deeply unappealing and totally androgynous. Until the moment you wouldn't want to have a drink with any one of them. That's the goal. When you are totally turned off, we've achieved equity."

Um, Tucker, if you're turned on by little round candies and spend your nights getting liquored up with them, you might want to see a therapist. The rest of us just want to savor them, not have an affair with them.

There are plenty of things in the world that need changing and improvement, but M&M's are not one of them. For goodness' sake, it's chocolate, not the key to world peace. Give us more flavors and more colors if you like, but don't ruin the characters we've all grown to love.

That'll send us all flocking to Skittles.

Future library planning moves forward

County officials hear pitches from firms on what they'd do to update library or build new facility

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

The Shawano County Public Property Committee and Shawano County Library Board are beginning the process to map out the future of the main branch of the Shawano County Library system.

Both panels interviewed three firms Feb. 3 to find out their processes and mindsets when it comes to designing a new library in Shawano. The county is looking at either renovating and expanding the existing facility on South Sawyer Street or finding a location in the city for a new library.

County officials listened to pitches from Engberg Anderson Inc., based in Milwaukee; Ayres Associates, based in Eau Claire; and Somerville Architects and Engineers, based in Green Bay. All three are vying to come up with plans to redesign the library to meet the area's needs over the next 25 years or more.

The current building across the way from Shawano City Hall on Sawyer Street, built in the 1960s, has some serious issues, according to county building maintenance director Steve Dreher, ranging from mechanics to space problems to environmental deficits. A study commissioned by the library board in 2019 determined that the library is going to need a facility double the size of the current building in Shawano to meet the community's needs for the next few decades.

Bill Robison, president of Engberg Anderson, noted that his firm has a history of designing and building libraries as he urged the two committees to hire his firm.

"Thirty-one years ago, the first thing I ever did was a library," Robison said. "Our firm has been doing libraries for its entire history, and we've worked on well over 200 library projects. They're kind of the thread that goes through the entire history of our firm."

Flexibility will be a necessary component, but Robison pointed out that building libraries is not cheap.

"At this point, I would rather you not overspend on the front design process so there are more resources to build the building you want to do," Robison said.

Mark Paschke, an architect with Ayres, told the committees that he hopes to hit the ground running with a facilities assessment utilizing the firm's engineers to look at every space in the library. The report would include information on whether the existing facility could be expanded or if it would be more economical to renovate an existing building or build an entirely new facility.

Paschke noted that new construction could cost the county $200 per square foot, while renovations could be as low as $75 per square foot.

"Libraries are becoming resources for the community in terms of workforce training, that kind of community involvement," Paschke said, noting that one of the libraries that Ayres developed had an incubator facility for start-up businesses to get off the ground.

Jodi Nelson, another Ayres architect, said that her firm would hold community meetings to get information from the public to see what they want in a revamped library. She also advocated posting plans on a website for public feedback, although she noted that method lacked the personal touch.

"We would provide floor plans and site plans, diagrams and other information to get feedback," Nelson said.

Melanie Parma, senior vice president for Somerville, noted that Somerville has been part of northeast Wisconsin for 75 years and that her firm would spend a lot of time getting public participation in the planning process.

"We'll continue to communicate with the community so that they understand what's happening at each phase of the process," Parma said.

Dan Wiitanen, a senior architect with Somerville, noted that libraries are evolving, so the facility that is determined for Shawano will need to be adjustable to conform to the community's needs in the coming decades.

"Libraries are evolving from a place where I can get things to a place where I can do things," Wiitanen said. "You want to attract more users to the Shawano County Library, but still keeping those loyal visitors that come in."

In terms of the cost for the proposals, Engberg Anderson and Ayres bid around $47,000 to $48,000, while Somerville's bid came in just over $12,000, prompting Dreher to ask Parma and her colleagues whether the county would get the same level of research and recommendations that it would get from the other firms.

"We are very relationally driven," Parma said in response to Dreher's inquiry. "We've worked with the county before — you are our neighbors. Our goal would be to build a relationship with you and hope you would be thrilled with our work and want to continue working with us."

Supervisor Deb Noffke, who sits on the public property committee, pointed out that any building is going to need to be one that the taxpayers of the county can afford.

"This isn't an affluent county, which means the library is so important," Noffke said. "Yet, we don't want a huge project that goes down in flames, and then nothing gets done."

The public property committee and library board are planning to meet again after digesting the information and vote on which firm they want to hire at the end of next week.

BOOKS AND STUFF

Sinkholes, intrigue make for suspense

Once again, I selected a book from the middle of a series. This time it was "Florida Sinking," book seven in David Crosby's Will Harper mystery series. This book has so many characters and side stories that it is impossible to do it justice here, so I'll give you a thumbnail sketch.

Will Harper is a well-known Florida journalist. He shares his life and boat with his lady love, Bonnie. His wide circle of friends includes retired a Merchant Marine captain, Rick Hancock, and a PI in training/researcher, Jimmy.

It is no secret that overdevelopment, pollution, invasive species and climate change have wreaked havoc on most of Florida's ecosystem. But rampant development continues.

In this book, Will has been asked to write a series of articles focused on Florida's water issues. He quickly learns that Florida's shrinking freshwater aquifer is only one of the serious problems in the Sunshine State. One of the most recent is the horror of sinkholes. Sinkholes occur when the dissolved limestone creates underground voids. When the surface collapses into the void, it becomes a sometimes-deadly sinkhole.

As Will works in Bradenton, Myron Tandberg in nearby Silver Palms is swept to his death as a sinkhole opens beneath his home. Days later in Crystal Springs, Ron Pendleton's fishpond disappears after a construction crew blasts for a new house in the subdivision next to his property. Ron is told that he has no legal recourse. He is beyond angry and determined to make someone pay.

Further down the coast, Miles Chritton is angry, too. The home inspector refuses to approve plans for his two-story beach house. Don Grufferty is upset when he discovers a sinkhole in the front yard of the home his construction company is building at Brixton Meadows. This could mean financial ruin, so he tells his crew to hide it with a fence until they can fill it with concrete. But due to rain, the hole remains open.

When Will hears about it, he sends Jimmy to investigate. With help from a neighbor, Jimmy obtains drone photos of the ever-widening hole. When Will takes them to Don Grufferty's father, things begin to spiral out of control. Don panics when his father fall into the abyss so he kidnaps Will, takes him to a distant sinkhole and pushes him in.

Amazingly, Will manages to crawl onto a ledge and is rescued by teenagers who hear his whistles for help. As authorities search for Don Grufferty, another crisis arises. Hurricane Toby is nearing land, and Don Grufferty kidnaps Rick, steals a boat and tries to escape.

Even with Rick's expertise he can't take the boat into the open ocean and manages to anchor in a cove. Outside Miami, Miles Chritton has hired PI Rocco Russo to get dirt on the home inspector's daughter Elena so he can bribe the man.

When she gets into a dangerous situation, Rocco steps in. He gives her his phone number and quits his job with Miles. Furious, Miles abducts Elena. With the hurricane howling, he takes her to his high-rise condo. She manages to contact Rocco and he braves the storm to try to find her.

Our planet is in trouble. It has taken centuries for it to happen, and it will take lots of money and sacrifices to save it, but we can do it if we really want to. Learn more through your public library's many resources. This is a good time to check it out.

Aspirus debunks myths about hypothyroidism

Nearly 5 out of 100 Americans ages 12 and up have hypothyroidism, though the disease is most common in women over the age of 60, according to the National Institute of Diabetes and Digestive and Kidney Diseases.

Hypothyroidism is an underactive thyroid gland, which means that the gland doesn't make enough thyroid hormones to keep the body running normally. In most patients, it is a permanent condition that requires lifelong treatment in the form of daily thyroid hormone replacement medication.

"People feel that because they've been diagnosed with hypothyroidism, they should always experience symptoms such as fatigue and weight gain, but that is not the case," said Nicole Stodola, advanced practice nurse practitioner at Aspirus Endocrinology Clinic. "Many of the symptoms people feel on a daily basis can be attributed to other unrelated issues. When hypothyroidism is treated properly, people can live well and feel well."

There are five common myths about hypothyroidism, debunked with help from the American Thyroid Association:

• Everyone with hypothyroidism has fatigue: Although fatigue is one of the early signs of hypothyroidism, once thyroid hormone is properly replaced and levels return to normal, the fatigue should resolve. If fatigue is ongoing, you may want to investigate other possible causes such as stress, poor sleep, nutrition, exercise, and other chronic medical conditions.

• It's impossible to lose weight with hypothyroidism: The truth is, weight loss is difficult for many patients with and without thyroid disease. Metabolism starts to slow in your late 30s and early 40s, and can make it harder to lose weight. It's easy to point to one particular problem and blame weight gain on that one diagnosis. In reality, weight gain is a sensitive topic and is typically caused by several factors. If thyroid hormone is adequately replaced, the hypothyroidism is most likely not a contributing factor.

• More thyroid hormone is better: A lot of patients believe that more thyroid hormone means more energy and weight loss. In reality, taking too much thyroid hormone can be harmful and lead to symptoms such as increased appetite, insomnia, shakiness, and heart palpitations. If patients take too much thyroid hormone for an extended period of time, it can also lead to osteoporosis and heart disease. It's important to find the right dose for what your body needs.

• You can manage hypothyroidism with diet: Healthy diet and exercise are important for all patients and can alleviate some medical conditions but, that is simply not the case with hypothyroidism. There is no evidence to support diets such as gluten free diets, anti-inflammatory diets, and iodine-rich diets to treat hypothyroidism.

The most common form of hypothyroidism in the United States is Hashimotos, an autoimmune disease that causes chronic inflammation of the thyroid gland and unfortunately is not reversible with dietary changes. Although diet alone cannot improve thyroid function, eating a well-balanced, nutrient-rich diet and exercising regularly can help improve your overall health, which can lead to improvements in symptoms such as fatigue and weight gain.

• Natural thyroid hormone is better: There are several thyroid hormone medications that are advertised as being "natural" and are available by prescription, such as desiccated, or dried, thyroid extract from pigs or cows. These medications are not completely purified and can contain other hormones and proteins that do not typically exist in the body outside of thyroid tissue.

They also contain chemical stabilizers and binders to hold the pills together, so they are not completely natural as they are often advertised. In fact, they can result in too much of the thyroid hormone T3, which can cause symptoms such as heart palpitations, anxiety, tremors, and insomnia. Over an extended period of time, it can also lead to chronic health conditions such as osteoporosis and heart failure. This is why most endocrinologists suggest a T4 therapy with daily levothyroxine/Synthroid as first line treatment for hypothyroidism.

If you are experiencing any of the symptoms typically associated with hypothyroidism, talk to your doctor.

Study says medical misinformation can be damaging

Medical research is complex and often oversimplified when reported, and people may not look past the headline of an article or encounter misleading information in comments sections.

A case study published in April 2021 by First Draft, a nonprofit misinformation organization, found that up to 26% of comments on a news organization's posts that featured the word "vaccine" contained misinformation about the COVID-19 pandemic or vaccines.

Dr. Jacob Prunuske has been a physician for more than 20 years and has supervised Aspirus physician residents for the past six years. He says that being able to identify reliable sources is vital.

"There's a lot of misinformation on the internet right now and there are ways of identifying it," Prunuske said. "What are the credentials of who is providing the information? Does the information align with other sources, and what is the reputation of the source? Can you actually contact the organization or is it just some blog post?"

Additional changes to health and safety guidelines should be expected as we continue to learn more about COVID-19. But without sufficient communication that provides clarity and context, many people will have had trouble keeping up with changing knowledge and guidance.

"That's how science works. Over time, we gather more data to make better decisions," Prunuske said. "I think it's important for all of us to stay up to date as information evolves."

Medical misinformation has caused confusion and led people to decline COVID-19 vaccines, reject public health measures, and use unproven treatments. For example, a study published in the Nature Human Behavior journal showed that even brief exposure to COVID-19 vaccine misinformation made people less likely to want a COVID-19 vaccine.

This is especially true when people accept misinformation as fact because it confirms their existing beliefs or theories, commonly known as confirmation bias.

"We should be intentional about asking ourselves what biases we might have and how does it influence me reading these articles," Prunuske said, "and being conscious and checking if I need to consider a different perspective."

There are some things that individuals, families and communities can do to help stop the spread of medical misinformation:

• Learn how to identify and avoid sharing health misinformation. Verify accuracy of information by checking with trustworthy and credible sources. If you're not sure, don't share.

• Engage with your friends and family on the problem of health misinformation. If someone you care about has a misperception, you might be able to make inroads with them by first seeking to understand instead of passing judgment.

• Address health misinformation in your community. Work with schools, community groups such as churches and parent-teacher associations, and trusted leaders such as educators and health care professionals to develop local strategies against misinformation.

"I think the most important thing is to be curious, be inquisitive, be willing to change your views based on data and science," Prunuske said. "And then check in with your physician or a public health professional to see if you're heading down the right path."

Aspirus Health recommends people receive their health information from their local health care providers, reputable news sources and agencies devoted to public health such as state and local health departments, the National Institutes of Health (NIH) and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, among others.
