'Rebuilding season' turns into playoff appearance

Young core works through season-long ups and downs to reach postseason

By LUKE REIMER
Green & Gold Express

In what was supposed to be a rebuilding season, the Green Bay Packers, led by first-year starting quarterback Jordan Love, have clinched a wild card spot and the seventh seed in the NFC Playoffs.

Coming into the season, it seemed fairly unlikely that this iteration of the Green Bay Packers would be able to come anywhere close to sniffing a playoff spot.

With a core of a first-year starting quarterback, a wide receiver room where no player had more than one year experience and a defense that had a lot to prove, Green Bay was able to win when it mattered, including wins against the Detroit Lions, New Orleans Saints, Minnesota Vikings and Chicago Bears.

How was that possible though? While a lot of credit has to go to the development and improvement of Love as a passer, there was also the emergence of players like Jayden Reed, Bo Melton, Devonte Wyatt and Isaiah McDuffie. There were no Pro Bowl selections for the Packers this year, meaning that there was not one player who was dominant. It was a team effort and the belief from the players, coaches and front office that the playoffs were an actual possibility.

"You guys see it every week. He has stepped up when his number has been called, and that is really all you can do in that position," said Love, on the improved play from Melton. "I think he has been making some huge plays for us over the last couple of weeks and just stepped up into a role that we needed him to step into."

That comment about Melton from Love can probably translate to a variety of players. That idea of just being ready when their number is called has done wonders for this team, and Melton's success has sort of become a microcosm for where this Packers team is at.

With how young the team was, the beginning of the season, and even into the middle of the season, was tumultuous.

There was a few game stretch where the Packers lost games on last play interceptions. There were games where the team couldn't complete a pass to the middle of the field. There were games where the defense looked like it didn't belong in the NFL.

But through all of that, no one faltered, and no one gave up on the season, leading to an improbable run to the playoffs.

"I think (the season) is rewarding in the fact that everyone counted us out," said Packers head coach Matt LaFleur. "We were struggling and we held it all together, and to get here was special. Our last regular season game at home, to have that kind of environment – a lot of times during the national anthem, you just kind of look around and say, 'Wow, this is really special.'"

With that being said, there is still a lot of football yet to be played for the Green Bay Packers. That comes this weekend when the team has to travel to Dallas to face a familiar face in Mike McCarthy.

The Cowboys have shown that they are one of the better teams in the NFL all season, but there is no reason why Green Bay can't win this game. Like the Kansas City Chiefs game, or the Detroit Lions game, Green Bay is going to be the underdog, but to beat Dallas, it has to keep that mentality of playing as a team and having everyone buy into what LaFleur and his staff are selling.

The playoffs are almost like a reset on the season. No matter how good or bad a team played throughout the season, it sits atop the 14 best teams in the NFL. The Packers are just that – a top-14 team in the NFL.

While it may be on the bottom end of that top 14, it is not a guarantee that the lowest seed in the NFL doesn't win a Super Bowl. Look at Green Bay's most recent Super Bowl victory. It came in as a six-seed and won three games on the road en route to beating the Pittsburgh Steelers in the Super Bowl.

Now, obviously, this team is much different than that 2011 team, but just as everyone counted that year's team out, everyone was counting this team out.

"It was tough – a 2-5 start – but the main thing that we did was stick together," said Love. "Everybody came into the building finding ways to try and get better, improve themselves and make the team better, so it has obviously been a process for us. It hasn't been easy. There have been a lot of ups and downs, but we stuck together, were able to get on a win streak and put ourselves into this position, so credit to everyone in the locker room."

Once again, that all starts this weekend with the Dallas Cowboys.

Packers clinch playoff spot after beating Bears

Quarterback Jordan Love reaches 4,000 passing yards, running back Aaron Jones becomes sixth player in Green Bay history with 8,000 career yards

Green Bay Packers head coach Matt LaFleur boosted his record against the Chicago Bears to 10-0, as the Packers beat the Chicago Bears in a 17-9 victory at Lambeau Field on Jan. 7 to clinch a wild card spot in the NFL Playoffs.

Quarterback Jordan Love finished the game completing 27-of-32 passes for 316 yards and two touchdowns. The big day from Love put him over the 4,000-yard milestone on the season.

Dontayvion Wicks was on the receiving end of both touchdown passes from Love.

Jayden Reed was the biggest benefactor of Love's big day, as the Michigan State alum totaled 112 yards on four receptions. Bo Melton had another big day for the offense, as he totaled 62 yards on five receptions.

As for the run game, Aaron Jones led the attack, rushing for 111 yards on 22 carries.

"I think that we have been getting better every game," said Love, on the state of the offense heading into the playoffs. "Every week, we are finding ways to improve and get better, and now we are in the dance. So we are going to continue doing the same thing that we have been doing and try to find ways to get better, but I like where our offense is moving. We are moving in the right direction."

The Packers' defense made life difficult for Bears quarterback Justin Fields and company. Fields completed 11-of-16 passes for 148 yards. Khalil Herbert was the leading rusher for Chicago on the day, recording 28 yards on 12 carries. Superstar receiver D.J. Moore was held to just 64 yards on four receptions.

The Bears opened the game with a 10-play drive that resulted in a 50-yard field goal from kicker Cairo Santos. Green Bay responded with a 12-play, 52-yard drive. During the drive, Jones accounted for 34 rushing yards, while Wicks caught a 19-yard reception. After Love was sacked on third-and-6 from the Bears' 15-yard line, Anders Carlson was asked to attempt a 41-yard field goal, which sailed wide left.

The Packers made up for the missed field goal as the defense forced Chicago to punt. Taking over at their own eight-yard line, Love and the offense moved quickly. On the second play of the drive, Love connected with Reed for a 32-yard gain. A few plays later, Melton picked up 10 yards, and then Jones added another 12 on the ground. Facing a third-and-one from Chicago's 10-yard line, Love dropped back and connected with Wicks for a 10-yard touchdown to score the first touchdown of the game.

After Santos connected on another field goal, this time from 39 yards out, Green Bay took over from its 25-yard line with 1:17 left in the second half. The offense immediately moved down the field, with Love connecting with Melton to gain 24 yards. With an added 13-yard reception from Jones, Green Bay found itself with a first-and-10 from the Chicago 38-yard line. Two plays later, Love tested fate and threw a jump ball to the corner of the end zone, which was almost intercepted by a Bears defender. Insult added to injury for Green Bay, as Love connected with Wicks for a three-yard gain, but the referee ruled that Wicks was tackled in bounds and the clock struck zero to go into halftime. Though Green Bay did not have an opportunity to attempt a field goal, the Packers still led 7-6.

"That last play, we had double out routes called on both sides, and when I got the snap, I felt the corner tricking it pretty hard. So I wish that I would have just thrown it out of bounds," said Love. "I threw it to Wicks, and the DB made a great play and tackled him going backwards. So that is a play that I will learn from and just stash that in the memory bank and move forward."

Coming out of halftime, Green Bay immediately got a spark, as the team moved 46 yards in four plays. Marching down to the Bear's 12-yard line, Love connected with Wicks for the rookie receiver's second touchdown of the game.

"He is just resilient," said LaFleur, on how he was able to perform so well in a playoff-like environment. "Those are things that you cannot coach. You can sit there and talk about it until you are blue in the face; however, that is something that he possesses, and I admire him for that."

On Chicago's ensuing drive, Fields and the Bears' offense used its rushing attack to work down to the Packers' 48-yard line. Faced with third-and-seven, Packers linebackers Quay Walker and Rashan Gary and defensive lineman Karl Brooks sacked Fields for a three-yard loss, forcing Chicago to punt.

Green Bay capitalized on the forced punt, as it rode Jones and Melton to 24 yards on the first five plays of the drive. With the ball at midfield, Love rolled left and ran up field, but was hit by Bears defensive back Tyrique Stevenson and fumbled the football, which was recovered by Chicago.

Taking over at its own 42-yard line, Chicago was faced with a third-and-seven. Fields dropped back and completed a 12-yard pass to Moore to pick up a first down. As Moore dropped to the ground to make the catch, it appeared the ball moved in his hands, which resulted in LaFleur throwing the red challenge flag. The play was upheld, and Green Bay was penalized with a timeout. Fields responded on the next play, by rolling to his left and firing a 27-yard strike to tight end Cole Kmet, to set up first-and-10 from the Green Bay 17-yard line. Two plays later on third-and-10, Fields' pass intended for Kmet was broken up by Packers defensive back Carrington Valentine, setting up a 35-yard field goal from Santos.

Leading 14-9, Love connected with Reed on the first play of the drive for a 59-yard gain down to the Bears' 13-yard line. On third-and-four from the Bears' seven-yard line, Love fired a dart to the back of the end zone intended for Melton.

As Melton came to the ground, the ball appeared to be bobbled and it was called an incomplete pass. After the referees got together to discuss the call, the ruling was changed to a touchdown. Upon further review, it was ruled that Melton did not possess the ball before stepping out of bounds, and Green Bay was forced to settle for a 25-yard field goal from Carlson.

Chicago responded by driving down to the Packers' 43-yard line where, on third-and-five, Fields' pass was batted down, setting up a fourth-and-five. Gary jumped offside, and Chicago was awarded a first down. While Chicago picked up the first down, Fields was forced to leave the game, stemming from a hit earlier on the drive. He was only forced to miss one play, though, and after a holding call, Brooks sacked Fields to set up a third-and-22 from midfield. Fields' next pass was thrown too high, and Chicago was once again forced to punt.

Backed up to its own five-yard line, Green Bay eventually faced a third-and-two from its own 14-yard line. On the crucial down, Love once again connected with Reed, this time for 15 yards. After Reed's reception, Green Bay rode the legs of Jones for 14 yards, before facing a third-and-seven from its own 43-yard line. On the third-down play, Love stepped up in the pocket, rolled to his right and threw a pass across his body, which connected with tight end Tucker Kraft to pick up the much-needed first down.

Green Bay picked up one more first down to ice the game, as three kneel downs from Love put the Packers into the playoffs. During the last drive of the game, Jones became the sixth player in Green Bay history to reach the 8,000 total yard mark.

Green Bay will now take on the Dallas Cowboys after the Los Angeles Rams beat the San Francisco 49ers in Week 18, setting up a matchup against former Packers head coach Mike McCarthy.

"It is going to be great for our team, in terms of we have to go on the road and earn it," said LaFleur. "Certainly going to Dallas is not going to be an easy task. I have got a lot of respect for what Coach McCarthy has been able to establish there - they have a lot of great players ... so we are going to have to be at our best to go down there and come away with a victory."

Aaron Jones became the sixth player in Green Bay history with 8,000 career yards. Against the Bears, he rushed for 111 yards on 22 carries. GREG MELLIS | GREEN & GOLD EXPRESS

KEYS TO THE GAME

Packers will be pressed to outscore Dallas in wild card playoff game

By JACOB WESTENDORF
Green & Gold Express

The Green Bay Packers are in the playoffs.

Less than a year after making seismic changes to their organization, and less than three months after falling to 2-5, the Packers are now 9-8 and headed to the postseason for the first time since 2021.

The Dallas Cowboys are the NFC's No. 2 seed by virtue of being the NFC East Division champions and are coming off a dominant win over the Washington Commanders to earn that division title.

The Packers rode a 300-yard passing day from Jordan Love and a suffocating defense to a 17-9 win over the Chicago Bears at Lambeau Field.

A year after losing to Detroit in the same scenario, the Packers redeemed themselves just one year later.

The Cowboys are a different challenge. The Bears' offense, despite its fanfare, is not a good one.

The Cowboys are a good offense. They're even better at home. Dak Prescott is likely to finish in the top five of MVP voting and may even win it.

He led the league in touchdown passes this season.

They're powered by superstar receiver CeeDee Lamb to carry their offense and still have a strong running game with Tony Pollard.

Of course, the highlight of this match-up is former Packers coach Mike McCarthy taking on his former team on the opposing sidelines.

Dontayvion Wicks caught a 10-yard touchdown pass and a 12-yard touchdown pass from Jordan Love in the Packers 17-9 win over the Bears.

GREG MELLIS | GREEN & GOLD EXPRESS

The Packers' path this week is simple. If they win, they'll have a date in San Francisco next week as they'll be the low-est remaining seed.

Here is what the Packers need to do to earn themselves another week.

Jaire Alexander vs. CeeDee Lamb

Jaire Alexander has had a tumultuous month to say the very least. Alexander has bounced in and out of the lineup with a shoulder injury that has cost him most of his season.

Then upon his return to the lineup, he inserted himself as a game day captain, which led to a suspension before the Packers played the Minnesota Vikings on New Year's Eve.

Alexander seemed remorseful once he was activated from the suspension list and said he'd work on the things that he needs to be better at.

Alexander was stellar in his return to the lineup against Chicago. DJ Moore had one big play that looked like a coverage bust, but otherwise Alexander kept him quiet most of the day.

His second career interception came in Dallas when Prescott targeted Amari Cooper. Alexander was in the right place at the right time.

This week, he'll be matched up with one of the best receivers in football. Lamb was a popular name for the Packers to target in a trade up during the 2020 NFL Draft when they selected Jordan Love.

Instead, the Cowboys took Lamb, and he has ascended to the top of the NFL.

He finished the year with more than 1,700 yards receiving and 12 touchdowns.

If the Cowboys need a big play, they are targeting him.

For the criticisms that have followed McCarthy, one thing is certain, he knows how to get his best playmakers the ball.

It'll be up to Alexander, who will likely want this assignment, to slow him down and make other players beat him.

Aaron Jones vs. Cowboys' defense

For all the conversation about the young offense that has ascended, which is completely deserved, the Packers' best player is still one of the oldest guys on their offense.

Aaron Jones looks like he has not lost a step at 29 years old.

He's piled up more than 100 yards rushing each of the last three weeks. Last week's game was particularly impressive as the Bears defense was the top-ranked unit in the NFL against the run.

Jones ran for more than five yards a carry and piled up 111 yards on 22 carries.

Perhaps what is more important is that Jones has not been limited by either injury or coaches' decision.

Jones was the only running back to carry the ball in Sunday's win over the Bears. With AJ Dillon potentially still limited, the Packers will need to give the Cowboys a healthy dose of Jones again.

The path to victory for Green Bay this week is to limit possession for Dallas' high-powered offense. Controlling the clock might be an old school mentality, but it might require some old schools of thought with a sprinkle of new school to get the Packers on to the second round.

Jones' breakout performance came in Dallas as a rookie, so this is a bit of a full circle moment for him.

Jordan Love vs. Dak Prescott

These lines always seem a little silly. No, the quarterbacks are not physically facing each other. They'll never share the field at the same time.

That being said, a quarterback always knows who is on the other sideline. Tom Brady used to say that he knew he would probably need to put up points if he were facing Peyton Manning.

That's true this week for Jordan Love. Love has played well down the stretch. He has not thrown an interception since early December when the Packers lost to the New York Giants.

He threw two more touchdown passes Sunday against Chicago and looks in complete command of the offense.

He'll be facing a Dallas offense that can put up points in bunches. Prescott has ascended to one of the best quarterbacks in football this season and will likely find success against Green Bay's defense that has struggled this season.

Love will need to put up points. The rest of the offense will need to help him as well. They scored 17 points but could have easily had more if they held on to two passes that were in their hands.

This isn't a game where the defense is going to hold Dallas to less than 20 points. Love needs to be ready to match Prescott.
