Shawano County jail staff pay increase gets final approval

County to use $1.16M in ARPA funds to provide increase for next 3 years

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Starting in August, Shawano County Jail corrections officers, sergeants and kitchen staff will be taking home a little more pay.

The Shawano County Board of Supervisors voted 24-2 on July 28 to give the employees a $3 per hour pay raise through 2024, citing it as hazard pay since the money was coming from the American Rescue Plan Act. The county has received $3.9 million from ARPA and is expected to receive a similar amount in 2022, and the hazard pay is expected to take up over $1.16 million of that — about $339,792 for each full year and $143,758 for the remainder of 2021.

The emergency action was taken due to the jail reaching a crisis level with employees. Eleven corrections officers have left the county's employ in 2021, leaving the county woefully understaffed. At the same time, the jail population ballooned while inmates waited for the circuit court to resume jury trials after the coronavirus pandemic closed down the courts for a period of time.

Shawano County's starting pay for corrections officers, prior to the increase, was $17.95 per hour, and they could go to Marinette County for $19.94 or Oconto County for $20.57. Staff were also leaving the county for higher-paying jobs in the private sector.

Sheriff Adam Bieber told the board that the county has reached this crisis point because it hasn't been following the recommendations outlined by the consulting firm Carlson Dettman, which did a wage study in 2015. This contradicts recent claims by supervisors that Carlson Dettman was to blame for county staff wages across the board being so low.

"We just haven't been following Carlson Dettman," Bieber said. "We haven't been giving (employees) pay increases every year like they suggest. That's why we're behind."

Bieber told the board it was on the right path to "stop the bleeding" with the increase, pointing out that other counties have done it. He noted, though, that it would still take some time to recruit people and get the jail to its full staff of 36 employees.

"We're at a point where, if we lose any more people, we will have to ship people out (to other jails)," Bieber said. "That'll be at a cost of $3,185 per day. Almost $1 million per year we'll be paying someone else to house our inmates (while still operating the jail)."

Bieber clarified that the county wasn't losing staff to other jails as much as it was the private sector. With jail population high, corrections officers are enduring consistent abuse by inmates.

"It's not a joy to come to work," Bieber said. "When you're getting screamed at, kicked at, spit at, and it's almost on a daily basis ... we've got to get them out of our correctional facilities. They need to be in prisons."

Chief Deputy George Lenzner noted that Shawano County was near the bottom in the state for starting pay for corrections officers, with Ashland County being the only one that pays less.

"Menominee County, their corrections officers make more money now," Lenzner said.

While the board was near unanimous in its support for jail staff, many supervisors expressed reservations about taking action through ARPA, one-time funds that would run out in 2024. Some described it as a Band-Aid for the issue and suggested something else needed to be done to stop the bleeding.

"What happens when (other counties) raise theirs, as well?" Supervisor Joe Miller said.

Supervisor Richard Ferfecki feared that, if the county doesn't develop a permanent plan to keep the pay for jail staff competitive, it might lose everyone when the money runs out in three years.

"We got to have a plan in place that we can continue to pay these people a fair wage, and we've just got to quit kicking the can down the road," Ferfecki said.

Supervisor Kathy Luebke suggested an amendment that would only allow the increase through the end of 2022 instead of 2024, requiring the county board to come up with a more permanent solution sooner rather than later. However, Luebke could only find three other supervisors who agreed on that timeline, as the amendment failed on a 22-4 vote.

Supervisor Aaron Damrau, who voted against the pay increase along with Supervisor Ken Capelle, suggested that using ARPA funds to solve the jail pay issue was akin to "putting a Band-Aid on a bullet hole" and felt there were other avenues that didn't involve using one-time funds.

"We have a once-in-a-generation opportunity with this funding," Damrau said. "Our infrastructure — our broadband infrastructure — is completely lacking. I live in the least-populated district in the county, and my constituents can't get internet because it's not profitable."

County Board Chairman Tom Kautza pointed out that many jails in the state are having difficulty in recruiting and retaining employees.

"We're not alone in the problem," Kautza said. "Oconto (County) said that they've lost three in the last couple of weeks. Marinette County, they're managing to hold their own and not having a big turnover rate. But they also put in a program where they give (jail employees) extra money beyond their pay, but they keep that, and you don't get paid that unless you're there at the end of that year."

Pulaski man caught trying to cross Mexico border

Pedro Noriega-Avila faces child sexual assault, incest charges after skipping court in 2016

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

A Pulaski man suspected of having sex with his underage stepdaughter was caught by the U.S. Border Patrol trying to cross into Mexico and extradited back to Shawano County.

Pedro Noriega-Avila was arrested March 12 in Pima County, Arizona, but fought the extradition to Wisconsin, according to Sheriff Adam Bieber, who traveled to Arizona late last month to bring Noriega-Avila back to the county. He faces one count of first-degree child sexual assault of a child under age 13, two counts of sexual assault with someone under age 16 and two counts of incest with a child by a stepparent.

"He was caught by the border patrol and turned over to Arizona officials," Bieber said. "It took quite a bit of extra time to pick him up."

The criminal complaint states that Noriega-Avila allegedly went into his stepdaughter's room between September 2009 and June 2010 and assaulted her. It goes on to say that additional incidents occurred in 2014 and 2015. Noriega-Avila married the victim's mother on July 9, 2010.

Noriega-Avila initially appeared before Shawano-Menominee County Circuit Court Judge William Kussel Jr. on June 10, 2016, and subsequently posted a $5,000 cash bond. Noriega-Avila was then ordered to appear on June 20, 2016, but he did not show up, and a warrant was issued for his arrest.

In April of this year, extradition documents were issued by the county for Noriega-Avila.

Noriega-Avila faces a maximum of 40 years in prison and $100,000 fine for each of the incest and the latter two sexual assault counts. For the child sexual assault in 2010, he faces up to 60 years in prison.

The victim, now 22, told Kussel during a hearing Aug. 3 that she suffers from "depression and high paranoia because of what happened during her youth, prompting Shawano-Menominee County District Attorney Greg Parker to ask for a $500,000 cash bond.

Kussel granted the prosecutor's bond request and denied public defender Elizabeth Stockbridge's request for a $10,000 bond.

"It is more than just a possibility, as the defendant fled the jurisdiction," Kussel said.

Noriega-Avila will be back in court at 2 p.m. Aug. 13 for a preliminary hearing.

Bieber said it was good that Noriega-Avila was back in custody, as it gives the victim and her family some closure.

"I'm happy for the victims in this case, because they've been waiting for justice for that long," Bieber said. "Unfortunately, this guy took off and didn't stand trial and didn't answer the accusations. I can just imagine the victims not knowing when this guy was going to show up again in our community or at their place and cause a disturbance."

Sheriff Adam Bieber, right, takes custody of Pedro Noriega-Avila in Arizona on July 30 to bring back to Wisconsin on charges of sexually assaulting a minor and incest.

OBITUARIES

James M. Ludolph

James Milton "Jim" Ludolph, 90, of Black Earth, passed away on Tuesday, July 27, 2021, at Four Winds Manor. He was born Aug. 8, 1930, in Green Bay, the son of Milton and Alma (Froeming) Ludolph.

Jim attended K-12 school in Shawano and graduated in 1948. He proudly served in the U.S. Army from 1948 until 1952 during the Korean War. Jim became a staff sergeant, worked as a combat engineer and was stationed in many places — including Japan, Korea and Germany.

Jim attended Milwaukee Technical College in 1953, where he obtained his education in carpentry. On June 22, 1957, Jim married Marlene Schepler at Immanuel Lutheran Church in Madison.

Jim worked various jobs throughout his life. He worked for Vogel Brothers Construction as a supervisor. In addition, Jim was a building inspector for the townships of Vermont, Mazomanie, Black Earth and other communities on the western county line. He also owned and operated Line Marking Company.

Jim was a lifetime member of the Disabled American Veterans, American Legion Post 313 and Vermont Lutheran Church, where he was very involved. He was a past council president, in a dart ball league and on the Vermont Church building committee.

Jim and Marlene started their married life in Madison. Then, in 1969, they moved to beautiful Vermont township, where they bought a 200-acre farm. They lived in the old farmhouse while Jim started to build a new home. He did most of the building himself but had some wonderful help from family and friends.

He loved the farm and taught his sons how to work and that there was always something to do.

He liked deer hunting and having the "crew" of hunters that came every year. When he could no longer work the farm and hunt, he found a hobby of making wooden bowls. Making bowls gave Jim great pleasure in his later years, and he gave away many as gifts.

In 2020, Jim and Marlene moved to Coventry Village, where he made many friends and acquaintances while riding on his bright red scooter.

James is survived by his wife of 64 years, Marlene Ludolph; sons, Brian (Pamela), Bruce (Kerri) and Jeffrey (Jennifer); and grandchildren, Lahna, Xavier and Elise. He is additionally survived by many nieces, nephews, extended family and friends. He was preceded in death by his parents; sister, Shirley (Earl) Brandt; and in-laws, Wilbur and Margaret Schepler and Howard and Joanne (Zimmerman) Schepler.

A memorial service will be held at Vermont Lutheran Church, 9886 Vermont Church Road, Black Earth, at 11 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 7, 2021, with Pastor Barry Hoerz presiding. Visitation will be held at the church from 9:30 a.m. until the time of service Saturday.

In lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made in Jim's name to the American Legion State Headquarters, 2930 American Legion Drive, Portage, WI 53901. Online condolences may be made at www.gundersonfh.com.

Dennis R. Herzog

The world is a bit dimmer with the passing of Dennis Robert Herzog, who left his earthly home on July 28, 2021.

Dennis was born in Pound on Dec. 10, 1940, the youngest of nine children to Ewald and Jennie Herzog. A veteran of Vietnam, he returned to marry Durham Hernden on Feb. 6, 1966, and together they built a life and family on their farm in Gillett.

Dennis believed in living a life of faith, humility, integrity, hard work, love and laughter. Even in retirement, he enjoyed helping on the farm, cheering his grandkids at sporting events, golfing in his "Old Farts" league (where he learned and shared many of his hilarious jokes), taking on friends and family in a round of croquet or traveling to gospel music conventions. He also played a lot of water volleyball in Puerto Vallarta, a place he and Durham considered a second home and wintered for the past few decades.

Dennis never met a stranger. People gravitated to his positive attitude, quick humor, words of wisdom and sometimes groan-worthy jokes. Always ready with praise for your success or words of wisdom when needed, many often reached out to him for advice and perspective. Above all, Dennis was a man of strong Christian faith and attributed all of his accomplishments to the grace of God, many times being heard to say, "I am glad God didn't give me what I deserved, because I've been blessed so much more than anyone deserves."

Dennis is lovingly remembered by his wife of 55 years, Durham Herzog, and their children, Julie Montieth (Rick), Jon Herzog (Mary), Kristin Pettit (Dave) and David Herzog (Deb). He will also be fondly remembered by his 14 grandchildren, Stephen, Taylor (Marina), Mark (Lexi), Jenna (Nick), Amelia (Brad), Noah, Sam, Lauren, Bryce, Isaac, Aidan, Alaina, Cale and Keegan, along with one great-grandchild, Beckham. He also leaves behind two sisters, Lorraine Yerxa and Adelin Deering.

Dennis believed that funerals are for the living and preferred to celebrate a wonderful life in memory of those he loved. In keeping with that philosophy, a celebration of his life will be held on Sept. 3, 2021, at 11 a.m. at Hope Community Church in Shawano. Receiving will begin at 9 a.m., and lunch will be served afterward at noon.

Jeffrey M. Riopelle

Jeffrey M. "Jeff" Riopelle, 55, of Shawano, passed away unexpectedly on Wednesday morning, July 21, 2021, at ThedaCare Regional Medical Center in Neenah.

Jeff was born Oct. 21, 1965, at St. Joseph Hospital in Milwaukee, a son of the late Wilfred "Bo" and Lois E. (Ellingboe) Riopelle. Jeff attended East High School in Menomonee Falls, graduating with the class of 1983. Following high school, he attended and graduated from Carroll College in Waukesha.

On Sept. 21, 1991, Jeff was united in marriage to Cindy Freeman at St. Anthony Catholic Church in Menomonee Falls. The couple lived in Menomonee Falls before moving to Shawano in 2007. At the time of his death, Jeff was employed at Romo Durable Graphics in DePere, where he was the manager of the IT Department.

Jeff was a member of Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Shawano, and was a member of the Knights of Columbus for 32 years. He was also an honorary member of the Lions Club. He enjoyed riding his motorcycle, and traveling to new and interesting places. Jeff had a drawer full of restaurant coupons, and would take Cindy out to eat with his coupons. They both liked trying new places to eat, and meeting new people.

Jeff was an avid bowler, and enjoyed watching sports on TV, especially the Packers and NASCAR. He enjoyed grilling out, and was a great baker of many sweet treats including cookies, brownies, and cheesecake, just to name a few. He was also generous in sharing everything he baked. Jeff was one of those people who was always willing to assist others.

Survivors include his loving wife, Cindy Riopelle, of Shawano; his children, Jessica Riopelle and Jacob Riopelle; his grandson, Greyson Riopelle; his brothers, Robert (Lucy) Riopelle, of Anchorage, Alaska, and Peter (Marcia) Riopelle, of New Berlin; his sister, Elizabeth (Jeffrey) Sonnemann, of Menomonee Falls; his in-laws, Larry and Patricia Oinas, of Shawano; and several nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his parents and his father-in-law, Jim Freeman.

A memorial service for Jeffrey Riopelle will be held at a later date.

Mickelson Funeral and Cremation Service of Shawano is assisting the family with arrangements. Please share online condolences at www.mickelsonfs.com.

Gresham school keeping masks optional

Masks will still be required on school buses in accordance with federal law

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

The Gresham School District will continue to make wearing a mask optional for students and staff when the new school year starts in September, but that could change if the Gresham area sees a sharp spike in COVID-19 cases.

Superintendent Newell Haffner informed the Gresham School Board on Aug. 2 that the Shawano-Menominee Counties Health Department was reporting one active COVID-19 case in the boundaries of the local district, compared with 22 that were in place with the Shawano School District and 16 for the Marion School District.

"I want to have the provision that (the mask policy) changes as we see fit," Haffner said.

However, the masks being optional does not extend to the school buses. Students will be required to wear masks on the bus because that is a federal mandate, according to Haffner.

"Kids riding the bus and athletes riding to games must wear masks," he said. "That's one spot where we don't have any choice at all."

Haffner noted that he meets with the county health department weekly and receives updated numbers, which he will use to alter mask wearing, time spent in school and other health policies. He noted that the school will not be requiring temperature checks as students and the community enter the building because they have not shown to be statistically helpful.

"That's what you guys gave us the go-ahead to do," Haffner said. "I'm saying let's just keep doing what we're doing."

Board member Joe Linik said he likes the plan to keep masks optional, noting that summer school went off without any difficulty. He also noted that 92% of the coronavirus deaths in the state have been from ages 60 and over. So while the risk of illness is still there for students, the risk of death for them is low, he said.

"The community as a whole is moving along real well right now," Linik said. "I like the direction that we're at and heading in. I just don't want anyone running and jumping to conclusions either way. Let's go about this smartly and not have the outside noise affecting the decisions."

Board member Doug Huck noted that the bus rule was the only requirement coming at the federal level, and that everything else was only a recommendation from the Centers for Disease Control. That includes the current recommendation that even those who are vaccinated should wear a mask indoors.

"At the airport, you're masked. If you're on the bus, you wear a mask," Huck said. "It's the same thing. It's federal law, not CDC guidelines. Welcome to the last 18 months of figuring things out."

Board member Jim Hoffman praised Haffner and his administration for erring on the side of caution as far as the buses are concerned. The measure reduces the liability on the district, he said.

"All you need is one parent to say that bus isn't safe and file a lawsuit that's going to cost us way more money with lawyers at hundreds of dollars per hour," Hoffman said. "I think you're doing the right thing."

Board member Pat Pleshek suggested that navigating the previous school year should give Gresham some insight on how to proceed for the coming school year.

"I would hope that, as we go forward, the burden can be lifted," Pleshek said.

Haffner noted that having the community follow protocols without difficulty has made efforts to get through the pandemic much easier.

"The parents I had last year were the best I've had in the 28 years I've been here," Haffner said. "Parents last year kept kids home when they were sick. That hadn't happened for quite a few years. Last year, if they had any hint of a kid being sick, 98% of parents kept their kids at home and said, 'I'm not risking anybody else's health and just keeping my kid at home.'"

Daylily varieties seem endless for gardeners

Lost in a neverending parade of new, bigger and bolder introductions are classic daylilies that stand the test of time.

The world of plant hybridization and tissue culture of plants for mass production has boomed over the past

ROB ZIMMER

10 or 15 years. With this explosion of new plants and new hybrids being released each and every year, sometimes hundreds of them, some of the old-fashioned favorites get lost in the confusion. In this column, my goal is to preserve the stature and memory of some of these older daylily varieties that were once beloved stars of the summer garden.

Daylily hybridization has come a long way, and each year we see hundreds of new introductions into the market by both corporations and individual plant hybridizers. There are so many varieties to choose from that it's almost overwhelming to visit a garden center to select plants to nurture and grow at home.

With hundreds of new varieties being released every year, many of them patented for sale and big money makers for garden centers, it is becoming harder and harder to find some of the old-fashioned classic varieties. In fact, in some cases, you may have to resort to ordering online or visiting a specialty daylily hybridizer.

Some of the older varieties are still the best growers and the most prolific bloomers and stand the test of time. Here are some of my favorites to look back upon.

Seek out these amazing older varieties and you will be rewarded with many years of beauty and elegance in your garden.

- Janice Brown: At one time, this was the most popular daylily on the market, a medium-sized bloom in beautiful baby pink with a darker rose center.

- Hyperion: The classic, tall, large blooming, heavenly fragrant daylily in bright, lemon yellow, this daylily was the star of any garden as early as the 1950s and 1960s. You can still find it today, occasionally. Be sure to take in its incredible aroma.

- Strutter's Ball: When this daylily was first introduced, it was the most popular plant on the market, blooming in incredibly large, rich, grape purple with a silver center. Extremely heavy substance and large, thick scapes make this daylily a classic.

Janice Brown is one of the oldest classic daylilies, featuring blooms in two shades of pink and prolific blooming, sturdy scapes.

- The Chicago series: Featuring a whole line of beautiful, unique and enticing daylilies, the Chicago series is a highly collectible plant line that features daylilies in many colors, shapes and sizes. Some of my favorites are Chicago Silver, Chicago Apache, Chicago Fire and Chicago Sunrise.

- Joan Senior: Still one of the most popular daylilies in pure white, this classic, soft blooming, elegant beauty deserves a place in every garden.

- Wild One: In its time, this was one of the most unusual daylilies on the market, one of the first polychrome daylilies introduced. Polychrome means that multiple colors are brushed in feathery patterns across the petals. Wild One features blossoms in a wash of pink, orange and red.

- Twiggy: Just like the name, this daylily is a fun and unusual specimen plant with ribbon like blooms in shades of orange and red.

- Ruby Spider: The wide, open-faced, ruby red blooms of this classic daylily are brightened by a massive, yellow and lime green center.

- Sears Tower: At one time, this was the tallest daylily available on the market, reaching over 6 feet in height. This daylily features large, bright yellow blooms.

- Candlestick Park: Long, twirling ribbons of lemon yellow highlight the massive flowers of this spidery, tall growing daylily.

- Magic Amethyst: One of the first of the new classics, this daylily features large, heavy blooms in shades of purple and lavender with a gorgeous, decorative, bubble edge highlighted in gold.

Visitors enjoy afternoon of pie, ice cream

Bonduel Community Archives hosts event as part of fundraiser

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

Dozens of Bonduel community members enjoyed a lunch of sloppy joes, pie and ice cream at the Bonduel Community Archives.

The organization hosted the pie and ice cream social Aug. 1.

Close to 40 pies were donated from members of the community and volunteers at the archives.

Beverly Fink, a volunteer with the organization, said that she was happy to get the event scheduled again now that people are receiving the COVID-19 vaccination.

"It is really wonderful to see everyone back here again," said Fink.

At the event, visitors were encouraged to try the different slices of pies — including flavors like pumpkin, key lime, pecan and cherry, among others. Vanilla ice cream was also available to pair with the pie. During the afternoon, members of the Bonduel High School band provided polka music as they played from the gazebo located next to the Bonduel Community Archives.

"This has been a great event today," said Bonduel resident Linda Spreeman. "The music and the food is lovely."

According to Fink, the money that is raised during the event goes back into the archives.

"The money goes to keeping us open," said Fink. "It goes to pay the bills, keeping the lights and that sort of thing. We don't pay anyone a salary — it's all for the community archives."

Fink said that seeing everyone at the event was a bright sight in her eyes.

"Having this event gives people the opportunity to meet old friends again," said Fink. "We have some people that came from New London, and it just gets people back together again."

She added that fundraisers like the pie and ice cream social have normally been received well by the public.

"The community supports us really well," said Fink. "This is a small crowd, but we usually see bigger crowds at events."

Mark Jensen, another volunteer for the organization, said that holding this event also brings people to the community archives, where they can connect with community members through their relatives.

"It is interesting to imagine the lives that our ancestors led," said Jensen. "A lot of people are interested in their family file. They find connections with their fellow community members."

Jensen believes that having the Bonduel Community Archives is an important part of the Bonduel community.

"I would hope that people enjoy this," said Jensen. "When I was a kid, I couldn't care less. But when I hit my 50s and 60s, it became more important. You run across stuff from your family's past, which is pretty cool."

Jensen added that this event is a step in the process of getting people to realize the vast history that Bonduel has.

"Everyone should feel free to stop in all day on Wednesdays and Saturday mornings," said Jensen. "They will be amazed at the volume of information that this building has to offer."

Newcap interested in purchasing Lakeland Center

Community action agency plans to buy building for $200K, invest another $550K for programs

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Arrangements are being made for the community action agency Newcap to potentially purchase the old Lakeland Center in Shawano from Shawano County as there are indications that the local economy is improving.

Peter Thillman, chief economic development officer for Shawano County Economic Progress Inc., announced to the Shawano County Board of Supervisors that Newcap plans to purchase the facility for $200,000 during his annual report on July 28. The estimated cost for the remodel is expected to be around $550,000, he said.

"We'll work our way through that one," Thillman said.

Thillman said that Newcap is proposing a health clinic, housing services and prefab housing development in the building. The housing development would create an apprenticeship program for carpentry, he said.

"They would also like to put something in called My Garage, which is a partnership with NWTC (Northeast Wisconsin Technical College) where they train mechanics to work on cars for low-income people," Thillman said.

SCEPI is also working to get someone to purchase the old Reinhart's facility on Richmond Street since the food processing company moved to a new facility on County Road B. There are plans to work with the Shawano City-County Airport on business development surrounding the area.

Thillman also noted the area's progress is returning to normal after more than a year of uncertainty and everything being turned on its head.

"Our labor force grew for the first time in a long time," Thillman said as he noted that Shawano County had 600 more people working now than before the coronavirus pandemic hit in March 2020. "Our unemployment rate went up, but we have more people employed than we did in February 2020."

Housing is also doing well in the county, according to Thillman. He noted that the median home price in Shawano County was $142,000 in 2020. Currently, that price has jumped to $160,000.

"Housing sales continue to surge," Thillman said. "Last year, we had a record number of sales. Right now, inventory is very low, so housing is a critical need that we're facing."

Rodgers details his issues with Packers

Team opened training camp July 28

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The Green Bay Packers opened 2021 training camp on July 28 with the familiar No. 12 jersey of Aaron Rodgers leading the way.

The play of the longtime Packers quarterback on Ray Nitschke Field was no different than in years past, but after the practice wrapped up, Rodgers went into great detail about his issues with the organization that have been the talk of the NFL since late April.

The first question Rodgers was asked was “What was this all about for you?”

Rodgers started his answer by saying, “That’s kind of a loaded question.” He then spent the next five-plus minutes explaining the situation from his point of view.

The quarterback, who is entering his 17th season with the Packers, says it started with a conversation he had back in February after the season ended.

“I just expressed my desire to be more involved in conversations directly affecting my job,” said Rodgers. “Also, I wanted to help the organization maybe learn from some of the mistakes in the past, in my opinion, about the way some of the outgoing veterans were treated.”

Rodgers went on to mention several former Packers that were “core players to our foundation, our locker room, high character guys.”

The quarterback mentioned Charles Woodson, Jordy Nelson, Julius Peppers, Clay Matthews, Randall Cobb, James Jones, John Kuhn, Brett Goode, T.J. Lang, Bryan Bulaga, Casey Hayward and Micah Hyde.

Rodgers said many of those players weren’t offered contracts to stay in Green Bay or were low-balled. He added that he didn’t think those players were respected the way they should have been after their strong play and leadership in Green Bay.

In additional answers, Rodgers revealed he spoke to several of his past teammates, including some he mentioned, to get their experiences on leaving the team.

The quarterback then talked about how the Packers didn’t want to commit to him long-term and how that option was never given to him at any point.

He didn’t want to be a “lame-duck quarterback, especially after an MVP season.”

Rodgers then spoke about wanting to be involved in conversations regarding potential free agent signings, something that he said has never happened in his career.

Rodgers felt that he could be utilized as a recruiter.

“I think we can all understand, you know, Green Bay isn’t a huge vacation destination, people are coming here to play with me, to play with our team and knowing that they can win a championship here,” said Rodgers.

Rodgers said he wanted to be part of the recruitment of free agents going forward, and that he thought he’s earned that privilege.

With the conversation not changing, Rodgers took a new approach in March.

“If you can’t commit to me past 2021, and I’m not a part of the recruiting process in free agency, if I’m not a part of the future, then instead of letting me be a lame-duck quarterback, if you want to make a change and move forward, then go ahead and do it,” said Rodgers. “That obviously didn’t happen.”

After the 2021 NFL Draft, Rodgers said the team offered him more money, with the quarterback saying it was never about the money.

“To me, it was bigger than this. It was about trying to be a resource for the organization that I care about and love so much,” said Rodgers.

Rodgers later said that the organization looks to him as a quarterback and to play the game, but that he feels he’s been there long enough to be looked to for more, most notably his input.

He just wanted to be part of the conversation, and even if he couldn’t sway any decisions, would have made him feel important and respected.

Continuing on his first answer, he spoke about how he expected a contract extension after his 2020 MVP season, but those talks didn’t begin until May.

Rodgers gave an analogy about a worker asking for a pay raise or some security after a big year and the company holding off on it. Then, a couple months later, the employee says he has a new job offer and the people in charge switch their tone and say they love them and want the employee to stay.

He then stated that not much changed over the summer, until the last week or so, and that he instead focused on himself. He even questioned whether or not he wanted to continue playing.

“The fire still burns and I wanted to be on a football team,” said Rodgers.

In follow-up questions, Rodgers indicated that his future with the team past this season is still up in the air.

The quarterback added he’s locked into this season and trying to help the team chase all of its goals, and then will address his future after the season wraps up.

“I love this team, I love this org—fans and the opportunity to play at Lambeau Field has been a dream come true. To be in my 17th season is really special, I don’t take that for granted,” said Rodgers. “I’m not a victim here at all, I just want to reiterate that. I’ve been paid a ton of money by this organization, and I’m so thankful to be a starter here for my 14th season. Not many guys have the opportunity to do that.”

“I don’t feel like anything has been done to me. It’s a business. It’s an incredible opportunity to play this game, it’s a tough business too, though, and this is part of it. So I totally get that point and that’s not lost on me.”

Shawano's Reed, Weinig playing collegiate sports

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

Shawano Community High School graduates Rachel Reed and Morgan Weinig are both set to play sports at the collegiate level.

Reed is headed to Concordia University to play for the volleyball team, while Weinig will continue her track and field career at UW-River Falls.

"It means a lot to me that I'm able to complete in college for volleyball," said Reed. "I have worked so many years at volleyball and it paid off. It also means a lot because I have had aunts and cousins on both sides of my family excel in volleyball, some have also played at the college level."

"It means so much to me to be able to compete at the college level," said Weinig. "It means that all of my hard work and patience has finally paid off and that I am getting to do what I have dreamed of since middle school. It also means that I made it farther than some thought I would when I first started throwing."

Reed's recruiting process began when she was 14. While she was playing for a 17-and-under team for Shawano Storm Volleyball Club, a coach from Milwaukee reached out to club director Linda Beversdorf inquiring about Reed.

Reed went on to play for club teams in Green Bay and Appleton, allowing her to travel around the Midwest playing volleyball and getting noticed by several other college coaches. She also created highlight videos, reached out to coaches and went to prospect camps at colleges.

The Shawano grad admitted it was challenging at times to play club volleyball along with her three high school sports — volleyball, basketball and track and field — but added it was needed to get exposed to college coaches and eventually play collegiately. Reed considered between 15-20 schools before cutting it down to six and then three before deciding on Concordia.

"Concordia appealed to me the most all through high school," said Reed. "It's a medium size school, to know who you are outside of the volleyball court as well. Also, the facilities at Concordia are very nice for a Division III school."

Weinig's journey to college athletics began after filling out a recruiting form and having a college coach reach out to her less than four hours later asking her to come visit. That college coach was from UW-River Falls.

Weinig spoke with a couple other schools about potentially joining their teams, but the "home feeling" she got after visiting UW-River Falls was something the other schools couldn't replicate.

"I chose to go to River Falls because this is one of the only schools that has my major," said Weinig. "I also fell in love with the campus and the environment on campus. Lastly, I chose to go to UWRF because of the location of the facilities and the new Falcon Center that was just built."

Both Shawano athletes are excited for the higher level of competition that college brings and are eager to help their teams.

"Concordia is very well known for volleyball, they have been conference champs a lot in the past years," said Reed. "My goal is to win conference, and get on all-conference teams while at Concordia! Also, go to the NCAA Division III tournament, that would be awesome."

"My goals for college are to go and do my best, make an impact in whatever way possible and soak it all up cause it's not something everyone gets to do in life," said Weinig.

AUTO RACING

Racing for a Reason eclipses $200K in 11th year

Action on track canceled after rain shower

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

Shawano Speedway's annual Racing for a Reason event eclipsed $200,000 in its history after raising more than $27,000 on July 31.

The event was taking place for the 11th time, helping raise money for local childhood cancer awareness. Proceeds will go to Child Life Services of St. Vincent in Green Bay.

The event started 11 years ago after Reed Luepke, the son of Shawano Speedway's promotions and operations manager Brad Luepke, was diagnosed with leukemia. Race fans wanted to hold a fundraiser for Reed, but with a fundraiser already having been done, the speedway decided to create an event to make a contribution to local childhood cancer awareness.

Instead of being just a one-time event, it's become a fan favorite on the speedway's summer schedule.

"It's just humbling, and it says a lot for the racing community," said Brad Luepke, who organizes the event with his wife, Lori. "If it wasn't for those that have supported it over the last decade, it wouldn't be as successful as it is. We are truly making a difference locally in the fight against childhood cancer."

Racing on the track

A brief but heavy rain shower about an hour before racing was supposed to start kept the speedway from hosting any races July 31.

After having some heavy vehicles do dozens of laps around the track and then a grader try and eliminate the water on the straightaway in front of the grandstands, all race cars were called to the track for packing.

Cars spent about an hour packing the track down, but the call was eventually made to cancel the races.

Action is scheduled to resume Aug. 7.

3 girls from Oconto Falls eager for college athletics

Goebel, Sadowski, Brabant staying in state

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

Recent Oconto Falls High School graduates McKayla Goebel, Kaylee Sadowski and Kilyn Brabant will all soon become collegiate athletes.

All three will stay in the state, with Goebel heading to Marian University to play basketball, Sadowski at UW-Oshkosh to golf and Brabant to UW-Stevens Point to join the cheer team. The trio was part of six Oconto Falls athletes that committed to colleges back on March 16.

McKayla Goebel

Goebel has always loved playing basketball and is eager to compete in the sport at a collegiate level.

Goebel had a few schools in mind before eventually settling on Marian.

"Marian stuck out to me a little bit more than the other schools because of their nursing program," said Goebel.

FYI

A story on three Oconto Falls boys athletes that plan on playing collegiately was published in last week's paper. The story can also be read at www.newmedia-wi.com.

MCKAYLA GOEBEL

"I also liked the small campus, it wasn't too big or too small. I just really like the environment it gives off and just being a little closer to family." Sometimes starting fresh at college can be daunting for individuals. Goebel, who made the North Eastern Conference honorable mention team as a senior and junior, is looking forward to the restart and also is excited to meet new people.

Along with goals as a student, Goebel has a few things she's hoping to achieve on the basketball court.

She wants to have a shooting and free throw percentage over 70.

"Another goal is to start before my junior year. Also, to have the least turnovers," said Goebel. "And to honestly just make a difference on the team."

KAYLEE SADOWSKI

Kaylee Sadowski

Golf was an activity that quickly became a passion for Sadowski at the high school level. She now gets the chance to keep enjoying that passion at UW-Oshkosh.

"I think with my intention to pursue psychology and criminal justice, Oshkosh was always at the top of my list," said Sadowski. "I also like the location and it felt like home right away."

The Oconto Falls grad is excited for the new challenge, adding that she's looking forward to meeting a new team and coaches, along with being independent.

She's willing to help her new team in any fashion.

"My goals I have set are to improve each week and contribute to the team however I can," said Brabant. "I will strive to be a positive teammate and take in the experience!"

Sadowski made it to sectionals in each of her final two high school seasons. She advanced to sectionals as an individual in her junior season and then led the Panthers to a sectional appearance as a team in her senior year.

KILYN BRABANT

Kilyn Brabant

Brabant is eager for the chance to cheer at games with bigger crowds, and she'll get the chance to cheer on a familiar face at UW-Stevens Point. Her brother, Kade, is a member of the UW-Stevens Point football team.

"It is very special for not only me but my entire family for me to be able to cheer for my brother's football games again," said Brabant.

UW-Stevens Point appealed to her for several reasons, one being that the school is well known for its natural resource major, which Brabant will pursue. Getting the opportunity to also cheer there is a cherry on top for the Oconto Falls grad.

"I also had an opportunity to meet the UW-Stevens Point cheer team and the coach my junior year of high school and absolutely fell in love with the closeness and family feel of the team," said Brabant.

She's excited for the new opportunities and experiences that college will provide her, both in the classroom and as a member of the cheer team.

"My goal is to live up to the high standards that this team has set and to be the best teammate that I can be."

HIGH SCHOOL WRESTLING

Bogacz taking over as Bonduel coach

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

Chad Bogacz was named the next head wrestling coach at Bonduel High School, replacing long-time coach Chris Rank.

Bogacz has been involved with the Bonduel wrestling program for 16 years, serving as a volunteer coach, middle school head coach, high school assistant and co-head coach over that time.

His next step will be serving as the solo head coach.

"I am excited for the opportunity to continue a great tradition that was built way before I was here," said Bogacz. "It is an honor to be able to follow in the footsteps of names like Dale Hodkiewicz, Tom Flanagan, Dan Weidner, Jeff Delorme and Chris Rank."

Over his time inside the program, he and the other coaches have insisted on a team-first philosophy, and he'll keep that same approach as the head coach.

Bogacz added that he's learned how to deal with difficult situations and will make it a priority to always look out for the interests of every single wrestler on the team.

"There won't be any major changes — a couple of minor things," said Bogacz. "I am hoping that I can fill the expectations of keeping our program a success. Chris did such an outstanding job of creating a wrestling family culture for such a long time. I really think that if I can sustain our reputation of being one of the classy organizations run in the area, help kids create great memories and overall just become better versions of themselves, that would be my goal."

When thinking about the team's strong success in the past, he again mentioned Rank's ability to create a wrestling family culture.

"We've been very fortunate over the last 20 years with strong wrestling families staying in the school district," said Bogacz.

"This has allowed the youth program to be very strong. A lot of extremely dedicated parents not only care about their kids but all of our kids on the team. Parents and alumni continue to recruit many other athletes to join the sport. It's impossible for one person to be responsible for all the success of a program. It takes a group of hard-working, dedicated people to make an organization great."

Bogacz added that Bonduel had found the right recipe in terms of making the sport bigger than just a game or activity.

"Overall though, this program is so successful because it's about more than just wrestling," said Bogacz. "Wrestling is the vehicle that we use to help young men and women grow and learn to be great people."

"Through wrestling, you learn about commitment, sacrifice, showing up for someone else during practices. It's about seeing someone else's strength and learning from them and celebrating when someone else does well. It's about learning how to deal with losses and wins. It's about going through hard times together as a team on the mat, and off the mat in life. And in the end, it's about giving back to where you came from."

Bogacz said one new experience he will get this upcoming season is having girls wrestlers on the team. The program has had girls wrestlers at the youth and middle school level, but never at the high school level.

Bonduel grad gets chance to extend track career

Schroeder will attend Concordia University

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

Bonduel High School graduate Kalleigh Schroeder got a late start to her running career, but will get the chance to extend it a few years as she plans to join the Concordia University (Mequon) track and field team.

"I only started running at the end of my sophomore year and only had two seasons in for track," said Schroeder, who added she never though she'd be a college athlete. "I am super excited and nervous for the college level because it is so competitive."

Because of her late introduction to running and not anticipating being a college athlete, Schroeder's recruitment process was quite different than most other athletes.

She had spoke with a coach from UW-Stout but eventually decided to attend Concordia back in September.

Then she had one of the university's coaches reach out to her in April, and Schroeder decided to give the track and field team a try — a wise choice as she noted how much she loved the sport after the spring high school season wrapped up.

KALLEIGH SCHROEDER

Schroeder said Concordia was always her college of choice, adding she was only going to apply elsewhere if she didn't get into Concordia.

She'll study interior architecture and design there.

"I chose Concordia because the campus is so pretty and a great location as well, and my program was the biggest factor for me," said Schroeder.

Along with her studies in the classroom, she's looking forward to becoming a college athlete and competing against better competition.

She also has a couple goals in mind while competing.

"While on the track team, I hope to break 33 (feet) for triple jump hopefully, or just even improve my jumping," said Schroeder.

"I also just want to improve my time for my running events. I will be doing mid-distance, so 400 and 800 most likely and I am not sure if I will be in relays or not. I am just hoping to have a great season overall."

In her final track and field season for the Bears, Schroeder advanced to sectionals as in individual in the triple jump and 400-meter dash.

She was an alternate for Bonduel's 4x800 and 4x400 sectional-qualifying relay teams.

Nelson stumps in Shawano for Senate seat

Candidate kicks off 72-county tour locally, plans to spend next 40 days listening to people

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Tom Nelson, Democratic candidate for U.S. Senate and current Outagamie County executive, kicked off his listening tour of Wisconsin's 72 counties July 28 at Angie's Main Cafe in Shawano, trying to get the pulse of the people he hopes to represent.

Nelson said he decided to kick things off in Shawano instead of his home county because he had previously represented southeast Shawano County, including the Town of Maple Grove, when he was a member of the Wisconsin Assembly representing District 5 in the 2000s. He had previously tried for federal office in 2016 when he ran against Mike Gallagher in the Eighth Congressional District to replace retiring Rep. Reid Ribble and lost.

"We're neighbors, so I thought, why not start with a neighbor?" Nelson said.

Now, Nelson has his sights set on the U.S. Senate seat currently held by Republican Ron Johnson. Johnson has not announced whether he will seek a third six-year term, but regardless, Nelson feels Johnson has to go.

"He's gone a long, long way toward hurting people in this country," Nelson said. "That's not just me as a Democrat running for the U.S. Senate. I hear that from Republicans and especially independents." Before Nelson can face Johnson — or whomever the Republican candidate will be — he'll have to face off against a number of his fellow Democrats. The field includes current Lt. Governor Mandela Barnes, State Treasurer Sarah Godlewski, Gillian Battino, Chris Larson, Alex Lasry, Kou Lee, Chantia Lewis, Adam Murphy and Peter Peckarsky.

Nelson said he stands out among the other Democrats because he's not a millionaire, touting his family's background in agriculture and noting that his father is a Lutheran pastor. He said it was officials at local levels who led the country out of the coronavirus pandemic, not federal officials like Johnson, so he feels he can bring that experience to the halls of the U.S. Capitol.

"Call me old-fashioned, but I think experience matters," Nelson said. "I've been around the state more than anyone else. I have talked to the people of the state. I have a pretty good sense of where the people are at."

Nelson realizes he'll need more than the Democratic base to win the election and noted that both Shawano and Outagamie counties consist of Republican-majority voters. He said he has the history of bringing both sides together when needed.

"We're going to get to every nook and cranny of this state and talk not only to Democrats, but to Republicans and independents," Nelson said. "I come from Outagamie County, which on balance is a red county, but I've won re-election six times. I would not have won re-election if I was not able to bring Democrats, Republicans and independents together. That's what the state needs. We don't need a polarizing figure like Ron Johnson. We need someone to bring the people together."

Nelson said he was baffled that neither senator representing the state or Wisconsin's eight representatives in Congress are sitting on a federal agriculture committee, and he vowed that, after being elected, he plans to push to be on the one for the Senate.

"It's not just because of the personal relationship," Nelson said. "There are a lot of farms in Outagamie County, a lot of farms in Shawano County. America's Dairyland, and we have no representation when it comes to policymaking in a committee in the U.S. Senate or the U.S. House. That changes when I get to Washington."

Nelson also talked about broadband and the need for it to be available across the country. Currently, 14% of Wisconsin does not have an internet service provider that offers high-speed broadband internet, and Nelson vowed to make sure that internet service becomes a utility, the same as electricity and water.

"With broadband, it's not just about the money (for infrastructure). We need to make sure it's a utility," Nelson said. "Think about it. You get all that infrastructure in the ground, and two years later, the companies jack up the prices. You can't control that unless it's a public utility."

Nelson noted that former U.S. Sen. Russ Feingold had previously done a 72-county listening tour when he was in the Senate, and he feels it's necessary to get to the heart of what constituents want from elected officials. He plans to get it done in a 40-day period.

"When I win, my constituency is going to be more than the people that voted for me," Nelson said. "It's not just going to be Democrats; it's going to be everybody. We're going to have disagreements, but to have a philosophy that you're just focused on this one band doesn't do any good."

Legislature has 2nd chance to support schools

Wisconsin's public school system is dependent upon tax dollars. Schools use state and local taxes to pay for services, salaries, transportation, supplies, utilities and more. Schools also don't solely control how much tax money they receive, or how much they are able to spend. The legislature sets spending limits for schools and determines how much state assistance they get to offset that spending. This authority requires a level of foresight and planning. When things don't go quite right — for example, when a global pandemic hits — needs change.

When Gov. Tony Evers originally crafted his budget, it included $1.6 billion for public education. That decision was supported by Wisconsin citizens throughout the state. Investment in our state and communities was the common refrain at the public hearings held to gather input about the state's budget. A majority of public testimony spoke directly to the critical needs in our public schools: mental health supports, supplies, human resources, personal protective equipment, technology, broadband, food services and resources to combat potential learning loss.

People also spoke to the need for an infusion of money to accomplish this. Citizens praised our educators, calling them the first responders for our children.

Evers' plan addressed many of those needs through targeted investments in special education, the state's share of local spending, technology costs and more. The legislature, however, answered this call differently, claiming one-time money provided by the federal government was sufficient to address all the needs of our schools. With no new spending authority and one-time federal monies targeted at pandemic-related costs, cuts will need to be made, or local taxpayers will be forced to referendum to raise their own taxes.

Unfortunately, this is a familiar challenge for our schools and our children. This is not how our funding system should work, and it's definitely not what is best for our teachers, their schools and our kids. The endless cycles of referendums widen the gaps between our have and have-not school districts, our students who face unique challenges and their peers, and our communities as a whole. Those who can shoulder the cost of tax increases pass referendums, while those who cannot don't. That does not bode well for our state's future.

When our state was formed, our founders built a system of public education that set us up for the collective success we've enjoyed for a long time. Their investment, foresight and thoughtfulness should be commended and built upon. Through his budget vetoes, Evers gave the legislature an opportunity to make good on a common and popular promise legislators across the state made to support their local public schools. There are plenty of needs right now, and now we have a second chance to fund those needs.

Foresight and investment is the theme when you have an unexpected windfall, whether you are a homeowner or a business owner. Some frequently remark that we should operate our schools like we manage our homes or our business. If you are a homeowner with a leaky roof, you would undoubtedly use any extra cash you receive to fix your roof. If you are a business owner, you would reinvest it in your business, your employees or in research and development to shore up your future.

So, let's do the same for our schools. Please contact your legislators and encourage them to use this opportunity to benefit every kid, every day. The governor provided this legislature a second chance to make good on their own election promises to invest in our public schools, our communities, our children and our families. We cannot afford to let this moment pass.

Jill Underly is the state superintendent of public instruction.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Cheney, Kinzinger buck party to seek truth

To the editor:

We are all aware of the impact of rolling power outages on our lives and our way of life. However, a different type of outage is now plaguing our society — rolling civic outages. Our country, state and locality are so polarized that friendships are being destroyed and family relationships are being damaged.

Viewing the initial session of the Jan. 6 select committee have brought these thoughts to the forefront. Even though I am not a Republican, I am proud to call Liz Cheney and Adam Kinzinger patriotic Americans.

For all practical purposes, they are sacrificing their political lives at the altar of our republican democracy rather than bending their knee at the altar of Donald Trump. In the case of Kinzinger, much of his family has disowned him. Both Cheney and Kinzinger are facing death threats.

Adam Kinzinger is former active military and is a reservist on call. He refers to himself as a conservative Republican. As such, I have disagreed with him on many social, cultural and economic issues. Nevertheless, I deeply admire his ongoing display of courage.

The bulk of the Republican Party has succumbed to the cult of personality embodied in Donald Trump. This is despite the fact that he — along with Hitler, Stalin and Mao — is one of the four most evil men of the past century. Most Republican officials on the national level are acting out the Machiavellian principle that to succeed in politics requires learning how "not to be good." Trump's base has essentially adopted him as their secular savior. By doing so, they relinquish their right to claim Jesus as their spiritual savior.

What happened on Jan. 6 needs to be permanently etched in our collective conscience. We cannot live in the alternative reality that the terrorists of that day were really patriots.

For all you "people of faith" out there who believe in a place or concept of heaven, I know this to be true. You and I will not occupy the same eternal space. I would not be too sure that you will be the one that metaphorically will be looking down on me.

Ken Kroenke, Shawano

Relay for Life fundraiser deemed a success

Community members were invited to partake in lunch, silent auctions

By LUKE REIMER

Reporter

The Zion Walkers hosted an American Cancer Society fundraiser for the Shawano community to attend on July 31.

"Every one of us been touched by cancer in some way — whether it be friends, relatives, caregivers or survivors," said Kathy Beyer, a cancer survivor and co-chairwoman of the event.

The event consisted of members of the Zion Walkers putting up stands for silent auctions, lunch, luminaries that community members could walk around and games like beanbags for families to play. It took place in the parking lot of Zion Lutheran Church. The Zion Walkers split up into three teams, and each took a role for the event to raise money separately.

According to Beyer, there were 30 total baskets that were up for silent auction. The items in the baskets were donated from local businesses in Shawano County.

The money that was raised from all three teams during the event will go to the American Cancer Society.

"Everyone has been affected by cancer," said Beyer. "We don't have a cure for it yet. The money that we are raising helps for research, and it helps for people who need child care or other necessities."

Bob Brudick, right, and Russ Wise, left, have a conversation as they show off their Relay for Life T-shirts at Zion Lutheran Church for the American Cancer Society's July 31 fundraiser. LUKE REIMER | NEW MEDIA

Beyer added that the money that is raised stays in northeast Wisconsin.

She said seeing people fight their battles with cancer is extremely inspiring.

"Cancer is a bump in the road in life," said Beyer, "You may take a little detour with your treatments, but you will always get to your next destination and see another birthday."

Beyer said that the turnout for the event was great, and she deemed it a success.

"For three teams to have people here, it's a great turnout," said Beyer. "It's Saturday during the end of July; you would think people would be up at the lake."

She added that envelopes detailing information regarding the event were distributed in bulletins in order for people to donate even if they could not attend the event.

"They are celebrating in their own way without being here physically," said Beyer.

Beyer noted that she was encouraged to see that families were gathering at the event to donate and memorialize those who are battling cancer.

"When I got cancer, it wasn't just about me," said Beyer. "It was about my three brothers, my two sons, all of my teaching friends, all of my church friends and the neighbors because they wanted to support me."

Other than being used as a fundraiser, Beyer believes that holding an event like this is a great way to bring the community together.

"This is a neat way for networking," said Beyer. "It brings neighborhoods together. Community members are then able to go to the businesses that donated items to thank them."

Beyer said that although there were three teams at the event helping to run it, it is normal for the three teams to spread out and run their own events.

"It is a friendly competition," said Beyer. "It is also a motivator. Today we have three teams, but each is collecting their own money."

Beyer added that this fundraiser can be a bright spot in the community, bringing together everyone from the area.

"Things do happen," said Beyer. "With the strength of friends, family and caring, that is what makes you better."

Prevea Health pushes COVID-19 vaccination, testing in communities

As COVID-19 cases increase locally, state and nationwide, Prevea Health is urging all eligible community members to become vaccinated and utilize COVID-19 testing resources to prevent the spread of this highly contagious disease and its aggressive variants as soon as possible.

"The most important thing you can do for yourself, loved ones and fellow community members is to get vaccinated as soon as possible," said Dr. Ashok Rai, president and CEO for Prevea Health. "COVID-19 vaccines are readily available across the state. Please, do not wait any longer. Lives and livelihoods depend on it. As long as a significant number of people remain unvaccinated, the virus will continue to replicate and could create additional, dangerous variants. At this point, it is a race against the continued replication of this virus."

Rai expands on the importance of becoming vaccinated as soon as possible in a new episode of Prevea Health's podcast, "Plug in to Health," which is available on all podcast platforms and at prevea.com/podcast titled "COVID-19: Get Vaccinated, Don't Wait!"

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reports COVID-19 cases and related hospitalizations and deaths are on the rise across the country; more than 97% of people becoming hospitalized with COVID-19 now are unvaccinated. In Wisconsin, the Department of Health Services on July 26 reported the highest number of new COVID-19 cases since May.

Prevea Health offers COVID-19 vaccination at no cost in Oconto Falls, Gillett, Lena, Mountain, Suring, Marinette and Shawano. For information about COVID-19 vaccination, visit www.prevea.com/vaccine or call 833-344-4373.

Testing also remains critical in stopping the spread of COVID-19. While becoming infected with COVID-19 following vaccination is rare at this time, it is possible. Therefore, anyone experiencing symptoms of COVID-19 should be tested immediately.

Prevea Health offers COVID-19 testing to anyone experiencing one or more symptoms of the illness; those exposed to another person diagnosed with COVID-19; and those who have been in close contact with a person currently quarantined for suspected COVID-19 at no cost in Oconto Falls, Marinette and Shawano. For information about COVID-19 testing, visit www.prevea.com/COVID19 or call 920-431-1810.

COVID-19 symptoms include cough, shortness of breath, difficulty breathing, fever, chills, repeated shaking with chills, muscle pain, headache, sore throat and/or new loss of taste or smell.

An epic adventure — times three

Nicholas Wudtke self-publishes 3 novels in series of 7

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

It has been a long road for Shawano writer Nicholas Wudtke, but his dream of seeing his epic fantasy story in print has come true — times three.

In late July, Wudtke self-published the first three books of his planned seven-book Black Needle series, an accomplishment that has taken him 10 years to achieve.

"I've always been a writer, and basically, I needed an outlet to be creative," Wudtke said. "Writing is a good way for that. I had a lot of time on my hands because I was a stay-at-home dad for my son."

Wudtke describes himself as someone with a complex mind, which is why he couldn't contain his fantasy tale in one book.

"Short stories, you can't get as detailed," Wudtke said. "You can't character develop as much. You can't interweave separate plot points as much, stuff like that."

The Black Needle series follows two heroes named Mick and Dave as they journey through Garobansurov learning swordplay and looking for adventure. More importantly, they are also on philosophical quests, seeking answers to interesting and important questions.

"Mick is a play on my name, so I'm living vicariously through him," Wudtke said. "Dave, at the time, was just a random name that popped in my head at that moment; it really has no significance."

Even though the name has no connection in Wudtke's life, the character is one that the author wishes he could hang out with in real life.

"It's just a life I've always wanted to live," Wudtke said.

The adventures of Mick and Dave start in "Parabolic, Magnetic Key." One reviewer on Amazon noted that Nicholas Wudtke's first three books in the Black Needle series are now available for readers to enjoy. The Shawano resident has spent 10 years developing the adventures of Mick and Dave.

the action was ample, with plenty of battle scenes.

In the second book, "Blunt but Imminently Fatal Projectile," new challenges await in a new land with people that Mick and Dave didn't realize existed. The third book, "Deserved, Contorted Relics," has Mick and Dave facing an epic battle back in Garobansurov as war continues to sweep the land.

"They share witticisms along the way, constantly making wisecracks," Wudtke said. "Their camaraderie is unbeatable. You never get the impression they'll stab each other in the back."

Wudtke said he had no problem developing the story, but the challenge came in writing it down.

"It all rolls down to the fact that I do way too much thinking," Wudtke said. "I think all day long, and that's how it comes. I just think about everything."

Science fiction and fantasy work well as a creative outlet for Wudtke because he gets to invent new worlds and take himself away from reality for a little while. The genres work well for him as he thinks of all the things he likes to write about.

"I want to write about humor. I want to write about love. I want to write about philosophy. I want to write about camaraderie, and I want to write about battles and swords," Wudtke said. "I always like fantasy, of course, and I strive on putting myself into a different world and immersing myself into it."

Even though there are three books, some readers might feel like they've read through six or seven because of their size. "Parabolic, Magnetic Key" is 532 pages in itself, and then "Blunt but Imminently Fatal Projectile" jumps up to 616 pages before "Deserved, Contorted Relics" furnishes 562 more pages of fascinating adventures.

However, the books provide Wudtke with more than just a creative outlet. They provide him with a way to pay tribute to one of his children, Lifeson, who passed away at a young age due to brain damage complications.

Constant revision of every word in his books, quite the epic challenge itself with over 1,700 pages worth of words, added to the time it took to bring the three novels from concept to print.

"Each sentence I've revised hundreds of times," Wudtke said. "In those revisions is where the thinking comes out. I just get wrapped up in it. I can't move on from a sentence unless I've written it in my head over and over until it's just perfect."

Finally, about two years ago, Wudtke was able to break free of the self-doubt and started querying publishing companies to see if they would be interested in bringing his books to desired readers, thinking that having three books ready to go would increase his chances of finding an agent willing to take a chance on him. He waited for a year for potential approvals, but they never came.

"I got cliché responses from the big guys," Wudtke said. "I don't think they were very personable. I think they just copied and pasted (the rejections), honestly. Only half of them replied, and the ones that I thought would reply didn't reply at all."

That's when Wudtke started looking at smaller publishing houses and found an editor who took the time to go through the three books and make them ready for publication. Rodney Miles, based in Cape Canaveral, Florida, also designed the covers for Wudtke's books and hired someone to draw a map of the lands through which Mick and Dave would travel.

Wudtke's books can be found on Amazon in either ebook or paperback form. He also plans to have them come out in hardcover through IngramSpark.

Kids wait in line for Freddy's animals

By WARREN BLUHM
Editor-in-chief

Freddy Alfredo works intently as kids watch balloons transform into the magic they asked for: a puppy, a sword, a monkey, a Jedi light saber — even a sunflower.

His creations emerge gradually until a glimmer of recognition lights in the children's face and they reach for the reward for their patience.

There was a long line of children and parents willing to wait July 30 during Sunflower Fest 2021 at Bergsbaken Farms in Cecil, next to a pair of face painters.

Freddy's Balloon Animals grew out of Alfredo's need to strengthen his hands as he deals with the limitations that keep him in a wheelchair.

"I tried doing it with weights, but they were too heavy," he said. "The doctor said I needed to do it with something light."

He tried manipulating a Rubik's Cube but found a more fun alternative when he started learning how to mold balloons into toy creatures and other objects.

"I had a room full of these things, and a friend suggested I go to flea markets and parks," Alfredo said.

Freddy's Balloon Animals can be found most Sundays at the Shawano flea market and at other festivals around the area.

Balloon artist Freddy Alfredo puts the finishing touches on a monkey he has created for a young admirer July 30 during Sunflower Fest 2021 at Bergsbaken Farms in Cecil.

Shawano eager to host national championships

Bringing event to Smalley Park was several year process

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

Shawano is eager to host its first ever national championship, an event that took several years to prepare for and bring to the Shawano Ski Sharks show site.

The Division 2 Show Ski National Championships will be held Aug. 6-8 on the Wolf River, with fans scattered across Smalley Park to watch the action on the water.

The process of bringing a national championship to Shawano first began about 10 years ago, according to Brad Keuschel, a member of the Ski Sharks. Keuschel recalled telling team president Dave Passehl that one day he'd help bring nationals to Shawano.

The first step to getting their site to align with national guidelines was to move it. The Ski Sharks remained at Smalley Park but moved a couple blocks north to avoid the Wolf River Beach and create a bit more room between ski shows and the Green Bay Street bridge.

The next thing the site needed was to be able to hold at least 1,000 spectators at a single time and also have a place to park hundreds of cars. The Ski Sharks have both of those things, and with improved seating areas, a new pavilion and a city willing to host, the site was ready for a national championship.

The call making the dream of Shawano hosting a championship a reality came in November 2019. After several more months of prep, Smalley Park is now ready to showcase its site.

A curveball was thrown after the pandemic eliminated some of last year's national championship — which typically only last two days — so Smalley Park was asked to host for an additional day.

Shawano accepted and will now host "probably one of the largest Division 2 nationals in a long time," said Keuschel.

"There's a lot of excitement about it. It'll be great when everybody gets here and we get to stand back and look at it," said Keuschel.

Keuschel said they are tentatively expecting to bring in 1,500-2,000 visitors during the three-day event.

The national championship will officially kick off at 8 a.m. Friday when individual competition begins.

There will be a swivel 180, swivel pairs 360, swivel pairs open, strap doubles intermediate, swivel 360 and freestyle jump intermediate exhibitions that day along with strap doubles, swivel and freestyle opens. Several Ski Shark members will be competing.

The duos of Carsten McHugh and Jessa Jochman and Kylie Wallace and Brad Keuschel will compete in the strap doubles open competition. Faith McHugh will take part in the swivel 360 exhibition before Carsten McHugh hits the water for the freestyle open.

Friday will be capped with a mandatory team meeting at 6 p.m. with the chief judge at the site's pavilion. Paperwork check in will also be completed then.

Saturday will have five of the championship's nine teams in action, with the Ski Sharks taking the water third. The Ski Broncs (Loves Park, Illinois), Shermalot (Nekoo-sa), Five Seasons (Cedar Rapids, Iowa) and the Badwater Ski-ers (Spread Eagle) round out the teams competing.

The other four teams will compete on Sunday. Silver Lake (Fenton, Michigan), Ski Sprites (Altoona), Plum Ski-ers (Sayner) and the Muskego Water Bugs (Muskego) are the teams in action.

Following Friday's individual competitions and Sunday's second day of team competitions, award ceremonies will follow.

"It's a great atmosphere," said Keuschel on what first-time water ski fans can expect to see over the three-day championships. "It's one of the only sports where the other teams are constantly cheering each other on. The water ski community in general is one big family. There's going to be hundreds of people here watching each other."

Keuschel added that anyone who has taken in a Ski Sharks' show and thought it was a big production should come check out some of the other teams in action, as there will be even bigger rosters in attendance.

When some of the larger teams are competing, Keuschel believes around 1,000 people could be looking on, so the usual seating areas, plus additional bleachers and the hills and any other areas with views of the water will also be covered.

After teams are done competing, a 30-minute break will be taken before the next team takes the water, at which time fans can check out some of the ski and food vendors that will be on site.

"We worked really, really hard to get to this point," said Passehl. "The expectation was that we would be able to host tournaments here. We know what it does for the communities that it's been in in the past and that's really what we wanted to bring here. The investment that we have in Smalley Park is now going to really see what we did it for.

"Clearly our weekly shows are wonderful, there are huge crowds and we fill up Smalley Park and that's great, too, but when we can bring 1,000 spectators in to Shawano on just a weekend, we're pretty proud of that. So yeah, super excited and we're looking forward to having all these teams from around several states showcased here and hopefully the community comes out and enjoys it."

Keuschel added that the hope is to host as many national championships in the coming years as possible.

Guidelines on Wolf River with water ski championship in town

With the Division 2 Show Ski National Championships taking place Aug. 6-8, there are some changes to Wolf River access and usage of which people should be aware.

On those three days, there will be a legal waterway closure to non-competition boat traffic from the trestle to the dam. This is in place for the safety of all water ski individuals, teams and boats in action.

There will also be a no-wake passage from the channel to the trestle so that boat traffic can still move through. The area will be marked by buoys.

Finally, there will be a no-wake channel on the west side of the river for those who need to get through, primarily in place for property owners.

"We don't want to hinder anybody from being able to use the waterways," said Brad Keuschel,

Local businesses prepare for water ski visitors

Shawano hosting national tournament from Aug. 6-8

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

Local businesses are preparing for a wave of visitors to the Shawano area this weekend as the Shawano Ski Sharks host a national tournament Aug. 6-8.

“According to the information that I received, a couple thousand visitors are expected,” Shawano Chamber of Commerce Tourism Manager Patti Peterson said.

Many local businesses and hotels are preparing to host hundreds of guests, as they shop, eat and sleep all around Shawano.

“This weekend is similar to most summer weekends here,” said AmeriVu Inn and Suites manager Nick Patel. “We are fully booked.”

Patel said all 49 rooms at the hotel were full, with close to 100 people staying there.

Jessie Warrington, the manager of Quality Inn and Suites in Shawano, said they also were fully booked.

“We have around 150 people staying with us for that weekend,” said Warrington.

She added that she is excited to see the hotel booked for the tournament so visitors can get out and not only watch the tournament, but experience Shawano as well.

“This should help the Shawano area,” Warrington said. “It will bring more revenue into the city, as well as give people something to do rather than be cooped up inside from the COVID-19 pandemic.”

Curt Preston, co-owner of Old Glory Candy, said that they are always welcoming visitors from big events in Shawano to his store.

“We are hoping and preparing for more traffic from visitors during the tournament,” Preston said.

He added that the preparation for the extra visitors will involve a staff increase.

“We want to be as staffed as possible,” Preston said. “We also want to create a great experience for the customers coming in, so we don’t want to rush people in and out. It will be a balancing act for the customers to have that great experience.”

Visitors to the store will be encouraged to try some of the samples of fudge, including flavors like whiskey old-fashioned sweet and watermelon, he said.

Yvette Wilber, the owner of Tumbleweed, said she is anticipating the apparel store to very busy during the tournament.

“Business will be up not only for us, but for everyone in Shawano,” said Wilber. “This will be really great for everyone to get this extra foot traffic.”

Wilber said she hopes visitors enjoy the experience and spread the word about Tumbleweed and Shawano.

One business that has been seeing more traffic recently is anticipating more as the tournament proceeds. Stubborn Brothers Brewery has seen an uptick in business due to their Hometown Hero American ale, said co-owner Aaron Gilling.

“We will be running business like usual,” Gilling said.

He said he believes that having a tournament with an anticipated audience of this size will have a positive impact.

“Everyone will benefit from this — Shawano will benefit from this,” said Gilling. “Every business will work together to benefit. We all support each other’s businesses, and that will help Shawano succeed in general.”

The businesses also plan to run special deals and promotions for the occasion. Stubborn Brothers is offering a buy-one-get-one deal on their porter and amber, Old Glory Candy is running a deal where if customers buy a pound of fudge, they get a quarter-pound free, and Tumbleweed is giving out hats with purchases.

Peterson said Angie’s Main Cafe, Old Glory Candy, The Stock Market and Stubborn Brothers are also taking part in a coupon sheet promotion, where coupons for those businesses will be distributed at the Ski Sharks tournament.

According to Brad Keuschel, a member of the Ski Sharks and a leader in bringing the tournament to Shawano, the action on the water will be wrapped up by 4 p.m. each day, giving visitors and competitors time to experience what Shawano has to offer.
