Retzlaff still MIA weeks after warrant issued

Law enforcement has made trips to her property without finding her

By LEE PULASKI

City Editor

The owner of Annie's Campground, accused of felony charges stemming from a police chase in May 2021, is still not in custody, despite a bench warrant issued by Shawano-Menominee County Circuit Court Judge William Kussel Jr.

The body-only warrant was issued for Ann Retzlaff on Nov. 23 after she skipped court. It was the second time Kussel had issued a bench warrant for Retzlaff — the first time took place Oct. 26, with Retzlaff being arrested the next day and immediately posting bond.

However, this time, Retzlaff has eluded law enforcement. According to Shawano County Sheriff's Department Chief Deputy George Lenzner, deputies have made multiple trips to Retzlaff's property to serve the warrant and take her into custody, but there has been no answer at the door. Because the warrant is body-only, law enforcement cannot enter any private property to look for her, but she is fair game if she is sighted in public.

"Around the holidays, we were informed that she was out of the area," Lenzner said. "The last time we were out there (at the campground), the gate was shut and locked. You can't even get in there."

Lenzner noted the sheriff's department has received reports that Retzlaff was somewhere in southern Wisconsin. Law enforcement has spoken with relatives, he added, in an attempt to locate her.

"Right now, she doesn't want to be found yet," Lenzner said. "All we can do is keep tracking and keep trying."

He added it's possible that Retzlaff might not be caught until the weather warms up and preparations begin for opening her campground, located west of Gresham, as it's possible she'd need to be available on the premises to run her business.

"Unfortunately, you can't go kicking down doors and stuff," Lenzner said.

ANN RETZLAFF

Lenzner, law enforcement has to either have the permission of the property owner or be able to prove to a judge that Retzlaff is in a location to get a different warrant allowing them to enter. Anyone allowing Retzlaff to stay on their property could be charged with harboring a fugitive, he noted.

"If we saw her (outside) and she ran in a house, we could run in after her," Retzlaff said. "It's not a search warrant where you could go inside a residence and search for someone. If you're locked up in your own property, we can't do much."

So far, the sheriff's department has had zero calls from the public indicating Retzlaff had been seen in public, but Lenzner is hopeful that members of the public will step up, as her face has been plastered on news media around Wisconsin.

Retzlaff is facing felony charges in Shawano County for fleeing and eluding officers and two counts of second-degree recklessly endangering safety, as well as a misdemeanor count of resisting or obstructing an officer. She also faces misdemeanor charges through Menominee County for resisting and failing to stop.

On May 15, a Shawano County deputy heard on Menominee County radio traffic about a high-speed chase involving a vehicle registered to Retzlaff for failing to stop at a traffic light, according to the criminal complaint. The chase, starting in Keshena on state Highway 47-55, continued through the towns of Wescott and Richmond, where deputies twice laid out spike strips, and ended on state Highway 29 just west of County Road MMM.

Deputies with Shawano and Menominee counties initiated a "high-risk stop," according to the complaint, and shut down traffic on the highway's westbound lanes. A lieutenant advised Retzlaff to get out of the vehicle, but she allegedly said she was a "sovereign citizen" and would not exit. A deputy used a slim jim to open the passenger door, which is when Retzlaff allegedly tried to drive off, nearly hitting two Shawano County officials.

Eventually, the vehicle was stopped again, and deputies pulled Retzlaff out of her vehicle. According to the complaint, as she was being handcuffed and searched, she claimed the deputies were involved with covering up sex trafficking and said she was rescuing one of her employees from a sex trafficking house on "Crow Territory" in Menominee County.

Since then, Retzlaff has delayed court proceedings by first stating on two occasions that she had not found an attorney who was constitutionally sound, and Kussel agreed to give her additional time to do so, outside the usual 10-day period as Retzlaff claimed she was in the busy season for her business.

Then Retzlaff did not appear on Oct. 5, claiming she was ill, and Kussel granted a continuance but stipulated that she must appear in-person on Oct. 26. When she did not do so, Kussel declared her previous bonds forfeited and issued a bench warrant. Retzlaff paid the bonds for the new warrant but then missed court again on Nov. 23, claiming she felt she wasn't safe in the courtroom due to COVID-19.

Retzlaff has had other cases in Shawano County. In April, she had restraining orders against her for harassing Shawano County Supervisor Joe Miller and his wife, Jackie Miller. In November 2020, a guilty verdict due to a no contest plea was entered against Retzlaff for a case where she made a phone call and claimed she was a sheriff's deputy.

Programs to introduce real world to students

Tour of businesses, reality fair to prepare upperclassmen for life after high school

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Two events currently in the works at Shawano Community High School are expected to give its upperclassmen a taste of what's out there in the real world.

During a work session on Jan. 3 when administrators with the Shawano School District presented their strategic plan scorecards to the Shawano School Board, principal Scott Zwirschitz said that plans are underway to put together a day of learning about various careers for the high school's juniors and what he described as a "reality fair" for the seniors. Zwirschitz said the school started planning these events in 2019, but the coronavirus pandemic forced putting them on hold as schools struggled to map out an education path during a health crisis.

Both events are expected to take place on April 13, which coincides with when freshmen and sophomores are engaged in state-mandated testing, according to Zwirschitz.

The reality fair is being done in the SCHS gymnasium in conjunction with CoVantage Credit Union. Zwirschitz told the board that the seniors will get a monthly budget and then figure out how to survive as they pay off the bills that they have. There will also be sessions where they'll learn about health and fitness, financial literacy, investing and signing things like leases.

"These are things people need to know after they get out on their own," Zwirschitz said.

As for the juniors, they will be visiting a variety of local businesses, including Arrowcast, Belmark, GenEx, Reinhart and ThedaCare Medical Center, to learn about different career fields that might interest them after high school.

"The reason we picked out those businesses is because we're trying to touch on as many different career clusters as possible," Zwirschitz said. "It's not a job fair, because we know all the businesses are struggling to find employees right now, but what we're hoping is, by getting our students into these places of business, they understand what's going on there and will feel comfortable going in there looking for work, whether they do it right after high school or after tech school or after they go to college."

Zwirschitz said it was going to be interesting to see how the experimental projects worked out. He expressed concern about the spikes in COVID-19 right now but felt confident that things would be better in April.

"We aren't sure how it's going to go the first time," he said. "I had kind of hoped we'd been able to do this in 2020, because that's when we originally had it planned for, and last year businesses still didn't want students in, and we were still restricting our field trips."

Visitors start new year in freezing fashion

Dozens of people partake in polar plunge at The Lighthouse

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

Visitors to the Lighthouse in Shawano kicked off their new year in chilly style.

Dozens of visitors participated in the Polar Plunge in Shawano. Visitors were given the opportunity to jump into a channel connecting Shawano Lake to the Wolf River on Jan. 1.

As air temperatures dropped to the mid-20s during the day and water temperatures sat around the 40s, visitors gave their testimonies on why they jumped in and what was going through their head when they jumped in.

Erin Prom, who lives in Vermont, was in town visiting family said that this was a fun way to kick off 2022.

"I jumped in because I am crazy," said Prom. "It is just a fun thing to do and it is a great way to start the new year. Why not jump into an ice cold lake?"

She added that the whole process of preparing to jump in the water, jumping in and getting out of the water was fuzzy.

"My mind froze," said Prom. "I couldn't speak; it was ice cold, but refreshing. It is just a great way to start a new year."

During the polar plunge, the Lighthouse held a costume contest. Participants were encouraged to dress up and jump into the water in their costumes. These costumes ranged from people wearing Santa hats to people wearing capes.

The winner of the costume contest was Nick Ustaski. Ustaski, who lives in Houston, Texas, made the trip up to Shawano, because he and his family share property here. Ustaski won the costume contest, as he was dressed up like a New Year's Baby.

"I jumped in dressed as Baby New Year," said Ustaski. "With the money that I won from the costume contest, I donated it back."

This was the first time that Ustaski had ever taken part in a polar plunge.

"My family and I have come to this event a couple times in the past, but this is the first year that I participated," said Ustaski. "When I was preparing, I was just looking around and saw the ice in the water."

Shawano resident Billy Duxtator makes the leap into the freezing water at the Lighthouse on Jan. 1.

One participant throws his hands in the air and clicks his heels together as he jumps into the water during the polar plunge at the Lighthouse on Jan. 1.

LUKE REIMER | NEW MEDIA

He said that the temperatures of the air and the water played a factor into his experience.

"It was cold," said Ustaski. "There was ice on the water and I was shirtless. I was shaking. I knew that this was for a good time, and once I had the energy, it was fun."

Ustaski said that when he was in the water, it felt like his body seized up and he could barely breathe. With this being his first time, Ustaski said that this is something that he would do again.

"It was a great and fun activity for everyone here," he said.

Chicago resident Jim Robley made the trip up to Shawano to spend some time at his family's cottage. While in the area, Robley wanted to carry on a tradition of his family and partake in the polar plunge.

"I have not done this for a few years," said Robley. "We used to do it every year, when I was growing up."

Robley said that due to his past experiences of jumping in the water, he knew what to expect from the water.

"Because I have done this before, I know that the water is freezing cold," said Robley. "This year I knew what to expect."

Even though the temperature outside was below freezing, Robley said that this was one of his warmer jumps.

"I would say that this year felt warmer than others," said Robley. "Maybe that's because I am a little bit chubbier than I used to be. In years past, all of the water was frozen and they had to cut out a section."

All three participants said that if another opportunity arose, they would partake in another polar plunge.

Reed pleads guilty to reservation arson

He faces 10 years in prison for the crime

By KEVIN MURPHY
Correspondent

An area man pleaded guilty Jan. 3 to arson in connection with a federal felony for helping set fire to a vehicle on the Menominee Indian Reservation that contained a drug overdose victim.

Emerson K. Reed, 35, was the first to plead guilty of the four people charged in federal court in connection with the August 2020 death of a Green Bay woman whose charred remains were found by a logger in a remote area of the reservation.

According to court documents, Reed, also of Green Bay, was called by Timothy M. Snider Jr. to help dispose of Stephanie Greenspon's body after she fatally overdosed on heroin she obtained from Snider. Reed asked Keith D. Wilber Jr., 27, to help him with a "cold one," which Wilber later said he understood meant an overdose victim.

Wilber, formerly of Shawano, also told investigators that he told Reed and Snider to drive the vehicle with Greenspon's body and meet him on S.E. Bass Lake Road on the reservation where they were to dispose of both. Reed told investigators that on the morning of Aug. 4, 2020, he and Snider drove separate vehicles from Green Bay to the reservation with Greenspon's body still in the passenger seat of one vehicle, and awaited Wilber's arrival. Wilber arrived with Kayla Childs.

Snider was wearing a GPS tracking device since he was recently released from custody in Brown County, so Reed drove Snider to a Shawano restaurant where he met his girlfriend. Snider's GPS tracking data indicated that he had been on S.E. Bass Lake Road and had returned to Green Bay on Aug. 4, 2020.

Surveillance video also showed the vehicles traveling the route that would have taken them from Green Bay to the reservation.

Snider had wanted Greenspon's body cut up and buried but Reed, Wilber and Childs drove to a remote spot and Reed and Wilber set fire to the vehicle still containing the body.

On Aug. 19, 2020, authorities found bone fragments, two spent 9 mm casings and a license plate at the site of the burned vehicle. They contacted the vehicle's registered owner who said his girlfriend, Greenspon, had been driving his vehicle in early August 2020. He also gave the name of a person he believed Greenspon had visited at that time.

Her cell phone records and Facebook messages indicated she traveled to Snider's residence on Aug. 3 after arranging to get heroin from him.

Greenspon had Facebook conversations with a number of people on the night of Aug. 2, 2020, and the early morning hours of Aug. 3, including asking Snider if he had "down" slang for heroin. Investigators determined that Greenspon had no other communication with anyone after Aug. 3, 2020.

Others interviewed said they were at Snider's residence the following day and that Greenspon had overdosed from heroin that Snider had given her and she was dead by the evening of Aug. 3, 2020.

In court on Jan. 3, neither Reed nor his attorney, Edward Hunt, disputed the account Assistant U.S. Attorney Andrew Maier had given the court. Maier told Judge William Griesbach that Reed did Snider's bidding in exchange for heroin and cash.

Reed faces 10 years to life in prison at his April 4 sentencing, but both Maier and Hunt agreed to ask that Griesbach impose the 10-year mandatory minimum sentence. Any restitution would be determined by Griesbach.

Reed has several felony and misdemeanor convictions and is currently serving a probation revocation sentence at the Oshkosh Correctional Institution, according to online court records.

Wilber died on July 11 and charges of concealment of a felony and arson were later dismissed.

Charges remain pending against Snider and Childs. Snider has pled not guilty to charges of distribution of a controlled substance, using a communication facility in furtherance of a narcotics offense, and conspiring to obstruct justice. Childs has pled not guilty to concealing a felony.

Local 4-H educator wins national award

Suehring honored with colleagues for setting up virtual summer camp program

Megan Suehring, Shawano County 4-H youth development educator, received the Excellence in Camping Award from the National Association of Extension 4-H Youth Development Professionals (NAE4-HYDP) during its annual conference Nov. 16 in Memphis, Tennessee.

Suehring and other 4-H educators were honored for their development of and leadership on the "Lumberjacks: Building Your Future" Camp in a Bag Program in summer 2020.

The purpose of the Excellence in Camping Award is to recognize outstanding effort in youth development through 4-H camping as related to practice, evaluation or research by members as individuals or as part of a team. In order to be eligible for the national award, the "Lumberjacks: Building Your Future" camp program took highest honors first at the Wisconsin Association of 4-H and Youth Development Professionals and then the Midwestern region.

Residential summer camp is

the 2020 summer, due to COVID-19.

To adapt, Suehring and her colleagues worked to develop a hybrid summer camp program featuring written curriculum with project materials, static video instructions and virtual campfires with all needed program materials assembled in a bag. "Lumberjacks: Building Your Future" Camp in a Box served nearly 1,000 youth from 400 families across the state.

A hybridized camp model was created to serve youth with and without internet access. Curriculum at an elementary reading level was a hallmark of many counties in northern Wisconsin, especially Shawano County. It was evident that a typical in-person camping experience would not be possible for youth during provided with required materials. To support campers, instructional videos were shared; live "campfires" including guest speakers, interactive games and songs were hosted on Zoom; and a closed Facebook community was created allowing families to share camp experiences. This model enabled participants to form a community of learners.

The program included three camp days. Arts and crafts, astronomy, mindfulness, group and water-based recreation, wildlife ecology, physical education, camp cooking, music and career considerations were included. Families were encouraged to create their own camp space at home for the three days. Photos shared via the virtual community showed families camped in a variety of ways, from utilizing their living rooms to complete tenting setups in the backyard.

One educator contacted the Raptor Education Group, Inc. to ensure their programmatic efforts could be shared with youth statewide. Partnerships with private companies also enriched the educational experience, from a local maple syrup producer and distributor donating maple syrup samples and invited an educator to record the business set-up, to PONSSE, a family based company who specializes in cut-to-length forest machines and their information systems donating professional booklets that encourage youth to learn about forestry practices and equipment.

Colleagues collaborated to secure funds from local and statewide sponsors to ensure camp kits would be affordable for any youth to participate. At the very most, the camp in a box kit was $10 per base kit, due to financial support from sponsors such as the Wisconsin 4-H Foundation, the Lincoln County Safe and Stable Families Grant, Wood County Solar Project and several county and community 4-H clubs or committees.

Kits were distributed to youth enrolled at the Mohican Family Center and the Shawano Boys and Girls Club for free. More than 200 youth in Shawano County participated in this opportunity.

Dairy Margin Coverage brings $47M to farmers

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has begun issuing additional payments for dairy producers who enrolled in 2020 and 2021 coverage through the Dairy Margin Coverage (DMC).

USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) updated the feed cost calculation by using 100% premium alfalfa hay rather than 50% premium hay in determining the monthly margin, which means an additional $47 million for dairy producers in Wisconsin.

Payments will be retroactive to Jan. 1, 2020. Dairy operations with 2020 and 2021 contracts will be paid automatically for the applicable months.

"Updating feed cost calculations for DMC to include 100% premium hay will help producers to receive more payments," FSA State Executive Director Gene Schrieffer said. "This update builds on other efforts of the Biden-Harris administration to improve DMC and other key USDA dairy programs."

Most frequently asked gardening questions answered

Throughout the year in 2021, I received many questions from readers and listeners. Below are some of the most popular questions I received, multiple times, throughout the year. The fact that I received most of these questions multiple times indicates to me that these are things that are very important to gardeners in our area, and topics that touch their hearts. Enjoy my popular questions of the past year.

How do I get rid of powdery mildew on my plants?

Powdery mildew is an annoying and potentially destructive fungus that appears, often, in late summer. Normally, powdery mildew occurs when there is excessive moisture.

Depending upon the plant variety, one of the easiest ways to prevent powdery mildew is to buy new hybrids that are mildew resistant. Plants such as bee balm, tall phlox, ninebarks and other plants that are especially susceptible to this fungus have all been bred and hybridized into varieties that are mildew resistant. You will find this information right on the plant tag.

Like many garden diseases and pests, prevention is the key. If you wait to treat the disease until after you find it, it is likely already too late. It will be hard to control once you already have it. The key, then, is to prevent the disease from happening in the first place.

There are a number of good, all-natural fungicides and mildew preventives on the market. Follow the label directions and treat your plants from the time they first begin to appear, regularly, every two weeks or so, throughout the growing season to keep powdery mildew in check.

Watering from beneath, rather than from above, is another great preventive measure. Wet leaves are more prone to mildew.

When should I put up my hummingbird feeders? When should I take down my hummingbird feeders?

Depending on the weather, hummingbird feeders should be put out by the middle of April, definitely by May. Strong spring storms with south winds may bring hummingbirds earlier, and they will be looking for supplemental food sources. Typically, most hummingbirds return the second week in May.

Many readers and listeners are interested in growing native wildflowers but are intimidated by the variety out there. Suggestions for the easiest to grow in the area are included in this week's column.

ROB ZIMMER

Because of lingering migrants that may still appear in October and November, even into December, hummingbird feeders should be left out as long as possible. It is a myth that feeders entice hummingbirds to stay longer. Hummingbirds are smart enough to know when it is time to leave. The reason many people leave out hummingbird feeders much longer is because there are several rare western species of hummingbirds that actually drift east late in fall and early winter. Many times, they show up at feeders in December, even in January.

What are the best plants to plant for Monarch butterflies?

The best plants to grow for Monarch butterflies include both nectar plants and host plants for caterpillars.

As most people are aware, milkweeds are the only plants that monarch butterflies will host upon as caterpillars. There are several great native milkweeds for our area including Common Milkweed, Orange Milkweed and Swamp Milkweed. Whorled Milkweed is great for sandy areas.

Nectar sources for monarchs include plants that bloom throughout the year. It is important to provide late season nectar sources for migrating monarchs into October. Wildflowers such as New England Aster, goldenrod, Joe pye weed, ironweed and other late bloomers are excellent choices. Purple coneflower, black-eyed Susan, meadow blazing star, bee balm, wild bergamot and coreopsis are also great for our area.

Excellent annuals for monarchs are lantana, zinnia, tall verbena and purple heliotrope.

I want to grow native wildflowers. What are the easiest ones to grow in our area?

The easiest native wildflowers to grow in our area are those that enjoy full sun and relatively dry conditions. Many of these can be grown in sand or clay, as native wildflowers are adapted to many areas once they are established.

Purple coneflower, Joe pye weed, ironweed, Orange milkweed, whorled milkweed, blazing stars of many varieties, black eyed Susan, brown eyed Susan, Rattlesnake Master, wild petunias, coreopsis, native grasses such as little bluestem, prairie dropseed, big bluestem and Indian grass, and many others, grow well in full sun and dry conditions.

For moist areas, cardinal flower, blue lobelia, Joe pye weed, swamp milkweed, bottle gentian, turtlehead, blue flag iris and others are excellent and easy to grow.

Why won't my hydrangea bloom?

The most common problems for failure to bloom with hydrangeas are purchasing the wrong varieties for our area, as well as incorrect pruning. Incorrect location is another common problem.

Many gardeners tend to go for the big blooming, colorful varieties of hydrangeas in red, pink, blue and purple. Unfortunately, these hydrangeas, known as big leaf hydrangeas, require a little bit of extra care in our area in order to continue to bloom. If you purchase these varieties, expect to give them a little bit of tender loving care in order to keep them happy.

Generally, this means either completely protecting the plants in winter, or, placing in a container that can be stored inside an unheated garage, shed or basement for the winter.

This extra care is required because the big leaf hydrangeas bloom mostly on old wood, or wood that was formed the previous growing season. Because the blooms are already formed by autumn, they are easily frozen off in our cold winters. Therefore, it is necessary to protect the entire plant, even the leaf buds and new buds, not just the root ball.

Pruning is also unnecessary since the blossoms are already formed on the old branches. If you prune the plant back, you are cutting off next year's buds.

This information only applies to the big leaf hydrangeas, as mentioned above.

For most other hydrangea varieties, those that are panicle or smooth hydrangeas, little care is required. However, it is important that the plant is placed in correct light. Old-fashioned hydrangeas, such as Annabelle, tend to prefer more shade, however, most of the newer varieties should be placed in full sun in order to bloom.

Panicle and smooth hydrangeas can be pruned back each year since they bloom on new wood that is formed each season.

The best way to learn how to completely care for your hydrangea is to check the plant tag for instructions or Google the name of your hydrangea for care in our area.

How do I prevent diseases on my tomatoes?

Much like the powdery mildew situation above, the key to preventing tomato diseases is to start early and continue preventive measures throughout the growing season. This means purchasing a good tomato disease preventer and applying regularly, normally every 10 to 14 days, throughout the season.

Many tomato diseases are caused by inconsistent watering. Inconsistent watering means the tomatoes get too dry or too wet for a period of time. While this cannot always be controlled, due to weather, we must do our best to provide consistent moisture. Plants that sit in water for too long or that go dry for too long are hard to get to come back completely and often weaken, showing signs of disease quickly.

This is one reason why it's a good idea to grow tomatoes in containers, where moisture levels can be better controlled.

Another important aspect in controlling tomato diseases is to rotate your crops. Do not plant tomatoes in the same area of the garden each year. Even the tiniest pieces of diseased tomato plants left in the ground over winter, even the seeds, Flowering crab apples are among the best trees and shrubs to grow for birds.

ROB ZIMMER

Why won't hydrangeas bloom? The answers to this question and more top questions of the year in this week's column.

ROB ZIMMER

can spread disease throughout the year as they infect the soil around them.

What are the best plants to repel mosquitoes from my backyard?

Try planting containers filled with lavender, bee balm, scented geranium, lemon grass, lemon verbena, lemon thyme, sweet alyssum, Helio-trope and Swedish ivy. All of these plants are fragrant and tend to rebel mosquitoes from the area.

What are the best trees and shrubs to grow to attract birds?

In our area, berry producing shrubs are the best. This includes trees also. Mountain ash, crabapple, hackberry, Hawthorne, as well as conifers that produce seeds such as pinus, spruces, tamaracks and junipers are all excellent.

For shrubs, ninebarks, highbush cranberry, viburnum varieties, serviceberry, witch hazel and others are great choices. Flowering shrubs such as ninebarks, lilac, spicebush and others are great for hummingbirds and insect eaters that are drawn to the blossoms.

Should I cut down my garden plants in fall or not?

My preference, especially for perennials and grasses, is to leave them standing throughout the winter season, for many reasons.

They provide shelter and food for birds and other wildlife, as well as safety and shelter for hibernating native insects and pollinators.

Annuals that provide seeds for birds, such as zinnias and sunflowers, cosmos and others should also be left standing as this is a great source of food for wintering birds.

Vegetable gardens are a different story. Because of the potential for diseases spread in the soil by even the tiniest pieces of plant debris, especially those in the nightshade family, vegetable gardens should be cleaned completely each season and all plant material removed from the soil. This gives the garden a fresh start every year in the spring.

HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL

Shawano girls pick up OT win at Sun Drop Shootout

Boys team also victorious

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The Shawano Community High School girls basketball team got a couple of clutch steals that led to points and an eventual 51-47 overtime win over Oconto Falls in a Sun Drop Shootout contest on Dec. 28 at the Kress Center in Green Bay.

Deadlocked at 45 to start overtime, Shawano senior Brianna Wright stole the ball and raced down the court for a layup to put the Hawks ahead.

After a couple of Oconto Falls' free throws, Shawano added two points at the charity stripe. Freshman Ella Stuber made the first free throw before missing the second, but got her own rebound and was fouled again. She also split the second round of free throws.

Shawano widened its lead to four after another steal led to two Wright free throws. Each team missed multiple free throws down the stretch to cap the matchup.

"Defense is definitely a big point of it, because it stops the other team from scoring. Especially when it came to overtime with four minutes left on the clock, we really need those steals right there," said Wright.

Wright led Shawano with 17 points in the contest, including a big three-point play with 1:38 remaining in regulation to tie the game at 45.

Sophomore Abby Bystol added 12 points, including eight in the second half, which Shawano trailed for a large portion of. Freshman Trinity Popelka tallied eight points, while senior Brooke Theis had seven points.

The back-and-forth game began with Oconto Falls jumping out to a 10-3 lead before four 3-pointers sparked a 14-4 run for the Hawks. Wright hit two triples, while Theis and Popelka added one each. Shawano no worked the lead out to eight after a Bystol 3-pointer before Oconto Falls knocked in two 3s to make it 22-20 at halftime.

Another 3-pointer to start the second half put Oconto Falls ahead, and Shawano wasn't able to grab the lead until an 8-0 run about halfway through the half.

Oconto Falls jumped back ahead after a 7-0 run, but Wright's 3-point play tied the contest again.

"This was a really tough game," said Theis. "We showed how good we can rebound, how good we can work as a team. I think we need to move that to our next game, because if we do, we can win a lot more."

Metcalfe-Grassman leads boys past Crivitz

The Shawano boys basketball team rode a big game from junior Michael Metcalfe-Grassman to ease to a 79-52 victory over Crivitz at the Sun Drop Shootout on Dec. 28 at the Kress Center in Green Bay.

Metcalfe-Grassman tallied 30 points for the contest. Twenty-three of the points came in the first half, when Shawano built a huge lead. The junior knocked down five 3-pointers in the game.

"I just think we did a good job of moving the ball around. We found the open gaps on the floor," said Metcalfe-Grassman. They came out in that zone and we just found the gaps and it worked out.

"Crivitz scored the game's first points before Shawano went on a 10-2 run and never looked back. Metcalfe-Grassman had a fastbreak dunk to jolt the team's offense.

Senior Jayden Van Oss tallied seven consecutive points to push the lead to 13, 17-4, before Metcalfe-Grassman caught fire. He tallied 18 points in the final 12 minutes of the first half, including four 3-pointers.

While Shawano failed to put up the kind of numbers it did in the first half, the Hawks were content to coast to the win while getting several other involved in the action.

Shawano's Brianna Wright converts a layup in overtime of a Sun Drop Shootout game against Oconto Falls on Dec. 28 at the Kress Center in Green Bay.

MORGAN RODE | NEW MEDIA

Junior Deacon Carroll had all seven of his points in the second half, while senior Trevon Matchopatow tallied nine second-half points.

Junior Jacob Landon had five of his seven points in the second half, including the team's first two baskets of the half.

Along with its high-scoring offense, Shawano locked down on defense, making Crivitz work for every point they scored. Most of Crivitz's offensive possessions were time-consuming ones, with the Hawks jumping into passing lanes and stuffing the paint whenever Crivitz worked the ball there.

"That's a big thing for us this year. We know that everything starts on defense and that defense leads to offense," said Landon. "So as long as we keep our energy cranked up on defense, that's going to transition to offense perfectly for us."

Wisconsin holds off Arizona State in Las Vegas Bowl

Allen rushes for 159 yards

By DANNY WEBSTER

The Associated Press

Braelon Allen thought his week in Las Vegas was rather uneventful.

After all, it's hard to really soak in Sin City when you're only 17 years old. He'll have to settle for his MVP award.

Allen ran for 159 yards and Wisconsin drained the final 9:57 off the clock with an 18-play drive that sealed a 20-13 victory over Arizona State in the Las Vegas Bowl on Dec. 30.

Allen, a true freshman from Fond du Lac, had 101 yards by halftime for his eighth 100-yard game of the season. He averaged 6.8 yards per carry this year, falling just short of joining NFL stars Melvin Gordon and Jonathan Taylor as the only Wisconsin running backs to average 7 yards per attempt over a full season.

"Being able to have the season that I ended up having, I can't thank the guys enough for the support," said Allen, selected the game's MVP. "Keeping my head on straight and keep on encouraging me, just telling me my time was going to come. All the credit goes to the O-line and all the guys in the room."

Graham Mertz finished 11 of 15 for 137 yards and a 7-yard touchdown toss late in the first quarter to senior tight end Jake Ferguson, who caught three passes for 33 yards for Wisconsin (9-4).

"Really proud of this group," Badgers coach Paul Chryst said. "Took a lot of guys to get us that victory. It's really what this season's been. It's a special team."

The Badgers started 1-3 with Big Ten losses to ranked opponents Penn State and Michigan but answered with a seven-game winning streak to earn a 20th consecutive bowl bid.

"It was all of us just coming together, trusting each other, being confident in our prep and taking that extra step to perfect what we were doing," Allen said.

Clinging to a seven-point lead, the Badgers took over at their own 3 with just under 10 minutes remaining and drove 90 yards to run out the clock in the first bowl game at Allegiant Stadium, home of the NFL's Las Vegas Raiders.

Arizona State quarterback Jayden Daniels accounted for 199 total yards and threw an interception for the Sun Devils (8-5), who are 3-6 in bowls since 2011.

The Sun Devils were held to 219 total yards, including 102 in the first half. Wisconsin entered with the nation's top defense, allowing 240.8 yards per game.

John Chenal had an early 8-yard touchdown run and Collin Larsh kicked a pair of second-quarter field goals to help Wisconsin build a 20-6 halftime lead.

Cristian Zendejas connected on a couple of first-half field goals and Daniyel Ngata scored on a short TD run in the third quarter for Arizona State.

Tough badgers defense

Arizona State allowed just 21 sacks this season, an average of 1.75 per game. Daniels was sacked a season-high four times and Wisconsin held the Sun Devils to 60 yards rushing on 33 carries.

Wisconsin came in with the top-ranked run defense in the country, permitting 65.2 yards per game.

Sophomore linebacker Nick Herbig had two sacks for Wisconsin and finished with a team-high nine this season.

"We knew it coming in, that it was going to be tough. We had a good plan," said Badgers linebacker Jack Sanborn. "Credit to (Daniels), he's a great player. When it mattered, we got it done."

These are the good old days

“We can never know about the days to come, but we think about them anyway ... So I’ll try and see into your eyes right now and stay right here, ’cause these are the good old days.” — Carly Simon, “Anticipation”

Carly Simon’s song about the difference between anticipation and reality comes to the wonderful conclusion that reality can be pretty darn good when you get right down to it.

These are the good old days: Now, you can take that at least two ways.

One is to enjoy your life in the present moment, because one day you’ll want to remember these times as the good old days.

The other is the way Jack Nicholson’s character took it in a hilarious moment in the film “As Good As It Gets,” when he actually speaks the words in the title. An eternal pessimist, Nicholson ing the moment.

I was a huge fan of the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay men’s basketball team when legendary coach Dick Bennett was in charge. Bennett took over a program that had achieved so much success in the NCAA Division II that it switched to Division I, and it didn’t look like that had been such a good idea until after Dick took over.

After years of hard work, the team was hosting the league championship game and the winner was going to stops in mid-complaint, looks around frantically, and says, “What if this is as good as it gets?”

This hopefully will come as no surprise, but I prefer the approach of savorearn a berth in the NCAA Division I tournament. UWGB, the second-place team, rose to the occasion and played a perfect game against the more highly regarded Northern Illinois — I even remember the final score, 52-37. (Did I mention that Bennett was a defensive genius?)

As it became clear that the Fighting Phoenix were going to win, the old arena was as loud as I ever heard it — seven or eight minutes of basketball playing time of sheer volume.

One of Green Bay’s legendary journalists, Pat O’Donahue, had died suddenly of a heart attack that morning, stunning all of us. I don’t remember if Pat had once told me, “Savor every moment,” or if I had the thought independently (my mind wants to believe the former), but as I stood on my chair screaming with 6,000 other crazed fans, it occurred to me to drink the moment in and consciously remember, “This is as good as it gets. This is one of the good old days.” I will always remember that night.

While I was considering how to finish this, Summer the puppy put her two front paws on the easy chair next to my laptop and leaned in for a snuggle. I could have said, “Down, girl, I’m trying to wrap up a column about savoring the moment because these could be the good old days,” but fortunately, I was writing this column.

So I held her head close to mine and rubbed her ears, and then — once I realized the real reason for her affectionate advance — took her out for a pee. But there was the perfect illustration of my point.

Life throws a lot of stuff our way, every day, some good, some not so much. Remember to appreciate the good stuff, because, well, what Carly sang.

GUEST COLUMN

Scientists, innovators poised to aid U.S. competitiveness

In recent years, Wisconsin’s two public research universities, UW-Madison and UW-Milwaukee, have aggressively and strategically built a faculty roster with a wealth of expertise in some of the world’s most cutting-edge and crucial fields.

From biotechnology and genomics to artificial intelligence and quantum computing to advanced manufacturing and sustainability, this broad and deep range of Badger State expertise at UW-Madison and UW-Milwaukee is working on significant issues facing our society. At our other UW locations throughout Wisconsin, knowledge in such areas as health care, engineering and logistics add significant value to the state’s research portfolio.

All of it puts Wisconsin in a favorable position to create a globally competitive innovation hub that could secure some of the hundreds of billions of dollars in expected federal investment designed to accelerate the nation’s scientists and innovators within the University of Wisconsin System will be poised to capitalize. After all, Wisconsin is the place where scientific research virtually eliminated the debilitating disease rickets, led to blood-thinner treatment for heart patients to prevent blood clots and forged early paths in RNA research that eventually aided in the development of COVID-19 vaccines.

The United States Innovation and Competition Act has recently passed the Senate. A similar House competitiveness.

Early in 2022, I anticipate President Joe Biden will sign a bipartisan bill that will jump start the nation’s investment in research. When that happens, the groundbreaking bill known as the Endless Frontier Act was considered in the last session of Congress, and eventually separate components were passed as a series of single bills.

Both approaches promise delivery of as much as $250 billion to invest in the study of new technologies. House and Senate negotiators plan to meet to work out differences between their legislative approaches, and I’m among the many interested observers who are hopeful that a resolution can be reached in the coming weeks. The concept has bipartisan support within the Wisconsin delegation.

The legislation would create research hubs across the country, each with a specific focus and each required to spark collaboration among universities, the private sector and government partners. While these research hubs are worth funding in their own right, they would also position the United States as a global leader in these highly competitive areas, helping secure our country’s economic prosperity and serving as an antidote to aggressive work in similar areas underway in China and elsewhere.

Wisconsin is a perfect place for a research hub to thrive. With our universities and business partners serving as a foundation, Wisconsin has the capacity to co-invest in a way to spark innovation and raise the state’s attractiveness for creating these hubs. And I have no doubt that our private sector partners would be eager to join. In fact, many of them have told me so.

I appreciate the hard work of our congressional delegation on this important legislation over the last few years, and I will continue to partner with them as they near the finish line. The University of Wisconsin System is ready to seize the moment.

Tommy Thompson is president of the University of Wisconsin System.

Eugene and Joyce Reymont are shown with Shawano County's 381st barn quilt on their farm at N2643 Willow Road, Pulaski.

JIM LEUENBERGER

Natural choice for 381st barn quilt pattern

Shawano County's 381st barn quilt is now on display on a barn owned by Eugene and Joyce Reymont at N2643 Willow Road, Pulaski.

The barn quilt was given to the Reymonts for their 50th wedding anniversary by their daughters, Jenny, Gina and Jami, and their son, Justin.

The quilt pattern, called Ponderosa, features several symbols that represent how nature is a big part of their lives on their "Ponderosa," as Eugene likes to call it. Joyce loves to feed birds and annually plants beautiful flowers throughout their property.

When state Highway 29 was expanded, they sold part of their farm for the highway and ended up with a 10-acre pond and two smaller ones. The ponds are stocked with many species of fish, including bass, crappies, sunfish, northern pike, perch and others. In 1997 they planted numerous trees throughout their property. Finally, Joyce raises laying hens because "Eugene really likes farm fresh eggs," she said.

Eugene and Joyce and their family moved to the farm on Willow Road from their home in Hofa Park in November 1975. They had a herd of about 35 Holstein dairy cows and a couple Jerseys. The farm was originally 80 acres of cropland until they sold 40 acres to a neighbor in 1980. Also that year, they sold the cows and began raising pigs and cash cropping the land.

The Reymonts eventually went into the hay business, hauling hay for the elephants in the Ringling Brothers Circus located in Richmond, Illinois. They also hauled hay for The Tempel Lipizzans in Gurney, Illinois, the Medinah Black Horse Troop in St. Charles, Illinois, and the Sugar Legacy Arabians in Lake Geneva, as well as to fancy horse stables in northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin. After the Highway 29 expansion, they hauled hay for a few more years, but now just do some trucking and metal recycling.

The Reymont barn quilt was painted by the Shawano County barn quilt committee and was put on display by Eugene and Joyce Reymont, their daughter, Jenny, and her husband, Doug Meyers.

Plug In To Health looks at COVID-19 issues

As the COVID-19 pandemic continues, so does new knowledge about the virus and its impact on the community. As part of a larger effort to help keep people healthy, safe and informed, Prevea has released two new episodes of its podcast, Plug in to Health.

The following episodes of Plug in to Health, and more, are available to anyone at www.prevea.com/podcast and on all major podcasting platforms including Apple and Spotify:

- COVID-19 – The Risks and Impacts of Long COVID: There are many risks associated with a COVID-19 infection, the most serious being death. While most will not die from a COVID infection, millions around the world have and millions more have gone on to develop what is commonly known as Long COVID.

It's a condition serious enough that health care systems around the world are dedicating resources to treating and researching it. That includes Prevea Health, which developed the Prevea COVID Recovery Clinic in early 2021. On this episode, medical director of the Prevea COVID Recovery Clinic and family medicine physician, Dr. Katrina Severance, talks about Long COVID symptoms, treatment options and the impact it is having on people in our communities.

- COVID-19 – At-Home Testing: Testing for COVID-19 remains critical to curbing the spread of the virus in our communities. Like many other aspects of the pandemic, testing continues to evolve including the use of at-home testing kits or self-testing. Pack thrilled with top seed, but not satisfied

The goal for the Green Bay Packers every season is to win the Super Bowl. The team took a big step toward that goal when it trampled the Minnesota Vikings on Jan. 2 at Lambeau Field, with the win securing the team the NFC's No. 1 seed.

Now, even with a week 18 matchup at the Detroit Lions still left in the regular season, the Packers know the first half of their playoff fate.

With the top seed, Green Bay receives the only bye week in the NFC postseason. That bye week will come between Jan. 15-17, when six total Wild Card Round games are happening — three in each conference.

The top seed also guarantees the Packers will host a Divisional Round game the following weekend. Lambeau Field will also serve as the host of the NFC Championship Game should the Packers win in the Divisional Round.

"We're happy to have it. We're happy to have earned it. We're happy for the chips to fall in our favor," said outside linebacker Preston Smith. "And we're just happy to go out there and keep on working hard and keep striving toward our goal."

"It definitely feels amazing. It's something we continuously (are) working toward, we're striving toward," said running back A.J. Dillon. "We know how important it is to have teams have to come through Lambeau. I say it all the time, we got the best fans in football, we also got the elements as you saw tonight, so combine those two with all the talent and the team and staff we got (and) it's going to be tough sledding for anybody."

Securing home-field advantage didn't help the Packers during last year's postseason, nor has it helped teams around the league during the regular season this year, but the Packers believe it will aid in their quest to reach the Super Bowl. Green Bay was the only team in the league to post a perfect home record this season.

"The fact that there's fans in the stands is a big deal," said coach Matt LaFleur, referencing the fact there were limited fans in the stands a year ago. "That will definitely play in our favor as we move forward and I really appreciate the energy our fans bring, and we'll continue to express that importance to them and hopefully they'll take that to heart and cheer us as loud as they have all season long."

Quarterback Aaron Rodgers also thought this year's postseason would be different because there would be a full crowd on hand. The QB is also hoping for some more cold weather games, just like the team had against Minnesota, after not getting typical winter weather during the postseason run last year.

Already having the No. 1 seed locked up with a week still to go plays heavily in favor of the Packers.

The team could rest most of its starters against Detroit and not risk injury, although it sounds like the Packers will play their regulars for at least a portion of the game.

In their postgame press conferences, Rodgers and receiver Davante Adams each said they'd like to play next week, and if those two are giving it a go, it's a pretty safe bet that most of the other starters will as well, unless they are dealing with injuries already.

Don't expect the starters to play more than a half, if that, but that one half of football should be enough to keep the team fresh and on its roll when it takes the field again in the postseason.

The next piece to the puzzle is figuring out which opponents the Packers will face, but the Packers like their chances because they'll be sleeping in their own beds before gameday and with a raucous and supportive crowd behind them.

To play or not to play

With the No. 1 seed in the NFC playoffs wrapped up and a first-round playoff bye clinched, Green Bay Packers coach Matt LaFleur faces some interesting personnel questions for Sunday's regular-season finale at the Detroit Lions.

First and foremost, should LaFleur play his top performers in a meaningless game? LaFleur is leaning toward the "reward" side of that risk-reward dilemma. While Aaron Rodgers, Davante Adams and others might not play the entire game against Detroit, they will play in hopes of keeping them as sharp as possible.

"I'm not comfortable having essentially a three-week layoff for our guys," LaFleur said. "I know that you can look at it a million different ways and there's never a right answer unless it works out. If somebody goes in there and gets injured then, 'Well, why'd you play your guys?' But if you go out there in that first playoff game and you lay an egg, 'Well, why'd you rest your guys?'"

The other personnel focal point is the fate of the team's injured stars. Left tackle David Bakhtiari hasn't played all season and didn't practice the past two weeks, the second time his comeback from a torn ACL has been short-circuited. Outside linebacker Za'Darius Smith hasn't played since week one due to a back injury that required surgery. Cornerback Jaire Alexander hasn't played since week four due to a shoulder injury.

Those are three of the best players in the NFL. If they are unable to knock off some of the rust against Detroit, can LaFleur count on them in a do-or-die playoff game?

That's especially true for Bakhtiari. At this point, what's the better option at left tackle? The five-time All-Pro who hasn't played in more than a year or the former undrafted free agent who has started the past five weeks? Getting Bakhtiari some action against the Lions would provide some clarity because it's not as if Yosh Nijman has been a liability.

With four weeks of practice under his belt, Alexander seemed on track to make his debut this week. However, he was placed on the COVID list on Sunday. At best, he could return in time to practice on Friday. Will LaFleur put him on the field without a full week of work?

Smith hasn't even practiced since his surgery.

Green Bay Packers quarterback Aaron Rodgers throws a pass in the team's win over the Minnesota Vikings on Jan. 2 at Lambeau Field in Green Bay. One of the dilemmas facing the Packers this week is whether or not to play starters, like Rodgers, in a meaningless game against the Lions.

GREG MELLIS | NEW MEDIA

"In a perfect scenario, they would get reps in the regular season," LaFleur said when asked specifically about Bakhtiari and Alexander. "We'll see if that comes to fruition this weekend or not. You're talking about two premier players. I think they've shown enough over the course of their career that they can handle it. I know the moment will never be too big for them, and so we've got a lot of confidence, if they're available, they will play."

With veteran receiver Randall Cobb close to returning from core-muscle surgery, the Packers could get a big influx of talent for the playoffs. After the game on Sunday, the tone in Rodgers' voice suggested it was more than just wishful thinking.

"I really feel like there's a possibility to get a few of those guys back for this stretch run, and that's exciting," he said. "We'll see this week where those guys are at. but it would be fun to get those guys back. Obviously, Randall is going to be back. You think about Z and Jaire and David, that could make things really interesting for us on both sides of the ball."

Adams' record pursuit

Against Minnesota, Adams broke his own franchise record for receptions in a season with 117. Against Detroit, Adams will try to break the franchise record for single-season receiving yards. In 2014, Jordy Nelson set that mark with 1,519 yards. Adams, who will be a free agent at the end of the season, enters this week with 1,498 yards, meaning he needs 22 yards against the Lions' injury-riddled secondary.

"That's why I want to play. Nah, that's not why, but I'd like to think playing a half or whatever it is, whatever we decide, I'll be able to take care of that," Adams said. "You never know when you'll be able to have that type of honor later. In 2018, I didn't play in the last game (because of a knee injury) and needed two catches for the record. I would've broke it then, broke it last year and then re-broke it this year. Who knows what will happen in the future, so you've got to take advantage of different opportunities when you're so close."

The big 4-0

LaFleur's first three seasons have been preposterously good.

- He'll pack a career record of 39-9 for the trip to Detroit. That's the most wins in NFL history by a coach in his first three seasons, beating George Seifert's 38 wins from 1989 through 1991.

- The Packers became the first team in NFL history with three consecutive seasons of 13 wins.

- With a victory over the Lions, LaFleur would have a 40th win. That would tie Chicago legend Mike Ditka, who went 40-8 with the Bears from 1985 through 1987, for most wins by any coach in a three-year span.

The Packers are 22-2 at Lambeau Field and 14-0 in December and January. Of course, those are regular-season marks. LaFleur knows those accomplishments will mean nothing without winning a championship, which is why he's continually downplayed his success.

"I think it's a great credit to everybody in this organization, from the top down," LaFleur said. "There's not going to be a whole lot of reflection. There's time for that down the road. We're going to continue to attack this with the same mindset, and that is the mindset that we've got a great game to go play in Detroit. Like I just mentioned, a place that has been a tough place for us to go play."

KEYS TO THE GAME

By BILL HUBER

Correspondent

The Green Bay Packers (13-3) will travel to face the Detroit Lions (2-13-1) at noon Sunday at Ford Field in Detroit. FOX will televise the game.

History

The Packers leads the series 103-72-7. It's their most wins against any franchise, one more than they own vs. Chicago. They've also won both playoff matchups. Green Bay is 5-0 vs. Detroit under coach Matt LaFleur.

Coaches

Green Bay – Matt LaFleur, 39-9, third season.
Detroit — Dan Campbell, 2-13-1, first season.

When the Packers have the ball

With its 37-point outburst vs. Minnesota on Sunday night, the Packers have moved up to 10th in scoring with a season-best 26.3 points per game. Aaron Rodgers leads the NFL in passer rating and the Packers have a league-low 10 giveaways.

The Lions had been playing better on defense but gave up 51 points against Seattle on Sunday, the eighth-worst mark in franchise history. The Lions forced a three-and-out punt to start the game, then gave up six touchdowns and three field goals on the next nine possessions. They enter the final week of the season ranked 30th in scoring with 27.3 points allowed per game.

They are in the bottom third of the NFL in every category, including 30th in yards allowed per passing play (7.67), 28th on third down (44.2% conversions) and 30th in the red zone (66.7% touchdowns). It doesn't help that their standout outside linebackers (Trey Flowers and Romeo Okwara), best inside linebacker (Alex Anzalone) and best cornerback (Jeff Okudah) are on injured reserve.

Under defensive coordinator Aaron Glenn, the Lions operate out of a 3-4 base. Michael Brockers, Alim McNeil and Nick Williams form the starting line, with second-round rookie Levi Onwuzurike getting considerable playing time, too. Brockers has been the most active with 51 tackles.

Charles Harris and Austin Bryant are the outside linebackers. Harris is the most disruptive player on the defensive side of the ball with team highs of 7½ sacks and 10 forced fumbles. Bryant has 4½ sacks. Julian Okwara, Romeo's younger brother, has 3½ sacks off the bench.

Rookie Derrick Barnes and Jalen Reeves-Maybin are the inside linebackers. Both players have four tackles for losses, with Reeves-Maybin contributing two forced fumbles.

With 11 touchdowns and zero interceptions in his past three games against Detroit, Rodgers will attack a secondary that lined up against Seattle with Will Harris and rookie Ifeatu Melifonwu at cornerback, Tracy Walker and Dean Marlow at safety, and AJ Parker in the slot.

Harris is a safety by trade but switched positions after the Lions were hammered by injuries at corner that included Okudah, the third pick of the 2020 draft, and Amani Oruwariye, who has six of the Lions' nine interceptions. It's little wonder why the Lions are 29th in opponent passer rating (101.4).

Green Bay Packers receiver Davante Adams carries the ball during the team's win over the Minnesota Vikings on Jan. 2 at Lambeau Field. Should Adams play this weekend, he and the Packers' passing game will go up against a battered Lions' secondary.

When the Lions have the ball

The Lions are 28th in the league with 17 points per game. Situational football has killed them; they are 31st on third down and the red zone. The Packers, who shook out of a defensive slump vs. Minnesota, are ninth with 20.9 points allowed per game.

The big question to start the week is who will start quarterback. Will it be Jared Goff, who missed the Seattle game with a knee injury, or will it be former Packers backup Tim Boyle? Goff, who was acquired from the Rams in the blockbuster Matthew Stafford trade, is 18th in the league with a 90 passer rating. Boyle has lost all three starts. While he's completed 64.9% of his passes, he's thrown three touchdowns vs. six interceptions for a passer rating of 63.5. Goff is a dink-and-dunker while Boyle is much more willing to press the issue.

With stud tight end T.J. Hockenson on injured reserve, the Lions' best offensive player has been rookie receiver Amon-Ra St. Brown. The brother of Packers receiver Equanimeous St. Brown, he's caught 82 passes for 803 yards and four touchdowns. He's hauled in 43 passes and scored all four touchdowns the past five games, including eight passes for 111 yards and one touchdown last week.

Where the Lions are solid is the backfield with the one-two punch of D'Andre Swift and former Packers standout Jamaal Williams. Swift not only leads the team with 587 rushing yards and four touchdowns, but he's third on the team with 58 receptions. Last month, he had back-to-back games of 130 rushing yards vs. Pittsburgh and 136 rushing yards vs. Cleveland before missing four games with a shoulder injury. Williams has contributed 558 yards, two touchdowns and 25 receptions.

The offensive line is in flux with left tackle Taylor Decker and right tackle Penei Sewell landing on the COVID list on Monday. With the revised protocols, they could play on Sunday. Left guard Jonah Jackson, a third-round pick in 2020, is a Pro Bowl alternate. Those three players are the strength of the team. Offensive tackle Matt Nelson played 22 snaps at tight end vs. Seattle to help offset the loss of Hockenson.

Special teams

The Lions are bad on offense and defense but they're good on special teams.

Riley Patterson, the team's fourth kicker of the season, is 10-of-11 on field goals including a perfect 10-for-10 inside of the 50 yards. Jack Fox is one of the top punters in the NFL. He ranks second in average (49.2) and fifth in net average (42.5).

Kalif Raymond, who is fourth on the team with 44 receptions, is averaging 11.2 yards per punt return. Godwin Igwebuike boasts an average of 24.9 yards per kickoff return. He had a season-best 47-yarder last week.

For Green Bay, Mason Crosby has made all 23 kicks over four games since the bye. Aside from his first field goal against Minnesota, in which Bojorquez dropped the ball but got it reset in time, none have been challenging. Still, the field-goal operation has to be feeling more confident heading into the playoffs. David Moore, who was signed to the practice squad last week, had a 23-yard punt return in his debut – the team's longest since 2018.

Packers top Vikings, clinch No. 1 seed

Rodgers, Adams, Dillon star and defense dominates

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The Green Bay Packers locked up the No. 1 seed in the NFC after earning a lopsided 37-10 win over the Minnesota Vikings on Jan. 2 at Lambeau Field in Green Bay.

Quarterback Aaron Rodgers threw for 288 yards and two touchdowns, while receiver Davante Adams caught 11 passes for 136 yards and a touchdown. Running back A.J. Dillon tallied 63 rushing yards and two scores while sidekick Aaron Jones had 76 rushing yards on eight attempts to fill out a balanced attack.

Green Bay started slow against the undermanned Vikings, who played without quarterback Kirk Cousins.

The Packers' offense worked into the red zone on three of four drives to start the game, but only had a pair of Mason Crosby field goals to show for it.

Then, Rodgers connected with receiver Allen Lazard on a touchdown pass in the second quarter, and the Packers' offense was nearly unstoppable the rest of the game.

On the team's final possession of the first half, Rodgers found Adams for a touchdown. At halftime, Adams had 118 of Rodgers' 211 passing yards, while the Packers' defense surrendered just 70 yards, four first downs and a last-second field goal.

The offense scored on its first three possessions of the second half to run away with the game.

For the first score, Dillon powered in from four yards out to give the Packers a 27-3 lead.

After a third Crosby field goal, Minnesota scored its lone touchdown of the game. Green Bay answered with a touchdown drive, with Dillon lumbering in from seven yards out to cap it.

With the big lead, the Packers were able to pull their starters and coast to victory. Green Bay became the first team in NFL history to win 13 games in three straight seasons.

"I thought it was our most complete game in all three phases and that's what we need moving forward," said coach Matt LaFleur.

Green Bay outgained Minnesota 481-206 in the contest. The Packers held the Vikings' running game to 27 yards and forced three turnover on downs and six punts.

Linebacker De'Vondre Campbell led the defense with eight total tackles. Outside linebackers Rashan Gary and Preston Smith had a sack and two tackles for losses each.

During his monster game, Adams also broke the franchise record for most receptions in a season with 117, breaking his own mark of 115 from last year.

The win gave LaFleur 39 in his young head coaching career, the most ever for a coach in their first three seasons.
