Wittenberg massage therapist wins chamber award

Down to Earth Healing and Massage named Member of the Year

By MIRIAM NELSON
News Editor

BIRNAMWOOD—Each year at its annual banquet, the Wittenberg Area Chamber of Commerce presents a Member of the Year award to a business that has shown growth and enhancement to the economic health and quality of life to the area.

Kristy McRae, owner of Down to Earth Healing and Massage in downtown Wittenberg, received the 2019 award Saturday, recognizing the growth of her business and her interest in and attendance at other community events. McRae has worked with several businesses to offer her healing services.

“She brings a big city health benefit to a small town area,” said Sally Jo Stevens, chamber president.

“I’m deeply honored and humbled by the award and makes me feel even more welcomed by the community,” said McRae, who moved to the area about 20 years ago from Upper Michigan.

She started her practice in 2014 while transitioning to working part-time in a dentist’s office. McRae noted that her business grew incredibly fast through word of mouth and the referrals from loyal clients.

Trained in a variety of massage styles, McRae is able to incorporate several techniques to best help her clients. She offers massage cupping, which involves placing cups on the skin to create suction and help reduce pain and inflammation. Neuro-muscular release is retraining the muscle memory so the feeling of a muscle “knot” goes away. Ashiatsu massage involves her standing on top of the massage table and, with the assistance of railings attached to the ceiling, she walks on the body, offering better control and a deeper massage.

“I’m honored every day that the community has trusted me to offer these unique services. I’m grateful for all the friendships I’ve made,” said McRae.

Recently she took the opportunity of renovating an existing building. She received a grant from the Wittenberg Area Development Corp. to help with some of the cost. McRae acknowledged she was also grateful for all the time and effort her husband, Scott, provided in the renovation project.

“He worked tirelessly to help me get the building ready, on top of working his full-time job at Greenheck in Schofield,” said McRae.

the needs of her clients by hosting classes and bringing in guest speakers and teachers. She said she would like to do even more work with the young and the elderly.

McRae lives on a hobby farm in Birnamwood with Scott and their two daughters, Madalyn and Vivian.

Uttecht joins effort to rally against abortion

Six locals attend March For Life rally in Washington, D.C.

By MIRIAM NELSON
News Editor

(Editor's note: The Wittenberg Enterprise and Birnamwood News recently sat down with Mary Uttecht, of Galloway, who attended the March For Life rally in Washington, D.C., in January.)

Q: Who went and what was your connection to each other?

A: I brought my daughter, Hope. Crystal Bushman brought her son, Aiden, and Suzi Kaminski brought her son, Cody. We're all from the Galloway/Rosholt area.

Q: Have you attended an event like this before?

A: I have attended the March for Life seven times before this. It was Hope's, Crystal's and Suzi's second time and Aiden and Cody's first time. This was the largest crowd I think I have ever experienced before. Part of it was because for the first time in 47 years, the president of the United States appeared live at the event.

Q: What was your itinerary for the trip?

A: We departed Stevens Point on Wednesday, Jan. 22, on one of six buses, a total of 273 people, that the Catholic Diocese of LaCrosse had arranged. We were able to tour the Flight 93 Memorial in Stoystown, Pennsylvania, around 9 a.m. on Thursday, went to Mass at the St. John Paul II National Shrine in Washington, D.C., later that day.

Friday, Jan. 24, we attended a youth rally with Mass at the Eagle Bank Arena in Fairfax, Virginia, with thousands of youth and adults before attending the March for Life to the Capitol. It was estimated that 600,000 people attended the march that traveled from the National Mall to the Supreme Court steps, where Roe v. Wade was passed on Jan. 22, 1973.

Q: What did you experience at the event?

A: Before the march, there was a rally on the National Mall with pro-life speakers, senators and the president of the United States. Along the march, we visited with many other marchers. One was a young 12-year-old girl with cerebral palsy being pushed in a wheelchair by her mother holding a sign. Another one was a young man around 6 years old with Down syndrome marching with his family.

Q: What impressed you the most about the event and how it was handled?

A: One of the things that has impressed me, this and every other year I have attended, is the fact that everyone is so loving and cheerful. There aren't any hateful things being shouted. The only yelling you hear are some chants the young people have created such as "We love babies. Yes, we do. We love babies. How about you?" or many groups walking and praying as they walk.

As you walk the route, you pass or walk with many groups of people. At one point, you may be praying, and the next you may be chanting a fun chant to see which group can be the loudest. About 70-80% of the marchers are youth ages 13-25 or so, all extremely respectful and peaceful.

Q: Why was it important for you to attend from an individual and/or historical point of view?

A: I actually debated attending this year because of all the political upheaval and the fact that most pro-life people support our president, and that isn't looked upon kindly at all times. So I had debated that for safety reasons, maybe we should avoid Washington, D.C., this year. With some encouragement from my husband, I decided to go ahead with the trip.

On Wednesday as we were traveling is when we found out the president would appear live, and it was then that I realized how historic this event would be this year. I have been very pro-life for a long time but since adopting Hope 13 years ago, I have a very strong tie to adoption as a real option in lieu of abortion.

The March for Life rally on Jan. 24 in Washington, D.C., included Mary Uttecht and daughter Hope, Suzi Kaminski and son Cody, and Crystal Bushman and son Aiden. They are friends and members of St. Joseph's Church in Galloway.

While on the march, Hope pointed out a poster that someone was carrying that said, "18 years ago my mom chose adoption instead of abortion." She looked at me and said, "That could be my sign, too." I was also touched by one of the speakers that said not only do we want to reverse Roe v. Wade, more importantly we need to help people see that abortion is unthinkable so that legal or not, it won't be sought out.

Q: Were you able to speak with any Wisconsin senators or representatives while you were there?

A: For the first time in many years, we were not able to speak with any senators or representatives. Sean Duffy, the former U.S. representative for Wisconsin's Seventh Congressional District, had always invited us to his office for a social and time to talk with him. We did not receive any invites this year to do that, and I personally did not seek out anyone.

Awards were given at the Art of the Quilter show at the WOWSPACE

There were four awards presented at the Art of the Quilter VI: Keep Me in Stitches quilt show at the Walls of Wittenberg WOWSPACE. The quilt show, which was open weekends from Jan. 18 through Feb. 2, featured 37 quilts.

The show included the quilted creations of 22 different quilters from 12 different cities as well as an antique baby quilt and a redwork signature quilt on loan from the Wittenberg Area Historical Society.

The three Peoples' Choice awards were presented based on approximately 160 votes cast by visitors to the show who were asked to vote for the quilt which appealed to them the most.

First place went to Debra Court of Black Creek, for "Memories of Vietnam". Second place was awarded to Mary Beth Koeppel of Wittenberg, for "Galaxy of Geese". Third place was awarded to Gloria Kohn of Birnamwood, for her quilt titled "Tumbling Stars".

Linda Krueger, owner of Pinery Patches in Tigerton, received the Award of Excellence for her quilt titled "Christmas Street". This award was voted on by the quilters with quilts in the show. Quilters based their decision on technical skill.

Linda Krueger, owner of Pinery Patches in Tigerton, received the Award of Excellence for her quilt titled "Christmas Street". This award was determined by a quilter's choice vote of the quilters with work in the show. Their decision recognizes the high level of technical skill employed by the quilter.

First place went to Debra Court of Black Creek, for "Memories of Vietnam". This quilt was made from old army uniforms worn by her husband, Robert, during his basic training and service in Vietnam. This quilt will one day be passed down to her two sons.

CONTRIBUTED

Second place was awarded to Mary Beth Koeppel of Wittenberg, for "Galaxy of Geese". Her quilt was made of 1930's reproduction fabrics in a variety of pastels and includes 476 Flying Geese units in the overall design.

CONTRIBUTED

Third place was awarded to Gloria Kohn of Birnamwood, for her quilt titled "Tumbling Stars" which she refers to as a "Someday Quilt" for her oldest granddaughter, who will receive it either as a wedding gift or housewarming gift for her first house.

'Let the games begin' should not be our political objective

Sadly, many people view politics as a winner-take-all type of game. I suppose a lot of that attitude has developed over the years and comes from our political contenders and the rhetoric they spew forth, hoping to elicit a herd mentality to bring voters to booths or keep them away in droves. Our system has become money-driven, and getting the Republican or Democratic party to support you means access to financial support and money to make it through a long election process. Being on a winning team seems more important than making significant change for the greater good.

In my mind, it's become a sad state of affairs when we as voters are so constantly bombarded with misinformation that we can't seem to make an intelligent decision.

People like and need to feel an emotional connection to something; it doesn't matter if it's joy and bliss or if it's anger and rage. Feeling equals upfront, but you could also consider the source, check the tone in what was being said and read the body language of what wasn't. It was easier to determine if you truly wanted to believe what you heard. You then had to make the decision of whether or not you wanted to pass that information — and to which friends, relatives or enemies.

Now, with the influence of the internet, there is no longer that face-to-face interaction. You no longer see how you may have cut someone to the quick with a brash and reckless opin-living, and we all want to think our existence is important.

It used to be mouth-to-ear gossip was the mode of transportation for manipulation and misinformation. It was personal and ion. Sure, some people may respond with a retaliatory response and a battle of words ensues, but we miss out on the opportunity to connect on a more personal level. You also miss out on the opportunity to be kind, compassionate and respectful.

It used to be that our representatives in Washington spent more time together, because travel wasn't as accessible as it is now. They got to know each other, talk about their concerns and come up with solutions together. Now the work has shifted from doing the work of governing the nation to the work of getting reelected. It's more important to win than it is to work.

I try not to censor or unfriend any of my internet connections. I have friends and acquaintances who are very vocal about their political opinions. Some I agree with, and some I don't. One thing I've found interesting is that the people on polar opposites of the political scale often have the same basic belief system. They will put out a feel good thought, or a common sense type message that addresses a core belief about the importance about being good, fair, kind or respectful. As long as it doesn't have a political choice attached to it, I will share it.

I like to get my information from a variety of sources. It's important to me because the world of information is oftentimes propelled for its entertainment value. It's hard to form an opinion if you only follow one point of view.

I'd like to say I'm excited for this election year, but I'm not quite ready for the negative campaigns that have already started blasting away. Still, I hold my right to vote very dear and hope the rest of America can remember we need to be voting for the greater good, and not our "favorite" team.
