Rock Park Swimming Area has barriers up on June 21, preventing visitors from driving down to the park to use the facilities.

Rock Park Swimming Area closed for much of summer

Glass, littering leads to closure of Town of Richmond park

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

One popular tourist attraction in Shawano County will closed during the coming summer weeks.

The Town of Richmond board has decided to close Rock Park Swimming Area for the foreseeable future, due to the amount of litter that has been left there by visitors.

"There have been a growing amount of problems there," said Steve Gueths, town chairman.

He noted that the board knew there had been a problem with litter and trash being left at the park. But the issue came to a head, he said, after a lengthy cleanup on June 14.

"We knew this was a problem, but when the guys took 3½ hours each to clean up, that was the straw that broke the camel's back," said Gueths. "They were able to fill their whole truck bed with trash."

He said that the park has been seeing a problem with visitors leaving litter for 10-15 years.

According to Gueths, the board hopes to revisit opening the park during a meeting in August. This rules out the opportunity for residents and guests to use the park during July, however — a popular time for summer recreation.

"This is a popular park," said Gueths. "We have people who come from outside of the area to use this facility."

Even though the swimming area is closed, Gueths said he doesn't think area tourism will decrease when the summer ramps up.

"There are a lot of other areas that are available to guests," said Gueths.

Another worry for Gueths and the board was not only the amount of trash that was being left behind, but where it was being left.

"We have even seen trash on the other side of the river, in people's yards," said Gueths. "I don't know if that is from the rafters who go by or how it gets there."

The major worry of the board was the broken glass that was being left at the park. The park features a sign indicating that glass bottles are not allowed, but according to Gueths, people are still getting cut and hurt by them.

Gueths mentioned that he and the board hope that shutting down the park will help to curb the trash problem when they reopen. He said that he has also heard disappointment from those who want to use the park's facilities.

"I have heard on social media that a lot of people are getting mad that the park is closed," said Gueths. "Some people are ruining it for everyone."

Gueths hopes that the park can be open by fall, because it has become a spot for hunters.

According to Gueths, the park will be monitored by the Shawano County Sheriff's Department, and those who are caught using the facility will be arrested and charged with trespassing.

Keshena man gets 41 months for assault

'Brutal beatings' left victim in a coma for two days

By KEVIN MURPHY
Correspondent

A former Keshena man with a history of convictions for "brutal beatings" was sentenced June 16 in federal court to three years and five months in prison for an assault that left his victim in a coma for two days.

According to court documents: Mitchell R. Crowe, 40, was on supervised release June 25, 2020, for a sex crime involving a minor when a 50-plus-year-old man that Crowe knew, threatened Crowe and pointed what appeared to be firearm at him. The man struck Crowe in the face with the firearm and the 6-foot, 330-pound Crowe, according to Brown County Jail records, kicked or stomped on the man's head, fracturing his skull and other lesser injuries. Surgery for the man's fractured skull was delayed for two days while he was in a coma with a hemorrhaged brain.

The victim was identified in court documents as "John Doe" but referred to in court only as Mr. James. Crowe was indicted in October, detained in February and pleaded guilty to assault on April 1. Also on that date, District Judge William Griesbach revoked Crowe's supervised release on a 2018 conviction for sexual contact with a minor, and sentenced Crowe to a year in prison for that offense. Arguing against enhancing Crowe's sentence for using a knife during the assault, his attorney, Susan Karaskiewicz, said on Wednesday that her client was trying to defend himself.

"Mr. Crowe wasn't looking for this fight, he didn't randomly seek out to attack Mr. James and instead Mr. Crowe suffered a broken orbital bone," an eye socket fracture, Karaskiewicz said.

Griesbach concluded that Crowe had a knife during the assault completely disagreed that he was merely defending himself.

"This isn't a self-defense case otherwise Mr. Crowe wouldn't be before the court. This is an assault...and I reject the argument that Mr. Crowe was defending himself. He was the aggressor and beat Mr. James far more than necessary... (Crowe) seems to have pulled (James) from a car, beaten Mr. James who doesn't remember any of the events," Griesbach said.

Both Karaskiewicz and Assistant U.S. Attorney Andrew Maier recommended that Griesbach impose a sentence of 41 months and three years' supervised release.

Maier told Griesbach that the government hasn't spoken to Mr. James in any meaningful way but Maier believes that Mr. James would be satisfied with length of the recommend sentence to run concurrently with the rest of the sentence Crowe is serving now.

Continuing to add mitigating information, Karaskiewicz said, that a missing witness, if he were honest, could corroborate what happened that day but he is a brother of the tribal police detective who led the investigation on the Menominee Indian Reservation. The missing witness had said that the fight was started by James using a slang term to call Crowe a child molester.

"There's lot of missing information, that is one reason that Mr. James didn't provide a statement or want to go further with this," she said.

Crowe declined to make a statement.

Griesbach said the case against Crowe was difficult to prove because many potential witnesses were under the influence, fled or, don't "have a history of perfect honesty."

Griesbach recounted Crowe's prior convictions for violent acts including beating a man to death in 2000 with a table leg, which resulted in a 57-month sentence; battery to a federal law enforcement officer in 2008 which resulted in a seven-year sentence; and abusive sexual contact with a minor in 2018.

The assault on James not only caused some "cognitive damage, you came close to killing him," said Griesbach.

"I know you're a better person than this. You've got to get control of your behavior, get control of your substance abuse. People are frightened of you," the judge said.

Highway 29 and County Road U project starts June 28

Gov. Tony Evers recently signed a $3,074,933 contract to improve the intersection of state Highway 29 and County Road U in the town of Herman.

Work is scheduled to begin June 28. Relyco, Inc. is the prime contractor for the project. The Highway 29 westbound lanes to the east of the intersection will be reconstructed to improve site distance. The County Road U intersection will be reconstructed into a J-Turn to improve safety.

During construction, Highway 29 will be reduced to a single lane in each direction with a reduced speed limit of 55 mph. Median crossovers will be utilized, and traffic will run counter directional during the reconstruction of the Highway 29 westbound lanes. An alternate route will be posted for oversize vehicles via Interstate 41, state Highway 441, U.S. Highway 10, and U.S. Highway 45. County Road U will be closed in stages.

Construction is scheduled for completion by November. The schedule is dependent on favorable weather conditions and construction progress.

For information, a project website is available at projects.511wi.gov/wis-29countyu.

Shawano Farmers Market kicks off season

Food, crafts on sale for area visitors

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

A popular Shawano County event returned for residents over the weekend.

The 2021 Shawano Farmers Market kicked off its season with many visitors coming out to Franklin Park on June 19 to load up on food and crafts.

Hosted by the FRESH Project, produce and meat vendors, yoga, music and crafters were all available for visitors to experience when they got to the park.

The FRESH Project's executive director, Barbara Mendoza, said that this farmers market brought more people out compared to the markets the project held last year during the COVID-19 pandemic.

"This one is more lively than last year," said Mendoza. "We have music and were able to do the yoga and have the crafters. People were also able to do tastings."

Mendoza also said she saw more people congregate and stay and talk, rather than just buying what they needed and leaving. In total, she estimated around 750 people had attended on this opening weekend.

Due to the amount of people and the time of the year, Mendoza noted that many of the produce vendors were sold out very quickly in the morning.

Even though Mendoza was excited about the turnout, she expects that number to continue to increase as the summer progresses.

"I think that people will continue coming out," said Mendoza. "They are excited about it. We will have more food and produce vendors next week. As the produce continues to grow and be harvested, more people we will get here."

Other than just providing food for people, Mendoza believes holding an event like the farmers market gives the residents in the community an opportunity to learn more about where their food comes from.

"This event gives people in the community an opportunity to come out and talk with the farmers to find out information about their food," said Mendoza. "It is all local, so they know exactly what they are going to get, they know how it's grown and they know that it is good for them."

Mendoza believes that health is a major reason behind Shawano County residents attending the market.

"People want to eat healthy," she said. "They want something that is locally grown and know where their food comes from — I think that is very important for them."

She also said that, with more people getting vaccinated and the threat of COVID-19 being reduced, more people will come out as well.

"It's just that they can come out and not be afraid of getting sick," said Mendoza. "I think they are able to come out and just have the opportunity visit with other people — we didn't have that last year."

Mendoza summed up her experience as the first farmers market of 2021 came to a close.

"I am just very excited that we are able to do it this year," said Mendoza. "The community has been very wonderful and as the farmers start harvesting we will get more produce, so visitors should not be discouraged to come."

According to Mendoza, the goal of the FRESH Project is to get healthy food to everyone. It is a nonprofit organization, founded in June 2017.

"We educate people on how to eat healthy," said Mendoza. "We teach at the senior centers and go to schools to teach them about gardening."

The FRESH Project is plans to host the Shawano Farmers Market from 8 a.m. to noon Saturdays until Oct. 2.

DNR seeks comments on Gresham water project

The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources has announced the village of Gresham is an applicant for funding through the Safe Drinking Water Loan Program (SDWLP) to address deficiencies in its public drinking water system.

The project includes the replacement of watermain on County Road A and Fischer Street near and in Gresham.

Activities related to this project are minor actions under Chapter NR 150, Wisconsin Administrative Code, for which no environmental analysis is required. However, following the SDWLP federal requirement 40 C.F.R. §35.3580, an environmental review must be conducted before funding this project.

The SDWLP has determined that the project will not result in significant adverse environmental effects, and no further environmental review or analysis is needed before proceeding with funding the project.

The public is encouraged to submit comments regarding this decision and the potential environmental impacts of this project. Submit comments by July 2 by mail to: Department of Natural Resources, c/o Kevin Olson, Community Financial Assistance, 101 S. Webster St., P.O. Box 7921, Madison, WI 53707. Comments can also be accepted by phone at 608-234-2238 or by email at Kevin.Olson@wisconsin.gov

Based on the comments received, the SDWLP may prepare an environmental analysis before proceeding with the funding process. The analysis would summarize the DNR's consideration of the project's impacts and reasonable alternatives.

Kathryn J. Folkman

Kathryn J. Folkman, 67, of Hobart, was called home to eternal rest on June 17, 2021, following a courageous battle with cancer.

Born Sept. 10, 1953, to Melvin and Gloria (Erdman) Hovie, Kathy graduated from Bonduel High School in 1970. Following graduation, she worked at Aid Association for Lutherans in Appleton, until she married the love of her life, James Folkman, on Nov. 8, 1975. Together they farmed in the Town of Angelica, where they raised their family. Later, Kathy would work at American Medical Security in Green Bay.

While Kathy found satisfaction in the awards she and Jim won for farming and took pleasure in the lifelong friendships she formed in her office jobs, the true pride and joy of her life was her family. Kathy was a devoted and loving mother and grandmother, always putting the needs of her family first. Some of the happiest family memories include camping trips all across the country, and Kathy graciously hosting many, many gatherings throughout the seasons.

When not busy working or taking care of her family, Kathy enjoyed feeding a variety of birds, tending to her flower gardens and crafting numerous quilts and blankets that will provide her family warmth and comfort for years to come.

Kathy will be deeply missed by her husband, James; children, Matt (Jenny) Folkman, Oakes, North Dakota, Tarra (Mike) Gallagher, Green Bay, Eric (Joanna) Folkman, Sheboygan, and Ryan (Jennifer) Folkman, Pulaski; grandchildren, Abby, Emily, Kaitlyn, Benjamin, Nathan, Jacob, Grace, Mark, Zachary, Delaney, Cassidy, Asher, Joshua, Logan and Brielle; father, Melvin Hovie, Pulaski; sisters, Debbie (Joe Oskey) Mueller, Pulaski, and Pam (Cliff) Landwerlen, Jamestown, Indiana; brother-in-law, Bill (Florence) Folkman, Krakow; many cousins, nieces, nephews, extended family and friends; and her beloved dog, Pete.

She was preceded in death by mother, Gloria Hovie; mother-in-law and father-in-law, Elma and Elmer Folkman; sisters-in-law, Elaine Bucholz, Arly Buntrock and Bev Anderson; and brother-in-law, Dewey Folkman.

A funeral service was held Wednesday, June 23 at the church with Pastor Stuart Dornfeld officiating. Burial will take place at 2 p.m., Friday, June 25 at Our Savior's Lutheran Cemetery, Les-sor.

Paula J. Reed

Paula Jean Reed, 54, died peacefully, after courageously battling cancer for over two years, on June 16, 2021, at her home in Lakewood. She was surrounded by her husband, Rich, her children, Emily, Rachel and Hunter, her grandson, Joey, and her sister, Margaret. Paula was born in Kenosha to Rovella Mary Cosentino. Paula grew up in Mountain and graduated from Suring High School in 1985.

She married the love of her life, Rich Reed, on May 26, 1989. Together, they had three beautiful children, who were raised in Oconto Falls. During these years, she provided daycare for many children who became her extended family. Those who knew Paula know that she devoted her life to her family. A kind spirit, she touched those around her with love and compassion. As a mother, she devoted every ounce of her being to her children. As a wife, she loved unconditionally and fully.

In every facet of her life — daughter, sister, aunt, godmother, daycare provider, neighbor and friend — she loved deeply. True to her selflessness and empathy, during her last few years of life, she insisted that those close to her live their fullest lives in her absence. Paula always did and will continue to uplift those around her.

Paula was preceded in death by her father, Ray Anderson; her brother, Charlie Anderson; and her father-in-law, Joseph Reed.

She is survived by her husband, Richard Reed; her three children, Emily, Rachel (Yusef), and Hunter Reed; one grandson, Josef Gray; her mother, Rovella Anderson; her sisters, Robin Duffek (Steve), Tina Klein (Karthik), Maggie Pichotta (Brian); her brother, Roger (Debbie); her mother-in-law, Janet Reed; her loving nieces and nephews, and many wonderful friends.

Paula's family would like to extend gratitude to Aurora Baycare and the Vince Lombardi Cancer Clinic doctors and staff, as well as the LeRoy Hospital team of nurses for their endless commitment to provide the best care and comfort, from the initial diagnosis to her last moments.

Memorial services will be held at 6 p.m. Saturday, June 26, 2021, at the First Presbyterian Church in Lakewood with Pastor Joshua McKenna officiating. Visitation will be held from 4 p.m. to time of service at church.

Security cameras going up at city parks

Incidents at Memorial, Kuckuk, Smalley of concern to police, park and rec departments

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Most people use city of Shawano parks for recreation and relaxation, but some are using them for mischief.

To that end, the city will be installing security cameras at three heavily-used parks — Memorial, Kuckuk and Smalley — to help gather evidence against anyone utilizing the parks for criminal acts.

“Our parks are probably seeing the most use since I’ve been here,” said Matt Hendricks, parks and recreation director. “The vast majority of use is absolutely positive, from the Ski Sharks shows to the farmers market going again, but unfortunately, not everybody is using our parks in a positive manner.”

Capt. Shane Stange of the Shawano Police Department told the Shawano Parks and Recreation Commission on June 16 that, while people might expect some semblance of privacy in the parks and might be opposed to cameras, he pointed out that the parks are public.

Stange said that the Shawano-Menominee County District Attorney’s office “is very much into video. When we go to prosecute a case or something like that, they want body cam video, they want squad cam video and they want security footage. Juries now want to see it on video. They don’t have a tendency not to believe people, but if you see it on video, it makes that prosecution a lot easier.”

Hendricks noted there have been some incidents of vandalism and teens using vulgar language at the park that have made some adult patrons uncomfortable, especially those with children, and he said he preferred not to wait until more serious incidents took place to install the cameras.

“We’re just trying to find ways to be proactive,” Hendricks said, praising the police department for working with his department to resolve issues.

“We want to make sure they have the tools they need.”

Commission member Seth Mailahn said he was initially against the idea when it was presented to the commission two years ago, but he has changed his mind on the issue. He recalled an incident at Memorial Park where an intoxicated person was trying to start a fight with him and chasing after children.

“I’m a believer in them and they work,” Mailahn said. “I have them up on my house now. I still don’t like them at businesses, but I totally understand why we do it.”

City Alderman Kevin Barkow dismissed the idea that privacy should be expected in a public park.

“You come into a city public park, and you give up that privacy,” Barkow said.

Stange added that the city is not the only municipality dealing with malcontents trashing public parks, pointing out its western neighbor, the Town of Richmond, recently had to close The Rock because of issues with people mistreating the facility.

Hendricks said the cameras are not in the current department budget, but he estimated it should only cost about $1,000 to install cameras at the three parks. He noted that most of the city’s parks already have Wi-Fi, so the fiber infrastructure is already there for camera live feeds.

The commission tossed around the possibility of putting fake cameras in some of the other parks, but some members expressed concern about the liability if a serious crime took place, and the expectation that there would be footage of it was false.

Stange noted that the cameras need to be high quality so that officers who examine the footage can identify the people and not a “blob on the street.”

“I’m not saying it’s going to get to that level, but the parks are our crown jewel, and we should maintain them,” Stange said.

Gresham school cuts ribbon on expansion

New segment two years in the making creates state-of-the-art facility for older students

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Gresham Community School held a slightly different ribbon cutting on June 16 as officials eagerly showed off the expansion that a $6.5 million referendum paid for.

Instead of a fabric ribbon to be cut with a pair of oversized scissors, a steel ribbon was made by students in the school's new fabrication lab, and a student sliced it with a plasma cutter to officially welcome the community into a new segment of the school two years in the making. Besides the ribbon cutting, the school served up burgers and hot dogs to folks, and staff members took those in attendance on tours of the new facilities.

"Our school district's mission is to inspire learners, build community and invest in our future," said Newell Haffner, Gresham School District superintendent. "That's exactly what we're doing here today."

Haffner said the school will be inspiring its learners with the latest up-to-date technology that there is. Students will be able to learn about plasma cutting, laser engraving, welding and three-dimensional printing, he said.

As far as building community, Haffner said the new facilities will allow the school to partner with parents and businesses in the Gresham area to find projects where students can lend a helping hand.

"We'll be using our resources to help the community, whether that is designing things in our fab lab or by growing things in our greenhouse," he said.

When it comes to investing in the future, Haffner told the crowd that the equipment in the new and renovated classrooms is expected to benefit students for many years to come. He noted that could not have happened without the faith of the community.

"It is an amazing commitment that this small, rural school has made to the students," Haffner said. "A couple of years ago, the community chose to spend $6.5 million in an investment in our kids. We passed a referendum when some people said we couldn't. We knocked down our 1935 portion of the building and built a new, state-of-the-art building. The Gresham community has shown its commitment to us and the students."

Parents and community members eagerly scoop up hamburgers and hot dogs during an open house June 16 at Gresham Community School. The food was served up in the school's new cafeteria, allowing the old facility to be used as an expanded gym space.

LEE PULASKI | NEW MEDIA

Haffner noted his junior high and high school teachers will be very pleased that the addition has modern air conditioning, recalling that before, there were some classrooms that were frigid much of the time, while others were broiling hot.

"We will have air conditioning in two-thirds of the school, so they're thrilled about that," Haffner said.

In November 2018, voters approved the referendum that demolished the original portion of the school that had operated for more than 80 years and built new facilities, including a new kitchen and a new fabrication lab, the latter getting a helping hand from $100,000 donated to the school by the Stockbridge-Munsee Band of Mohican Indians and a grant from the Wisconsin Economic Development Corporation.

New junior high and high school classrooms were built, and some existing classrooms in the southeast segment of the school were renovated, including turning the school's shop into an art classroom and a core subject classroom into a life skills facility complete with new stoves, cabinets and other equipment.

Kraus Anderson was the company hired to build the expansion, and representatives of the company were on hand to cook food for visitors on June 16.

SENIOR LIVING

Reichwalds have been stalwarts in Gillett for a lifetime

Parade marshals remain active in retirement

By WARREN BLUHM
Editor-in-chief

Melvin and Lois Reichwald retired from farming nearly 20 years ago, but they have not retired from Gillett.

Still living on the Quarterline Road property they purchased from Mel's oldest sister in 1972, the Reichwalds have remained active in the community and their church, and those efforts led the Gillett Civic Club to name them grand marshals of the annual Fourth of July parade.

"Mel and Lois have been stalwarts in the City of Gillett for years, and in the Gillett Civic Club," said Noel Nienstedt of the parade committee. The couple was actually nominated as grand marshals of the 2020 parade, an honor that was held over after pandemic concerns led the club to step back for a year.

The Reichwalds will board the traditional horse-drawn carriage near the head of the parade, which winds through downtown Gillett starting at 2 p.m. July 4.

Mel Reichwald was the youngest of eight children of Gust and Pauline Reichwald (two died in infancy) and has lived his entire life in Gillett. He and Lois Ammerman, of Suring, one of Roland and Arlyne Ammerman's four children, were married Sept. 19, 1964.

At first they worked on the dairy farm Melvin had purchased from his parents, about four miles south of Gillett off County Road BB. Eight years later, they purchased their present property from his sister, Martha, and her husband, keeping as many as 50 dairy cows until they retired in 2001.

The farm kept them in Gillett, where they raised two children — Kerri and special friend Scott, and Kraig and his wife Sarra, who have two children of their own, Emma and Nancy.

"I have no regrets," Mel Reichwald said about spending his life farming in a small town. "I do have a back that regrets a little."

Lois and Mel Reichwald stand outside the house they built in 1987 on the property they had purchased from his sister and brother-in-law in 1972. The Reichwalds are being honored as grand marshals of this year's Gillett Independence Day Parade.

Lois Reichwald said the farm taught them a work ethic that they passed to their children.

"The farm meant we were together as a family three times a day," Mel added.

Lois also worked at several area restaurants and was active in women's groups at St. John's Lutheran Church (the "Clock Church"), taking their children to scouts and 4-H.

The couple has been active at the church in many ways through the years. He was council president in the 1970s and again in 2000.

They served as co-chairs of the Oconto County Breakfast on the Farm for two years, and Mel also was president of the committee. He served on the boards of directors at Farmers Elevator Cooperative and Bay Lakes in Oconto Falls.

He was the first president of the Gillett FFA Alumni and has served on the auction committee for 35 years.

"That's grown a lot; we had more than 500 bidding numbers this year," he said.

While they continue to volunteer in retirement, they now have time for more relaxing activities, including lawn and garden, playing cards and, in Mel's case, playing golf.

"Too much golf," Lois added with a laugh.

They also keep up with how dairy farming has changed in the last 20 years. They went to the April 24 open house at Horsens Homestead Farms in Cecil, where 720 cows are milked using a robotic system.

"I looked around and thought, 'I don't know anything,'" Mel said.

The Gillett Fourth of July parade is part of a two-day celebration centered at Zippel Park in downtown Gillett. The Civic Club food and beer stands will be open 4 p.m. to midnight Saturday, July 3, and 9 a.m. to midnight Sunday, July 4. Live music is planned Saturday night and Sunday afternoon and evening.

Other highlights include a truck pull at 7 p.m. Saturday, antique and classic car and truck show starting at 9 a.m. Sunday, a horse pull at 10 a.m. Sunday, and antique tractor pull at 5 p.m. Sunday. The celebration concludes with a fireworks show at dusk Sunday.

Seniors can protect themselves from online misinfo

By AMY YEE

Wisconsin Public Radio

Online misinformation is a serious threat, from fake cures for COVID-19 to false information on voting eligibility.

Seniors are especially at risk. People over 65 were more likely to share false or misleading content on Facebook during the 2016 presidential campaign, according to one study from researchers at Princeton and New York University. Older adults were also exposed to more misinformation on Twitter during that election.

Seniors should learn about avoiding misinformation — to protect themselves, and because they are civically active. Over half of poll workers were ages 61 and older in the 2018 U.S. general election, according to Pew Research Center. Older voters in the U.S. are also consistently more likely to vote than younger groups.

A scientific study published in the journal Nature in March 2021 found that many people shared misinformation on social media because they did not pay close attention to the content. They were less likely to share misinformation after being asked to assess the accuracy of news headlines. Simply taking more time to evaluate sources can go a long way.

Are websites reliable or trusted sources? That's a key message during live online classes with Senior Planet, part of Older Adults Technology Services (OATS) from AARP.

"Misinformation can come from multiple places — it's not enough to avoid where you think it will be. It's best to have a filter that all information passes through," said Breana Clark, associate director of program operations at OATS.

Check website suffixes, for example, to see whether they end with .gov or .edu and are thus official government websites or educational institutions, respectively. Senior Planet also emphasizes understanding context, such as recognizing satire. It's easy to mistake a funny image or a joke article as real.

Look for disjointed angles and/or odd lighting to detect if images have been doctored. Again, note the source and context.

In an online class hosted through

Senior Planet, John Silva, an education director at the nonprofit News Literacy Project, discussed a photo of a snake with a rifle-shaped bulge in its body. When he asked participants for their thoughts on the image, one participant asked why a snake would want to eat a gun.

Turns out, the fake snake was a work of art, but taken out of context, someone might think it had swallowed a gun.

Understand the distinction between opinion and facts, especially because anyone can post content online.

Lateral reading — or checking other reliable sources to verify information as you read — is a term first used by the Stanford History Education Group. Key questions to ask yourself as you do so: "Who is behind the information? What is the evidence? What do other sources say?" News Literacy Project also recommends fact-checking websites such as Snopes.com, Factcheck.org and Politifact.com.

Nicole Cooke, professor at the University of South Carolina School of Information Science, says libraries can also provide helpful resources.

Cooke helped to develop a series of online videos on media literacy for the American Library Association.

Libraries might offer events to learn about media literacy — and librarians are trained to "parse out information and all the noise every day," said Cooke.

"Pause, consider, and have more click restraint," said Jean Setzfand, senior vice president of AARP Programs.

Getting someone to engage more with click-bait content through likes or comments may be a way for websites to generate revenue, Setzfand said.

If friends or family share misinformation online, offer fact-checking resources.

Bots are fake automated accounts. Identify them by spotting new accounts with few followers, no photo, odd usernames with lots of numbers, and non-sensical or inflammatory comments. Bots and trolls are often online troublemakers.

Whether bots or not, think twice about engaging online with someone you don't know. Is it necessary or constructive to do so?

Sportsmen's club welcomes eastern bluebirds

It's a chilly day as a crew of dedicated people removed the eastern bluebird nest boxes from the old Oconto Golf Course. The nest boxes dotted the fairways, many of them homes to bluebirds over the last several years.

Because the golf course has been sold and potential future construction activities could negatively impact nesting birds, it was considered prudent to move the boxes. Fortunately, a new home for the nest boxes was not far away. The Oconto Sportsmen's Club graciously offered to take the boxes and plans to monitor them.

CATHY CARNES

The move to the Sportsmen's Club was facilitated by a fortuitous conversation between Al Powers, the monitor of the bluebird trail at the golf course, and Cody Bresina of the club, who met while fishing. Cody thought the club would be a good place for a bluebird trail. Extending from the end of Fifth Street in Oconto to the bay of Green Bay, the property provides many good sites for nest boxes. Soon plans were underway to move the boxes.

Fourteen nest boxes were moved to the Sportsmen's Club property on May 7. Gene Birr, the Oconto County coordinator of the Bluebird Restoration Association of Wisconsin (BRAW), selected the nest box locations. Helping Gene put up the boxes were Al Powers, Cordula Van Den Heuval (coordinator of Oconto Bird City), three Sportsmen's Club members, Cody Bresina, Byron Dugre, and Gil Exferd, and two Oconto Bird City volunteers, James and Cathy Carnes.

The bluebird trail at the Sportsmen's Club is the ninth such trail in Oconto. In addition to the trails, five landowners in Oconto host two to four bluebird boxes on their property.

The bluebird trails provide important nesting habitat for the species. According to BRAW, the eastern bluebird population declined significantly in the past due to several threats including agricultural practices, competition from the house (English) sparrow and European starling, severe weather, and loss of nesting sites including tree cavities and hollow wooden fence posts. In addition to bluebirds, house wrens, tree swallows, and chickadees use the boxes; thus these trails contribute to the conservation of all these species.

People interested in helping to monitor the bluebird boxes can let Gene Birr know at the meeting or by contacting him at 920-826-7552 or gbbird22@gmail.com, or Tom Wittkopf of the Sportsmen's Club at 920-373-3657. The information collected on birds using the nest boxes is part of a larger bluebird restoration program in Wisconsin, coordinated by Oconto Bird City and BRAW. This is a great program that accomplishes much to conserve birds.

For more information on bluebirds, go to www.braw.org. Keep an eye out for nesting songbirds especially bluebirds and tree swallows at the Sportsmen's Club. Hopefully, those flitting blue forms will enliven its skies soon.

Cathy Carnes of Oconto is a retired U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service biologist who volunteers with Bird City Oconto.

Rhubarb Fest welcomed back to Shawano in 2021

Visitors experience history while enjoying rhubarb

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

History came alive in Shawano on June 19 as hundreds of visitors packed Heritage Park in Shawano to take part in Rhubarb Fest.

The 13th annual event sponsored by the Shawano County Historical Society allowed visitors to partake in various activities ranging from live music, to a pie making contest, to exploring the preserved buildings to basket raffles. Visitors were also able to witness Civil War demonstrations and learn about life in the 1800s at a fur trading post.

A highlight of Rhubarb Fest was rhubarb, which was included in different pastries and deserts like pies and muffins, as well as in drinks like lemonade, sangria and even beer.

According to Lana Buelow, the treasurer of the board of directors of the Historical Society, as well as the chairman of Rhubarb Fest, the event is held to raise money for operations of the historical society.

"Rhubarb is an old-fashioned type of desert," said Buelow. "It is a good spring thing and this was just started as a small way to raise some money as a bake sale."

Rhubarb Fest was canceled last year due to the COVID-19 pandemic, so this year, Buelow said that she was more than excited to host the event this year.

"It is wonderful to have this going again," said Buelow. "The turnout is wonderful, we have had more deserts than we have ever had in the past."

Buelow said Rhubarb Fest gives families the opportunity to come and witness the vast history of Shawano.

"This is a family-friendly event," said Buelow. "The museum buildings are all open. People can go through and see the collections."

One family, who traveled from the Milwaukee area, said that they appreciated the work that went into preserving the history of Shawano.

"We have enjoyed our experience," said Alan Groth. "This event shows the value of history. It is just a beautiful slice of small-town America that we need to keep preserved."

She added that she believes it is important for people in the community to know about the history of the city.

"The history is important, because it tells us where we came from," said

The Kast House is fully intact at Heritage Park on June 19 with a display of what the kitchen looked like in the late 1800s. The Kast House was one of the most popular areas for visitors to tour as it was celebrating its 150th year.

Buelow. "Things have changed so much from 150 years ago when people moved in. People did important things that contributed to the growth of not just Shawano, but Shawano County, and that is what we want to portray."

The pie contest has become a major part of Rhubarb Fest and that became exceptionally true this year, as Buelow noted that 17 different pies were entered, double the highest amount that had been entered in the past.

One of the most prominent attractions at Rhubarb Fest was the Civil War re-enactors. Their demonstrations taught visitors about the different weapons that were used in the Civil War, including muskets with attached bayonets. They performed demonstrations of the use of bayonets on a test dummy.

With the Civil War demonstrators, a fur trading post was set up that allowed visitors to learn about life in the 1800s. The post included a tent, different furs and a campfire, simulating what it would look like in the 19th century.

While an attendance count was not readily available, Buelow said that this year she had noticed more people in attendance.

"We used to use the estimate of 500 people," said Buelow. "I think that we have gone way over 500 today."

Get some brunch on the Back 40 (Acres)

Shawano County's farm education event back and better than ever in 2021

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Farm living is back on public display as the Shawano County Farm Bureau will have its Brunch on the Farm on June 27 at the Back 40 Acres in the Town of Angelica.

Being able to give people a glimpse into how their food is produced has been a tradition for decades, but like many summer activities, the brunch was canceled in 2020 due to the coronavirus pandemic. Christa Hoffman, who directs the event for the farm bureau, is glad that the event is returning, even as the bureau expects more people to come out this year.

"Having the event canceled last year meant we really lost the connection with the community," Hoffman said. "This is one of the most important things that we do, Brunch on the Farm, because it allows people to see a working and modern dairy farm. We want people to understand where their milk is coming from and see how farmers take care of their animals and their land."

Visitors to the farm this weekend will get to see the robot milkers used to extract the milk from the cows. Back 40 Acres is fully automated, according to Kayla Coehoorn, who manages the farm with her family, with milking taking place 24-7. It takes about seven minutes per cow for the milking to take place, she said.

"We milk 120 cows through the robot, and we have about 280 total animals on the farm," Coehoorn said. "It makes our life a lot more flexible. We still have our morning and afternoon chores, but if we want to get done early or start late, it's really not a big deal."

Most of the milk produced goes to Agripure in Weyauwega, Coehoorn said. The farm produces about 88 pounds of milk, the equivalent of 10 gallons per day. A lot of the milk is made into cheese, especially mozzarella to go on the Lotzza Motzza pizzas, she said.

"Last year, with COVID and everything, they noticed that the frozen pizza area grew a lot, and people bought up more frozen pizzas," Coehoorn said. "Agripure was able to shift a lot of its focus to mozzarella cheese."

A cow peers out from behind a robot milker June 17 at Back 40 Acres in the Town of Angelica. The farm is hosting the annual Brunch on the Farm, and visitors will be able to see how robot milkers like this one operate.

AT A GLANCE

WHERE: N3220 Cedar Road, Pulaski

ADMISSION: $8, $5 ages 4-11, free ages 3 and under

MENU: Eggs with ham and cheese, sausage, hash browns, cheese curds, cinnamon bread with butter, ice cream sundaes, milk and juice

FYI: More information about Brunch on the Farm can be found at www.shawanofarmbureau.com/brunch-on-the-farm.

Besides the dairy operation, the farm also does cash cropping — growing corn, alfalfa, soybeans, rye, wheat and oats. Though the name is Back 40 Acres, the farm actually occupies about 800 acres in Shawano County, according to Coehoorn.

Although Back 40 Acres was established as a limited liability corporation in 2017, the farm had been in operation for more than 50 years before that. Coehoorn said her grandparents, John and Dixie Nischke, purchased 40 acres in 1965 and placed 100 cows on the farm, and then her parents, Wayne and Connie Nischke purchased the farm in 1991.

Coehoorn and her father are the only full-time employees on the farm. She noted that her mother does the bookwork and helps out with the farm when time allows on mornings and weekends. Her husband, David, helps with chores when needed, as he has a full-time job elsewhere. Coehoorn's sister and brother-in-law, Ashley and Ricky Mickle, also help when they can.

"We also have a high school employee who helps out with afternoon chores," Coehoorn said.

Coehoorn noted the downside of being the full-time caretaker of the farm is that she's usually called upon if the robot milker stops working, and that tends to happen more in the middle of the night than during the day. Still, she wouldn't have her life any other way.

"I knew all throughout high school that I wanted to farm," Coehoorn said. "I went to Fox Valley Tech and got a business degree, just in case farming did not work out. When I went to tech school, we toured robot farms, and I thought they were pretty cool, but I never thought that would be us."

Coehoorn is glad that the brunch can be held as usual, as the beginning of 2021 saw many pandemic restrictions in place.

"It feels good to be back to normal," Coehoorn said. "We had talked about doing a drive-thru (brunch) back in January, but as the months went on and we've been getting vaccinated, people were starting to feel safe and get back to normal."

She added that she heard of a nearby county doing a drive-thru brunch with grilled cheese sandwiches, but she feared the liability of having thousands of vehicles driving through the farm would have produced its own headaches.

"People just want to get out and do something," Coehoorn said.

The farm bureau is anticipating at least 4,500 people in attendance this year, according to Hoffman. There could be more, as Outagamie County canceled its brunch for this year, and Back 40 Acres is in close proximity to Seymour and Black Creek.

"We're really looking forward to getting back to normal this year and having everybody out," Hoffman said. "We usually plan for about 4,000, so we are planning for a few more than normal. We pull in from Pulaski and the Green Bay area, as well."

Wagon rides and farm tours will once again be included with breakfast, and there will be some children's activities. There will be two polka bands performing, according to Hoffman, and a dance floor will be set up for those who want to do more than sit and enjoy the music.

Prior to dishing out the grub, there will be a polka Mass, along with a 5K run and stroll. Hoffman noted the 5K usually brings about 100 participants.

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL

Shawano eliminated in regional title game

Hawks fall to Rhinelander in 9 innings

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The top-seeded Shawano Community High School baseball team was eliminated from the postseason after a nine-inning loss to second-seeded Rhinelander in a Division 2 regional title game on June 16 in Shawano.

The Hawks advanced to the title game after a 4-1 regional semifinal victory over fourth-seeded Clintonville on June 15 in Shawano.

Regional title

It was a rough start to the regional title game for Shawano, which surrendered three first-inning runs to the Hodags before another run in the second made it 4-0.

As it has several other times this season, Shawano was able to dig deep and rally. The Hawks scored four runs in the sixth to tie it.

Kaleb Lowney started the rally in the sixth by reaching on an error with two outs. Zac Jurmu and Ashton Henning followed with walks to load the bases before Andrew Popp cleared them with a double. After a walk by Brandan Bushy, Zach Erdmann delivered a single to plate Popp and tie the contest.

The game remained tied until the ninth, when Rhinelander started the frame with a single. Rhinelander moved a runner to second with two outs before a single gave the visitors the lead.

Bushy walked to start the bottom of the ninth for the Hawks, but was eventually stranded on third to end the contest.

Shawano stranded 12 runners on base in the contest. The Hawks also had baserunners caught stealing in the seventh and eighth innings.

Aidan Berry started the game for the Hawks and got the first four outs before giving way to Joey Sperberg.

Sperberg worked the next 7 1/3 innings, striking out 10 batters along the way. He was dealt the loss after allowing the hit to start the ninth and hit the pitch count limit soon after. Bushy was on the hill when Rhinelander scored the go-ahead run.

The loss ended Shawano's season with a 14-6 record. The Hawks started the season slow before hitting their stride near the end of the regular season.

"We were not playing as a team at the beginning of the season, everyone was playing for themselves, but team bonding helped us after a very tough loss against Fox Valley Lutheran," said Bushy, who walked three times and added a hit in the loss to Rhinelander. "After that we became a team and played as one too."

Regional semifinal

Shawano also rallied against Clintonville in the regional semifinal game.

Clintonville scored once in the second frame to take the lead before Shawano answered with a run in the third to tie it. Henning doubled with two outs before being doubled in by Popp.

Shawano took the lead with a three-run sixth.

Bushy opened the inning with a single before Berry and Jacob Landon both tried laying down sacrifice bunts. Berry and Landon each reached to load the bases.

Braedyn Kowalkowski then came through with a pinch-hit single to score Bushy. Carson Popp followed with another single to plate Berry. Landon later scored on a wild pitch.

Henning then stranded a pair of Clintonville runners on base in the seventh to seal up the win. Henning earned the win after pitching two scoreless innings and striking out three.

Andrew Popp started and allowed just two walks, a hit and an unearned run over five innings. He struck out nine batters.

HIGH SCHOOL TRACK

Shawano, Bonduel and Menominee Indian athletes eager for state meets

6 individuals, 3 relay teams between the 3 high schools will compete at state

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

Track and field athletes from Shawano, Bonduel and Menominee Indian are eager to end their spring seasons on high notes when competing at the WIAA 2021 State Track & Field Championships at Veterans Memorial Stadium in La Crosse this week.

Shawano will have four individuals and a pair of relay teams, while Menominee Indian has one individual competing in the Division 2 meet June 25. Bonduel will have a relay team and one individual compete in the Division 3 meet June 24.

Shawano

Juniors Isabel Roloff and Elliott Lowney will lead the Hawks into state after qualifying in two individual events apiece.

Roloff won regional and sectional titles in the 100-meter dash and pole vault, while Lowney is a qualifier in the 200 and 400. Lowney won regional titles in both events before a sectional title in the 200 and a runner-up finish in the 400.

Roloff enters state with the best seed time in the 100 (12.31 seconds) and fourth-best mark in the pole vault (10 feet, 3 inches).

"Heading into the state tournament, I have high hopes of placing well in my events," said Roloff. "I am seeded as first in the 100-meter dash, so it would be awesome if I could keep that rank. In the pole vault, my main goal is to get a PR (personal record) and hopefully place in the top three."

Lowney has the second-best 200 time (22.79) and eighth-best 400 time (51.12).

"The goal for everything is to take first. I'm not gonna drive the three hours to try and take second; taking first is always the goal," said Lowney, who added he'll be relying on coaches and current and past teammates as he prepares to take on the state stage for the first time.

Full stories from track regionals and sectionals and stories from the state meet can be found at www.newmedia-wi.com.

Seniors Gage Timm and Morgan Weinig are the other Shawano individuals who qualified for state, with each competing in a field event.

Timm qualified in the triple jump after a second-place finish at sectionals. He placed third in the event at regionals. Timm's leap of 43-5¼ is the fourth-best heading into the state meet.

"Not having track last year really sucked so finally being back out there competing was amazing, and then making it to state was just the icing on the cake for me," said Timm.

"My goal heading into state is to get on the podium and get as high of a place as possible."

Weinig will take part in the shot put competition. She placed fourth in the event at sectionals and regionals. Weinig heads into state with the 11st-furthest throw of 37-9¼.

"It means so much to me to qualify as a senior knowing this is my last season and that after four years of hard work in high school, it is finally paying off," said Weinig, who added her goals are to make the finals and throw a personal record.

Shawano's 4x800 and 4x400 girls relay teams will both run at state. Both teams are formed by the quartet of Lydia Beyer, Grace Chelberg, Grace Beyer and Odessa Arce.

The 4x800 relay earned its state spot after a second-place finish at sectionals. The relay was second at regionals. The 4x800 team enters state with the fifth-best seed time (9:58.93).

The 4x400 team claimed a spot at state after placing fourth at sectionals and a second-place finish at regionals. The relay team will look to surprise as it has the slowest seed time (4:19.11) of the 16 relay teams.

"We are seeded pretty well for the 4x8, so placing in that would be awesome," said Lydia Beyer, the only senior on the relay team.

"For the 4x4, I really don't know how things will turn out. It's been just another workout to end our meets; we never really took it seriously, and apparently that mentality has helped us succeed!"

Grace Beyer and Arce are both juniors, while Chelberg is a freshman.

Bonduel

The 4x800 girls relay team of Kendra Troxel, Breanna Schnell, Ashlyn Kurey and Kara Troxel will represent Bonduel at state, while Kara Troxel also competes in the 800 as an individual.

The 4x800 team placed second at sectionals and regionals so far this postseason. Kurey is a freshman, Kendra Troxel a sophomore and Schnell and Kara Troxel are seniors.

"Qualifying for state was a huge accomplishment," said Schnell. "It has been my dream to run at state all year long, and I'm so proud of my team for working hard and reaching our goal!"

"We really gave it our all at the last two meets, shaving off seconds each time and then breaking the school record at sectionals. I'm hoping we can shave off even more time at state as well. At the beginning of the year, my goal was just to make it to state. But now that we are going, I really hope we can make it on the podium!"

The relay team is seeded eighth (10:16.35) going into state.

Kara Troxel earned her spot at state in the 800 after a fourth-place finish at sectionals. She qualified for sectionals by taking second at regionals. She's seeded 16th (2:28.93).

"Making it to state as a senior just means that all the training that I did this year paid off. It's especially special since it is my last year to qualify," said Troxel.

Shawano's Elliott Lowney nears the finish line during the Division 2 Oconto Falls Regional on June 14 in Oconto Falls. Lowney qualified for state in the 200- and 400-meter dashes.

MORGAN RODE | NEW MEDIA

"We knew coming into the season that our best bet making it to state would be the 4x8. We focused extra hard on this event and it obviously paid off. I truly did not expect to also make it in an individual event too. It's just super exciting, and I can't wait to race one last time."

Menominee Indian

Guadalupe Corn will represent Menominee Indian at state, competing in the shot put.

It is the second time she's qualified for state, also doing so as a sophomore.

"Qualifying for state as a senior definitely means a lot to me, especially with not having a season my junior year due to COVID, and because this is what I've been working towards since coming in freshman year," said Corn.

She took second at sectionals this year to advance to state. She also finished second at regionals. Corn has the fifth-best throw (39-3) coming into state.

"My goals going into state are to just keep improving and hopefully make it onto the podium," said Corn.

Shawano Speedway Hall of Fame welcomes in Giesen, Betram

Bodendorfer, Schmidt, Swedberg, Nolan, Hacker earn feature wins

By DAVE BUSS

Special to NEW Media

Last week it was the future in the spotlight at Shawano Speedway. This week it was the past as two new members were inducted into the speedway's Hall of Fame.

George Giesen and Ed Bertram were honored for their past accomplishments at the speedway and in racing. With friends and family along with numerous current and former drivers who have benefited from the new hall of famers contributions to the racing world in attendance, the two were honored in a ceremony at intermission.

The IMCA Modifieds hit the track with numerous drivers who got their start in go karts at the GSR Raceway run by Bertram.

It didn't take long until the yellow flag slowed the action with Jeff Bodendorfer leading the way. When green flew again it was Bodendorfer building a lead as Lance Arneson ran second and Konnor Wilinski third. Bodendorfer built a lead of nearly one second.

Arneson began to make his way forward and grabbed the top spot for lap 17, but Bodendorfer fought right back the next lap. As the white flag flew, Arneson made one more charge to no avail. Bodendorfer grabbed the win with Arneson second, Wilinski third and Jason Czarapata fourth.

The IMCA Stock Cars rolled track-side with a pair of veteran drivers on the front row with Hot Rod Snellen-

Jayden Schmidt earned a feature win in the IMCA Sport Mod class on June 19 at Shawano Speedway.

TURN 2 PHOTOS AND DESIGN

berger and Darren Otto leading the way.

Snellenberger showed he still knows his way around the half-mile as he began to get away. Trent Nolan had other plans and began to track down the Snellenberger car. Nolan got to the outside of the Snellenberger car, but he wasn't able to make the pass.

At the halfway point, Nolan led Snellenberger, with Brandon Czarapata in the second row and last week's feature winner Dylan Stedjee in fourth. Nolan fired to a nice lead on the restart with Czarapata moving to second.

Travis Van Straten moved to third with Snellenberger falling back to fourth. Debris caused the yellow to fly with six laps to go. Nolan maintained his advantage with five laps to go.

Czarapata moved to the high side looking for a way around Nolan but wouldn't find the traction needed to complete the pass. As Czarapata focused on the leader, Van Straten began to work on Czarapata.

Nolan hung on for the win with Van Straten grabbing second and Czarapata third.

The Late Model division took their turn trying to tame the half-mile next and it was Rocket Ron Berna grabbing the advantage in the early going. Berna looked like he'd make it a boring race but Brett Swedberg was cutting into the advantage.

Swedberg, carrying the famous Blatz side panel in honor of Bertram, caught Berna in corners one and two and powered to the outside of Berna for the lead. A late caution gave the field one more shot at Swedberg but he powered to the win joining the likes of Schoenicke, Theilke, Peterson and Blashe with the Blatz car in victory lane.

Troy Springborn got past Berna for second with Joe Reuter fourth.

Jake Carpenter grabbed the lead from the drop of the green flag in the IMCA Sport Mod feature event and built a large advantage. Jayden Schmidt worked forward with Tyler Sobiesczyk and Matthew Radtke.

While the perennial front-runners were battling, it was Carpenter who continued to hold the top spot. Schmidt set his sights on Carpenter as he moved to second.

Caution eliminated the hard work of Carpenter and moved the field to his rear bumper. Carpenter looked like he would survive the restart, but Schmidt kept him close.

With laps winding down, Schmidt made his move and grabbed another win. Carpenter settled in second, with Sobiesczyk third and Radtke fourth.

Lucas Hacker led the Mighty 4s green to checkered to pick up another feature win.

While Hacker led every lap, Jason Stueck and Brad Wedde kept him on his toes. Stueck and Wedde pressured Hacker lap after lap but with no success. Stueck grabbed second with Wedde third.

Packers converting to mobile tickets only starting this upcoming season

Starting this season, the Green Bay Packers will accept only mobile tickets for entry to Lambeau Field during Packers home games and will not accept paper tickets as a method of entry.

Printed game tickets will no longer be sent to season ticket holders, club seat holders or suite holders prior to the season, and all guests who attend a game at Lambeau Field will need to enter with mobile tickets, whether they have season tickets or purchased the tickets on the secondary market.

Following the success of accepting mobile-only tickets during the playoffs this past season, this transition will help ensure safe, secure ticketing at Lambeau Field and help prevent the use of counterfeit tickets.

Mobile ticketing, which has been adopted in a variety of industries such as entertainment and travel, protects the integrity of tickets, improving protection against fraud, while also allowing ticket holders to access their tickets from their smartphones.

The mobile ticket's barcode is scanned at the gate for entry, allowing phones to serve as a replacement for paper tickets.

Mobile tickets also offer a safe, convenient and flexible way for fans to sell, send and manage their tickets, and they allow for the Packers to communicate directly and instantaneously with fans who are coming to each game so attendees can know what to expect before coming to Lambeau Field.

"This is part of the continued evolution of coming to a Packers game, attending events and traveling," said Packers President/CEO Mark Murphy.

"We are looking forward to this transition helping cut down on fraud and ensure safe, secure ticketing at Lambeau Field. We understand this will be a change for some of our fans, but we are ready to assist in the coming months as we all adjust to using only mobile tickets."

The conversion to mobile ticketing has taken place league-wide in recent years, with the NFL conducting a fully mobile Super Bowl LV this past February and the Packers now joining nearly every other NFL team, as well as other Wisconsin teams the Milwaukee Bucks and Milwaukee Brewers, in making the move to mobile-only tickets.

This transition complements other enhancements to the Lambeau Field game day experience in recent years, such as walk-through metal detectors, grab-and-go concessions and cashless points of sale, all of which make it easier and more efficient to attend a game at Lambeau Field.

In addition to the successful implementation of mobile tickets during this past year's playoff games at Lambeau Field, the organization has also experienced success in the use of mobile tickets in recent years, with Brown County tickets recently becoming available only as mobile tickets.

Non-game day events such as Packers Family Night and the Paul McCartney concert in 2019 also have demonstrated that many fans have been successfully utilizing mobile tickets.

Ticket holders will manage their tickets through their online account and can access their accounts through packers.com or the Packers mobile app.

Within their online accounts, season ticket holders can use the tickets themselves, transfer the tickets to another fan, donate tickets or post tickets for resale.

Instructions for how to use mobile tickets will be provided to season ticket holders and are published at packers.com/tickets/mobile-ticketing.

Ahead of the Packers season, the organization will host training opportunities and will publish video tutorials on packers.com to help guide fans who may not be familiar with mobile tickets.

Details on the training opportunities will be announced at a later date.

Season ticket holders who do not have a smartphone or an email address can call or visit the Packers ticket office for assistance.

At the conclusion of the season, Packers season ticket holders will be sent commemorative souvenir tickets in the mail.

The tickets are available now for season ticket holders on their Packers accounts and will be available each year as soon as the schedule is released.

Visit packers.com/tickets/mobile-ticketing for information about mobile tickets and for answers to common questions.

Family's seventh generation gets baptized

Logan Alexander Reinheimer was baptized in Shawano Lake on June 6 by Pastor Steve Conradt. Logan is the son of Dustin Reinheimer and Mimi Holton. The baptism took place in Cecil at the home of his great-grandparents, Dave and Pat Reinheimer. In 1876, Logan's great-great-great-grandfather, John Reinheimer, was one of the first settlers in Green Valley and set up farm in Advance. John's son, Ed Reinheimer, bought the lakefront property in Cecil in 1933 from his brother-in-law, Dave Winter, who was the mayor of Shawano at the time. Logan represents the seventh generation of the Reinheimer family.

Doctor: Moms don't need to handle babies alone

Family and friends can help in many ways to take burden off parents

Navigating life with a new baby can be a rewarding and challenging experience, especially when it comes to getting a partner, family and friends involved during a pandemic.

"We understand that preparing for a baby during a pandemic can have some parents feeling anxious and mothers worried about having to go to some appointments alone," said Dr. Ezra Lyon, who practices family medicine with ThedaCare Physicians-Waupaca. "As care providers, we are doing our very best to accommodate families, allowing partners to join appointments when it is safe for all involved."

During times where we are not in a pandemic, Lyon said he encourages partners to attend prenatal appointments, as well as support groups.

"Partners can go to appointments for support, even if it's just for ultrasounds," he said. "Those moments are also a good opportunity to check in with your health care provider. During this time of COVID-19, we can be creative to stay involved. You may be able to FaceTime or call into the appointment as well."

Lyon described the first three months after having a baby as the "fourth trimester." He said it is important for families with new babies to feel supported after the baby is born, and it can look different for everyone.

"All families are unique and there are many healthy ways to raise a baby," Lyon said. "What works for one family won't always work for another family, and that is perfectly fine. Do what is best for your family."

One area where partners can be involved is with feeding. After bringing a new baby home, some families may choose to breastfeed. Others might choose to use formula. In that case, feeding responsibilities can be more evenly shared amongst the new parents.

"For parents who want to breast-feed, it is important to respect the time and energy it takes to breastfeed the baby," he said. "Breastfeeding is a journey. It takes times for both mom and baby to feel comfortable and get the hang of it. That's where the support for new families can truly be helpful."

Lyon said the best way to increase milk supply is by bringing the baby to the chest as often as possible, so overnight feedings are important for moms early on to continue to build on their breastfeeding relationship. Lyon says whichever way mothers choose to feed their baby, their spouse and family can show support in several ways.

"I think one of the most important things a partner or family can do is to create the space for that time," Lyon said. "For example, the partner can help by taking on the rest of the household chores, cooking, cleaning, doing laundry, and taking care of other children in the home. A lot of times I see the breastfeeding relationship not being respected. Some women feel pushed to pump or express milk so their partner can also feed the baby. If they're breastfeeding, new mothers need to have protected time with their baby. Breastfeeding isn't easy and it takes time to learn what works."

Lyon added that new mothers should not be afraid to wake up their sleeping partner to help with diapering, rocking the baby to sleep or cleaning up if the baby spits up. He said many of these tasks can be shared.

Once mothers and babies feel more comfortable with their breastfeeding, mothers may choose to express breast milk and allow partners to feed the baby with a bottle.

It can be hard during the COVID-19 pandemic to involve family and friends with the new baby. Lyon recommended that visitors respect the new family's space.

"While many visitors want to hold the new baby, there are other things they can do to help a new family," he said. "Visitors can offer to help with laundry, care for other children in the home or bring a meal."

There are also ways partners and family can help make a healthy home. Lyon suggested the following precautions:

- Vaccinations: Partners and visitors should have vaccines against pertussis (whooping cough), influenza and COVID-19. Newborns are susceptible to illness and diseases. Fevers in newborns can be serious and by taking these precautions you lower the risk of transferring an illness to the baby.

- Wash your hands: This is a good practice when entering anyone's home to prevent the spread of germs like bacteria and viruses.

- If you smoke, try to quit: Secondhand smoke increases the risk of sudden infant death syndrome and can increase the risk of the baby having asthma or ear infections. Talk to your provider about medication or other support to help you quit.

- Watch for postpartum depression and anxiety: Take any physical and mental health concerns new mothers have seriously. You can get help by contacting your care provider.

ThedaCare offers "Virtual Mom and Me" classes. The free virtual Zoom classes are offered on Mondays from 1-2 p.m. New parents often have the same questions, and the casual class offers a way to connect with other expecting moms. Also, a lactation consultant will be available in most classes to answer breastfeeding questions. Registration is required and can be done at thedacare.org.

Selenium supplements found to be harmful to humans

Selenium is a trace mineral that is essential to good health but necessary only in small amounts. Before it was found to be an essential nutrient, selenium was considered remarkably toxic to humans. Early research was optimistic that selenium supplementation might help prevent cancer and certain cardiovascular problems.

A breakthrough occurred in 1973, when a research team observed that selenium protected against oxidative damage in selenium-deficient rats. Recent research has found that selenium supplementation might be more harmful than beneficial to humans.

An international medical research team reported in Annals of Internal Medicine that selenium supplements are likely to increase the risk for diabetes. In this study, 1,202 participants were given either oral selenium or placebo. During a follow-up of over seven years, type 2 diabetes occurred in 58 of the selenium recipients, but in only 39 of the placebo recipients.

Another study examined the relationship between the use of multivitamins containing selenium and the risk of prostate cancer. The study investigated 295,344 men with a mean age of 62 years who were cancer free at enrollment. The researchers discovered that persons taking high levels of multivitamins containing selenium had increased risks of advanced and fatal prostate cancers.

Yet another study investigated selenium for the prevention of cardiovascular disease. In this trial, over 1,000 subjects were given either oral selenium or placebo. These researchers found no overall effect of selenium on cardiovascular disease.

An international research team conducted a systematic review to investigate the effects of selenium for primary prevention of cardiovascular disease and the potential adverse effect on type 2 diabetes. Over 19,000 participants were involved in the studies reviewed. Selenium supplementation did not reduce all cause mortality, cardiovascular disease mortality, or non-fatal cardiovascular disease events. It did increase the risk of type 2 diabetes.

Selenium supplementation might be beneficial in certain populations, such as those with HIV or those with severe gastrointestinal problems, such as Crohn's disease. It may also be beneficial in regions where diets are low in selenium, such as China, but there is no selenium deficiency in the United States. So selenium supplementation is a real public health concern. More than 1% of Americans take selenium supplements, and more than 35% take multivitamin/mineral supplements that often contain selenium.

In light of information that selenium may be associated with increased health risks, caution is recommended. Selenium supplementation in America should be avoided.

Dr. Brian Grieves is a doctor of chiropractic with a master's in public health and a member of the Shawano Community Health Action Team (CHAT). Call 715-524-8722 for more information.

OPINION

Those who cannot remember the past

Red and I are big fans of “Jeopardy!” and set aside part of almost every evening to watch the day’s three contestants maneuver through the answers to questions both trivial and profound.

Every so often I get a reminder that I’m getting old, like the time all three missed “What was Sgt. Pepper’s Lonely Hearts Club Band?”

Recently I was caught off-guard when all three contestants missed a couple of basic U.S. history questions.

One day the clue was “Government of the people, by the people, for the people” is from the end of this brief but powerful speech.”

One contestant guessed incorrectly that the phrase is in the Constitution,

WARREN BLUHM

Civil War.

A week or so later, the Final Jeopardy! answer was “2-word term for the statement saying U.S. policy is ‘to leave the parties to themselves, in the hope ... other powers will (do) the same.’”

I had to think a moment but did and the other two stood blankly, not recognizing a key portion of Lincoln’s Gettysburg Address, the short speech that helped consecrate the graveyard at the most significant battle of the U.S.

recognize the Monroe Doctrine, our fifth president’s declaration of American neutrality. The three bright people who had earned a space at the podium did not.

George Santayana is credited with a thought that Winston Churchill altered somewhat when he said, “We have to understand our history in order to not repeat the mistakes of the past.”

If we do not understand a conflict in which thousands of people died to preserve the republic, we might very well find ourselves careening toward another great mistake.

If we don’t study the reasons why an American president would argue — successfully for decades — that the U.S. should not join other nations’ battlés, we might find ourselves serving as the world’s policeman and waging wars that serve our national interests only tangentially.

My first impulse was to wonder whether we are emphasizing history enough in our educational system when a half-dozen of our best and brightest lack awareness of two of our most essential documents, but I’m not here to batter teachers who are no doubt as shocked as I am.

I just want to recall with Santayana, “Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it,” and suggest that we’d best start working on improving our collective memory.

GUEST COLUMN

Golf course threatens pristine Wisconsin land

Martin Pattison and John Michael Kohler were two extraordinary men who sought to preserve Wisconsin’s natural resources.

Both developed lucrative companies at the turn of the century. Both married extraordinary women and founded families. The homes they built are now historic landmarks. And land they owned was donated for use as state parks.

The gifts that one of them gave faces an uncertain future.

In the late 19th century, Pattison, an iron mining tycoon, built the 42-room Pattison House in Superior. In 1917, when he learned of plans to build a “power dam” on the Black River that would have destroyed his beloved Big Manitou Falls, he secretly bought up 660 acres from landowners along the river to stop the project, donating the land for a state park.

Improvements were made in 1935, and the park and waterfalls are still an attraction today. Pattison’s former home in Superior is currently the Fairlawn Mansion and Museum, an affordable county museum that highlights its architecture and design.

Compare that to the legacy of John Michael Kohler. A former mayor of Sheboygan, he turned his father-in-law’s ironworks into what later became Kohler Company, primarily known for its plumbing products.

CYNTHIA DENNEY

In 1966, Kohler donated 280 acres on Lake Michigan to the state Department of Natural Resources. This was merged with Terry Andrae State Park to the south to create Kohler-Andrae State Park.

Since then, Wisconsin has invested in the park’s campgrounds, picnic areas, trails and roads. Improving the park’s facilities and programs is an ongoing effort. Yet, the master plan that was developed to “assure that future property management and development plans would be consistent with the needs of park visitors while protecting the park’s natural resources” has never been completed.

Now the Kohler Co. has proposed building a golf course on 247 acres adjacent to the park that include rare dunes and the last remaining stand of old-growth forest on the Lake Michigan shore. It wants to use five acres of park land in the southern portion of the park for a maintenance storage facility, for which it traded nine acres to the DNR. In 2018, the DNR approved the swap.

Mary Faydash, a spokesperson for Friends of Black River Forest, has said that the land “is so ecologically significant and it was left in its natural state for the public to enjoy, for recreation, study and viewing wildlife in their natural habitat.” She and others say that this rare piece of coastal landscape is the wrong place for a golf course.

In late May, a Sheboygan County judge denied Kohler Co. a wetland permit for the project, which Friends of Black River Forest have opposed.

The project also needs a master plan amendment from the DNR to proceed. It should not be granted. Opponents are calling for a complete review of the project and its potential impacts.

The descendants of John Michael Kohler should rise to the great spirit of philanthropy found in Terry Andrae and Martin Pattison, and not stubbornly persist in a plan that can only harm their family’s legacy.
