Whealon moves resignation up a month to meet deadline

Personnel committee to review options for vacancy

By TIM RYAN
Reporter

Shawano Mayor Ed Whealon, who said he would resign his office by the end of the year, has moved his resignation to the end of November so the Common Council can meet a statutory deadline for a possible election.

The council discussed the pending vacancy for the first time at its meeting Oct. 14, but no decisions were reached.

The vacancy will first go to an as-yet unscheduled meeting of the personnel committee to determine which of several options to choose.

They include leaving the mayor's office vacant until the April 2022 election when Whealon's two-year term expires, in which case Council President Rhonda Strebel would perform those duties; appointing someone to fill the vacancy until a special election can be held in April 2021; or appointing someone to fill out the rest of the term.

If a special election is held in April 2021, it would be for a one-year term.

City Administrator Eddie Sheppard said that if the resignation doesn't happen by Dec. 1, the city would have to forego an election in April, making November the first opportunity for an election if the city sticks to regular election cycles.

"If the mayor resigns before Dec. 1 of 2020, that instantly puts in play a special election that can be held on the date in April of 2021," he said. "If the resignation happens after Dec. 1, then the special election has to go all the way to the November 2021 election."

The council could also order a special election outside of the regular election cycle on a date to be determined.

However, Sheppard said, the special election would have to be held within 62 to 77 days after the council orders an election, which would put it within the regular primary and election season.

"The council can't declare a special election until the day the office is actually vacated," he said.

The day Whealon initially intended to leave, which would have been the end of the year, would have put the election in conflict with the regular primary season.

"You can't have a special election once the primary season has started," Sheppard said.

Whealon was re-elected to his second two-year term as mayor in April after facing no challengers. He defeated incumbent Jeanne Cronce for the post in 2018.

Whealon purchased a second home in the Town of Wescott earlier this year, but still has a residence in the city.

He said he wasn't sure what was going to happen with the house in the city when he bought the second home in Wescott.

Asked about that purchase several months ago, he said he still resides in the city, pays his taxes, municipal utility bills and votes here, a point he reiterated at Wednesday's council meeting.

He said, however, he is now planning on putting the Shawano residence on the market.

He said he initially chose to continue through the end of the year to help guide the city through next year's budget.

Whealon said in an interview last week that he was not aware of the statutory date requirements surrounding his resignation and the council's ability to call a special election.

"I'll be done on Nov. 30 to give the city time to, if they hold a special election, to get that squared away and get things rolling for April," he said. "I don't want to be an impediment to that."

Whealon said he didn't want to burden the city with the dual-residency issue.

"I don't want to drag the city into a situation where it becomes tumultuous, adversarial and stuff like that," he said. "That's not my intention. I don't want to do that. I just decided I don't want to have that hanging out there and be an issue not only for me, but for everybody else involved in the city."

Whealon said he feels city government is doing well and hopes it will continue to do well.

"We've got it pointed in the right direction to do great things for the city," he said.

Whealon, who also served as chief of police before becoming mayor, said he has thoroughly enjoyed his time.

"I've been involved with the city of Shawano for over 40 years," he said. "It's time for a different chapter in my life, to move on. I'll miss it, and in some ways, I'm not going to miss it. It is what it is."

Notice of Public Hearing
SMU Electric Rate Case 5350-ER-111

Shawano Municipal Utilities (SMU) has filed an application with the Public Service Commission of Wisconsin (PSCW) to increase electric rates. SMU rates were last increased on March 31, 2018.

The PSCW has scheduled an Audio Hearing (no physical location) on our application for Friday, November 6, 2020 at 10:00 a.m. People wishing to attend and participate in the hearing may call-in by telephone: Dial (872) 240-3212 and enter 903 694 349 #. To listen live on the internet, go to the Commission's website at <http://psc.wi.gov>, and select "Live Broadcast."

The rate change we are requesting is necessary to reflect changes in operating costs, purchased power costs and adjust the tariff rate structure to address inter-class cost allocations. The total increase in revenues is $693,835 for an average overall rate increase of 3.11 %.

The actual change to individual customers will vary widely with electricity usage and class of service. For instance, based on our Cost of Service Study, SMU has requested a 3.0% rate increase for Rg-1 Residential customers and 2.6% increase for Gs-1 General Service customers while also requesting a 6.1 % decrease for Cp-3 Industrial customers and a 19.0% increase for our largest Cp-4 Industrial customers. All other class adjustments are less than a 3.0% increase. Ultimately, the final tariff rates and impacts will be determined by the PSCW based largely on the outcome of this hearing. All information regarding SMU's application is available on the PSCW's website: <http://psc.wi.gov> use "Docket Search" to search for 5350-ER-111.

If you have questions regarding this rate increase, please contact SMU's office at (715)-526-3131, during office hours (7:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.) Monday through Friday.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED FISHING REGULATION CHANGE ON THE MIDDLE BRANCH EMBARRASS RIVER IN SHAWANO COUNTY

The Department of Natural Resources proposes to change fishing regulations for brook trout, brown trout, and rainbow trout in the Middle Branch Embarrass River in Shawano County from Homme Pond to CTY HWY Z. The current trout regulation on this stretch of river is a red regulation with a 12-inch minimum length limit for rainbow trout and brown trout, an 8-inch minimum length limit for brook trout, and a daily bag limit of 3 in total for all trout species. The proposed regulation change is to a green regulation with no minimum length limit for any trout species and a daily bag limit of 5 in total for all trout species.

Changes in the regulations are being proposed because the current red regulation with a 12-inch minimum length limit on brown and rainbow trout is providing undesirable protection to any stocked yearling rainbow trout that swim up from Homme Pond into the Middle Branch Embarrass River. The intent is to allow for harvest of as many of the stocked yearling rainbow trout as possible and the 12-inch minimum length limit is preventing harvest of these stocked fish. Also, surveys of the Middle Branch Embarrass River in 2018 showed that this stream supports high densities of brook trout with good size structure.

Under s. NR 20.35(3), Wisconsin Administrative Code, removal of special regulations is warranted under these conditions.

The proposed regulations would take effect on or about May 1, 2021.

It was shown in previous surveys that some of the stocked yearling rainbow trout from Homme Pond swim upstream into the Middle Branch Embarrass River. For example, six stocked yearling rainbow trout were captured in trout surveys at various locations upstream of Homme Pond in 2018. The current red regulation is giving these stocked yearling rainbow trout undesirable protection from harvest. Furthermore, results from trout stream surveys at nine locations above Homme Pond in 2018 showed that the Middle Branch Embarrass River supports a high-density brook trout population as brook trout catch per unit effort averaged 785 brook trout per mile of electrofishing across the nine sites. A catch rate of 785 brook trout per mile of electrofishing ranks out in the 82nd percentile when compared to trout streams throughout the state of Wisconsin. Results from 2018 surveys showed that size structure of brook trout in the Middle Branch Embarrass River is also high compared to trout streams throughout Wisconsin. Thus, the Middle Branch Embarrass River provides a high-density brook trout population that can support potential increases in angler harvest of brook trout that would result from the regulation change. The goal is to maintain moderate – high densities of all size classes of brook trout while providing additional harvest opportunities for trout (especially stocked rainbow trout) and simplifying trout fishing regulations.

A public meeting to hear public comments and provide information about the proposal will be held if requested in writing within 10 days of the publication of this notice. Public meeting requests and comments on this proposal should be sent to: Jason Breeggemann; 647 Lakeland Road, Shawano, WI 54166; (920) 420 – 4619; jason.breeggemann@wisconsin.gov by November 2, 2020.

Minorities should support Trump this election

I wish that we would stop calling Americans Black, Hispanic, Native or Asian Americans and just say American.

I will focus on two identified minority groups: Blacks and Hispanics. Both groups traditionally vote Democratic. Using presidential election statistics from 1984 through 2016, President Barack Obama received 95% of the Black vote in 2008 and in 2012, 71% of the Hispanic vote. George Bush Sr. received 10% of the Black vote in 1992, and in 2000, George W. Bush received 35% of the Hispanic vote. The average for the Democrats during that timeframe was Blacks, 90.16%, and Hispanics, 60.5%. Republicans averaged 7.6% of the Black vote and 30% of Hispanic.

I am predicting that in 2020, 50% of Hispanics and 25% of Blacks will vote for President Donald Trump. What makes me think that? I believe that Democrats and liberals in general believe that they can control minorities, and that the minorities are not informed. Let's start by looking at Trump's opposition.

Vice president candidate Kamala Harris has Black heritage. Her father is Jamaican, and her mother is from India. Harris' parents are not from the American slave background, which has some Black Americans questioning if Harris can relate to or understands their struggle.

Harris' other problem with Black voters is her history as a prosecutor. She was California's attorney general from 2011 to 2017. According to the Aug. 12 New York Post, Harris refused to endorse a bill calling for a special prosecutor to investigate deadly police shootings and rejected calls from civil rights groups following the 2014 shooting of Michael Brown in Ferguson, Missouri.

Harris has a record of being tough. She opposed a state initiative to soften minimum mandatory sentences. During her time as attorney general, 1,560 people were jailed for marijuana-related offenses. These numbers come from the Washington Free Beacon.

Minorities are not uninformed, and they know that presidential candidate Joe Biden proudly exclaimed that he authored the 1994 Crime Bill. German Lopez, on Vox Media, stated that some criminal justice reform activists have identified this crime bill as one of the key contributors to mass incarceration in the 1990s. This bill authored by Biden led to more prison sentences, more prison cells and aggressive policing hurting Black and Brown Americans disproportionately.

Biden was proud of his crime bill, according to his Nov. 18, 1993, speech in defense of the Biden/Hatch Crime Bill, also known as the Violent Crime Control Law of 1994. He wanted to end the rumor that Democrats were weak on crime, and a statement he made clearly exclaims his pride: "A Democratic senator from Delaware and a Republican conservative senator from Utah are united in a 'Biden/Hatch Crime Bill' that does all the things that I just said."

Here are other Biden statements from his speech. "We have predators on our streets, that society has, in fact, in part because of its neglect, created. We have no choice but to take them out of society." You're looking at the "fella" who was one of the primary architects of the sentencing commission.

There is much more in the speech Biden gave. According to a C-Span video, Biden was the chairman of the judiciary committee at that time, which is why he could give himself extra time. Biden gave himself extra time twice in three-minute increments. It is obvious that Joe Biden was extremely proud of this crime bill and wanted everyone to know that he was the driving force.

Minorities are not uninformed. They know that Kamala Harris has been tough on crime, and blocked efforts to reform criminal justice as a state attorney general. Minorities know about Joe Biden and the damage that the 1994 crime bill has caused to their communities. Trump might hurt your feelings, but Biden hurt people's lives.

Black pastors have come out in favor of Trump and against Harris.

According to Jacob Jarvis in his May 22 Newsweek article, Darrell Scott, a Black pastor, referred to Trump as the most pro-Black president he has ever seen. A group of Black pastors led by Bishop Aubrey Shines were quoted in the law enforcement magazine written by Pat Droney on Oct. 1. They were critical of Harris' stance on Black Lives Matter.

Bishop Shines slammed Harris in The Christian Post, saying, "It's extremely disheartening to see a U.S. senator and a candidate for vice president give such high praise to a group that is trying to destroy our country."

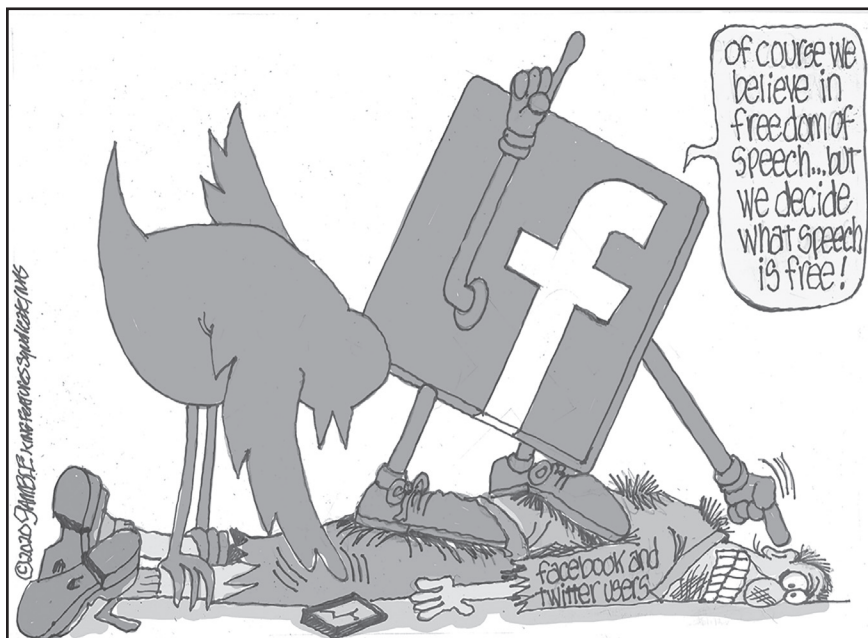

Black Entertainment founder Robert Johnson told the Squawk Box on Sept. 30, that he does not know what Biden would do. Johnson did not endorse Trump but said, "Where I come out as a businessman, I will take the devil I know, over the devil I don't know, anytime of the week."

Mary Papenfuss from the Huffington Post on April 21, 2019, shared that Kim Kardashian defended her efforts in working with Trump on prison reform, a topic promised by many presidents that included Obama.

Trump is delivering.

Blacks and Hispanics know what Trump's economic policies did for them. They also know what Obama and Biden did not do for them.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Media, politicians not objective with Trump

To the editor:

I really am fed up with the distortions and outright disgusting lack of objectivity the national media and politicians engage in when talking about President Donald Trump. The following are just a small sample of which I speak:

- The media and some politicians almost universally vilify Trump as having handled the coronavirus pandemic badly. Yet they were the ones who almost universally called him a racist and a xenophobe when early on he was the one who tried to protect us with the travel bans. Joe Biden openly criticized him relentlessly for the bans, and who remembers that?

- The media also tried to blame him for not having fast enough responses to supplying personal protective equipment for the health care professionals and the public. Well, Bunkie, why did the national press not dig into why our national supplies were not there? Because they would have found that the Barack Obama administration depleted the national stockpiles during the SARS epidemic, and they did not replace them. These are facts you can verify by just looking it up for yourself.

- Production of PPEs and drugs to fight this pandemic were shipped out of the country mainly to the Pacific Rim nations (China, in the case of prescription drugs) by the government (overregulation) and drug companies for economic gain. Zero regard was given to disruptions to the supply chain should we have an emergency. Who is bringing the manufacture of these things back? It wasn't Joe.

Billionaires like George Soros, Michael Bloomberg and Silicon Valley moguls are funneling millions into the elections overwhelming the system trying to buy the election. Don't you care that we are not dealing with a level playing field? Don't you want to get unbiased news? Don't you want to get unedited and undistorted video when people speak publicly to the media?

Why aren't you angry at political leaders like governors and mayors who are using the pandemic to shut down our economy claiming they are following science when, in fact, they are not? Wake up, or lose our nation.

Bruce Watters, Bowler

Tauchen ad on health care is misleading

To the editor:

A recent campaign ad for Rep. Gary Tauchen reads "Gary works for health care." The next line states, "Guaranteed coverage for pre-existing conditions."

I found this extremely confusing, since there is no existing Wisconsin law that provides protections for pre-existing health conditions. The only law that guarantees protection is a federal law, the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (ACA), which Tauchen's party has made every effort to attack.

I contacted Tauchen's office to better understand why his ad makes this claim and had a good conversation with his staffer, Derrick Scherdell. While Tauchen supported a measure regarding pre-existing conditions, Scherdell admitted that the legislation was never taken up in the Senate and so no bill was ever signed into Wisconsin law.

President Donald Trump, encouraged by the Republican party that has no health plan of its own, is determined to get rid of the Affordable Care Act, which would eliminate health care access for over 7 million Americans and end protections for all Americans who have pre-existing conditions, including over 8 million Americans who have recently contracted COVID-19.

Therefore, if the protections under the federal ACA are gone, there would be no guaranteed coverage for pre-existing conditions, as claimed by the Tauchen ad. Tauchen can say he supports the idea of these protections, but if he sits silently as his party attacks the ACA, his claim seems disingenuous and misleading.

According to staff, once the ACA is gone, Tauchen thinks Wisconsin will pass laws in its place, but health experts question whether state laws for pre-existing conditions will be comprehensive enough to be successful. To read more about this, go to <http://www.wisconsinbudgetproject.org/state-law-cant-adequately-protect-people-with-pre-existing-conditions>.

The voters of the 6th State Assembly District deserve accurate information as they decide who will best serve the people and the needs of this district.

Laura Robinson, Shawano

Candidate Joe Biden has a health care plan

To the editor:

Biden has real plans for health care.

Yes, candidate for president Joe Biden has one. President Donald Trump? No, he has a "Trust me. I'll get 'it' to you after the election." Sad.

The Biden health care plan centers around reinforcing portions of the Affordable Care Act and improving access to care. Whether one has coverage through an employer or has to purchase one's own, there will be a "like-Medicare" (not present Medicare) option.

Some portions of the "public option" will be for those who don't have Medicaid benefits that they may qualify for in another state. It's a great idea to even the insurance playing field for those stuck in states that do not provide for their own citizenry.

Biden's proposal would lower prescription drug prices within Medicare. It would create an independent commission to oversee and regulate the price of drugs, present and new ones, and get rid of tax breaks given to pharmaceutical corporations on advertising.

Programs for the training of workers would happen to aid Americans suffering from opioid addictions first focusing on the thousands of addicted veterans.

Finally, Biden would seek the creation of a public health jobs corps, which would employ thousands of Americans as health care workers in medically underserved communities to work in and for disease prevention.

Most importantly, any pre-existing condition in all plans would be mandatory.

I urge anyone in Wisconsin who has had problems getting insurance and maintaining it, as well as businesses that offer plans to their employees that would lower total costs for their plans, to vote for Biden, building us back better.

Edward Johnson, Clintonville

If yard sign goes missing, put up two

To the editor:

I am sure that most Republicans respect my constitutional right to free speech. However, someone out there is so worried that Joe Biden is going to win that they have stolen the Biden sign on my front lawn. The sign was my personal property, and stealing it is a misdemeanor in the state of Wisconsin, punishable by law.

Here is my recommendation to anyone who has had a political sign stolen, no matter what party. If you have one sign stolen, put up two. If you have two signs stolen, put up four. Aim your deer cam at the signs so that you can catch the culprit next time they come.

Sue Franke, Shawano

Resident casting votes for Trump, Parker

To the editor:

I am voting for President Donald Trump because he promised to nominate conservative judges to the courts. He has done that. Trump promised to negotiate a new agreement to replace the North American Free Trade Agreement, and he did that with Mexico and Canada. Trump promised to reduce taxes, and he reduced my taxes. Trump makes promises, and he keeps his promises.

I am voting for District Attorney Greg Parker. Parker promised to be tough on crime, and he has been tough on crime.

OBITUARIES

Robert (Bob) John Grignon, 74, of De Pere, died in the early morning of Oct. 14, 2020, in the loving arms of his wife. Bob was born on New Year's Day 1946 to the late Jerome and Sunday (Tourtillott) Grignon in Shawano. He grew up on the Menominee Reservation in Neopit with his many siblings, family, and friends.

In 1970, Bob married Mary Pat Kroner who preceded him in death on June 20, 1995. A blind date on July 5, 1996, led to Bob marrying Arleen (Van Lanen/Koenig) Grignon on Jan. 2, 1999. Combining their two families made for wonderful, not to mention noisy, family get-togethers and holidays. Bob loved every second of it.

Bob furthered his education at St. Norbert College at which time he joined ROTC and continued as first lieutenant MP with the Army Reserve being honorably discharged after eight years. Bob enjoyed his 31-plus year career working for IBM, retiring in 2002 with the title of large systems network specialist. Though most of us never understood what he did, his numerous awards and a scholarship to St. Norbert College where he made many lifelong friends. Bob was also quarterback at Shawano High School, played baseball in several leagues and, in retirement, became a certified golf instructor at Hilly Haven Golf Course for 13 years. Bob was honored to become a three-sport inductee into the Shawano High School Hall of Fame in 1999.

Bob was also a natural born mentor and teacher. Whether it was through volunteering at schools teaching math and educating youth about engineering, through his work at IBM, as a golf instructor or gently guiding his grandchildren, he made it fun to learn, giving positive feedback and always with a smile and a story.

Bob's greatest teachings took place after he suffered a severe stroke nearly four years ago. His commendations confirmed that he was great at it.

Bob's athleticism became apparent playing basketball in third grade. Years later, this skill resulted in wit and positive attitude served him well through this most difficult of recoveries. Our children and grandchildren will always have memories of him pushing forward against the odds using his faith and love for all of us as his motivation.

Bob loved his family very much, and we certainly loved him.

Dr. Petty remembered as supporter of colleagues

Former Shawano physician seen as calming presence

By CAROL RYCZEK
Editor-in-chief

In the sometimes tumultuous world of medicine, Dr. David Petty was both a voice, and a presence, of calm, even in stressful situations. Petty's former co-workers and family described him this way.

Petty, 85, died Oct. 8.

"He was an excellent physi-cian," said Dr. Kathy Qualheim, who recently retired as regional medical director for ThedaCare.

Qualheim worked with him when she started in Shawano in the early 1990s. He practiced medicine in for 29 years, as a member of the medical staff of the Cantwell Peterson Clinic described him as very skilled in sur-gery, with a commitment to keeping up with latest techniques.

But what stood out was how much he valued helping the professionals around him, she said.

"He was generous with teaching younger folks," Qualheim said. "He was always really supporting of ev-eryone else in health care, and happy to teach," she said.

"He taught me how to use a and what was then Shawano Community Hos-pital, now The-daCare Medical Center-Shawano. At that time, family practice doctors did a lot of surgery, she said. She

'Mighty Vac,'" she said, referring to what was then a new suction tech-nique for delivering babies. The technique is still used today, she said.

Obstetrics was an important part of his practice, she said.

"He delivered a lot a kids in this community," Qualheim said.

Karin Petty, who met and married Dr. Petty while he was practicing in Shawano, said she was drawn to "his whole personality."

"He cared so much for other people," Karin Petty said. "He helped me go on to RN school, and helped other associates at the clinic go on to school."

Petty attended Carroll College in Waukesha, and then the University of Illinois Medical School in Chicago. He was a member of the American Medical Association. David practiced medicine in Woodstock, Illinois, for five years and spent two years in the U.S. Army as a major.

David retired in 1998 and moved to Smithville, Tennessee. In retire-ment, he spent time rescuing neglect-ed animals. Karin Petty noted that he had attended veterinary school for a year before deciding that he would rather use his skills for people.

She added that the commitment to medicine has been passed along to the the next generation. One Petty's children is a physician, another a pharmacist and another is a regis-tered nurse.

"They followed in his footsteps," she said.

David is survived by his wife, Karin; children, Dave, Drs. Elizabeth Petty (Karen Milner), Sarah (Martin) Deluca, Trinitie (Jeff) Wilke and Travis (Christa) Johnson; and 10 grandchildren.

MARY FELZKOWSKI

FOR STATE SENATE

As a lifelong resident of Northern Wisconsin, I understand the challenges that face our communities. I'm a mother, grandmother, two-time cancer survivor, small business owner, and citizen legislator.

During my time as a State Representative, we've invested more than $50 million in broadband expansion, increased access to healthcare in Northern Wisconsin, put more money into our rural schools, and saw local unemployment rates as low as 2.1% – all while protecting your rights and cutting your taxes.

I share your values, I know your struggles, and most importantly - I want to make sure our kids, grandkids, and future generations have the same opportunities that we had growing up - right here in Northern Wisconsin.

I'm Mary Czaja-Felzkowski and I hope to earn your vote for the Wisconsin State Senate on November 3rd!

Candidates for 30th Senate District seat sound off

Hansen, Wimberger both have some political experience

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

The nephew of a longtime state senator and the man who lost a narrow decision to that senator four years ago are on the ballot in the 30th Senate District this fall.

State Sen. Dave Hansen announced last year that his fifth term in office would be his last. Hansen is retiring.

JONATHAN HANSEN

Jonathon Hansen, 31, a banker and legislative aide in Madison and was his uncle's campaign manager in 2016.

ERIC WIMBERGER

Wimberger, 41, is a Green Bay attorney who grew up in De Pere, graduating from St. Cloud State University and the Marquette University Law School. He earned 48.7% of the vote against Dave Hansen in 2016.

What core philosophy of politics and government do you plan to bring to the decisions you make in the Legislature?

Hansen: As an alderman, I have observed that local government is focused on nonpartisan, pragmatic solutions to address the needs and concerns of the community. If elected, I plan to bring this same practical and sensible approach to Madison. Many of the most pressing issues we face can, and should, be addressed in non-partisan ways.

Wimberger: I recognize natural rights and that rights do not originate from government. We voluntarily turn over rights to government, agreeing together with a Constitution for administrative and organizational reasons. The relationship between government and the individual must be understood in that context of limited government powers in order to preserve liberty. Government action means taking property through taxes, and freedom through regulation. Since almost half of people disagree with nearly everything, imposing taxes and regulation should be something done to address serious problems, and not done to impose life preferences.

What are your thoughts about how the legislature has addressed the coronavirus pandemic?

Hansen: The legislature should provide consistent statewide standards, rather than forcing local governments to fill the void. We should also create a statewide plan that includes mobile testing sites, and work to facilitate the production of PPE manufactured right here in Wisconsin. The legislature should provide additional relief to small businesses and hospitals, work to clear the unemployment claims backlog by finally giving DWD the resources they need to upgrade the IT system and hire additional staff, and pass the Healthcare Heroes Act, which would provide paid sick leave, hazard pay, and full health insurance coverage for all medical workers.

Wimberger: The emergency powers statute was designed for 60-day extraordinary executive power to address emergencies when the legislature was out of session. In that time, the governor is supposed to propose something to the legislature. Since acts originating in the legislature take hearings, simply asking for nonspecific COVID-19 legislation in special session is not feasible.

The governor had $1.8 billion in the federal CARES Act to spend at his discretion. About $200 million remains unobligated. He's not out of funding, and he's ordered what he thinks will address COVID-19. However, in the next session the legislature should consider limited liabilities for businesses that abide by health guidelines to support longer term economic and public health.

What should the legislature be doing to provide and broaden access to health care and health insurance?

Hansen: First, we must accept the federal funds for the Medicaid Expansion. Since 2014, we have allowed more than $1 billion in our federal tax dollars to be used to improve the health care systems in other states. I also support creating a BadgerCare public option insurance plan, which residents could buy into if they do not have adequate or affordable insurance through their employer. This will allow residents to keep their existing private insurance, while ensuring more residents have access to affordable health care coverage.

Wimberger: Republican legislatures in the past made significant positive changes for health care accessibility and affordability. Wisconsinites earning below poverty rates have 100% of their medical expenses paid through BadgerCare. Pro-rated subsidies for earners above the poverty line make ACA plans extremely cheap. In Brown County, those making slightly more than the poverty line pay 17-cent-per-month premiums and a $5 copay. Subsidies diminish as income increases. Going forward, requiring price transparency will help reduce out of pocket expenses. I will work toward innovative ways to lower healthcare costs that don't mean budget busting tax and spend programs.

What other issues do you feel are at stake in this election?

Hansen: The legislative district maps are being redrawn this year, and unlike my opponent, I strongly support creating a process for nonpartisan redistricting. We need fair maps that are drawn without regard to partisan advantage, and which make geographical sense. Politicians should not be able to draw themselves into safe seats. They should be held accountable, and ending gerrymandering will help restore moderation and bipartisanship to Madison. We also need to clean up the PFAS contamination in Marinette County, hold the polluter (Johnson Controls/Tyco) accountable for their actions, and ensure all residents have access to clean drinking water.

Wimberger: Marinette has issues with PFAS contamination. There are actually two sources, Tyco facility runoff and Marinette wastewater treatment sludge spread onto farmland as fertilizer. There are failings in both the private sector and public sector. Scientific analysis using the UW system can assist the injured understand if their medical conditions are PFAS related and where liabilities should be assigned.

Achieving Green Bay Fox River coal pile cleanup and relocation will be another goal. Transitioning from industrial to business and residential development on the riverfront will be significantly beneficial. Further south, finally constructing a southern bridge in De Pere is a priority.

Tauchen, Sarnwick face off in Assembly race

Richard Sarnwick is a board certified family physician, recently retired in January. He served in the Shawano area for about 35 years and has a special interest in treating opioid addiction and still works in a substance abuse clinic in Green Bay. During and after the Vietnam War, he served in the Naval Air Reserves for six years. He worked to found the Shawano Farmers Market with the help of the community. Sarnwick and his wife, Gail, live in the Red River area with their two dogs. They have three children in Wisconsin and two grandchildren.

RICHARD SARNWICK

Gary Tauchen represents the 6th Assembly District in the Wisconsin

GARY TAUCHEN

State Assembly. He serves as chairman of the Assembly Agriculture Committee and additionally serves on the following committees: State Affairs, Energy and Utilities, Family Law, International Affairs and Commerce and Tourism. He is part owner of a family dairy, Tauchen Harmony Valley, Inc.

Why are you running?

Sarnwick: I am running for State Assembly District 6 because I could not simply sit around and complain about our state legislature and their inability to move our state forward anymore. Our state legislature has an agenda to stall any progressive ideas or thoughts. This had caused a deterioration of our environment, which was once pristine. Now, our legislature promotes business over environmental concerns. This affects our land, and our water, and our health.

Tauchen: I truly believe the most effective government policy is based on common sense, expands opportunities for people and leads to a better quality of life for all of us. That's why I'm running for office.

Why should voters choose you over your opponent?

Sarnwick: Voters need to make a choice. Elect Gary Tauchen, who is the chairperson of the agriculture committee, and only has big business in mind, especially big agribusiness, or elect me. I am not a political insider. I have never held elected office. I have no special interest in mind. I am interested in promoting clean air, clean land use and clean water. I am interested in having a healthy and clean Wisconsin, not a Wisconsin polluted by business interests and environmental disasters.

Tauchen: I admire anyone who steps forward to become involved in the political process in order to improve the quality of life of Wisconsin citizens. My experiences as a business owner, community leader and legislator have seasoned me to provide strong representation for our district in the Wisconsin Legislature.

Is the state legislature taking the coronavirus pandemic seriously enough? What is it doing, or what could it be doing to address the pandemic and the economic fallout here?

Sarnwick: In regards to the coronavirus, our state is obviously doing poorly. Efforts to strike down the virus have been met with opposition by our sheriff and by the state legislature. We need our legislature to help eliminate this crisis, not encourage the crisis, because of business concerns. Business will not recover unless we meet this threat with strict measures. We need mandatory mask use with fines for folks who are selfish and who refuse to wear a mask (except for documented medical reasons), and a sheriff to enforce these rules. Otherwise, our state will continue to suffer the consequences.

Tauchen: The coronavirus pandemic is a worldwide concern. The state legislature takes it seriously and is focused on managing the curve and assuring hospital capacity. We are especially concerned with the Evers administration's fallout dealing with long wait times for unemployment claims and putting so many businesses in crisis.

What is the state doing, or what could it be doing, to provide and broaden access to health care and health insurance?

Sarnwick: As far as health care coverage is concerned, the answer is simple, and has been simple, for years. We need universal health insurance for all U.S. citizens. We have been messing around with terrible health insurance for years and years. The only people who currently like our health care is the insurance industry. The U.S. is the only advanced economy in the world without universal health insurance. Buck up. Get it done. I am not advocating Obamacare. I am advocating total universal health insurance.

Tauchen: Health care is important. When people feel good, life is good. Wisconsin is consistently near the top in health care quality and critical access hospitals. I'm a huge supporter of front-end programs dealing with wellness and prevention programs, population health and direct primary care. I'm hoping to expand the dental pilot project. Early in my legislative career, we expanded Badger Care and have HIRSP, which is a high-risk pool available to Wisconsin citizens.

What have residents of the 6th Assembly District gained over the last two years from a Gary Tauchen incumbency, or what could they gain if Richard Sarnwick is elected?

Sarnwick: Other issues which are important to people in and around Shawano include access to internet, for families who are having financial difficulties. I would like to legislate subsidies to low-income families so that they could achieve access to the internet. Not having access puts families and children at risk of falling further and further behind.

Tauchen: I am currently chairman of the Assembly Agriculture Committee. Agriculture is the largest economic driver in the state. As chairman, I am instrumental in crafting policy beneficial to Wisconsin agriculture and the environment. Other priorities include a balance budget, transportation, jobs and economic development, education and other priorities where I have crucial experience.

What other issues do you feel are at stake in this election?

Sarnwick: I would advocate for term limits for our state Assembly and for state Senate. One term should be good for both houses. For state Assembly, I think a term of five years would be good. For state Senate, one might consider a term of 10 years. Other states have term limits for their state house. We can and should, too. This would get rid of the deadwood floating around in Madison.

Tauchen: As a Republican, I support smaller government, individual freedom, a balanced budget where we live within our means and cutting spending and taxes. Prior to COVID-19, our unemployment rate was 3%. The governor's stay-at-home order and the DHS orders put many businesses in crisis and ballooned our unemployment rate.

Incumbent Gallagher faces Stuck for Congress

Eighth District seat up for election

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

Mike Gallagher is a husband, father and seventh generation Green Bay native. He is a member of the House Armed Services Committee, the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee, the chairman of the Cyberspace Solarium Commission, and the only Wisconsinite on the House China Task Force. Prior to Congress, he spent seven years in the Marines, earning the rank of captain. He served as a counterintelligence officer in the Middle East and North Africa, deploying twice to Iraq. He served as the lead staff member for Middle East and counterterrorism issues on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee then worked as a senior global market strategist at Breakthrough Fuel. He was first elected to Congress in 2016 and serves on the Armed Services Committee, the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee, and is the chairman of the Cyberspace Solarium Commission. He and his wife, Anne, reside in Green Bay with their baby daughter, Grace.

Amanda Stuck, currently a member of the Wisconsin State Assembly, is a lifelong resident of Appleton. She worked her way through college at the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh by serving in AmeriCorps at Habitat for Humanity and the Red Cross, and as a rural mail carrier. Stuck earned her Master's in Public Administration from UW-Oshkosh and worked for former Congressman Steve Kagen and the Appleton Housing Authority. Stuck is an active volunteer in the Fox Cities and involved in many organizations including, serving on the Board of the Fox Cities Community Council, the United Way 211 Advisory Committee, CESA 6 Women Leading Wisconsin Committee, the Menasha Rotary, the Kaleidoscope Academy governance board, and in her children's schools. She also serves on Outagamie County's Local Emergency Planning Committee. In addition, Stuck helped to found and co-chairs Wisconsin's Future Caucus, a bi-partisan group of young state legislators. Stuck and her husband have four children.

Why are you running?

Gallagher: Americans have a proud history of coming together in times of crisis, but right now, we seem more interested in tearing each other apart. I'm running to fix that. I will continue to put principles above partisanship and fix our largest problems the Northeast Wisconsin way — through humble, hard work.

Stuck: I received a letter last year from a constituent named Len. He has written to me as his state representative and Mike Gallagher as his congressman about his wife's breast cancer. He had written about how his insurance is very expensive and if the Affordable Care Act goes away. When I called him back, he said he had never heard back from Mike Gallagher. It is unacceptable for a representative to not respond to a constituent, and people deserve better than a congressman who will only listen if they can afford a lobbyist to buy their congressman's attention.

Why should voters choose you over your opponent?

Gallagher: I'm not in Congress to bash opponents or blame another political party. I'm in Congress to deliver results. I'm fighting for solutions that come from the bottom-up, not the top-down. I will fight to bring manufacturing jobs back home, fix our health care system, drain the swamp and strengthen America's standing abroad.

Stuck: They should choose me because I know what it is to work for a living. I have worked multiple jobs my entire life. I have been the single mom working two jobs going to school full time, exhausted and wondering if it will ever get better. I am the wife of a sheet metal journeyman who knows what it is like to worry about how we will pay the mortgage when work gets slow in the shop. We need representatives that know working people don't have time for political games.

Is the federal government taking the coronavirus pandemic seriously enough? What is it doing to address the pandemic and the economic fallout here?

Gallagher: Congress must continue to take unprecedented action to help Americans get through this crisis. For example, there's $138 billion sitting idle in the Paycheck Protection Program instead of helping small businesses. Congress should immediately reconvene, extend this program, and pass more relief that provides businesses and schools with liability protections and surges support to frontline workers.

Stuck: The federal government has not been taking this seriously, they have been playing political games while people and businesses suffer. They have not been following the science and doctors advice on how to beat this. They did not have the staff in place to prepare for this and did not act when they were informed this was coming. Mike Gallagher has been at mass gatherings unmasked and touching people and filming himself complaining about not being able to run on his favorite running trail while people suffer because of his lack of leadership and supporting the Trump administration in saying they will not pass another package to help constituents.

What is the government doing, or what could it be doing, to provide and broaden access to health care and health insurance?

Gallagher: I'm fighting for bipartisan solutions that would protect our most vulnerable, particularly those with pre-existing conditions. It's time we put power into the hands of patients, improve our telehealth capabilities, and bring the manufacturing of basic medical supplies back to Wisconsin so that we are never again dependent on a foreign adversary in a time of crisis.

Stuck: We should be making sure every resident has access to health care. As a young mother, I had the experience of calling through the entire phone book and having every dentist tell me they would not take my son who had a toothache. No one should experience watching someone you love suffer because they don't have insurance or good enough insurance.

What have residents of the 8th Congressional District gained over the last two years from a Mike Gallagher incumbency, or what could they gain if Amanda Stuck is elected?

Gallagher: I treat my time in office as a deployment, not a career. The mindset has allowed me to deliver results with urgency, like securing 5,000 jobs at Marinette Marine and creating a program for veterans returning back to civilian life. If re-elected, I will ensure northeast Wisconsin remains the best place to live, work, and raise a family.

Stuck: Residents would gain someone who knows what they face everyday. They would gain a representative who has won national awards for their bipartisan work and who is committed to being here in the district. They would also make history by electing the first woman to ever hold this seat.

What other issues do you feel are at stake in this election?

Gallagher: This election has forced Americans to decide if they still believe in our most basic, founding principles and if America truly is a force for good. Wisconsinites are rightly concerned with attacks on personal property, the rule of law and law enforcement. I'm fighting for our values and to ensure we pass this exceptional inheritance along to future generations.

Stuck: Democracy is at stake. Mike Gallagher has voted against fair maps, getting big money out of politics, and transparency in government.

12th Senate District candidates share their views

Two vie for north woods seat formerly held by Tom Tiffany

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

Democrat Ed Vocke and Republican state Rep. Mary Felzkowski are on the ballot for the currently vacant 12th District seat in the Wisconsin Senate. Former Sen. Tom Tiffany went to Congress earlier this year in a special election to succeed former U.S. Rep. Sean Duffy.

Felzkowski, 57, lives in Irma and is married with five children. A graduate of the University of Wisconsin-River Falls, she is completing her fourth two-year term in the state Assembly.

Vocke, 35, is from Minocqua and serves as a restaurant consultant and small family farmer. He is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

The 12th District includes parts of Menominee, Oconto and Shawano counties.

What core philosophy of politics and government do you bring (or plan to bring) to the decisions you make in the legislature?

Felzkowski: As a citizen legislator in the State Assembly, my philosophy has never changed — bring the voice of northern Wisconsin to Madison. Like many of you, I was extremely blessed to be born and raised in the northwoods. We teach our children the value of hard work and the joys of outdoor recreation. We treat our friends and neighbors like family and come together as a community when times are tough. We rely more on each other and less on the government. This is the philosophy I took to Madison in my first term, and it's never changed and never will.

Vocke: Ultimately, I believe in the will of the people and I believe our state government and its representatives should be listening to and reacting to the needs and conditions of people's lives. My decisions as senator are going to be directed by listening to constituents and reacting to their needs. I believe in democracy, and I believe that this is its original purpose. I want to end the bipartisan gridlock, and as an independent thinker, I can speak with both sides of the political aisle, and facilitate the hard conversations that need to happen in order to move our state forward.

What are your thoughts about how the legislature has addressed the coronavirus pandemic?

Felzkowski: When we passed the COVID-19 relief package this spring, we built in flexibilities for the administration and Department of Health Services so that they could respond to new developments in a timely manner. The administration is empowered to work with our counties to distribute PPE, do testing, and do contact tracing, among other public safety measures. My staff and I work closely every day with our local schools, health departments, hospitals, nursing homes, and clinics to make sure they have what they need and our region is prepared. Additionally, we're helping the countless constituents who are still waiting to receive their unemployment benefits.

MARY FELZKOWSKI

Vocke: I do not believe that the legislature has addressed the pandemic. There has been a complete lack of leadership to put protections and financial backstops in place for our people and small businesses. It's been 180 days since the Legislature has met. They've not only freeloarded on taxpayer money; they've actually spent over $2 million taxpayer dollars bringing forward lawsuits. Our state legislature is the only legislature in the country that is in direct control of the pandemic response, and instead of acting, they have spent our money trying to get judges to do their job for them.

What should the Legislature be doing to provide and broaden access to health care and health insurance?

Felzkowski: In Wisconsin, we don't have a healthcare coverage gap. Anyone who wants health insurance is either covered by Medicare or Badgercare (Medicaid), has insurance subsidized on the federal marketplace, or has employer-sponsored health care. Our Medicaid program provides every benefit available in addition to what is required for all states, and Wisconsin is in a much better position than many others. We need to focus on health care access initiatives like telehealth, which allows our aging population to see their doctors over the phone or computer and allow our local providers to confer with health care experts around the world.

Vocke: Wisconsin is one of only a handful of states in the nation that at this point has not taken the Medicaid expansion from the federal government. These have been dollars on the table that with a simple vote in the affirmative would expand healthcare coverage to 89,000 more Wisconsinites and save our state budget $324 million this year alone. That's money we could free up for our public schools, roads or small businesses. Since 2014, the Republican-led legislature has declined over $1.6 billion in federal money. Somehow being "fiscally conservative" now means paying more to insure less people. As state senator, I will be voting in favor of Medicaid expansion.

What other issues do you feel are at stake in this election?

Felzkowski: Now, more than ever, our personal freedoms are at stake. Northern Wisconsin is nothing like Madison and Milwaukee — and unfortunately, those are the only areas of the state Gov. Evers focuses on. If you care about the right to life, your rights to private property and to bear arms, the freedom of speech and religion, and our northern Wisconsin way of life, this election should be a simple choice. Your decision on Nov. 3 has the potential to change the outcome of our state — make sure you get out and vote.

Vocke: Our clean water is at stake, and it's on the ballot in northern Wisconsin with my state Senate race. The Wolf River is vulnerable to multinational mining interests because our state legislature under Walker stripped out the "prove it first provision" that was in place to put the stops to mining interests pursuing high impact sulfide mining in our region. Sulfide mining is the most intensive and dangerous type of mining according to the EPA, and it puts our sportsmen, our tourist industry, and our family's drinking water at risk if it moves forward. I have worked hard during this election season to be vocal about putting the "prove it first provision" back in place, and it's a high priority as your state senator.

89th Assembly District candidates speak their piece

Marinette County Board supervisor challenges Nygren

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

A Marinette County Board supervisor is challenging a seven-term incumbent in this year's 89th Assembly District race.

KARL JAEGER

JOHN NYGREN

John Nygren, 56, is a Marinette High School graduate who attended the University of Wisconsin-Marinette and has represented the 89th Assembly District since 2007. He is a current co-chair of the legislature's Joint Committee on Finance.

The 89th Assembly District is comprised of parts of Brown, Oconto and Marinette counties.

What core philosophy of politics and government do you bring (or plan to bring) to the decisions you make in the Legislature?

Jaeger: I'm not a professional politician — I'm a working dad and I'm running for this office to improve the lives of my neighbors. We have seen the consequences of big business representing us in Madison, and it's time for the people of Wisconsin to have their voices heard. We all want to live in a place where we have a clean environment, affordable healthcare, great schools, and good jobs. Personally, I want to live in a place my children will want to stay and raise their own families. I will put people first and represent the citizens of Wisconsin. I will be accountable to the people who elected me.

Nygren: There is more that unites than divides us. I enjoy working with Republicans and Democrats because political affiliation should not stop good ideas from becoming law. When we work together, we can do great things for our community and state. I was born and raised in northeast Wisconsin and my wife and I chose to raise our family here. I value listening to my neighbors in northeast Wisconsin and take those values with me to Madison.

What are your thoughts about how the legislature has addressed the coronavirus pandemic?

Jaeger: They haven't met in over six months. Instead, they've threatened once to meet simply to overturn a public health order. The basic function of our state government is to protect our citizens' health and safety. They've filed more lawsuits this year than they have passed bills to help Wisconsin workers, families, farmers, and small businesses during this pandemic. We deserve representatives who show up to work. They should be dealing with this pandemic on a state level, not leaving it up to local governments. They should immediately pass the Healthcare Heroes Act. When elected, I will show up to work.

Nygren: President Trump has often said the response to COVID-19 is locally driven with support from the state and federal governments. I worked with Gov. Evers and my colleagues to pass legislation giving Gov. Evers the flexibilities he requested to respond to the pandemic. We also utilized federal resources to improve the availability of PPE and ventilators. I voted for additional funding for schools and child care centers to ensure workers are protected and parents can return to work knowing their children are cared for. The state should continue to support local health departments to control COVID-19.

What should the Legislature be doing to provide and broaden access to health care and health insurance?

Jaeger: Every Wisconsin resident should have access to high-quality, affordable health care when they need it. Our legislature hasn't met in over six months — in that time thousands of people in our communities have gotten sick, lost their jobs, lost their health care, and struggled to support their families. Expanding BadgerCare would insure thousands of people who have lost their employer-based healthcare due to COVID-19, as well as save the State over $180 million per year — money that could be invested in helping schools and businesses in this pandemic. When in office, I will fight to protect and expand health care coverage.

Nygren: Even though Wisconsin is consistently ranked as one of the top states in the country in terms of quality of healthcare, healthcare was a big focus of the last state budget and the last legislative session. The first bill I voted for in 2019 was a bill to provide coverage and protection for individuals with pre-existing conditions. The budget invested over $1.4 billion in healthcare in Wisconsin. We increased pay for healthcare workers, increased funding for hospitals, and provided funds to help lower the cost of health insurance. Together, these actions will lower healthcare costs.

What other issues do you feel are at stake in this election?

Jaeger: Clean water — specifically our existing PFAS contamination and the threat of sulfide mining in northern Wisconsin. My opponent opposed the CLEAR Act and also voted to repeal our "Prove it First" sulfide mining safety law. Dealing with PFAS contamination needs to be a top priority. I strongly support the CLEAR Act, which would direct the DNR to set health advisory levels for PFAS in our water; expand the number of PFAS compounds regulated by the state; and give the DNR additional resources. I will also support legislation to reinstate stronger environmental protections for metallic sulfide mining. We also need to address the unemployment backlog, which is exacerbated by inadequate staffing and antiquated, decades-old computer systems.

Nygren: I hear a lot about investing in worker training and education, keeping taxes low, and expanding the availability of affordable housing. This session, I delivered on all of these items. Funding for schools increased for the fourth consecutive budget (over $500 million) and we invested in worker training programs. We stopped Gov. Evers' push to raise taxes by over $1 billion and cut income taxes by over $300 million. Wisconsin's tax burden is the lowest it has been in 50 years. Finally, I worked to create a rural workforce housing program to expand access to affordable housing in rural communities.

Shawano to stay in virtual learning into November

Superintendent hopes to have students back in school after Thanksgiving

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Shawano School District students will have to deal with all-virtual learning for at least another month, according to a letter released by the district Tuesday.

The letter, written by Superintendent Randi Anderson, was sent to parents informing them that the schools would not be back in session until at least Nov. 20. Anderson wrote the decision was reached due to the health and safety of the students, employees and community.

The school district first went into virtual learning on Sept. 23 for two weeks after cases in Shawano County started spiking, and then a decision was reached to continue the virtual learning for an additional two weeks. The district was planning to return to in-person learning next week when the latest announcement came out.

COVID-19 Journal

The full month in virtual learning came at the request of school staff members, according to Anderson.

"It's just consistency for our staff and for our families," Anderson said in a phone interview late Tuesday afternoon. "This helps them plan out for a little bit longer as we look at the (coronavirus) numbers and look at the forecasted numbers, we're just not in a good situation."

Anderson noted that Nov. 20 is the last day of school before the district's week-long break for Thanksgiving, so she is hopeful that the district will return to in-person learning on Nov. 30.

"Obviously, if the numbers come back down, and we have the ability to come back in, we'll come back in," Anderson said.

To help families already struggling with utilizing technology in an area where internet infrastructure is limited, the district is taking several additional steps to help keep students on track. According to Anderson, the schools are bringing in students in small groups to help those who are falling behind. The pupil services and special education departments are working with individual students to help.

There are also internet cafes, where teachers and administrators are helping families with internet issues, and the technology department is holding one-on-one scheduled sessions to try and sort out any technology issues, according to Anderson.

"Some of our students are having difficulty with broadband or Wi-Fi access at their homes, so we've communicated out since we went into the virtual environment that they need to reach to their teacher and their building principal," Anderson said about the internet cafes. "We have morning and afternoon slots, not for students to get instructed but to be able to come in and participate in school in a virtual environment and using our Wi-Fi access."

Anderson said she hopes the district will be able to return to in-person learning once Thanksgiving is over, but that will depend greatly on the community.

"People need to physically distance, wash their hands and wear their face coverings so that we can get our students back in," Anderson said. "We need help from our community."

Crush COVID-19, task force urges tribal community

If you can pick one thing to change for the next week, go one week without entering anyone's home that is not your own. That request is part of an urgent appeal from Dr. Amy Slagle, Menominee Tribal Clinic COVID-19 response team incident commander.

Menominee County recently had one of the highest burden rates of COVID-19 in the state, she said.

Burden, also defined as case rate, is the total number of cases a county or region has per 100,000 Wisconsin residents in the past two weeks.

As of Oct. 19, Menominee County had 248 cases with no deaths. Shawano County reported 2,057 cases with 15 deaths, according to the Menominee-Shawano Counties Department of Health.

The tribal clinic task force has released an urgent message asking Menominee County residents to help stop the spread of the disease, saying the community must crush the CO-VID-19 surge.

In the statement to tribal members, Slagle noted:

"We are at a critical point. A vaccine is months away. Wisconsin had an all-time high number of deaths yesterday. Hospitals have nowhere to put people," she said.

That means:

- There is very serious community spread of disease.

- Assume everyone you meet has COVID-19. That is the way people must all behave and make choices.

- Two-month-old babies are infected.

- Elders are ill in the hospital.

- People are getting COVID-19 from sharing a ride without a mask, being in the same room with a positive person, eating near each other outside, working in the same room or going to visit a family member without masks.

- If you have to be admitted to the hospital, with COVID-19 or another ailment, you will likely get shipped to a hospital far away. When people hear "no hospital capacity," they turn off their brains and stop thinking about it. What it means is, there are no beds.

Slagle went on to outline the pathway of COVID-19, which is no infections to a few infections, followed by more infections, then many infections, to people sick enough to require hospitalizations to people dying from the disease. She said there are many sick people now and many people in the hospital. The next step in the progression is a fatal one, she said. "Please," Slagle said, "we don't want to lose a single person in this community."

She recommends taking the following action steps now:

- Do not ride in a car with anyone else without masks.
- Please do not visit your elders for the next week. Do not go there.
- Elders, do not let other family members in your home for the next week. You should assume they have COVID-19.

- Do not go in any store unless everyone is wearing a mask inside.

- Do not go in a bar or restaurant. Pick up curbside from the curb.

- Wear a mask everywhere you go.
- Stay away at least six feet from others.

- Wash hands, wash hands, wash hands.

- If you can pick one thing to change for the next week, go one week without entering anyone's home that is not your own.

Finally, Slagle urges everyone in the community to assess their actions, choices and beliefs.

"Change whatever you can to be safer to avoid infection — to keep the elders and other vulnerable people alive," she said. "Please spread the word and decide what changes you can make today."

Shawano city leaf collection starts, with bag limit waived during the period

Bring out your leaves.

City residents can now rake their loose leaves to the curbside on their normal scheduled garbage collection day, according to Shawano's Department of Public Works.

The DPW also stated the six-bag limit on yard waste per residence will be waived during this period.

Residents choosing to put yard waste in a plastic container must put a yellow "Shawano Yard Waste" sticker on the container clearly visible to the collection crew. The free stickers are available at the DPW office at 2905 E. Richmond St. and City Hall at 127 S. Sawyer St.

Residents need to rake leaves into windrows, rather than piles, along streets. Leaves, however, must not be placed in the street. The DPW warned this is a city ordinance violation and will plug storm sewers.

If access for the city vacuum is blocked by cars or other obstacles, those leaves will wait until the next collection day, according to the DPW.

Limbs and cuttings from trees and shrubs must be cut into four-foot lengths, be tied into bundles not more than two feet in diameter and placed at the curb. Residents should not put wood and brush in a container or garbage can.

Misinformation, the stories we choose to tell

Learning how to listen to stories can help to determine fact from fake

By CAROL RYCZEK
Editor-in-chief

We are the stories we tell.

Did George Washington chop down a cherry tree and then confess by proclaiming, “I cannot tell a lie”?

Perhaps Washington couldn’t lie, but his supporters could. One of Washington’s first biographers invented the story when, soon after Washington’s death, citizens of the new country hungered for more information about their first president — information that met their expectations.

Misinformation, it seems, is at least as old as America. So is the need to filter out what is credible and what is not.

The act of selecting which story to tell, which narrative to listen to, is what can help us cut through the clutter, explained Ryan Winn, a member of the liberal studies faculty at the College of Menominee Nation.

Whether we call them news stories, tweets or postings, the stories we share define us as a culture and as a country.

“All we are is stories,” he said. “They shape how we view our world.”

The first step in sorting out information is making choices about these stories, he said.

One tool we have is the awareness that the stories that make it to public consciousness have been selected — some by us, some by others. Winn called this “privileging” of stories.

Ryan Winn is a professor of English and theater at the College of Menominee Nation.

CAROL RYCZEK | NEW MEDIA

“The question is,” he said, “whose story gets privileged?”

“Consider the pandemic, arguably the most pressing issue of our time,” Winn said. “We should be privileging the stories of health care workers and scientists, because they have the credentials and data to support their claims. We should not give equal weight to objectively false proclamations from anyone, despite their position of power.”

Which narrative has the privilege of being listened to, believed and repeated?

“It comes back entirely to shared values,” Winn said. “COVID-19 is a threat to common values, because it threatens human lives and livelihoods. Right now, stories that protect life in particular should be what we choose to privilege.”

Another tool is listening to a diverse group of storytellers.

It is privileging that keeps the fake cherry tree story alive but neglects so many other stories.

For example, Winn said, this is the centennial year of the 19th Amendment. Native women were involved in the women’s suffrage movement which culminated with the ratification of the 19th Amendment in 1920, but Native people are often excluded from that story. Still, they, too, were vocal champions of gender equality.

Once we are aware of the many narratives out there, changing the way the we listen to stories is not too difficult, he said.

The good news, Winn said, is that we have the listening skills we need.

“If a leader is leading based upon flawed logic that threatens our shared values, and the virtue of their platform privileges their falsehoods in the news cycle, then we need to exercise our First Amendment rights as Americans and speak up, petition and peaceably assemble.”

We also need to filter out whether the way in which a message is delivered affects how we hear it. In the first presidential debate, President Donald Trump interrupted challenger Joe Biden 93 times. Biden interrupted 22 times. The message from the president, Winn said, is that his story is privileged and his opponent’s is not.

While the cherry tree story may be harmless, Winn noted that some fake stories aren’t.

“The truth is that the best way to get a story privileged, is to vote for candidates who value what you value — which is hopefully an American future that’s protective of the lives, liberties and stories of all of its citizens,” Winn said.

Green Bay believes it will bounce back quickly

Execution in practice a focal point

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The Green Bay Packers strong start to the regular season came to a screeching halt on Sunday when the team was dismantled by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Quarterback Aaron Rodgers completed just 16 of his 35 passes, was picked off twice, got sacked four times and was hit several other times.

The Packers running tandem of Aaron Jones and Jamaal Williams was limited to 49 yards on 14 carries, with 25 of those yards coming on one carry.

Green Bay's defense surrendered over five yards a play, didn't record any sacks or takeaways and allowed touchdowns every time Tampa Bay reached the red zone.

When reflecting on what went wrong, the week of practice leading up to the contest was the most common response from Packer players and coach Matt LaFleur.

Practice "wasn't that great" according to Rodgers.

"I don't think we practiced our best this week and obviously didn't play our best tonight," said Rodgers after the game.

The quarterback said the offense felt out of rhythm all night, even when the team jumped out to a 10-0 lead.

He was critical of the team's energy getting out of the huddle and said the offense got to the line of scrimmage late in the play clock, which didn't leave much time to adjust to what the defense was showing.

LaFleur keyed in on the same things, saying he never got in a flow like he did during the first four games.

The coach got more specific about what went wrong in practice, saying the execution was lacking. Offensive lineman Billy Turner echoed the same thought.

"A bad practice can stem from a lot of different things. It's not always just one thing. It could be energy, it could be execution, it could be the offense, it could be the defense, it could be special teams," said Turner on Monday.

"I think it was just more so execution."

While fans and analysts might see a huge red flag after the Packers' performance on Sunday, the team didn't see things that way.

"This is, I believe, an anomaly, not the beginning of a trend," said Rodgers.

LaFleur said the entire team had to be "critical of themselves" and that it "can't allow one loss to become two."

The Green Bay Packers will look to bounce back this Sunday as they travel to Houston to take on the 1-5 Texans.

The record might suggest the opponent is headed in the wrong direction, but Houston earned its first win two weeks ago and followed that up by nearly taking down the undefeated Tennessee Titans this past weekend.

Houston's offense ranks near the middle of the league in terms of total yards per game and points per game. The Texans have been pretty one dimensional though, ranking third in passing yards per game but second to last in rushing yards per game — although trailing early in games has led to those results.

After facing Tampa Bay's top tier defense, things will get a bit easier for the Pack's offense against a weak Houston defense.

Houston's defense ranks in the bottom third in just about every statistic and is the league's worst team against the run, allowing 177.5 yards per game — meaning Aaron Jones, Jamaal Williams and the Packers running game could be in for a big bounce back performance.

In their loss to the Titans, the Texans allowed 263 rushing yards on 27 attempts for an eye-popping 9.7-yard average.

Tennessee also threw for 364 yards and four touchdowns, so the Packers passing attack is also primed for a big game.

Under LaFleur, the Packers have never lost back-to-back games. Green Bay will look to keep that trend going Sunday so they can keep pace with the Chicago Bears, who suddenly have a hold of first place in the NFC North.

Packers suffer first setback in lopsided loss to Buccaneers

Rodgers, Pack fade after fast start

By FRED GOODALL

The Associated Press

Tom Brady outplayed Aaron Rodgers in a rare meeting between the Super Bowl-winning quarterbacks and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers erased an early double-digit deficit to rout the previously unbeaten Green Bay Packers 38-10 on Sunday.

It was the 43-year-old Brady's first signature victory since signing with the Bucs (4-2) after a historic 20-year run with the New England Patriots.

He got his favorite target from his days with the Patriots into the mix, throwing a 12-yard touchdown pass to Rob Gronkowski for a 28-10 halftime lead. It was Gronkowski's first TD since December 2018 and the 79th for the quarterback/tight end tandem — tied for fourth on the all-time list with Miami's Dan Marino and Mark Clayton.

Brady also threw a 7-yard TD pass to rookie Tyler Johnson and Ronald Jones had a pair of rushing TDs for Tampa Bay, which got an even more impressive performance from its defense.

Rodgers threw two interceptions — Green Bay's first turnovers of the season — within a three-pass span of the second quarter to turn a 10-0 Packers lead into a 14-10 deficit.

Green Bay (4-1) never recovered.

Cornerback Jamel Dean broke on Rodgers' sideline throw intended for Davante Adams and returned the pick 32 yards to get the Bucs rolling. Safety Mike Edwards returned a second interception on a throw also intended for Adams 38 yards to the Green Bay 2 to set up Jones' rushing TD on the next play.

Rodgers finished 16 of 35 for 160 yards and no touchdowns after completing 70.5 percent of his passes and throwing for 13 TDs and no interceptions in Green Bay's first four games.

Brady was 17 of 27 for 166 yards and two TDs without an interception. Jones rushed for 113 yards and Gronkowski led the Bucs with five receptions for 78 yards.

It was just the third time the Super Bowl-winning quarterbacks have faced each other in their long successful careers.

Although both insisted it wasn't Brady vs. Rodgers, the friends expressed mutual admiration for one another's accomplishments while acknowledging it would be fun sharing the field with the Packers trying to remain unbeaten and the Bucs looking to gauge their progress against one of the NFL's top teams.

Brady noted how important it would be to minimize mistakes, something no quarterback had done better through the first five weeks of the season.

In addition to becoming the first team in NFL history to score at least 150 points and commit no turnovers through the first four games of a season, the Packers had only allowed three sacks before Sunday.

The Bucs had two interceptions and two of their four sacks by halftime.

Injuries

Packers LT David Bakhtiari left in the third quarter with a chest injury, leaving Green Bay to play the remainder of the game without its best offensive lineman.

S Darnell Savage (quad) missed a portion of the second half. CB Kevin King (quadriceps) and RB Tyler Ervin (wrist) were inactive.

PACKERS NOTEBOOK

By BILL HUBER
Correspondent

No big plays from defense

Last season's Green Bay Packers defense had its warts — run defense, first and foremost — but it finished ninth in the NFL with 19.6 points allowed per game and seventh with 25 takeaways.

This year's team still has the wart-covered run defense but has lost its big-play mojo.

Through six weeks of the season, the Packers are 20th with 27.8 points per game allowed and tied for last with merely three takeaways.

"We've got to make sure that we go back and re-evaluate and look at what we're trying to get done," coach Matt LaFleur said on Monday, a day after a resounding 38-10 loss at the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Really, Green Bay's defense was the least of the problems against the Bucs. Two Aaron Rodgers interceptions essentially accounted for 14 points and the Packers' offense never crossed midfield during the final three quarters. The defense actually wasn't awful. It allowed 5.1 yards per play, which was Tampa Bay's second-lowest output of the year.

The bigger problem for the Packers was the lack of big plays. That starts with takeaways, of which the Packers failed to collect one for a second consecutive week.

"We couldn't make that big play to change the momentum back around and they did," defensive tackle Kenny Clark said on Monday.

With two interceptions and three takeaways for the season, Green Bay is on pace to finish with 6.4 and 9.6 in those categories. Both would be the worst in franchise history. For context, the Packers never have finished a season with fewer than 15 takeaways.

The Packers aren't getting close enough often enough to make those game-changing plays. They enter week seven with a league-low 12 passes defended and are fifth-to-last with two forced fumbles. Moreover, the pass rush has disappeared. While Green Bay's pace of 38.4 sacks isn't far off last year's 41, its pressures count at Pro Football Focus is on track to dip from 304 to 170.

All of that hit home against the Buccaneers. When the Packers needed a big play to swing the momentum, the defense came up empty. They had zero sacks, zero takeaways, zero passes defended, one tackle for loss and four pressures.

"I think there's a lot of factors that play into things in terms just we've played from a lead in the previous games quite a bit and that definitely dictates some of the calls that you may make," LaFleur said of the season-long trend. "But, certainly, I'd like us to finish plays. I mean, we had two opportunities and potential picks in the game, and we've got to finish those plays. I think that's come up a few times in our previous four games. So, we've just got to make sure we do a good job finishing and getting the ball out. We've got three turnovers and that's not good enough.

"The recipe for winning football in this league is you've got to win the turnover battle, and we know that. We were minus-2 (against Tampa Bay) and they were two big-time turnovers that led to 14 points and it really swung the momentum of the game. I just think that we've got to look at some of things we're asking our guys to do and make the necessary adjustments. We've got to bounce back from this one because we're going to play a tough team this week in Houston."

Linebacker lament

Tampa Bay's defense dominated Sunday's game due in large part to the presence of inside linebackers Lavonte David and Devin White.

"Those two guys, they have can flat roll," LaFleur said. "They are two of the better linebackers in this league. They flat whipped us. There were a couple of the outside-zone plays where we were pretty much outleveraged, so our interior line had no chance to get to the second level. When they blitz, shoot, they brought it."

The Bucs have invested heavily at the position. David, a former second-round pick, is playing under the final season of a five-year, $50.5 million contract. White was the fifth pick of the 2019 draft.

That stands in stark contrast to Green Bay's inside linebacker situation. There have been 12 drafts since the Packers moved to a 3-4 scheme in 2009. They've used only one top-120 pick at the position — Oren Burks with pick No. 88 late in the third round in 2018. Against the Bucs, undrafted rookie Krys Barnes was the team's main player at the position. Barnes has shown signs of being a fine player but David and White are game-changing performers.

"Those guys are so fast," quarterback Aaron Rodgers said after the game. "They're so good sideline to sideline. We just had a hard time getting on them in some of our zone blocking schemes, just kind of outrunning some of the angles. It's a credit to them — not necessarily us not doing our job — (but) you just don't see two inside backers that can run like that a lot. You've got to give both those credit. I think they were disruptive, for sure."

White and David combined for 18 tackles, 2.5 sacks, five tackles for losses and four quarterback hits on Sunday.

For the entire season, Green Bay's inside linebackers — Barnes, injured free agent Christian Kirksey, Burks and former seventh-round pick Ty Summers have combined for zero sacks, two tackles for losses (both by Barnes), zero quarterback hits and zero turnover-producing plays.

When general manager Brian Gutekunst traded up from pick No. 30 to No. 26 for quarterback Jordan Love in April, he could have instead selected linebacker Patrick Queen. Queen was drafted by the Baltimore Ravens with pick No. 28. In six games, Queen has two forced fumbles and two fumble recoveries for four turnover plays. Over the last 37 games, every Packers inside linebacker combined has produced three turnover plays.

Practice made imperfect

After the game, Rodgers several times pointed to the team's poor week of practice as a reason for Sunday's poor performance.

"I think that we just need to take a good look at the way that sometimes our practice habits," Rodgers said. "We talk about how practice and preparation equals game reality. That's something that Matt's talked about since the first day he got here. And I don't think our week of practice was that great."

So, what does a poor week of practice look like?

"It just was a little sloppy," LaFleur said. "You can tell like, whether in the run game or the pass game, just assignment-wise, we were a little bit off. And also just whether it's route depths, timing in the pass game, in the run game, making sure that our combination blocks are on point. It wasn't clean — it wasn't clean at all — really in any of the three days.

"There were some things I think probably played into that in terms of asking a little bit too much of some guys. We had a bunch of different personnel package. But again, that's on us as coaches. That's not an excuse. That's just the reality and we've got to be better and we've got learn from our mistakes this week."

New coach

There's a new sheriff in town in Houston.

The Texans fired coach Bill O'Brien following an 0-4 start in which they were outscored by 46 points. In interim coach Romeo Crennel's debut, Houston beat Jacksonville 30-14. Last week, it took undefeated Tennessee to overtime before losing 42-36. So, while the Texans are 1-5, they are playing better in advance of Sunday's game against the Packers.

They're also playing more aggressively. Under O'Brien, the Texans were 2-of-4 in fourth down. In two games under Crennel, they're 4-for-4.

"When you go for it and you make it, that just gives them more confidence," Crennel said. "The thing is that sometimes if you go for it and you don't make it, then they begin to wonder why you went for it in the first place. That's the nature of this game that we're in. When you win, when you're successful, everybody feels good about it. When you lose and you're not successful on a play, then everybody feels usually bad about it."

KEYS TO THE GAME

By BILL HUBER
Correspondent

The Green Bay Packers (4-1) travel to take on the Houston Texans (1-5) at noon Sunday at NRG Stadium in Houston. FOX televises the game.

Coaches

Green Bay — Matt LaFleur, second season (17-4). Houston — Romeo Crennel, interim coach (1-1); 29-56 overall record, including four seasons with Cleveland Browns and one full season with Kansas City Chiefs.

History

Packers lead 3-1. In the last matchup, Green Bay won 21-13 at Lambeau Field on Dec. 4, 2016.

When the Packers have the ball

After a poor day for Aaron Rodgers and company at Tampa Bay, the Packers will have a chance to rebound against a Texans defense that ranks 26th in the NFL with 30.3 points allowed per game, 30th in total defense (423.0 yards per game) and 32nd against the run (177.5 yards per game and 5.43 yards per carry).

The run defense is a major concern for Crennel.

"We're trying to figure that out and we're meeting on that today," he told reporters in Houston on Monday. "During this week, we'll see if we can come up with a better plan than what we have. Maybe we have to cut back on some of the things that we're doing to keep the mental errors to a minimum. Then the physical part of it, I think we have guys who can play physical football. Sometimes we don't always do it. But we have to focus on those two areas and see what we can come up with."

Defensive end J.J. Watt, the former Wisconsin star, is the face of the franchise. He is tied for the team lead with three sacks. When he last played a full season in 2018, he had 16 sacks and seven forced fumbles. He is joined up front by Brandon Dunn and P.J. Hall.

Hall is a disruptor; he had seven tackles last week vs. Tennessee. Charles Omenihu enters on passing downs and is tied with Watt for a team-leading six quarterback hits. Rookie Ross Blacklock, who was considered a first-round option for the Packers, has four tackles in limited action.

Whitney Mercilus and Brennan Scarlett are the outside linebackers. Mercilus has three sacks after recording 7.5 sacks, four forced fumbles and two interceptions last season. Jacob Martin has two sacks off the bench.

Zach Cunningham and Tyrell Adams are the inside linebackers. Cunningham quietly is one of the better off-the-ball linebackers in the NFL. He's got a team-high 61 tackles and has added two sacks. Adams is playing for injured starter Benardrick McKinney.

Bradley Roby and Vernon Hargreaves are the corners, and Justin Reid and Eric Murray are the safeties. Roby has the team's only interception and leads the team with five passes defended. On passing downs, Reid moves into the slot and Lonnie Johnson is the third corner. Johnson gave Packers tight end Jace Sternberger a concussion during last year's joint practices. Reid is second on the team with 40 tackles and Murray has a forced fumble.

Roby figures to match up with Packers star Davante Adams.

"Roby's been pretty consistent as far as his coverage is concerned," Crennel said. "He's a good cover guy. We usually put him on what we consider to be the best receiver. He's done a decent job this year of shutting that guy down — or maybe not shutting him down, but they don't throw to that guy as much because he is competitive."

When the Texans have the ball

While Houston is only 21st with 24.3 points per game, the Texans will stress the Packers with quarterback Dashaun Watson. With 13 touchdowns vs. five interceptions, Watson is seventh with a 107.6 passer rating.

The offense revolves around Watson, with Houston ranking 24th with 3.99 yards per rush and 85.8 rushing yards per game but first with 8.42 yards per passing attempt and third with 282.2 passing yards per game.

An offseason trade took away Watson's best player, receiver DeAndre Hopkins. Watson has made it work.

Will Fuller has 27 catches for 455 yards and four touchdowns, Brandin Cooks has 27 receptions for 367 yards and two touchdowns and former Packers star Randall Cobb has 22 receptions for 277 yards and two more scores. Cobb, who averaged a career-best 15.1 yards per catch last year in Dallas, caught three passes for just 17 yards last week.

Tight ends Darren Fells (three) and Jordan Akins (one) have combined for four touchdowns.

"It says that we have guys who can make plays and are making plays, and that our quarterback sees that he has weapons around him that he can utilize," Crennel said of the overall production. "He's taking advantage of what the defense gives him and throwing to the open guy."

David Johnson, who was acquired in the Hopkins trade, has been decent with 350 rushing yards (4.0 average) and 12 receptions (9.9 average). He was an All-Pro in Arizona with 2,118 yards and 20 touchdowns from scrimmage in 2016 but hasn't been nearly the same player since that breakout second season. Watson is second on the team with 109 rushing yards and Duke Johnson is third with 55 yards (3.2 average).

Tunsil is a stud; he hasn't allowed a sack or quarterback hit. Of the six sacks charged to the line by Pro Football Focus, Fulton was responsible for four. Green Bay native Max Scharping played frequently at left guard the first three games but not since.

Special teams

Ka'imi Fairbairn is 10-of-11 on field goals, including 9-of-9 from inside of 50 yards. In his fourth NFL season, he's made 84.5 percent of his field-goal attempts for his career. Bryan Anger is averaging a robust 47.5 yards per punt. Only seven of his 21 punts have been returned, giving him a solid net average of 42.8.

DeAndre Carter handles both phases of returns, with an 8.5-yard average on punt returns and 20.9-yard average on kickoff returns.

Green Bay's return and coverage units have been feeble. On returns, it ranks 28th on punts (4.3 average) and 24th on kickoffs (19.4 average). For coverage, it ranks 22nd on punts (8.8 average) and 26th on kickoffs (25.3 average). The saving grace has been kicker Mason Crosby making all nine field-goal attempts.

Gresham School District approves tax levy

Tax rate goes up almost $1 as state aid drops

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Gresham School District homeowners can expect to see a little more taken out of their property taxes in the coming year as district residents in attendance voted Monday to approve over $1.9 million in tax levy funds.

The regular tax levy comes to $1,732,389, but there is also $175,000 in debt service to start paying back the $6.5 million borrowed to build the expansion on Gresham Community School, which is nearing the end of its second phase. Property owners will see their tax rate go from $13 to $13.99 per $1,000 of equalized valuation, which means the owner of a $100,000 home will see an additional $99 in local school taxes.

The total budget for the district comes to almost $4.4 million, but the district is seeing a drop in state aid, which comes to almost $1.6 million. It would have been more than that, but according to Superintendent Newell Haffner, the state took away $26,145 of that aid to apply to a charter school in Milwaukee.

"That's $26,000 that we should have had come our way, but because of Milwaukee's charter school program, we get that taken out of our budget right away, and it goes down there," Haffner said.

The district also lost another $38,716 in state aid because its student population continues to drop. Haffner said the third Friday student count, taken in September, showed Gresham had 12 fewer students than last year — a large chunk in a school district whose student population hovers around 300 from kindergarten through high school.

In the last three years, the district has lost $269,410 in state aid, according to Haffner.

"That's hard for a district our size to overcome," he said. "Plus, when you shift $26,145 to Milwaukee and you also have to pay another $24,900 to private schools, we've lost roughly $320,455 to things that we don't really control."

The district will also be getting more money for its food service program, Haffner said. Like the neighboring school district in Shawano, Gresham received approval from the federal government to continue providing free meals to all students, regardless of family income status, through June 2021. Therefore it is getting an additional $170,671.

"That's one of the things I've been most pleased about," Haffner said. "That'll help families who might be struggling a little bit."

The budget, which is to be approved by the Gresham School Board later this year, is balanced, according to Haffner.

"We run a pretty tight ship here," Haffner said.

ATHLETE PROFILE: JACK JOHNSON

Bonduel runner enjoying final cross-country season

The Bonduel High School cross-country teams have ended the past couple of seasons competing at the state meet. Jack Johnson has been a part of the last two state-qualifying boys teams and is enjoying a strong senior season.

In the final week of the regular season, Johnson placed 13th at the Central Wisconsin Conference Championships, which earned him second team all-conference honors.

In his two state appearances, Johnson has finished as the team's fourth-best finisher. He's often been the boys team top finisher this fall.

Q: When did your interest in cross-country begin?

A: I first joined cross-country my sophomore year. I always liked running just for fun, but I thought this would be a good way to compete against other runners.

Q: What is your favorite part about the cross-country season?

A: My favorite part about cross-country would probably be hanging out with all my friends on the team. I also enjoy going to the meets to compete against other runners and just hanging out with the other runners before the meets.

Q: What has cross-country taught you over the years?

A: In the last three years, cross-country has taught me a lot, and it has become more of a second family to me. It taught me that not everything is going to be the same and I can do good in one meet and the next meet one thing could go wrong and I could be at the back of the pack. I think one of the most important things cross-country has taught me by far is sportsmanship and meeting new people.

Q: Talk about what your senior season was like as your team dealt with the new guidelines because of the pandemic.

A: This year has definitely been different than others just because there aren't as many fans at all the races, and it just changes the intensity of the race. We've worked throughout quarantine and we are all doing our best to stay healthy for the season despite of everything that's happening.

Q: What's your favorite memory of competing on the Bonduel cross-country team?

A: My favorite memories of cross-country are competing at the state meet my sophomore and junior year and just how intense every moment of the meet is. Also, making second team all-conference last week and just being able to

AT A GLANCE

ATHLETE: Jack Johnson

SPORT: Cross-country

SCHOOL: Bonduel High School

hang out with my friends and teammates at the meets.

Q: What are you going to miss most about cross-country?

A: The biggest thing I'm going to miss from cross-country is going to be the team and all the friends I've made over the years. Also, I'm going to miss the competition in practice and meets.

Q: Favorite TV show, movie and musical artist?

A: TV show — "How I Met Your Mother." Movie — "Miracle." Musical artist — Hardy.

Q: Name one thing about yourself that not many people know.

A: Something about myself that not many people know is last year at our conference meet in Marion, I almost got ran over by a deer in the second mile and instead of slowing down I hurdled it. And after that I passed four people because I had so much adrenaline going.

Q: What's the greatest piece of advice you have ever been told?

A: The best advice I've been told is, "Stuff happens." You can't change what has already happened; you can only move on from it. You just have to trust that whatever happens, happens for a reason.

Q: What are some things you hope to accomplish after graduating high school?

A: After school, I hope to get a plumbing apprenticeship. Then to go to college for the apprenticeship.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL

Shawano overpowers Marinette for third win

Elliott Lowney accounts for 3 TDs

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The Shawano Community High School football team rolled to a 48-27 nonconference win over Marinette in front of no spectators on Oct. 16 in Shawano.

Junior Elliott Lowney led the way for the Hawks, scoring three touchdowns. It was a special teams play from Lowney that got Shawano rolling.

After Marinette took the opening kickoff and marched the ball 63 yards in just five plays to go up 7-0, Lowney returned the ensuing kickoff 86 yards to tie the game.

"Everyone did their job. We have a great group of guys out there just making their blocks, they do it every time to get me a return," said Lowney. "It's all them. All I have to do is run."

Shawano junior Jayden VanOss intercepted a pass on Marinette's next offensive possession to set the host's offense up in plus territory.

On the first play of the drive, and first offensive play in the game, Shawano senior quarterback Gage Timm hit Lowney on a screen pass, and the shifty wide receiver outran several Marinette defenders for a 66-yard touchdown.

Shawano's special teams unit delivered again on the ensuing kickoff, forcing and recovering a fumble to set up the offense at the Marinette 37-yard line.

Six plays later, junior Kadin Ihrcke powered into the end zone from a yard out to make it 19-7.

After the teams traded a few empty possessions, Marinette was able to cut into the lead a few minutes into the second quarter. Shawano's offense had an answer, putting together an 8-play, 65-yard drive to go back up two scores.

Ihrcke and senior Kaleb Lowney guided the team down the field on rushing attempts, and Timm completed a first-down pass to sophomore Ashton Henning on the drive before Ihrcke capped it with a 2-yard touchdown run.

"I mean, my coach (Rodney) Owens does an excellent job getting us ready to run the ball — always hyping us up — but what I think really helped me is my offensive line," said Ihrcke of his two-touchdown game. "They made some really good blocks and I was able to read and make the play."

Shawano's defense allowed one first down on the next drive before forcing an incompletion on fourth down to set the offense up for another scoring opportunity before half.

A 10-yard pass from Timm to Elliott Lowney got the ball to the Marinette 33 before another connection between the pair led to a 33-yard touchdown to put the hosts up 34-13 at the break. Lowney broke multiple tackle attempts after making the catch.

Shawano's offense continued to roll to start the second half. After recovering an onside kick attempt near midfield, the Hawks worked the ball down the field before Kaleb Lowney capped the drive with a 10-yard rushing score, being pushed into the end zone by several teammates.

Marinette scored the game's next two touchdowns to make it a 13-point contest less than four minutes into the fourth quarter, but Shawano answered in a big way to put the game away.

from Timm on first down on a busted play. Timm kept the ball again on the next play and eluded several tackle attempts for a 31-yard touchdown run.

Shawano's defense then made Marinette work hard and chew up over four minutes of clock to move the ball just 23 yards before forcing an incompletion on fourth down. The Hawks ran out the clock from there to move to 3-1 on the season.

"I mean, that's just great as a team. I don't know if we've been off to a start in Shawano history like this," said Timm. "We're just trying to keep the momentum going, keep practices dialed in and not let people drift off just because we are starting so good. There are teams that are better than we have to play coming up."

Shawano's next scheduled game is at home against Waupaca on Friday.

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The Bonduel girls and Wittenberg-Birnamwood boys cross-country teams each secured second-place finishes at the Central Wisconsin Conference Championships on Oct. 15 in Pittsville.

The Bonduel girls finished with the same score as Amherst (43), but Amherst had the better finish from its sixth runner, so it claimed first. The Witt-Birn boys had a score of 67, behind Pacelli (41).

Bonduel's top-five girls all placed in the top 20, led by Ashlyn Kurey and Kara Troxel. Kurey placed third in 21 minutes, 12.7 seconds, while Troxel was fourth in 21:38.1

"I'm so proud of my team," said Troxel. "We work hard in practice every day and it's finally paying off. Every single person on the team has a role and we all know that."

"It's been really exciting for me as a freshmen to come onto a strong team with a lot of senior experience and learn from them," said Kurey. "Coming into the season we knew we had to work hard. Tonight was a great race for our team, we just came up a little short of the conference title."

Kalleigh Schroeder also landed in the top 10 for the Bears, finishing ninth in 22:45.3. Kendra Troxel (22:56.2) placed 11th and Breanna Schnell (23:30.1) 18th to cap the team score.

Tommy Bruski and Wyatt Dickman paced the Witt-Birn boys team. Bruski finished fourth in 18:00.2, while Dickman was sixth in 18:07.2.

"I love our team because they are so fun to be around," said Bruski. "There's never a dull moment around them. And most importantly they know when to get serious. Every one of us pushed themselves to the end to finish. I was proud of how far they came these past few months."

Witt-Birn's next three finishers all placed within six spots of each other.

Nelson admits disposing of Diemel brothers' bodies

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

Garland Nelson, the Missouri farmer charged with the July 2019 murders of Nick and Justin Diemel, admitted in court Tuesday that he disposed of the bodies but continues to deny killing the men, according to the Associated Press.

The AP report did not identify any other suspects in the killings.

Nelson, from Braymer northeast of Kansas City, was charged with two counts of abandoning a corpse, first-degree murder and related charges in the deaths of Justin, 24, and Nick, 35, both from the Bonduel area.

The brothers disappeared after visiting Nelson's farm in July 2019 to collect a $250,000 debt. Their burned remains were later found on Nelson's farm and in a stock trailer sold to a Nebraska rancher.

Nelson's attorneys argued, in the AP report, that a person charged with murder cannot also be charged with abandoning the corpse of the alleged victim without violating the suspect's right to remain silent and against self-incrimination.

Prosecutors said Nelson could have followed Missouri law by anonymously reporting where the bodies were located, thus avoiding self-incrimination.

Circuit Court Judge Michael Wagner denied the defense motion. Wagner is hearing the trial in Johnson County after Nelson's attorneys successfully sought a change from Caldwell County where Nelson lives and was first arrested.

The Diemel family will receive a $2 million settlement reached in a wrongful death lawsuit filed by the brothers' mother, Pamela, and Nick's wife, Lisa, in Caldwell County Circuit Court, according to a report from a Kansas City area television station.

The Grinnell Mutual Reinsurance Company will make the payment, according to a copy of the settlement cited by KSHB.com.

The court approved the settlement — including $809,406.24 in attorney's fees and expenses with the remaining $1,190,593.76 to be split among the Diemel brothers' family members, including Nick's four children, according to a statement from the family's attorney cited by the station. Nelson, his mother, Tommie Sue Feil, and their family business, J4S Farm Enterprises, were the defendants.

Welfare check ends in drug arrest PUBLIC RECORD

Clintonville police dispatched for a welfare check at Kwik Trip on Sunday night arrested a 47-year-old Minocqua woman for possession with the intent to deliver heroin.

Police were called at about 10:45 p.m. for a welfare check on a female that appeared intoxicated and had a child with her.

When officers arrived, they located the woman leaving the store and spoke to her regarding the complaint that the police department received.

While the officers were speaking with her, she reached in her pocket and multiple baggies with a powder substance fell on the ground. The woman admitted that the powder substance in the bags was heroin.

After a complete investigation, 28 individual bags were located with a total weight of 32 grams of suspected heroin.

The woman was transported to the Wau-paca County Jail. The child that was with her was turned over to a responsible adult.

Police encourage anyone who has information about illegal drug activity occurring in and around the city of Clintonville to contact the Clintonville Police Department at 715-823-3117.
