State Sen. Rob Cowles, right, discusses the issue of long-term care reimbursement during a budget listening session April 22 at Shawano City Hall as Rep. Gary Tauchen looks on. Cowles and Tauchen are expected to take the information they received at listening sessions like Shawano's back to Madison when budget negotiations kick into gear.

Legislators get earful on marijuana legalization

Long-term care and federal funding also brought in up in budget listening session

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

State Rep. Gary Tauchen and Sen. Rob Cowles listened to several issues from local constituents during a budget listening session April 22 at Shawano City Hall, including marijuana legalization, long-term care facilities and where the funding from the American Recovery Act could go.

Roy Martin, a disabled veteran living in Gresham, urged Tauchen and Cowles to support Gov. Tony Evers' initiative to legalize medical and recreational marijuana in Wisconsin. He noted that the pandemic has had him at home for a year since being let go from a meat packing plant, giving him time to research marijuana and its medical applications.

Martin is taking medicinal marijuana for his cancer, and his lung capacity has reached 53%, which he said his doctor now considers him to no longer be a terminal patient, but he is also facing criminal charges from a 2020 case where he was arrested and charged in Shawano-Menominee County Circuit Court with felony counts of possessing and manufacturing THC, a key part of marijuana, among other charges. Martin said he obtained the marijuana legally in Michigan, but it's a crime in Wisconsin.

Being home during the pandemic, he said, gave him the opportunity to research and even go to school to get certification in medical applications of cannabis and cannabis patient care.

"It really opened my eyes even further to the missed opportunities in the state of Wisconsin on the business end of it because of the unique nature of the cannabis industry," Martin said. "Everything has to be done within the state."

Martin said he tried to bring things up at the federal level, but he was informed that the states had the tools to formulate legalization. He estimates it could a $1 billion annual industry for Wisconsin if marijuana were to be legalized.

"My illness came from my time in the war (while serving in Bosnia), and now that I'm home, being in Wisconsin, I'm not allowed to get the same level of care that is afforded to other veterans in other states because our state won't allow it," Martin said. "I stood up and defended this country when they called, and now I'm just asking you guys to stand up for me and stand up for other vets who are dying, like myself.”

Martin said he would at least like the state to look into legalizing medical marijuana. At least 36 states have legalized marijuana for medical and/or recreational use, and another 10 are looking into the issue, according to Martin.

“Our only options shouldn’t be jail, die or leave Wisconsin,” Martin said.

He added that, with Coors and Miller brewing companies seeking to offer cannabis-infused drinks, having Wisconsin still criminalizing marijuana might prompt officials to not invest in their state plants.

“It is just money that is being left on the table when our business owners could be getting that money,” Martin said.

Cowles said he’s open to legalizing medical marijuana but is not yet on board with recreational legalization. He noted that it’s likely going to be brought up as a policy issue in the fall, separate from the state budget.

“There are some doctors that want to do it, and others who don’t,” Cowles said. “It’s a mixed bag.”

Tauchen told Martin it’s something that should be looked at, but legislative leadership could put the kibosh on it.

“I know there are some bills out there, but I don’t know if there is the will from leadership to be able to move forward,” Tauchen said. “We’ll have to see.”

Tom Kosman, executive director for The Cottages, addressed budgeting for the state’s Family Care Program. He is hoping a proposal gets through the budget that would increase the reimbursement for long-term care facilities ties like his in Shawano, Oconto Falls and Marinette, noting that the rates are 25-35% below the normal asking rates for assisted living facilities.

Roy Martin, a disabled veteran from Gresham, makes his case to area legislators on the legalization of marijuana during a state budget listening session April 22 at Shawano City Hall. Martin is facing charges in Shawano County related to marijuana he obtained legally to treat his cancer in neighboring Michigan.

“While it doesn’t sound like a lot up front, when you have multiple people in your buildings that receive that type of funding, it creates a problem,” Kosman said. “We don’t generate the type of income that some people think we do. We’re not nursing homes. We can’t charge nearly as much as they do, nor would we want to. We want to be affordable and take care of our seniors who can’t take care of themselves.”

That’s difficult to do, he added, when reimbursement rates stay flat or even drop. This year, the managed care organization The Cottages works with, reduced rates by 6% after initially planning to drop them 9%, Kosman said. The timing is bad because of the ongoing coronavirus pandemic, he said, and additional expenses like more personal protective equipment and increasing staff.

“I’m in this to care for people,” Kosman said. “That’s why we do what we do.”

Tauchen and Cowles both agreed that long-term care needs to be addressed in the state budget. Tauchen said that he expects long-term care to get more consideration during budget hearings.

Shawano County interim administrative coordinator James Davel told the legislators about the lack of transparency and guidance regarding funding that’s expected to come to the county through the American Recovery Act passed at the federal level.

“There’s been very little detailed information coming out concerning the American Recovery Act, the details of what we can and can’t do,” Davel said. “If we knew what the left and right limits are for the funding, we might be able to work in partnership with the townships, maybe extend paving for our road system that’s been limited for quite some time.”

Cowles noted that state legislators are unsure about the money, too, save that projects for broadband expansion and water are being held up.

“We would love to have that information because we’ve got to get going on the budget,” Cowles said. “We don’t want to get the budget done with this hanging out there all summer.”

Tom Kosman, executive director for The Cottages’ facilities in Shawano and Oconto Falls, testifies at a state budget listening session April 22 at Shawano City Hall about long-term care reimbursement rates. Assisted living facilities like his have seen those rates drop, and it makes caring for local seniors in need more difficult, he said.

Menominee County introduces advocacy center

Facility serves 7 counties, including Menominee, Shawano, Oconto

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

A new family advocacy center is available in Menominee County.

The center's services are currently open for use, and staff have been seeing clients since October 2020.

The family advocacy center, located at W3272 Wolf River Drive in Keshena, will offer examinations from a sexual assault nurse to survivors of abuse. More equipment is needed to run sexual assault exams. The tentative date for this service to be provided is May 1.

According to Shannon Wilber, Menominee County director of human services, the purpose of the Family Advocacy Center being available is because it is a big need within the community.

"It is definitely a need," said Wilber. "We didn't provide this type of service at all in Menominee County."

Due to the fact that there was no one who provided family advocacy services in Menominee County, Wilber said that community members needed a place to go to that was close to them.

"The reason that we have gone to such extent developing the program was because that community members would have to travel an hour to the various advocacy centers that provide this service," said Wilber.

Wilber said that when victims of assault have to travel far to partake in family advocacy programs, they often have to make appointments and have to delay the process.

"We lose evidence and sometimes they recant their stories," said Wilber. "If they choose to go forward with the prosecution, the prosecution rates really drop at that point. The perpetrator can't be prosecuted if they don't have the evidence."

"It becomes a he said, she said thing," added sexual assault nurse examiner, R. Nicole McNeel.

The advocacy center provides survivors with a space for advocacy, counseling and other resources. Transportation, on-site medical exams and a 24-hour help line are available through the Family Advocacy Center as well.

According to sexual assault advocate Courtney Carlton, the Menominee County Family Advocacy Center serves Menominee, Shawano, Oconto, Langlade, Forest, Florence and Wau-paca counties.

"We have identified these counties because they are a service provider desert and do not currently have sexual assault nurse examiners located directly in their counties," said Carlton.

Carlton added that they would not turn away any victim who is looking for help. They will serve anyone — no matter where they are from.

"When we submitted grant funding, we looked at what wasn't provided in their service area and who didn't have the services," said Wilber. "So we tailored a lot of our application to help meet the surrounding needs."

According to Wilber and McNeel, the Family Advocacy Center was started in Menominee County because it was a central location for surrounding communities. McNeel also mentioned that Native Americans as a group are being victimized more often.

"Native Americans are victimized 3.5 times more than any other group," said McNeel.

"The reporting rates are much lower, too," added Wilber. "So there is a lot of trauma that is not resolved."

Wilber said that if someone was victimized in the past, the Family Advocacy Center would still help them.

When collecting forensic evidence at the facility, McNeel mentioned there is a narrow window of time to collect evidence of abuse.

"The cutoff is 120 hours," said McNeel, "but if they came in and it was two weeks later — there are outlying cases. So I would still send them through the entire exam, treat them prophylactically, offer emergency contraceptives if needed and I would still send the evidence kit into the crime lab if they chose to go that route."

The evidence kit can be held up to 10 years if the victim decided to work or not to work with law enforcement.

"As that survivor deals through grief and trauma, they can come back at any time and decide to have that kit tested and to use it with law enforcement to go after the perpetrator."

The facility can also be used to provide emergency shelter through vouchers. The center is partnered with Oskeh-Waepqta Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault Shelter in Gresham and Safe Haven Domestic Abuse Treatment Center in Shawano to provide long-term shelters.

The center also provides an area where law enforcement and social workers can interview children about their experiences with abuse.

There is currently one trained forensic interviewer on staff, but Wilber said that they need more.

Staff at the advocacy center require that visitors and people who use the facility wear a mask and go through a temperature screening.

The staff also plans to do community outreach.

"Courtney will be going out into the community and be teaching young kids what healthy relationships are supposed to be like," said McNeel. "She will be educating little ones, and what normal sexual behavior is to parents — and making sure that parents have the resources they need to make sure their children thrive."

"Abuse happens in all forms across the lifespan," she continued. "It happens far more often than people would like to admit. The longer that you keep it in darkness, the longer it will proliferate."

Low pay sending public safety officials away

Supervisor wants county to increase pay for dispatchers, deputies, corrections officers

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

“Who do you call when you need assistance? 9-1-1, of course. The calm voice on the other end asks you what your emergency is and how may we help. They listen to the caller, ask pertinent questions and then dispatch the deputy, fire and/or ambulance personnel in the area.”

Shawano County Supervisor Theresa Serrano said those sentences to start off her speech to the county board on April 20 as she continues to crusade for better wages for county employees, especially those involved with law enforcement. She was speaking of the dispatchers who work the emergency lines at the sheriff's department.

Serrano, who sits on the county's public safety committee, continued by saying the dispatchers are doing all this work while dealing with multiple computer screens and maintaining a level of professionalism while dealing with emergencies. The high-stress position demands a certain level of pay, but Shawano County currently pays $17.67 per hour for those just starting. As a result, she said, other nearby counties offering higher pay are scooping up existing dispatchers, and efforts to find others to fill the positions have been extremely difficult.

“This is the lowest starting wage in the field for all of the adjacent counties,” Serrano said.

It's not just dispatchers, though. The sheriff's department is having a difficult time holding onto deputies and correctional officers, as well.

Serrano has gone on ride-alongs with deputies and shadowed correctional officers to see what their shifts entail. She said that deputies have voiced concerns over needing better radios and other equipment, but more of the concerns have been about department turnover and pay.

“Our Shawano County deputies are men and women who have chosen to serve and protect each one of us day after day,” Serrano said. “They put their lives on the line every day.”

She emphasized that every emergency call and traffic stop has the potential to be hazardous, and in return, the county pays its deputies $25.37 per hour to start out. As for its correctional officers, they get a starting wage of $17.67 per hour, the same as the dispatchers.

“We are unable to find qualified

Shawano County Supervisor Theresa Serrano takes the podium April 20 as she makes an impassioned plea for the county board to improve the pay of deputies, dispatchers and corrections officers with the Shawano County Sheriff's Department. Serrano told fellow supervisors the county is losing qualified personnel because the starting pay is $2 or $3 below that of adjacent counties.

LEE PULASKI | NEW MEDIA

candidates for our CO positions, deputy positions and our 9-1-1 dispatch position because we are nowhere close to the starting wages offered by our neighboring counties,” Serrano said. “Some of the correctional and dispatch wages are $2 or $3 higher starting out in the county, and there are fewer people countywide. How is that even possible?”

Serrano added it's not just other counties attracting qualified candidates. Some, after going through the interview process and finding out what Shawano County offers in pay, end up taking other jobs in the private sector.

“People have turned down our positions because they can get paid more working at a paper mill than working for our county in a position they went to college for and earned a two- or four-year college degree in,” Serrano said. “I am passionate about this because we expect these men and women to aid in our hour of need, but we are not paying them a decent wage to live a decent life, as we all want for ourselves.”

Serrano urged her board colleagues to look into ways to cut costs for the county so that it can offer competitive wages for law enforcement personnel. She said changes can be as simple as turning off lights in rooms not in use or going paperless, something she noted some board members have had a hard time with despite having tablets containing the information they need for their work.

“We will continue to lose qualified people in all these public safety positions if we, as a county, do not do something quickly,” Serrano said.

County Board Chairman Tom Kautza praised Serrano for wanting to make things better for law enforcement personnel, but he said the county can't just improve wages for one department without considering impacts to other departments.

“We can't always give a raise to this little group or that little group,” Kautza said. “I will agree that, as we're sitting on the committees, we've got to look at everything that's being done, and we've got to realize that the money isn't there like it used to be.”

Supervisor Aaron Damrau suggested looking at an alternative to running two jail buildings — the main jail and the Huber Work Release Center — as a way to cut down costs and bring public safety wages up.

“Our criminal justice system is expensive, and housing people in jail is expensive,” Damrau said. “I don't believe any of the surrounding counties have two jails like we do. What other counties are doing is eliminating housing people in jail for Huber. Waupaca County is putting people on an ankle monitor. We have two facilities now, and if we change how we do things, which is usually a big, scary concept that people don't want to do, we could save money.”

Interim administrative coordinator James Davel said that many Huber inmates are already on ankle monitors, and Shawano County also works with other counties to house some of their inmates for a cost.

OBITUARIES

Lois A. May

Lois A. May, 92, of Clintonville, passed away Tuesday evening, April 20, 2021, at the ThedaCare Regional Medical Center in Neenah.

Lois Annette Salzmänn was born Feb. 4, 1929, in the Town of Pella, Shawano County. She was the youngest of nine children of Arthur and Minnie (Anderson) Salzmänn. Lois graduated from Shawano High School and, having an adventurous spirit, moved to California, where she met Eugene Mullens. The couple were united in marriage and moved to Illinois until Eugene's death just a short while later.

Lois then moved back home to the Clintonville area where she became an executive secretary at the Seagrave FWD Corporation. While at work, she caught the eye of Oscar May, who also worked for Seagrave. The couple were wed on Aug. 27, 1960, at the Evangelical United Brethren Church and were inseparable ever since. They were both very active members of the now-named United Methodist Church in Clintonville, where Lois volunteered often and enjoyed singing with the Bell Choir.

Lois and Oscar were very close with their nieces and nephews, making them feel like their own children. Oscar preceded Lois in death on Jan.

30, 2010, and altered her life immensely. Lois was very routine oriented and could always find peace by spending time near the Embarrass River on her home farm. She loved being outdoors — whether it was gardening or just watching the deer, eagles, loons and other wildlife. Her strong faith and love of family will always be remembered.

Survivors include numerous nieces, nephews, great-nieces and great-nephews, as well as a sister-in-law, Wanda Schwartz.

Lois was preceded in death by her parents; her husbands, Eugene and Oscar; and by siblings, Roy Salzmänn, Eena Eggert, Theda Olson, Lloyd Salzmänn, Ralph Salzman, Thelma Wied, Verna O'Connell and Glenn Salzmänn.

Lois's funeral service was held Saturday, April 24, 2021, at 1 p.m. at the Eberhardt-Stevenson Funeral Home and Crematory, 53 N. Main St., Clintonville, with the Rev. Diana Ziegler officiating. Interment followed at the Graceland Cemetery in Clintonville.

Flynn Bushman, left, and Aliya Cynor, right, show off their winning posters April 20 at the Shawano County Board of Supervisors meeting, as Mary George with the land conservation department tells the board about the contest in which they both took part.

Shawano County honors poster contest winners

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Shawano County had two children place in Wisconsin's land and water conservation poster contest, and one of them will see his poster compete at the national level.

Flynn Bushman, of Wittenberg, took first place in the division for second- and third-grade students, while Aliya Cynor, of Bonduel, took second place for the division for seventh through ninth grades. Bushman's poster will continue to the National Association of Conservation Districts

Conservation Poster Contest.

This is the third year that the county has participated in the conservation poster contest, according to Scott Frank, county conservationist. The theme for the contest was "Healthy Forests, Healthy Communities."

Mary George, an office assistant at the land conservation office who spearheads the poster contest effort for the county, noted that efforts to get children involved with the contest this year were more difficult because of the coronavirus pandemic.

"With the schools closed, it was hard to get the information to the children," George said to the Shawano County Board of Supervisors at its April 20 meeting.

Despite the pandemic, five children entered at the local level. All first places go to an "area level," George said, which covers seven counties. Then those winners continue to the state level, followed by the national level.

"I give them a lot of kudos for that," George said. "They were so brave to take the time and do that and take time out of their virtual learning to create beautiful posters."

George added that this is the first year that Shawano County has had two posters place at the state level.

"That's really a big accomplishment for us," she said.

George proclaimed both Bushman and Cynor as "professional artists" because they each won $25 for getting first place at the area level.

In addition to the state honors, FWD Seagrave in Clintonville provided backpacks with assorted items to Bushman and Cynor, according to George.

Millers win harrassment injunction against Retzlaff

Marathon County judge issues temporary restraining orders

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

A Marathon County judge has ordered the owner of a Shawano County campground to cease harassment of a county supervisor and his wife.

Ann Retzlaff is prohibited under restraining orders issued April 27 from contact with Joe and Jackie Miller and must stop what the judge called “false claims and/or allegations of criminal or violent behavior.”

Judge Suzanne O'Neill's injunctions, which followed a hearing via Zoom from both Marathon and Shawano county locations, will be in force for four years.

Retzlaff and the Millers are residents of north central Shawano County. Joe Miller is a member of the Shawano County Board of Supervisors and a member of Stockbridge-Munsee Tribal Council, as well as the Bowler School Board.

The Millers individually filed a request for the restraining orders April 14. The hearing was moved to Marathon County after the Shawano County circuit court judges recused themselves, citing Joe Miller's position on the county board.

Among the items submitted as evidence of harassment was a March 26 email sent to Shawano County Sheriff Adam Bieber, Shawano County Supervisor Jerry Erdmann and Shawano School Board member Mart Grams. In it, Retzlaff said that Joe Miller and the other county board members who voted in March against a resolution establishing Shawano County as a Second Amendment sanctuary “need to be removed, fined, tried, jailed.”

Retzlaff claimed in the email that the Millers “openly promote hatred” toward her and her business, Annie's Campground, but have not spoken or written to her about their concerns. She claimed the Millers started a petition against her a year ago that caused “haters” to threaten and harass her.

At the hearing, the Millers denied circulating the petition.

Retzlaff claimed that the Millers “are drug traffickers in our area and I suspect know or are a part of the child/sex trafficking at our two casinos/tribal lands,” referring to the Mohican North Star Casino Resort, which is operated by the Stockbridge-Munsee Tribe, and the Menominee Casino Resort operated by the Menominee Tribe.

During the hearing, Jackie Miller said that the allegations had an impact on her role as a guardian ad litem (a court representative of children's interests) for the Stockbridge-Munsee Band of Mohican Indians tribal court. She said she received a copy of the email from the parent of one of her clients and had to remove herself from the case.

Jackie Miller added that Retzlaff alleged that she had committed violence against Bieber at a county board meeting where the sheriff had not been present.

During the proceeding, the judge allowed the Millers, individually, and Retzlaff to ask questions about each other's testimony.

Retzlaff asked Jackie Miller if the allegations of drug and sex trafficking were true, to which she responded, “No.” She then asked, “Are you a good witch or a bad witch?” Retzlaff explained that when dealing with satanic sex and drug trafficking, “there are good witches and bad witches. I am a good witch.”

O'Neill cut off the questioning, saying it was not relevant to the testimony provided by Jackie Miller.

In her letter, Retzlaff also claimed that Joe Miller “is despicable and needs to be charged with numerous crimes, treason, defamation of character, verbal assault against our sheriff and more ... This needs federal attention and resolution.”

Joe Miller denied the sex trafficking and drug allegations and said that Retzlaff's allegations of treason, based on the riot of Jan. 6 at the Capitol in Washington, D.C., were words that “take on new meaning to anyone.”

“The respondent speaks to her rights. I ask the court, what about our rights? We beg the court for protection against these libelous and defamatory allegations,” Joe Miller said.

The judge issued the injunctions at the end of the hearing.

Retzlaff said she would comply with the order to avoid contacting the Millers, because she felt she had already been avoiding contact.

“As far as exercising free speech — she's (O'Neill) in trouble with what she ordered me to do,” Retzlaff said.

Jackie and Joe Miller said they were pleased with the court's decision.

Carol Ryczek and Lee Pulaski contributed to this report.

Seeking more dementia-friendly communities

Dementia care specialist program works with individuals, caregivers, businesses, organizations to educate and advance understanding

By WARREN BLUHM

Editor-in-chief

The idea of dementia is scary: A disease or syndrome that slowly steals your memories and beliefs, all of the things we think of as uniquely us.

It's Mary Jo Ruleau's job to demystify those fears and help people understand.

Ruleau is a dementia care specialist (DCS) with the Aging and Disability Resource Center (ADRC) of the Wolf River Region; Kristin Waukau of the Menominee Nation is another. Together the 29 ADRC dementia care specialists and four tribal DCSs across Wisconsin provide support for individuals with dementia and their caregivers, as well as community education and business training to teach others about it.

"We want to enhance the quality of their life as they make this journey and help them stay in their homes as long as they can," Ruleau said during an interview at the ADRC office in Oconto Falls. The region also has offices in Shawano, Keshena and Bowler with satellite locations in Wittenberg and Lakewood.

Not a specific disease, dementia is defined as a chronic or persistent disorder of mental processes characterized by impairment of brain functions, such as memory, judgment, social skills and thinking ability. Alzheimer's Disease is the most common cause of dementia.

The dementia care specialist can offer classes, resources and "someone to talk to," Ruleau said.

Among the ADRC's efforts is to encourage dementia-friendly businesses and communities.

"The goal is to reduce the fear of dementia and the stigma associated with it, so people can feel more comfortable discussing what they're going through," she said.

Ruleau can lead a "Purple Angel" class for business owners and employees, which she described as a "Dementia 101" session about how to recognize when a customer might be having difficulty.

Mary Jo Ruleau, dementia care specialist with the Aging and Disability Resource Center of the Wolf River Region, helps people in Shawano, Menominee and Oconto counties to understand dementia and its impact on lives.

WARREN BLUHM | NEW MEDIA

AT A GLANCE

The Aging and Disability Resource Center (ADRC) of the Wolf River Region has six locations:

Menominee County - Health and Human Services building at W3272 Wolf River Road, Keshena

Oconto County - 229 Van Buren St., Oconto Falls

Shawano County - W7327 Anderson Ave., Shawano

Stockbridge-Munsee Community - Elderly Center, N8651 Maplewood St., Bowler

Satellite offices are open for appointments only

Wittenberg - Located in the Wittenberg Community Center, 208 West Vinal St., Wittenberg

Lakewood - Located within North Lakes Community Clinic, 15397 State Highway 32, Lakewood

When an individual calls and visits the ADRC, 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. weekdays, they can speak to an Information and Assistance person, who is able to provide free, confidential Options counseling, access to publicly-funded long-term care programs, pre-admission consultation and relocation, transitional services for young adults, customer advocacy, access to emergency services and short-term coordination. If the customer gives permission, that customer can be referred to the dementia care specialist, if there is a need.

Also, The Dementia and Caregiver Network of the Wolf River Region is a coalition that brings together people from the community to work on dementia-related initiatives, which the local dementia care specialists are a part of. The Forget Me Not Fund supports the Network.

"We talk about what to look for, how to respond, to help them be warm and accepting," she said.

An estimated 120,000 people in the state of Wisconsin are coping with a form of dementia, she said, and about 6 million people in the United States.

Ruleau and her fellow dementia care specialists are always organizing classes and activities such as the Dementia Friendly Book Club, a three-week series about that's about to begin and featuring discussion of "My Two Elaines: Learning, Coping, and Surviving as an Alzheimer's Caregiver," the 2017 book by former acting governor Martin J. Schreiber about his wife, who was diagnosed with Alzheimer's in 2007.

The online information portal Caring.com lists the book among its "Best Caregiver Books," saying it's "infused with patience, guidance and even humor as he talks about how to provide round-the-clock care to the loved one who no longer recognizes you."

The book club will meet via Zoom or telephone from 2-3 p.m. Wednesdays starting May 5 in sessions organized by the Menominee Tribe, Marinette County ADRC and Wolf River ADRC. Schreiber is scheduled to make a virtual guest appearance at the May 12 session.

Other programs include DICE (Describe, Investigate, Create, Evaluate), an interactive session to learn how to assess and manage the behavioral symptoms of dementia. The next virtual session is scheduled for 10-11 a.m. May 4.

Dementia friendly caregiver activities sessions focus on 300 creative ideas that caregivers can complete from A to Z — making applesauce to creating zen sun catchers and everything in between. The free session includes an interactive group activity, with materials mailed prior to the session. The next session, also via Zoom or telephone, is scheduled for 2-3 p.m. May 11, with another set for June 22.

The state Department of Health Services hosts monthly webinars by dementia care specialists in Wisconsin from noon-1 p.m. on the second Wednesday of each month. The May 12 webinar is titled "Building a Support Network," and on June 9 the topic is "Safety Planning."

Most of these programs were held in person until COVID-19 became a concern in March 2020, and in-person activities are starting to return in limited numbers, Ruleau said.

Among these is "Boost Your Brain," an eight-week program that takes a holistic, evidence-based approach to improving brain health. The program is scheduled for 1-2:30 p.m. Wednesdays starting June 16, with in-person or virtual options for participants.

Speakers and trainers will discuss topics like maintaining spirituality, nutrition, physical and emotional health, socialization and exercising participants' cognitive reserves, Ruleau said.

People can register for these events or receive more information by contacting Ruleau at 715-526-4712 or maryjo@adrcwolfriver.org.

New apartments going up in Shawano

S.C. Swiderski breaks ground on Engel Drive complex

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

Ground has been broken on new apartments in Shawano.

Mosinee-based S.C. Swiderski LLC began building a new apartment complex on Engel Drive in Shawano on April 22.

The apartment complex will be built on just over 18 acres. The complex will consist of six 16-unit, two-story apartment buildings with attached garages, four 20-unit, two-story apartment buildings with detached garages and four six-unit, single-story apartment buildings with attached two-car garages. The complex will also feature two road entrances, one from Engel Drive and one from County Road B. Construction costs are estimated to be $20 million.

According to Jacqui McElroy, S.C. Swiderski director of business development, 200 apartments will be added to help with the housing demand in Shawano.

City Administrator Eddie Sheppard said Shawano has been struggling with adequate multi-family development housing.

"This is something that we know that we needed for a long time," said Sheppard. "We have been looking for a partner like Swiderski to get in here and build something. As they did their research, they recognized that we just have a lack of it in the community."

Sheppard said that, as more people are coming to Shawano, they haven't been able to keep up with the demand of adequate housing in the area.

"The supply just hasn't kept up with the demand," said Sheppard. "We just haven't had the construction over the last few years to meet the needs."

With the apartments being added, Sheppard said that they are going to need more housing in the future.

Jacqui McElroy, director of business development at S.C. Swiderski, presents the details of what the new apartment complex will entail at the site on April 22.

LUKE REIMER | NEW MEDIA

"I think that this is going to help," said Sheppard. "We still know that we need more, and we are always looking at continuing. You are always bringing in new businesses — you have to look at places for people to live, too."

McElroy mentioned that through research, Shawano was found as an area with an opportunity for development.

"We have been working very closely with the city of Shawano on planning this site," said McElroy. "We do research throughout the state, and this Shawano project has one of our highest feasibility scores that we have seen."

S.C. Swiderski has been building and managing apartments since 1992. McElroy mentioned that all of the departments within the company work together to provide something known as the "SCS Difference."

"From our design team to construction to property management, we are all working together to make sure that we deliver quality housing and great service for our tenants," said McElroy.

Sheppard hopes that these apartments and the businesses coming into the community will help to raise the population.

"It is great to have people who are willing to commute and work here, but we want them to live here and be in our community," said Sheppard.

Sheppard forecasts that some units from the apartment complex will be open as soon as October. In total, the whole project will take 18-20 months to complete.

"I think by the end of 2022, everything will be built up," said Sheppard.

S.C. Swiderski was looking at this area to expand their housing, too. According to Sheppard, this worked out as the city owned the land on which the apartments are being built.

Sheppard said that adding $20 million of additional infrastructure into the tax base will help to ease the burden among all of the Shawano taxpayers.

"In general, anytime you are able to grow your tax base, it is good for your community because it spreads that burden out," said Sheppard.

The COVID-19 pandemic has not affected the overall plans of the apartment complex being built.

"Surprisingly, it hasn't affected us," said Sheppard. "This was always the original timeline. S.C. Swiderski has been pretty open and honest with us all along the way, and fortunately they didn't have any delays."

Sheppard believes adding these apartments to Shawano should excite residents due to the continued growth of the city.

"This is a step in growth in our community," said Sheppard. "There is clearly a need for additional housing, which means that people are looking at Shawano as a place that they want to be. It is always a good sign when people want to live here."

Kolaskes expect business to boom in summer

Green Gables in Bonduel is a new gathering facility for those looking to hold social events

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

A new gathering facility for weddings and parties is ready to make a name for itself this summer.

Bill Kolaske, who owns the Red Rooster in Bonduel, purchased the property at N3711 Highway 47 mainly for the barn that was there. A bonus was the 1870s Victorian-style farmhouse that sat next to it. In 2018, the Kolaske family started renovations on the property. Kolaske is assisted by his seven children and their families in staffing the venue.

"He wanted to open a bed and breakfast when he bought this," mentioned Bill's son Ben Kolaske. "The setting and the location was prime for hosting events. He wanted a business that his kids could take over."

Since the renovations were finished on the house and the barn in 2020, Green Gables of Bonduel has become a popular destination for groups of people seeking to host weddings, parties and other gatherings.

"People who did not know that this was here are very impressed with how the renovation went from a barn to as neat as what it did," said Ben Kolaske. "They like the rustic feel and the rustic look."

The family-run business is not limiting itself just to weddings, however. The Kolaskes are also accepting reservations for banquets, class reunions, graduation parties and anniversaries. A craft show, yoga nights and bluegrass music are on the docket for summer, he said.

While the renovated farmhouse did not end up becoming a bed and breakfast, the Kolaskes have put the facility to good use. "We have had small dinner parties for a maximum of a dozen people," said Ben Kolaske. "We provide all of the food."

Stephanie Kolaske, Ben's wife, mentioned that summer will be a busy time at the event space. "We are booked pretty much all of June," she said.

To that end, their staff has plans to continue renovating and improving the grounds to make it a top-notch destination for their clients. "We also have plans to paint the barn and build an arbor to place weddings and receptions wherever the guests want to go," said Ben Kolaske.

All told, the space is large enough for a significant number of guests. "For a sit-down meal, we can hold about 250," said Stephanie Kolaske.

"We want to accommodate however many people that those holding the gathering want there," said Ben Kolaske.

As word spreads about the new facility, Stephanie Kolaske said she is noticing interest from people outside the local community.

"We have had people come in from down by Green Bay and Appleton," she said. "We even had someone from Missouri who is interested in booking an event."

Stephanie Kolaske mentioned that even with the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, the size of their facility has led to minimal issues.

"We are lucky in that we have not had much trouble with the pandemic," she said. "We have had groups who wanted to socially distance, and we were able to accommodate them."

In addition to allowing for sufficient spacing, the business can also provide extra cleaning for additional peace of mind.

As the weather continues to get warmer and the pandemic slows, business is expected to boom at Green Gables.

"We are expecting to be fully booked by 2022," said Stephanie Kolaske. "We have had a lot of people already. This year we are devoting to exposure and getting people into the barn. 2022 is looking good."

"Any weekends that we have open this year, we want to use as an advertising weekend," added her husband. "We have looked into having a kids' day — having someone come out and do balloon animals and a magician, just to bring people in and know that we are here."

The community is expected to play a big role in the success of Green Gables, as Stephanie Kolaske mentioned that she wants this facility to hold more than just personal events.

"We really want to be a big community place," she said. "We want to hold a lot of community events, hence an FFA dinner banquet and yoga nights."

The Kolaskes mentioned that this facility is needed for the community because of the increased demand for different settings for gatherings. They also said they hope their success will spill over and help other community businesses to thrive.

"The uniqueness of the Green Gables is something that people take into consideration when planning their event," said Ben Kolaske. "It also brings in more business for the community."

"We just want to be a place for people around here to just come and hang out," said Stephanie Kolaske. "There is not much like this facility around Bonduel."

Open house at Horsens

Shawano County residents witness new robot milking technology

The cows at Horsens Homestead Farms poke their heads out of their feeding stations to greet visitors on April 24. The farm milks around 720 cows with state-of-the-art milking technology.

Dozens of visitors took advantage of the April 24 open house at the new robotic milking facility at Horsens Homestead Farms in Cecil to witness the latest in modern farming.

Co-manager of Horsens Homestead Farms, Ryan Horsens mentioned that an opportunity opened up to finally show community residents the new facility. Horsens is a fifth-generation farmer, with the farm starting in 1879.

“We built this project 16 months ago and with COVID-19 and everything, we were always wanting to do an open house,” said Horsens. “A lot of neighbors were asking if they could see things and check it out — there was finally a good opportunity to show everybody what we did.”

The robot milkers were introduced to the farm in December 2019. According to Horsens, the farm’s new robot milkers were a main draw of residents coming to the open house.

Horsens mentioned that robots came out in the last decade, but in the last couple of years, that technology has really improved. He mentioned that Horsens Homestead Farms has included these robots in their facility because it gives the cows more comfort.

“For us, what we were drawn to was the cow comfort,” said Horsens. “It’s kind of the cow’s world, which has always been what we have been striving to do.”

Visitors at the open house mentioned that the technology at the farm is a surprising sight to see.

“It is very interesting,” said Gillett resident Rich Rademann, who grew up on a farm. “It is unreal to see how modern farming has become.”

Roger Salzwedel, a Shawano County resident, was in awe at the new technology in the barn.

“It is simply amazing,” Salzwedel said.

Horsens said a cow knows when it’s ready to get milked when it feels it in its udder, and the cows in the barn have become accustomed to the robots and some cows try to get milked multiple times a day.

“It is a combination between them feeling it in their udder, when they are starting to get more milk, and they get a treat in the robot,” said Horsens.

In total, the farm is milking about 720 cows. With nine robot milkers in place, this equates to 60 cows per milking robot.

“We are very happy with this because we were a little nervous with Brock Herzog, a Gillett resident, meets a cow at the Horsens Homestead Open House on April 24. Herzog was one many area residents who came to the farm to see the cows and the new milking technology.

All of the cows at Horsens Homestead Farms are Holsteins. Ryan Horsens says the cows “just know” when it’s time to be milked.

Dozens of Shawano and Oconto County residents pack the walk ways of the barn to get a closer look at the cows on April 24. Visitors were also treated to a lunch of burgers or brats, cheese curds, vanilla ice cream and milk.

Horsens Homestead Farms opened up the milking stations for visitors to come and see at the open house on April 24. Co-manager Ryan Horsens described the new robot technology as modern agriculture.

our higher producing cows — that we might not get that number,” said Horsens. “But it has really worked out where we are able to have that many cows.”

In comparison to working without the robots, Horsens mentioned that the introduction of the robots is similar to what they were doing before.

“The only thing that changed for us was how we got the milk,” said Horsens. “The other 99% of the cow’s day, we try to either keep it the same or improve it.”

Horsens mentioned that a way to improve the cow’s living situation was changing how air was ventilated.

“We ended up going from naturally ventilated barns to mechanically ventilated barns,” said Horsens.

“What we were worried about was cows that were further away from the opening, making sure that they have fresh air. We want to make sure that the air that the cow breathes closer to the opening is the same as further away — it is probably one of the things that I was most proud of in the project.”

Horsens believes that the public needs to care about this because of the advancement in agriculture.

“It is modern agriculture,” said Horsens. “Being able to see where things have come in the last 50 years — going from where my grandparents were to where we are now, still maintaining a family farm, but also adapting to new technologies that put the cow first.”

The main philosophy of Horsens Homestead Farms has always been putting the cow first.

“Our key things that we always talk about are comfort, consistency, and quality forage,” said Horsens. “When you get those three things working, it really makes the best environment for the cow.”

Cow comfort is a main focus of the Horsens family with the introduction of the robot milkers. Visitors at the open house noticed this as well.

“This is a very modern choice,” said Tim O’Harrow, an Oconto County resident who runs O’Harrow Family Farms. “The cows look very healthy and comfortable.”

Horsens mentioned that all 720 cows that are milked in the barn are Holstein breeds.

With the introduction of the robots, Horsens Homestead Farms has also introduced collars on the cows that track when the animals are in heat and how long the cows are eating.

“This allows us to figure out what cows are sick, or what cows need attention,” said Horsens. “Even though we are bigger, we are making sure that things aren’t falling through the cracks.”

Horsens said that the farm averages 104 lbs of milk per cow per day. The milk is sent to Agropur in Little Chute, where it is made into cheese.

PBS Wisconsin launches 'Why Race Matters'

PBS Wisconsin has announced the launch of "Why Race Matters," a nine-part digital series focused on important issues affecting Wisconsin's Black communities.

In the new series, host Angela Fitzgerald interviews Black Wisconsinites about race, identity and achieving racial equity in the state. Through conversations with experts, artists, community organizers and health professionals, viewers will hear the historical context to modern issues impacting the state's Black residents, including mental health, civic engagement, maternal well-being, the school-to-prison pipeline, agriculture and land ownership.

"Why Race Matters" is now available for viewing on all PBS Wisconsin digital platforms. Subsequent episodes will premiere 7 p.m. Wednesdays at pbswisconsin.org/whyracematters. Episodes can also be viewed on the free PBS app on Roku, other digital streaming devices and Smart TVs.

In summer 2020, with an urgent and amplified national conversation about race following the killing of George Floyd, Fitzgerald, host of "Wisconsin Life," felt moved to use her role in public media to help localize the discussion about improving the conditions of Black Americans. Out of this comes "Why Race Matters," an extension of Fitzgerald's commitment to foster a Wisconsin that repairs its stark racial disparities and achieves equity for Black people living in the state.

Each episode of the digital series sets up the conversation with background and context about the history of a systemic issue. In-depth interview conversations between Fitzgerald and her guests follow, where personal stories and how they relate to the larger topic are shared.

"We are building out a library of resources to accompany each episode to reflect that way of thinking," Fitzgerald said. "Here are some organizations, here are some things you can read up on, other things to help that energy maintain itself, to hopefully lead to whatever action makes sense."

Mullen wins 2nd straight IMCA Mod feature

Siefert, Lemmens, Sobiescyk and Westphal claim other features

By DAVE BUSS

Special to NEW Media

Week two of the racing season at the Shawano Speedway rolled onto the track with heavy jackets, stocking caps and blankets filling the grandstands as cold temperatures were the story of the night.

With other tracks having to cancel due to weather, the pit area was full of travelers and regulars for the night of racing. Hardy fans came out to see Jared Siefert, Luke Lemmens, Tyler Sobiescyk, Mike Mullen and Tanner Westphal pick up feature wins.

The IMCA Sport Mods led off feature action with Dylan Waldvogel and Sobiescyk on the front row. Sobiescyk wouldn't let his great starting position go to waste as he stormed out to a commanding lead in the early part of the race.

Waldvogel was challenged and eventually passed by John Holtger, who got close to the Sobiescyk machine on a couple of occasions but was not able to make the pass.

Back in traffic, Jayden Schmidt made his way forward in a spirited battle with Jeffrey Teske and Max Oreskovich. Schmidt eventually grabbed the third spot with Teske finishing fourth.

The IMCA Mods ran second on the night and early on it looked like it would be the Eddie Muenster show. Muenster jumped out to a large lead on lap one and began to pull away as last week's feature winner Mullen began moving forward along with Marcus Yarie.

Mullen and Yarie both started in the fifth row, and by lap seven, they were starting to reel in Muenster. Mullen got by the Muenster machine on lap eight, with Yarie grabbing second on lap nine. Lucas Lamberies followed suit and grabbed the third spot on lap 10.

Mechanical problems ended the night for Muenster, while Mullen was cruising to victory. Yarie held off Lamberies for second, with Johnny Whitman and Konnor Wilinski rounding out the top five.

The Late Model Division saw longtime driver Siefert and Justin Ritchie starting in the front row. Siefert capitalized on a great start to grab the top spot and began to pull away from the Ritchie machine. Ron Berna began to challenge Ritchie for the runner-up spot.

A lap seven caution slowed action. On the restart, Berna got past Ritchie and began to challenge Siefert for the lead. Siefert was up to the challenge and again started to extend his lead.

On lap 13, caution flew again and once again give Ritchie and Berna an opportunity to get to Siefert's back bumper. Ritchie used this restart to retake the runner-up spot, with Nick Anvelink moving to third past Berna. Running an exceptionally smooth line, Siefert picked up the feature win with Ritchie, Anvelink and Berna in tow.

The IMCA Stock Cars continue to show why they are the most exciting class to watch every week at the speedway. Dan Michonski, coming off a miserable opening night, went to a backup car while his primary car was being repaired. Michonski started on the pole position in the feature event.

Michonski jumped to an early lead but soon was joined by Chucky Forstner and Eric Arneson in a battle for the top spot. Trent Nolan also joined the battle throughout the middle of the race. A caution took the Arneson machine out of contention a few laps later.

Meanwhile, Lemmens powered his way to the front and eventually wrestled away the top spot from Forstner in a great side-by-side battle. Lemmens, returning to the speedway for the first time in nine years, grabbed the checkered flag with Forstner finishing second. Travis Van Straten took third, with Nolan finishing fourth.

The Mighty 4 feature saw Westphal get past pole sitter Alexis Michonski in the opening laps to grab the top spot. Last week's feature winner Brad Wedde moved into the runner-up spot on lap six, with William Hoefs grabbing the third spot.

Westphal cruised to victory with Wedde doing everything he could to get by. Lucas Hacker, racing for the first time this year, made an impressive run to the third spot, with Hoefs rounding out the top four.

Spring Hearing questions involving Shawano, Oconto counties all pass

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

ONLINE

A story on Wisconsin fishing opener can be found online at www.newmedia-wi.com.

The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources released results from the 2021 Spring Hearing on April 19.

A pair of questions regarding Shawano and Oconto counties, plus a citizen resolution for Oconto County, all passed.

The Shawano County question asked if individuals favored “applying a daily bag limit of three trout in total with a minimum length limit of eight inches for all trout species in the Little Wolf River from its headwaters to the downstream end of the classified section.” The question included the connected creeks of Comet Creek, Jones Creek, Jackson Creek, Flume Creek, Rainy Creek, and Bradley Creek in Marathon, Portage, Waupaca and Shawano counties.

The question passed by a vote of 4,915-753. Of people who indicated they recreate in Shawano County, the question passed 368-62.

The lone Spring Hearing question involving Oconto County was asking if individuals “support applying no minimum length limit for largemouth bass and a daily bag limit of five bass in total for White Potato Lake.”

The question passed 4,935-1,270. Of those that recreate in Oconto County, 480 were in favor and 98 were against.

The lone citizen resolution submitted in Shawano or Oconto county came from Oconto. The resolution was to remove burbot from the list of Wisconsin rough fish, which would require legislation. A total of 78 individuals voted on the resolution, with 54 in favor and 24 against.

Of the 57 total Spring Hearing questions, only two were voted down.

People voted against legalizing the harvest of white (not albino) deer statewide. A total of 4,895 people were against it, while 4,704 were for it.

Individuals also voted against allowing dog training, trialing, and hunting on state-owned land from April 15-July 31 without requiring the use of an 8-foot leash. After the votes were counted, 4,870 people were against it, while 3,934 were for it.

Full results can be found at <https://dnr.wisconsin.gov/about/wcc/spring-hearing>.

Public input received through this process is advisory to members of the natural resources board, department staff, and anyone who is working on these issues. No final decisions have been made at this time; rather results of this public input will be considered by the Conservation Congress, DNR and Natural Resources Board in the coming months.

Wisconsin adds former Wake Forest guard

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wisconsin has added Wake Forest transfer Jahcobi Neath to its backcourt.

Neath, who is 6-foot-3, averaged 3.8 points, 1.7 assists and 15.8 minutes this past season as a sophomore at Wake Forest. He played in 20 games and made four starts.

As a freshman, Neath had 5.3 points, 2.2 assists and 1.9 rebounds per game.

“We have seen that the college game is moving more and more towards using more versatile lineups,” Wisconsin coach Greg Gard said in a statement. “Having backcourt depth is essential in today’s game, and Jahcobi can give us not only more depth at the point guard position, but he is also versatile enough to play off of the ball and allow us to play multiple guards.”

Wisconsin will have a much different team from the one that went 18-13 and reached the second round of the NCAA Tournament last month before losing to eventual national champion Baylor. The five leading scorers from that team were all seniors.

Brad Davison is the only senior from the 2020-21 team who has indicated he plans to play for the Badgers again next season.

ATHLETE PROFILE: TAYLOR JOHNSON

Shawano senior ready to guide team

Taylor Johnson has been a big part of the Shawano Community High School softball team's success since stepping on the diamond as a freshman. Now a senior, Taylor will try and help lead the Hawks to a big season.

Johnson will be the team's primary pitcher, and play first base or the outfield when not in the circle.

The last time she stepped on the field in 2019, she earned a spot on the Bay Conference first team unanimously as a utility player. That spring, Johnson pitched 31 1/3 innings, posting a 3.13 earned run average. She hit .382 at the plate.

Q: When did your interest in softball begin?

A: I became interested when I started T-ball when I was seven. I began to really love the game around age nine.

Q: What is your favorite part about the softball season?

A: My favorite part about the season is the excitement I get from playing the game. I have always loved being around my teammates and coaches from little on because they've always encouraged me and believed in me. Besides that, having my dad (Brian) as a coach for the last four years has been an experience I will cherish forever.

Q: You've served as a pitcher since you were a freshman. Talk a bit about how you've taken care of your arm and consistently been able to be in the circle for your team.

A: I have made a commitment to my team and to myself from the first day freshman year. I really focused on the positive parts of being a pitcher because it can be so easy to let the challenges get you down. I constantly battle to be the best I can be with the understanding that my teammates and coaches are there to pick me up when I'm down. Being a pitcher requires the support from your entire team, and Shawano's Taylor Johnson delivers a pitch during a Bay Conference game against Green Bay East on April 30, 2019, at Martzke Park in Shawano.

Shawano softball has made it so easy to be in the circle for them.

Q: What are your individual goals for your senior season?

A: My individual goals for the season are to make first team all-conference, to hit .400, and as a team, make a run in sectionals.

Q: What will be the biggest key to success for your team this season?

A: Staying focused on and off the field is what's going to lead our team to success this season. We're young and inexperienced this year and we need to make the extra effort to keep up with the other teams in the area.

Q: After missing last spring, what do you believe will be the most difficult part about getting back into the swing of things this spring?

A: Without last year's season, it will be difficult for everyone to be on the same page in the beginning. Varsity softball is a different level that some of the girls haven't had the chance to experience so it will take a little getting use to.

Q: What has it been like playing for your dad over the years?

A: Playing for my dad has been an honor. Nothing compares to the bond that we have created over the love of the game. During the countless hours spend at the diamond on freezing cold, rainy days when I had stopped believing in myself, my dad was there to pick me up and believe in me when no one else did. I am so grateful to have had the opportunity to play for my dad.

Q: Before a game, do you have any rituals you go through?

A: I have a pitching routine that I go through before every game, but I don't have anything in particular that I am superstitious about.

Q: What's your favorite memory of competing on the Shawano softball team?

A: When we beat Menasha in extra innings my sophomore year and every person on the team contributed to the win.

Q: Favorite TV show, movie and musical artist?

A: TV show — "Grey's Anatomy." Movie — "The Patriot." Musical artist — Luke Bryan

Q: Name one thing about yourself that not many people know.

A: I have a phobia of mice.

Q: What are some things you hope to accomplish after graduating high school?

A: I plan on continuing my education at UW-LaCrosse and becoming an optometrist after graduating high school.

Why wait?

HIGH SCHOOL VOLLEYBALL

Daniel Trudgeon tabbed new Shawano coach

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

Daniel Trudgeon will be the next varsity volleyball coach at Shawano Community High School.

Trudgeon will replace Lew Worthington, who vacated the position after one season for health reasons. The announcement was made by the high school in a press release April 20.

Trudgeon and Worthington worked together this past fall, when the Hawks went 4-6 during an abbreviated fall season because of coronavirus pandemic restrictions.

Following the season, Worthington was diagnosed with pancreatic cancer in December.

"Cancer disrupts so many of our lives, and in my case, I had to let go of two of my dream jobs (pastor at Peace United Church of Christ in Shawano and the head coaching position for Shawano volleyball)," said Worthington. "I love the Shawano community and made so many friends there. Now, I'm living near Lansing, Michigan, to get treatment for my condition."

Trudgeon said he got full support from Worthington to apply for the job, and now he will do his best to continue building upon what they started this past fall.

Aside from serving as a varsity assistant at SCHS this past fall, Trudgeon's other coaching experience ranges from middle school to Division II college teams.

He helped coach at Ferris State University in Big Rapids, Michigan, and also was the president of a men's club volleyball program while in Big Rapids. He attended high school in Bessemer, Michigan, where he served as a volunteer assistant coach.

Trudgeon believes his year in the program should prove beneficial, instead of having to learn an entirely new program and its players.

"A lot of what went into last year was just learning how the school operates, learning the conference and then learning the athletes," said Trudgeon, who joined the Shawano community in 2017 and works for KerberRose as a senior auditor. "There wasn't really much time for anything else when it's a five-week season compared to a 10-week season.

"With the way last season went, it gave me the opportunity to see the school, learn how they operate, but then also get an idea of what Lew had to do administratively and being the head of the program. We communicated with each other on a lot of it anyway and it will give me a great idea of what is to come."

Trudgeon said he and Worthington wanted the team to be fundamentally sound this past fall, and to be able to make decisions on the court without always needing coaches input. "Really just having them know the game, know what they need to do out on the court to be successful," said Trudgeon.

With the team about to embark on a third straight season with a new coach leading the way, Trudgeon is hoping to provide the program some stability.

The new head coach was expecting to serve as an assistant under Worthington for several seasons and has "no anticipations on leaving the area."

"I see a lot of potential within this program to do very well and I know that switching between coaches, there's no consistency," said Trudgeon. "So I will just have to have the open communication that as long as they are committed, I'm committed to being there."

Trudgeon added that coaching for Shawano gives him the opportunity to make an impact on athletes as they work through the program, from middle school up.

Before the team takes the court next fall, he's hoping to build up some excitement before the start of what he hopes in a full and normal fall season.

"I'm thrilled that Dan has been selected as the head coach," said Worthington. "We worked together last season, and his knowledge, experience, insight, and ability to instruct student-athletes was an amazing asset to our team's growth. There's no doubt in my mind that he will continue growing the program."

Worthington was proud of how the team was able to navigate the strange fall season. One of his favorite highlights from the season was watching Abby Tuma take the court again after surviving cancer.

"Her courage and fight have inspired me to keep fighting in my own personal battle," said Worthington.

Marion had just three golfers competing, so it didn't qualify for a team score. Ellen Radies (106) and Sam Gueths (108) led the way, with Quinn Tolan (118) serving at the other Mustang on the course.

Two area teams done with alternate fall seasons prematurely

The Menominee Indian football and Gresham/Bowler boys soccer teams have both ended their alternate fall seasons early.

Menominee Indian coach Chris

Clache cited numerous injuries stacking up as to why the team wouldn't finish its alternate season. Player safety was at the forefront of the decision for Clache.

Menominee Indian had two games remaining on its alternate season.

Gresham/Bowler coach Walter Moesch cited a lack of athletes — some who are now involved with their spring sports — for why the co-op ended its season. The co-op removed itself from its postseason pod on April 22.

Hopes and Dreams made possible by building bears

Program helps families find comfort after losing a loved one

When someone is on their end-of-life journey, it can be a difficult and emotional process for everyone involved, including family members who will carry on their loved one's memory.

With support from the ThedaCare Family of Foundations, the ThedaCare Hospice Foundation offers the Hopes and Dreams program. It was created to enrich the lives of patients in hospice care by creating lasting memories and granting final wishes. One way they've had an impact is by recording sweet messages from patients to their loved ones to cherish their memory. The recorded messages are then placed inside a Build-A-Bear.

"When our children first received the bears, they would sleep with them at night and we would hear them push that button over and over," said Beverly Caron, a mother of two children who received bears in 2016 just days before their grandma passed away. "It was really nice because it was something they could hold and touch and still hear Grandma's voice, even today."

Caron said the gift of the bears also provided a much needed distraction for the family while their grandmother was in hospice care.

"This was something we could go and do as a family," she said. "We picked out the bear, and went through the process. It was nice to give the kids something to enjoy in the midst of something so sad. And it created a lasting memory for us."

Jane Shea, hospice volunteer specialist for ThedaCare at Home, said the Build-A-Bear program is special for elderly patients who want to leave their grandchildren something to help remember them.

"They can then hear Grandma's voice long after she passes on," said Shea. "And there's just something about allowing children to create that toy themselves, there's value in that."

In addition to the Build-A-Bear program, Hopes and Dreams funds are used for special requests such as a plane ticket for a family member, celebration of a milestone like a birthday or anniversary or other special requests.

Shea noted that one story stands out from the Build-A-Bear program.

"A patient wanted to sing a birthday song for his family members to have, but it was too long for the recording device," she said. "One of our volunteers was able to find a recorder that would hold the longer message, and the patient was able to sing his birthday song for his family to have. The message was put into a bear. Then, it became like a traveling birthday bear for his family to have on birthdays after he passed. It was incredibly special."

Since the inception of the Build-A-Bear program with Hopes and Dreams, thousands of teddy bears have brought comfort to patient's families.

Shea said they are always looking for volunteers who want to have an impact in someone's life. Volunteers are able to provide much needed respite to caregivers by visiting with patients.

"Having a loved one enter end-of-life care can be an emotional and stressful time for any family," explained Shea. "The Hopes and Dreams program offers a way to both alleviate some of that stress and create an exceptional experience for families and their loved ones, and we are very proud of the volunteers who make it possible."

To become a volunteer or for information, contact Shea at Jane.Shea@thedacare.org.

ThedaCare loosens visitor restrictions at long-term facilities

To protect older adults who are most at risk of developing severe complications of COVID-19, visitor restrictions were put into place last year at ThedaCare long-term care facilities: The Heritage, Peabody Manor and Juliette Manor.

ThedaCare announced recently that it is modifying visitor restrictions at those locations. In-person visits have now resumed and long-term care residents and team members are happy to safely welcome loved ones.

Under new visitor guidelines for these facilities, indoor in-person visitation is permitted for all residents, regardless of vaccination status, unless:

- The county's positivity rate is above 10% and less than 70% of residents in the facility are fully vaccinated
- The resident has a confirmed COVID-19 infection (until they have met the criteria to discontinue transmission based precautions)

- The resident is in quarantine (until they have met criteria for release from quarantine)

In-person visitors will be screened, and visits will take place in a designated area that allows for social distancing. If a resident is fully vaccinated, they can choose to have close contact with their visitor while wearing a mask. Visitors should remain physically distanced from staff and other residents during their visits. When possible, leaders explain that outdoor visitation is preferred. Virtual visits will also remain an available option.

If a new case of COVID-19 is identified among residents or staff, all in-person visitation will be immediately suspended until testing has been completed and no positive cases have been revealed.

Summer road projects announced

The state Department of Transportation has two major construction projects planned in Shawano County and one in Menominee County this summer, according to the North Central Region's construction preview of road construction projects taking place in 2021 on state and U.S. highways in the region.

Construction schedules may fluctuate pending favorable weather conditions and crew availability.

The complete preview can be found at <https://projects.51lwi.gov/>
In Shawano County, a $1 million to $2 million project is plan along state Highway 117 from Mutzy Lane in Bonduel to state Highway 22 in Cecil, a distance of 4.2 miles.

Between July and October, crews are scheduled to remove and replace 2 inches of asphalt pavement, place shoulder gravel, replace guardrail near the Mountain Bay Trail bridge and replace six culvert pipes along the corridor.

This project will be constructed under traffic with flagging during daylight hours. A minimum of one lane will be open to traffic. Access for local and emergency service vehicles traffic will be maintained.

The intersection of state Highway
29 and County Road U in the Town of Herman is due for a makeover from July through November, at a cost of $3 million to $5 million.

Westbound lanes to the east of the intersection will be reconstructed to lower the existing profile of the road to provide improved site distance.
The County Road U intersection will be reconstructed as a J-turn intersection to improve safety.

Highway 29 will be reduced to one lane of traffic in each direction for the project's duration. Crossovers will be utilized, and traffic will run counter-directional during the reconstruction of the westbound lanes.

County Road U will be closed and/or turning movements restricted for the project's duration.
Details may be found at https:// projects.51lwi.gov/wis29countyu/

In Menominee County, the reconstruction of state Highway 47 will continue from 2020, a $6 million project covering Duquaine Road (BIA 334) to the north junction with County Road VV.

This project, scheduled for April to November, will place new asphalt on the highway and includes roadway widening for bicycle lanes, new storm sewer and curb and gutter, reconstructing sidewalk and curb ramps to meet current Americans with Disabilities Act requirements.
Crews are also expected to rehabilitate the bridge deck surface over the Wolf River.

the OTHER COAST

"UNFORTUNATELY, IN THEIR FIRST SEA BATTLE AFTER HIS PROMOTION, THINGS DIDN'T GO SO WELL FOR THEM..."

"THEIR CANNON FIRE HAD NO EFFECT ON THE OTHER SHIP. THE ARR BILLY WAS HOLED AND EVENTUALLY SANK."

THEY WERE DEFEATED BY SKILL AND SUPERIOR TACTICS?

NOT EXACTLY.

YOU BOUGHT SQUEAKY CANNON BALLS?

I THOUGHT THEY'D MAKE A NICE SOUND BOUNCING OFF SHIPS' HULLS.

SOMEDAY, WHEN I AM OLD, I WILL TRY TO RELIVE MY CHILDHOOD BY FINDING THE BIKE OF MY YOUTH.

I WILL POLISH IT AND CHERISH IT AND TEAR UP AS I REMEMBER ALL THE GREAT TIMES I HAD ON THAT OLD BIKE.

NOW I JUST NEED SOMEONE TO BUY ME A BIKE WHILE I'M STILL A YOUTH.

WELL, ANOTHER DAY, ANOTHER 10 CENTS AFTER TAX.

THAT SHEEP JUST NEVER STOPS. HE'S LIKE A SMALL, WOOLLY PERPETUAL MOTION MACHINE.
