School board votes to resurface tennis courts

Project expected to be completed in mid-September

Wittenberg-Birnamwood superintendent Garrett Rogowski explains the resurfacing project for the tennis courts on July 26 at Wittenberg-Birnamwood High School.

The Wittenberg-Birnamwood School Board voted to resurface the tennis courts at Wittenberg-Birnamwood High School at its July 26 school board meeting.

According to Superintendent Garrett Rogowski, the tennis courts at the school were constructed in the late 1990s. Due to the high use and the age of the tennis courts, the school board agreed to approve a quote of $45,678 from American Systems located in Suamico. Rogowski said that this will not burden taxpayers.

“This will not affect taxpayers,” said Rogowski. “This is all through our maintenance fund, which we budgeted for.”

After the resurfacing, pickleball lines will be put in, due to the recently popularity of the sport, said Rogowski.

Rogowski went on to explain the importance of having the tennis courts in good shape.

“We want to increase the longevity of the courts,” said Rogowski. “We have tennis in our physical education curriculum. These are also the only courts for public use in the community.”

Rogowski explained that, due to the high usage from the community in the summer, the courts should be resurfaced.

“Because this is the only community used tennis courts in the area, we want the courts to work for everyone,” said Rogowski.

Resurfacing of the tennis courts is one of the many projects that is happening for the school during the summer, as the concession stand by the football field and maintenance facility are being upgraded as well. The school is also replacing lighting and ceiling fixtures in the hallways of all the Wittenberg and Birnamwood schools.

The tennis court resurfacing project is projected to take two months, with a tentative finishing date of mid-September.

Timm provides updates on grants regarding study

Grants will not impede upon each other

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

David Timm, a member of the Wittenberg Village Board and the Wittenberg Area Development Committee (WADC), gave an update on the SCEPI housing survey to both panels last week. He addressed a question whether applying for a housing study grant will affect the village's grant application on a sidewalks project.

At the July 20 Wittenberg Village Board meeting, Timm said that the Wittenberg Area Development Committee will be applying for a grant for the housing development through the Community Development Block Grant PLNG (Planning) program.

"We wanted to know if that grant will have a conflict of interest with the grant for the sidewalks," Timm said.

Timm said that he got into contact with Peter Thillman, the chief economic development officer of Shawano County Economic Progress Inc. (SCEPI), who in turn got into contact with Art Bahr, a grant writer for MSA Professional Services, one of the companies that is running the housing study in Wittenberg.

According to Timm, Bahr got into contact with Department of Administration for clarification on the question.

"Their response was a confirmation that the PLNG application will not affect the current PFF application and the funding for both could occur if rewarded," said Timm, quoting Bahr.

Timm also said that he saw an email from Angela Davis, an employee with the DOA, clarifying that both applications are valid.

"I am not saying that it is 100%," said Timm. "But we did have high up people check. There sounds like there will be no problems with these grants."

At the WADC meeting on July 23, Timm said Thillman put in an application for a grant for Tigerton, Wittenberg and the surrounding areas to help run the housing survey. He repeated what he told the village board, that the applications will not cancel each other out.

"We are good to go and we can apply for both grants," said Timm.

Minor injuries reported after motorcycle crash

According to Lt. Jon Blaskowski, the crash occurred after a 31-year-old male from Birnamwood took his motorcycle out for a test drive. As he was shifting from first gear to second gear, the throttle went out and he fell off of the motorcycle, Blaskowski said.

The driver of the motorcycle was not seriously injured, but he was treated for minor injuries, said Blaskowski.

County looking at Shawano library's future

Library board tasked with determining future of facility, plans for new building

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

The Shawano County Executive Committee tasked the library board July 22 with examining the best and most cost-effective way to improve or build a new library in Shawano while examining ways to improve the other five branch facilities.

Pending maintenance cost projects are expected to cost close to $700,000, according to Administrative Coordinator James Davel. Long-term projects included in the county's capital improvement projects list including eliminating black mold and sewer gases coming into the community, he said, along with replacing the heating and air conditioning systems, replacing the library's elevator, upgrading the library's lighting, replacing the boiler system and upgrading the foundation.

"What I think is important for the committee to consider is to form a committee to determine the way ahead for what the plan is for the library," Davel said. "We cannot continue to do the Band-Aid on the current library as it stands right now. To me, we're putting the money in and even if we put the $700,000 out, we don't know if we fix the problems."

Options, according to Davel, include renovations of the existing facility, building a new facility on the current site, building a new facility elsewhere in the community or finding an existing facility that could be remodeled into a library.

"I think it's the next big build for the county," Davel said, noting the issues with the library are significant.

Supervisor Tom Kautza pointed out that the county knew the library was going to be an issue when it took over sole management of the facility several years ago. Prior to that, the city and county shared the costs of maintaining the Shawano facility.

"When we took that building on, we knew it was a piece of junk," Kautza said. "It was free, and we got a sizeable piece of property right downtown."

Kautza is recommending that some of the $3.9 million the county has in funds from the American Rescue Plan Act be used to create a new library. With a new library being a one-time expense, there would not be much of an issue with the county maintaining it once funds run out in 2024.

"It's not debt for the next 20 years like (the) health and human services (complex)," Kautza said. "There are a lot of ways where, with this funding, we can collect a lot of it back."

Supervisor Kathy Luebke said it was likely the ARPA funds could be used, if the county board approves, as issues like black mold constitute a health and safety issue.

"I wouldn't put $2 million into that building," Luebke said, suggesting another location might be more appropriate.

When concerns were expressed about whether the new facility could still be relevant in the future, given the changes in technology and focus with the library, library director Kristie Hauer pointed out that the library board has already done a study on future library needs, taking on the task before the coronavirus pandemic hit in March 2020.

The current facility on South Sawyer Street was built in 1960, and a remodel was done and addition completed in 1990 — increasing the square footage from 12,000 to more than 21,000 square feet. However, the library study indicates that, to continue effectively serving the needs of county residents, the building will need to almost double in size to 40,000 square feet, Hauer said.

"A suitable space, size-wise, is going to be one of the bigger considerations," she said. "That size of a building gets to be more complicated if we keep it in the middle of the city."

Hauer suggested that, in addition to the ARPA funds, the county should consider applying for funds from the Institute of Museum Library Services, which has received a "sizeable chunk" of money for libraries to utilize.

Supervisor Kevin Conradt recommended that the existing library board take the lead on developing plans for a new facility instead of a separate committee being created.

Conradt said the board could potentially solicit additional people for help, if needed.

"Let them keep moving forward and give them direction," Conradt said. "If there are some other monies out there, let's start pursuing them so we know our options."

The county administration and committee members acknowledged that the problem would not be resolved right away, but now is the time to start planning.

"We're not going to solve this overnight," Davel said. "I think if we come up with a decent schedule and framework, then we can go forward. If we can use these (ARPA) funds for the library, it will be one shot, one kill, and we won't be putting ourselves into debt."

In the order for the library board to look at how best to use ARPA funds, the executive committee also urged looking at improvements for all six library facilities, even though the greatest need is with the Shawano library.

Local author Wilton finishes fantasy novel

Book will be published in late August

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

A Birnamwood fantasy writer is about to join the ranks of published authors.

S.L. Wilton, who recently finished his novel, Queen of Crows, will have his book published on Aug. 24 by Atmosphere Press, based in Dallas.

The fantasy novel centers on protagonist Sophia Pendergast and her quest to reclaim a throne after her second cousin had taken it. The book moves through a fantasy land, where strange magic and dangerous creatures stand in her path.

"I had a scene in my head where a main character was getting disposed in a fantasy land," said Wilton. "The rest of the book just took off from there."

He said that the book was started in July 2016 and it is now getting published.

"To have this book getting published, it is kind of a dream come true," Wilton said. "I am my own biggest critic, so to see it getting published, is kind of surprising, but satisfying."

Wilton is a retired, former non-commissioned officer with the United States Army of 21 years. He began writing during his time in the army.

"I was inspired by some fantasy writers," said Wilton. "(J.R.R.) Tolkien was a big inspiration."

He also said that he became more actively involved and improved in writing after taking an online creative writing class from the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

"I took the creative writing class in 2014," said Wilton. "The instructor of the class helped me improve and acted as my writing coach."

According to Wilton, there are plenty of books that he has written, but Queen of Crows is the one that he felt was good enough to send to a publisher.

He said that although only family and friends have seen and read the book, he has heard only positive feedback. He expects that to be the case once others read the book as well.

"I do expect people to enjoy this book," said Wilton. "If people like a good fantasy story, then they will like this book."

Wilton has plans to continue writing for the future. He hopes to get more books published, including a science-fiction novel that he has been working on since 2018.

Birnamwood author S.L. Wilton wrote Queen of Crows inspired by authors like J. R. R. Tolkien. Wilton's book will be published on Aug. 24.

Shawano native will be interim UW vice president

University of Wisconsin System President Tommy Thompson has named Jeff Buhrandt as Interim Vice President for University Relations, replacing Scott Neitzel who is resigning his position after helping guide UW System during the coronavirus pandemic.

“Scott’s budget and management experience was key to helping me navigate the many challenges presented by the pandemic this past year,” Thompson said. “His senior leadership enabled us to do many things we would never have been able to do without him accepting this role. He has my sincerest thanks and appreciation.”

Neitzel, whose last day will be July 18, was instrumental in helping craft UW System’s community and student testing program and the Sys-tem’s legislative budget approval. Buhrandt, who begins his new role July 21, has a bachelor’s degree from UW-Stevens Point and a master’s degree from UW-Milwaukee. # Golfers need offseason prep to avoid injuries

Golf enthusiasts are in their glory as golfing weather has returned to Wisconsin. Some players may find themselves suffering game-limiting injuries if they haven't prepared for the season properly.

"If golfers are only playing in those months when the weather is favorable in Wisconsin and are not exercising much in the offseason, that can increase their risk for injury," said Dr. Ryan Wagner, an orthopedic physician specializing in sports medicine with ThedaCare Orthopedic Care. "Injury prevention is key to being successful in most sports."

He offers some reminders as golfers hit the links.

"One of the important factors with golf is making sure the golfer does a proper warm-up and stretching routine prior to going out to play," Wagner said. "There is increased risk of injury going directly onto the course and starting to hit off the first tee without warming up. Stretching the hamstrings, calves, obliques, back, shoulders and wrists is important."

In addition to stretching, there are other suggestions to follow.

"I recommend swinging the golf club a few times, gradually increasing the range, motion and swing speed instead of going to the first tee and swinging as hard as you can," Wagner said. "Doing a few swings at the driving range as a warm up to get the blood flowing to the golfer's muscles and extremities can also prove beneficial."

Wagner noted that the most common body areas where golfers suffer injuries are the elbow, back and rotator cuff. Those areas are followed by injuries to the knee, wrist, foot, ankle, neck, hand and fingers, per Golf Fitness magazine.

"The majority of golf injuries are the result of overuse," he noted. "We see a lot of repetitive use injuries here at ThedaCare Orthopedic Care, whether it's playing golf, baseball or gymnastics. Repeating the same golf swing motion over and over places significant stresses on the same muscles, tendons and joints, which can lead to injury over time, especially if golfers are only playing during the short Wisconsin season."

Wagner said golfer's elbow, officially known as medial epicondylitis, is one of the most common injuries.

"It is an inflammation of the tendons that attach at the inside bone of the elbow," he said. "Pain can occur while playing, and some golfers will keep playing through the pain. If a golfer is experiencing that kind of pain, it's important to listen to his or her body, stop playing, ice and rest the tendons to prevent exacerbation of the injury. Playing through pain is not a wise choice. Rest your body and seek professional health care advice if the problem does not resolve after rest. Many golfers benefit from occupational or physical therapy to relieve golf injuries."

Back pain is another common ailment for golfers, and this can be caused by poor body mechanics during golf swings.

"Swinging the golf club causes rotational stresses, and this can place significant torque on the spine — especially the muscles along the spine," Wagner said. "Spending some time with a golf instructor or teaching professional to work on appropriate swing biomechanics can help prevent injury."

The third most common golf injury involves damage to the rotator cuff.

"The rotator cuff supports the position of the shoulder," Wagner said. "It can become injured due to the repetitive nature of golf swings or by hitting the ground with the club, which can cause a sudden jar to that muscle area. Golfers may notice decreased motion or swing speed, which is a sign of a rotator cuff injury. Evaluation by a medical professional should be considered."

Starting slow at the beginning of the golfing season is another point Wagner recommends.

"When you go to the golf course at the beginning of the season, start off slowly and increase the length of play and intensity over the course of the season," he said. "Avoid trying to go 100% on the first time out; that can increase risk for injury as well."

In the offseason, it's important to focus on good aerobic conditioning, as well as core muscle strength to improve swing mechanics.

"There are a number of online exercise programs that can help golfers keep in shape during the offseason," Wagner said. "A good home exercise program that a golfer completes multiple days per week is a great offseason training regimen. When the season comes around, the golfer will already be in reasonably good shape, which will provide endurance to play longer and the capability to finish a round of golf at the optimal level."

Wagner said another opportunity for experiencing injury on the golf course occurs when carrying golf bags or lifting bags in/out of a cart.

"Sometimes golfers carry their own bags and that can cause shoulder or back injuries," he said. "Other golfers ride in carts or push their carts. In each case, making sure to use appropriate body mechanics such as keeping a straight back as well as lifting with the knees can prevent injury. Golf bags are heavy and cumbersome, which can create unusual stresses on a golfer's body."

Lastly, Wagner reminds golfers to wear appropriate-fitting golf shoes to support their ankles and backs, dress in layers for ever-changing weather conditions, wear a hat, sunscreen and sunglasses and drink plenty of water.

"I recommend golfers carry a water bottle at all times and hydrate regularly," he said. "After playing in the sun for a few hours, golfers can develop heat stroke or become dehydrated. Drinking water regularly will help prevent those events from happening."

Wagner wants everyone — from advanced golfers to beginners — to enjoy the game, and receive the benefits of physical activity.

"Playing golf is a great way for people of all ages to exercise and keep in shape," he said.

Extension could share family living, ag employees

Shawano County looks to split staff with Oconto, Marinette counties

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Shawano County is hoping to cut costs by sharing some of its University of Wisconsin-Extension employees with Oconto and Marinette counties.

The subject was brought up by the executive committee July 22 as it was discussing approving a $12,000 contract for services to provide Strong Bodies classes, formerly known as Strong Bones, for older residents. The classes had been very popular throughout the county until the pandemic forced most in-person programs to shut down.

According to Terri Brunner, coordinator for Shawano County's extension program, the Strong Bodies program had previously been managed by a family living educator, but there is no one in the position currently.

"Through county budget cuts and different transitions with the UW, the county voted years ago to go with a county hire for a healthy families and communities coordinator," Brunner said. "That person was able to handle the program because she was an instructor with the program and had been trained by the UW, so she was able to continue in that role."

Brunner said that coordinator moved to a different office with the county and a new one was hired, but then coronavirus broke out — leaving the new coordinator unable to do much in the position. That person left the county last fall.

"Since then, we've looked at whether we replace the position, which is a 50-50 hire with no benefits, and we were looking at $22,000 (for the county's portion) of funds for that position," Brunner said. "Since then, we've done a needs assessment to determine that, because our programs haven't been going for so long, the people using the programs had found other resources to support what they needed. The only exception has been Strong Bones, now referred to as the Strong Bodies program."

Brunner noted the contract is contingent on how the county fills the healthy families and communities coordinator position. She said that, since the position is not being filled at present, there is money in the budget for the contracted work.

County Board Chairman Tom Kautza said that things are going to have to be done differently in the county when it comes to job positions, because lackluster wages have been causing county employees — especially with the sheriff's department — to leave for better-paying jobs. He suggested that the healthy families and communities coordinator and the agriculture agent, both of which are full-time positions covering one county, be shared with Oconto and Marinette counties, which would make Shawano County responsible for one-third of the pay and benefits with those positions.

"When I was on (the) ag and extension (committee), we tried to reduce the ag agent from full time to half time, and it lost out with the committee," Kautza said. "At the end of the year, if they don't pass it through ag and extension, we should force them, through the budget process, to go through and join with Oconto and Marinette."

Kautza added that the other two counties have expressed an interest in merging the positions, and that it's been something the three counties have discussed for over a year.

"We've only got so much to work with, and we've got to evaluate the priorities," he said. "They've got theirs whittled right down. They spend almost nothing compared to what we do."

Report: Broadband keeps older people connected

Adequate internet can stave off social isolation, connect patients to health

By SHAMANE MILLS
Wisconsin Public Radio

Wisconsin is investing millions in broadband after its importance was underscored during the pandemic when it allowed some people to work from home and students to attend school virtually. But some say more needs to be done.

This month, Democratic U.S. Sen. Tammy Baldwin was in several places in the state, including Green Bay, urging Congress to pass bipartisan legislation to expand access to reliable, high-speed broadband across Wisconsin. The legislation would help close the digital divide in Wisconsin, Baldwin said, by investing $65 billion to bring affordable, reliable coverage to every family in America.

Spotty or slow internet was a sore point for those trying to work from home during the pandemic, and it made virtual schooling difficult in some districts. It also took a toll on Wisconsin's older adults who relied on computers and smartphones for doctor's appointments and socialization with friends and family.

America's Health Rankings, compiled by UnitedHealth Foundation, ranked Wisconsin 33rd for the percentage of people 65 and older who have access to high-speed internet. The organization said lacking that access contributes to widespread levels of social isolation, especially in Ashland, Menominee and Milwaukee counties.

Data for the America's Health Rankings Senior Report was compiled before the pandemic, which temporarily stopped visits at nursing homes and prompted senior centers to close.

"It's great if you can use FaceTime or Skype or Zoom, but if they don't have a broadband connection, you're resorting to people standing out in your front lawn if they happen to live close enough for a window visit, which in the dead of winter in Wisconsin isn't likely to happen," said Janet Zander, policy coordinator for the Wisconsin Aging Advocacy Network, which recently issued its own report on internet access for older adults.

High speed internet increased 10% nationally between 2016-2019 for those 65-plus, according to America's Health Rankings Senior Report.

In 2019, 78% of households with adults ages 65 and older had high-speed internet, compared to 88% of households of all ages with high-speed internet.

The report said 75% of older households in Wisconsin had high-speed internet via computer or smartphone before the pandemic. It was one of several challenges cited by the report to health among older adults along with excessive drinking and obesity.

Dr. Rhonda Randall, chief medical officer for United Healthcare, said many older adults obtained health care through virtual visits with their doctor during the pandemic. Because of this, she expects better internet access will be "one of the measures that will have significant improvements" in the future.

In July, Gov. Tony Evers signed a two-year budget which includes $129 million for the Broadband Expansion Grant Program. Evers, a Democrat, and GOP lawmakers agreed on the need to improve broadband across Wisconsin but disagreed on how to fund it. The Republican-controlled budget-writing committee approved $129 million through bonding. Evers, who wanted $200 million, said bonding would cost taxpayers more in the long run, but nevertheless agreed to it in the final budget.

Groups representing older adults expressed their disappointment in the level of funding for broadband, which AARP Wisconsin said "is no longer a luxury for folks of all ages — it's a necessity."

"We have great faith that our state lawmakers can work together in a bipartisan manner to pass legislation this fall that truly reflects the critical wants and needs of our most vulnerable citizens. In order to achieve this, however, we ask them once again to put politics aside and act in the best interest of all Wisconsinites," said AARP State Director Sam Wilson in a statement.

CMN gets grants for solar panels, trail, comics

3 grants will help to align college with its strategic plans

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

The College of Menominee Nation was recently awarded three grants for the 2021-2022 fiscal year.

The grants that were received were EBSCO Information Services' 2021 EBSCO Solar Grant, worth $60,000, the Second Nature's Acceleration Fund, worth $7,000 and the American Indian College Fund's Community Based Learning and Sharing Grant, worth $20,000.

"I am humbled that we are able to receive the grants," said Rebecca Edler, interim director of the Sustainable Development Institute. "Receiving these grants really reinforces the hard work that everyone here is contributing to."

Edler and other CMN officials were notified that they had received the grants in early July.

The use of the EBSCO Information Services Solar Grant will be used to install solar panels on the S. Verna Fowler/Menominee Public Library's roof. This will make the library the second building on campus that will use solar energy through panels.

According to a press release from CMN, installing these solar panels will help to reduce the school's reliance on fossil fuels. This also helps to CMN's hope to change to a carbon neutral campus, abiding with the college's 2016 Climate Action Plan.

"The library currently use geothermal and propane energy," said Edler. "We are hoping to eliminate fossil fuels."

The second grant, being the Second Nature's Acceleration Fund is going to be used to help in providing a better equitable access to the Phenology Trail and the Learning Path. The Phenology Trail is an important part of the school, as it gives students and staff an opportunity to learn about different species of plants, where the stations state the scientific name, as well as the Menominee name, said the press release.

The information stations will also include details about the life span, uses, and how climate change impacts the phenology. Sticking with their plan to become carbon neutral, they will introduce a solar-powered golf cart to help those who need assistance explore the path.

"It is nice to inform people about a change to a new energy source," said Edler.

The American Indian College Fund's Community Based Learning and Sharing Grant will be used to create a project that details past Menominee teachings in a comic book. The project is called Collaborating Our Model In Contemporary Sequential-arts. The hope of this project is to portray the importance of Menominee culture through a modern art.

"We want to bring information about past teachings and lessons through modern day means," said Edler. "This can be a way for people of all ages to enjoy."

Edler believes that using these grants to support various projects will continue to build the school as a role model within the Menominee community.

"We want to be a model in the community," said Edler. "This will provide people with a place to go."

She believes that these grants help to reinforce that the CMN is open to everyone and that everyone can use the school for their needs.

"CMN is open to everyone," said Edler. "We want to focus on bettering the community and to provide everyone with the resources that they need."

For the future, Edler said that officials within the school will continue to look for grants that align with their strategic plans.

Inspiration theme of county's 368th barn quilt

Connie and Mike Rohloff have sponsored Shawano County's 368th barn quilt.

Named Inspiration from Within, it is on display on a recently built workshop at N3992 Green Valley Road, Pulaski, where Connie will work on a multitude of projects to sell in stores and online for her company, CR Inspirations.

"The quilt design was chosen to represent the inspiration and ideas that dwell in all of us," Connie said.

The workshop was built on an old alfalfa field that Mike and Connie purchased from her parents, Roger and Emily Neumann, in 2002, shortly after they got married. Looking further back, the land was sold by the State of Wisconsin to Shawano County in 1880. In 1890, Anton Marszelski purchased the land and it remained in their family for 74 years. From there, it was owned by the Anderson (1964-68) and Matczak (1968-77) families before Connie's parents purchased the land in 1977.

Inside Connie's new workshop are plenty of reminders of their agricultural pasts, as both Connie and Mike grew up on dairy farms and remain active in the dairy industry to this day. The inside walls of the workshop are decorated with barn boards from Connie's parents' barn, which was damaged by a tornado in 2017. There are also several old farm antiques that line the walls of the workshop. Connie enjoys working with barn boards and other farm type antiques, which is the focal point of her business.

Mike and Connie have a son, Bryce, who will be a high school senior, and a daughter, McKenna, who will be a freshman at Pulaski High School. Mike works with dairy farmers and veterinarians at Boehringer Ingelheim Animal Health and Connie milks cows part-time at a local dairy farm.

The Rohloff barn quilt was painted by the Shawano County barn quilt committee and was put on display by LeRoy Raddant and his grandson, Keenan, both of whom work for Raddant Electric in Shawano.

Short mystery story is full of sweet surprises

"Murder as Sticky as Jam" by Diana Orgain was a quick read.

Ten years ago, best friends Mona Reilly and Vicki Lawson graduated from high school. Now they are all back in Magnolia Falls.

Mona has been perfecting jam recipes given to her by her late mother and dreaming of having her own shop. Vicki is now a full-time beekeeper and makes all kinds of honey-related specialties.

JAN JONES

At one time the women worked at As

You Slice It, a wine and cheese shop owned by Alexander Kaas. He grudgingly allowed them to sell their products there and his sales went way up. Mona knew she could make much more on her own and detested Kaas' attitude.

When her wealthy great-aunt Cee offers loan her the money, she buys a building. Soon she and Vicki are nearing the grand opening of 'Jammin' Honey.'

Throughout school Lacey Mc-

Inroy had made it clear that she detested Mona. The beautiful, prom queen, cheerleader had dated Mona's one true love, Leo Lawson, until he joined the military and left town. Lacey went on to marry Leo's best friend and fellow soldier Collin McInroy and open her own bakery. Now Leo has returned and joined the Magnolia Falls police force.

Mona admits that she's still deeply in love with her best friend's brother and has been avoiding him like the plague. Mona is about to make another batch of jam with Lacey calls demanding Mona come to the bakery to approve a recipe. Lacey is catering the grand opening, quite miffed that Mona has requested gluten-free breads, and insists that she can't get the correct ingredients from her supplier.

With the recipe question resolved, Mona returns to the shop only to find the place on fire. All her hard work and her great-aunt Cee's loan is going up in smoke.

Could things get worse? They can and do when Leo arrives to inform her that the body of Collin McInroy was found in the burned-out warehouse. The case is now murder and arson, and most the town is convinced that Mona did it for the insurance money.

Being near Leo is killing her until he indicates that he wants to be there. Does he still have feelings for her? Determined to clear her name and open the shop, Mona does some digging on her own. She quickly learns that Collin was suffering from severe PTSD and would sometimes hide in the shop warehouse until his demons passed. She also learns that the McInroy marriage was shaky, and Stephanie Tyndall was Collin's friend, not his lover.

When Mona's spoiled cousin Stewart accuses her of cheating him out of Aunt Cee's money, she throws him out of the house. Minutes later she is nearly overcome by carbon monoxide. Leo finds that the gas line has been tampered with and the detectors have been disabled. Why is someone is trying to kill Mona?

She is further disheartened when Vicki begins a relationship with Alexander Kaas and will be selling her honey items at his store. That pain is compounded when she learns that he is having an event that will be featuring jams with same names as Mona's specialties.

While searching for contractors Mona is sure who the killer/arsonist must be. Deep down she knows that Lacey is involved, too. A confrontation at the gala nets the expected results. Alexander Kaas admits to setting the shop on fire, and Lacey confesses that he gave her Mona's recipe book.

When the dust settles Mona and Vicki rebuild the shop to include a bakery where Stephanie Tyndall can work her magic. The new venture will be called 'Jammin' Honey Buns.' Naturally, some romance is brewing.

Smoking reduces life, can be tough to overcome

The history of smoking dates back to 4000 B.C. and was used in spiritual rituals. But the first scientific report on smoking was not published until 1964, and it is still famous among health care researchers. In that study, researchers divided 40,000 British doctors into four groups (non-smokers and light, moderate and heavy smokers) and used mortality as the outcome measure.

The study's 10-year results showed much higher lung cancer mortality and all-cause mortality in smokers, with a "dose-response" relation (heavy smokers died at a higher rate than moderate smokers; moderate smokers died at a higher rate than light smokers, etc.).

A medical research team analyzed smoking and smoking-cessation data collected from the U.S. National Health Interview Survey of over 200,000 adults linked to the National Death Index. The rate of death from any cause for current smokers was about three times that for those who had never smoked. The likelihood of surviving from 25 to 79 years of age was about double for those who had never smoked compared to current smokers. Smokers lose at least a decade of life expectancy compared to those who have never smoked.

Smokers also have more heart disease, stroke, aortic aneurysm, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, asthma, hip fractures, cataracts, pneumonia, erectile dysfunction, low back pain, intervertebral disc disease, inferior patient outcomes following surgical interventions, increased rates of postoperative complications and a higher risk for the nonunion of fractures. So if you want these conditions, smoking is a good choice.

Quitting smoking by the age of 40 reduces the risk of death associated with continued smoking by about 90%. The Centers for Disease Control recommends the following strategies:

- Don't smoke at all. Smoking even a few cigarettes a day can hurt your health. If you try to smoke fewer cigarettes, but do not stop completely, soon you'll be smoking the same amount again. Smoking "low-tar, low-nicotine" cigarettes usually does little good, because nicotine is so addictive. The only safe choice is to quit completely.

- Write down why you want to quit. Really wanting to quit smoking is very important. Smokers who live after a heart attack are the most likely to quit for good — they're very motivated. Find a reason for quitting before you have no choice.

- Know that it will take effort to quit smoking. Nicotine is habit forming. Half the battle in quitting is knowing you need to quit. This knowledge will increase your ability to deal with symptoms of withdrawal, such as bad moods and the "urge" to smoke. There are many ways smokers quit, including using nicotine replacement products (gum and patches), but there is no easy way. Take quitting one day at a time, even one minute at a time — whatever you need to succeed.

- Be encouraged by the fact that half of all adult smokers have quit, so you can, too. Millions of people have learned to face life without cigarettes. Quitting smoking is the best step you can take to stay healthy.

- Get help if you need it. Many groups offer written materials, programs and advice to help smokers quit for good. Your doctor or dentist can also be a good source of support. Look for national and local groups with resources to help you quit. A great one in Wisconsin through UW-Madison is the Wisconsin Quit Line at 800-784-8669.

Witt-Birn grads playing collegiate basketball

Fraaza headed to Crookston,
Herb to St. Norbert

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

After standout high school basketball careers, Wittenberg-Birnamwood High School graduates Abi Fraaza and Emma Herb are now preparing for their collegiate basketball careers.

Fraaza is headed to University of Minnesota Crookston, while Herb stays in state and plays for St. Norbert College.

"I am so grateful for the opportunity to be able to play at the next level," said Fraaza. "With being injured two of my four high school years, it's an amazing feeling that all the hard work and training has paid off and I get to continue my basketball career another four years."

"Playing college sports is another thing that I can use to push me even harder," said Herb. "I want to be the best possible player that I can be and get better at a higher pace competition."

Both Witt-Birn athletes were multi-sport stars during their four years of high school, but basketball eventually was the choice for both.

Fraaza said basketball was always important to her, and thanked her parents Bill and Charity for coaching her many years, taking her to AAU tournaments and "guiding me to be a better player every day."

"When I decided at the start of my junior year I wanted to play a sport in college, I knew that was the only sport I would want to play for another four years," added Fraaza.

Herb believes basketball is "the most physical and competitive sport in my book and it pushes you in all aspects of the game." She added that the sport taught her dedication and helped her become a leader.

"I chose to play basketball because I am ready not ready for it to come to an end," said Herb, who added that she always hoped to attend UW-Madison but had a change of heart after the most recent basketball season ended. "I can't imagine not playing, which helped make my decision pretty clear."

While Crookston is about eight hours away, Fraaza said the school was family oriented, which made her decision a bit easier to make.

Wittenberg-Birnamwood's Emma Herb awaits a pass during the team's Division 3 regional semifinal playoff game against Clintonville on Feb. 12 in Wittenberg. Herb will continue her basketball career at St. Norbert College.

Fraaza also noted how the school's facilities stood out and how welcoming the team was and that they "seem so eager to compete at the highest level possible and win."

"I am looking forward to continuing to improve my skills and become a better basketball player," said Fraaza of her upcoming collegiate career. "I am also looking forward to all the new competition and making new lifelong friends."

Herb called St. Norbert's campus "beautiful" and added that "the coach talked to me a lot, which helped me in making my decision."

"I am looking forward to and ready to play with a team that would do anything to win and practice to the best of their abilities every day no matter how hard it may be," said Herb, who thanked her family, friends, teammates and coaches for supporting her in her journey to this point. "My goal is to be the best possible teammate and leader that pushes myself and others to go the extra mile."

In high school, Fraaza and Herb racked up numerous awards and honors for their play on the court.

Herb made the Central Wisconsin Conference-East Division first team as a senior, junior and sophomore. She was an honorable mention as a freshman. Herb reached the 1,000-point plateau in her senior season.

Fraaza was the conference's Player of the Year as a junior. She made the honorable mention all-conference team as a sophomore and was a first-teamer as a freshman.

The duo ended their high school basketball careers playing in the Wisconsin Basketball Coaches Association Division 4 All-Star Game as teammates one last time.

Wittenberg-Birnamwood can't defeat Marathon, falls short of state berth

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

The Wittenberg-Birnamwood Legion baseball team earned a pair of wins at the Class A Marathon Regional over the weekend, but came up short of qualifying for state.

Witt-Birn finished 2-2, with two wins over Tomahawk and a pair of losses to Marathon, the regional champions and state qualifiers.

Witt-Birn opened up the regional with a 10-4 victory over Tomahawk on July 23.

Austin Rekow pitched all seven innings for Witt-Birn, striking out six batters along the way.

Witt-Birn scored twice in the first inning, once in the second, four times in the fourth and three times in the sixth.

Mason Meverden got on base three times and scored three runs to lead the team. Austin Worzalla scored two runs.

Witt-Birn then matched up with Marathon, losing 14-0 in five innings on July 24.

Two innings haunted Witt-Birn in a loss, with Marathon scoring seven runs in the opening inning before a six-run fourth. The final run was scored in the fifth.

Worzalla took the loss for Witt-Birn after pitching the first 3 2/3 innings.

Nathan Waupekenay got the final four outs.

Witt-Birn only had five batters reach base in the contest.

The team was then forced to play a second game on the day, taking on Tomahawk for a second time.

This time, Witt-Birn won 10-0 in five innings to extend its season.

Witt-Birn scored twice in the first inning, three times in the third, once in the fourth and four times in the fifth for the lopsided win.

Worzalla and Rekow each scored twice. Bryce Zoromski and Will Urquhart got on base three times each.

Logan Thiex picked up the win on the mound and needed just 59 pitches to get through five innings.

The win meant Witt-Birn would need to defeat Marathon twice on July 25 to emerge from the regional.

Witt-Birn put up a strong fight in the first game, but lost 9-5.

A four-run sixth inning helped Marathon break open a tight game, and Witt-Birn's seventh-inning rally ended after scoring three times.

Zoromski scored twice for Witt-Birn.

Meverden, Rekow and Urquhart scored a run each.

Meverden pitched the first 4 2/3 innings before Pierson Potrykus worked the final 1 1/3.

Anvelink wins twice during Mid-Summer Classic

Mullen earns 2 wins on 1st night of event

By DAVE BUSS

Special to NEW Media

Fans were given two opportunities to watch racing action at the Shawano Speedway as the Mid-Summer Classic kicked off on July 23 and wrapped up July 24.

The Street Stocks joined the program on Friday and brought some great action to the show. Mike Mullen was the story of the night though, picking up wins in two divisions in very impressive fashion. Joining Mullen with wins was Nick Anvelink, Jayden Schmidt and Jeff Richards.

Saturday night provided just as much action, with Anvelink making it a clean sweep in the Late Model division with another top finish. Marcus Yarie, Jeffery Teske, Chucky Forstner and Lucas Hacker also found victory lane.

The IMCA Sport Mods kicked action off Saturday with what looked to be another great run by Max Oreskovich jumping to the early lead. Oreskovich led the early part of the race with Schmidt giving him a stiff challenge for the top spot. Jeff Schmuhl and Teske joined the battle up front.

As the leaders entered turn one, Oreskovich's engine expired, taking him to the outside wall collecting Schmidt. Schmidt was able to continue after a trip to pit lane. Schmuhl also suffered mechanical issues during the caution and retired his car for the night.

Teske assumed the top spot on the restart. Teske drove off to a dominating win.

The IMCA Stock Cars took the track next, and it looked as if the race was over before it started as Travis Van Straten led the field to the green flag. Van Straten jumped to the lead early and built a lead.

Meanwhile, Forstner started in the fourth row and began to move forward and soon found himself in second, nearly a second-and-a-half behind Van Straten.

Forstner began working the high side as Van Straten stuck to the bottom. Forster caught Van Straten and made his move to the outside grabbing the top spot.

Forstner drove away from Van Straten and cruised to the win. Van Straten took the runner-up spot with Jeremy Christians third and Trent Nolan fourth.

Troy Springborn looked to dominate the Late Model feature from the front row starting spot. Springborn jumped to the advantage as Anvelink moved into the second spot.

Anvelink caught Springborn and the two engaged in a battle for the lead. Two drivers who have dominated the division for the years fought side by side for the lead, with Anvelink eventually grabbing the top spot.

As Anvelink began to get away, Ron Berna was powering forward back in the pack, grabbing the third spot. Kyle Raddant followed Berna forward grabbing fourth.

The IMCA Modifieds took off with Jerry Muenster and Yarie on the front row. Yarie wouldn't let his top spot go to waste as he jumped out and led the 20-lap feature from green to checkers.

Meanwhile, Wyatt Block rocketed to second. Most nights Block would have dominated the race, but with

The Mighty 4s concluded racing action in the Mid-Summer Classic with Hacker fighting off Tanner Westphal at the start to grab the lead.

Once out front, there was no looking back for Hacker as he grabbed another checkered flag. Westphal, Brad Wedde and Nate Michonski completed the top four.

Bucks' title gives state's sports fans relief from heartbreak

For most of my life, and especially the last decade or so, Wisconsin sports teams have provided plenty instances of heartbreak. The curse was finally broken with the Milwaukee Bucks' NBA title.

MORGAN RODE

The Green Bay Packers, Milwaukee Brewers and Wisconsin Badgers have provided their share of heartbreak, with the Bucks joining the party in recent years.

Leading up to the most recent NBA season, the Bucks had put together back-to-back seasons in which they held the NBA's best regular season record. Giannis Antetokounmpo won a pair of MVP awards and Milwaukee seemed destined to snap a long NBA title drought.

Nope. Instead, the team was eliminated in the Eastern Conference finals by the eventual champion Toronto Raptors one year before being erased by the Miami Heat in the conference semifinals.

After making a multitude of roster changes — and having another big transaction wiped out — the Bucks hoped to get over the hump and back into the NBA finals.

This year's regular season wasn't as successful as the last two, with the Bucks only securing a No. 3 seed for the postseason and Giannis not being named the MVP despite having another big season. Honestly though, the lower level of hype surrounding the team coming into the playoffs was actually kind of a breath of fresh air for me.

The Bucks' heartbreak looked like it might start even earlier this season with the Heat serving as the team's first-round matchup. Milwaukee didn't look good in the first game of the series, but escaped with a win in overtime after a game-winning shot from Khris Middleton.

You obviously already know that the Bucks went on to sweep the Heat, but I truly believe if the Heat had taken game one, Miami might have upset Milwaukee again.

The Bucks and Nets second round series — which I believe was the best of the entire playoffs — was one I was looking forward to all season, but it lost some of its luster after injuries to Nets' stars Kyrie Irving and James Harden during the seven-game showdown.

Milwaukee fell in an 0-2 hole before tying up the series with two home wins. Just when it looked like the Bucks had found their footing, Brooklyn won game five to take a 3-2 lead. Again, the Bucks were able to defend home court though, taking game six to set up a game seven in Brooklyn.

Milwaukee overcame a late deficit and had a four-point lead with just over a minute to play, but the game was far from over. An offensive rebound helped the Nets get to within two points. The Bucks got a big offensive rebound of their own on the other end, but weren't able to capitalize as the team turned it over on a shot clock violation.

Another break went the Bucks' way after Kevin Durant appeared to hit a game-winning 3-pointer, but the front of his shoe was on the 3-point line, making it just a two and sending the game to overtime.

Certainly then would have been a good time for a Wisconsin sports team to fold under the pressure, right? It looked like the Bucks were on that path after not scoring for nearly four minutes, but Antetokounmpo and Middleton hit clutch shots before Brook Lopez iced the win with two free throws.

Milwaukee's win coupled with a surprise loss from the Philadelphia 76ers meant the Bucks would take on the Atlanta Hawks instead in the Eastern Conference finals.

Just when the thought of reaching the finals was creeping in for Bucks' fans, the team inexplicably lost the first game of the series on their home floor.

Milwaukee rebounded and took game two before Atlanta star Trae Young hurt his ankle in a Bucks win in game three, yet another break for the Bucks.

Surely now was when fans could be at ease? Not so fast. Milwaukee was blown out in game four and lost Antetokounmpo to an injured knee. Not only was the series now tied, but it appeared that Antetokounmpo was done for the season and the team's luck had run out.

At that point, I still hoped the Bucks could advance to the finals, but questioned whether it would have been as special with the star player out. Milwaukee showed its resiliency without Giannis and won the final two games of the series, and the team got another good dose of good news as its star avoided a devastating injury.

As the finals approached, the likelihood of Giannis returning seemed to increase by the hour, upping the Bucks' chances at the same time. It was at that point that it felt like the stars were finally aligning.

Giannis played well in the opening game of the series, but the Bucks were unable to slow the Suns' pick-and-roll game in a 13-point loss. Antetokounmpo scored 42 points in another loss in game two. Despite the two losses, many Milwaukee fans remained positive and believed the team could come back.

The Bucks rattled off four straight wins with Antetokounmpo leading the charge to complete the Bucks' quest for a title.

Just like that, the hurt and pain of the last couple Bucks' seasons — and many other heartbreaking losses by the Packers, Brewers and Badgers — were erased. Okay, maybe those thoughts are still trapped in my brain somewhere, but it'll sure be hard to wipe off the smile that's been on my face since the waning minutes of game six of the finals.

Bucks in six!

Cleveland's goodbye to 'Indian' name a good thing

I found myself thinking about the late Richie Plass recently as I was browsing for news. He's fairly well known among locals, but for those who aren't aware, he was a Menominee and Stockbridge-Munsee who found out the painful way decades ago that being an Indian mascot isn't all it's cracked up to be, as people from opposing teams heckled him, threw things at him and spit on him.

He took that traumatizing experience from high school days and turned it into a crusade to point out how Native American mascots are basically co-opting a culture without permission. He created a traveling exhibit called "Bittersweet Winds" that showcased a myriad of instances where Native Americans became caricatures for amusement instead of a culture to be respected.

Richie came to mind as I came across a story about the Cleveland Indians baseball team announcing it would be changing its team name to the Cleveland Guardians beginning in 2022. Team officials said they heard the complaints from Native American groups who called the Indians name racist and that they wanted to change it to something more respectable.

The team had already said farewell to its Chief Wahoo mascot three years ago, so the decision to end the Indians name shouldn't have come as a big surprise. However, that's not the way that Sen. Ted Cruz, a Republican from Texas, saw it as he tweeted: "Why does MLB hate Indians?" Cruz didn't stop there, though, as he begged Boston in a follow-up tweet not to change the name of its Celtics baseball team, as he is half Irish. (By the way, that isn't happening.)

I'm not too surprised at the senator's response. After all, this is the same man who fled from Texas in the dead of winter when the power grid failed a few months ago, but it does provide a reminder as to just how ignorant many people are to Native Americans and the strife they've endured over the centuries as they hold onto their culture and identity against a society that would eagerly exploit it.

I suppose we shouldn't condemn the senator too much, as Texas only has three federally recognized Native American tribes in its borders. However, I'm wondering if the leaders of those tribes are putting in calls to Cruz's office to defend Cleveland's decision and educate him on how derisive and divisive the Indians moniker is. That's the only way he'll learn, assuming he would be open enough to learn on the experience.

I consider myself fortunate that my high school mascot was a cougar and therefore fairly safe from controversy — assuming that a roving band of older women who have a thing for younger men doesn't develop to picket outside the school gates.

I also consider myself fortunate that I've been exposed to a number of Native American cultures and have a number of friends from those tribes who have talked with me about the appropriation of those cultures by a primarily white society. They've helped to show that having a name like "Indians" or "Braves" or "Redskins" is not an honor for them as much as it is an insult.

I wonder, if Cruz had the same people who talked to me talking with him, that it might show him that having a comical portrayal of a Native American is akin to a white person acting in blackface, which is also considered racist. Would he get the point if something like "Bittersweet Winds" was presented to him and showed him how icons and images have denigrated tribes for decades?

It's a shame that Richie Plass isn't alive today, as he would likely load up his traveling exhibit and head for Washington, D.C., to show Cruz the folly of his ways, the same as he did for almost 20 years nationwide. Richie's efforts helped to get more than 30 school districts in Wisconsin alone to change their mascots, but the fight is far from over.

I remember seeing the exhibit for myself a couple of years ago and, despite being well educated on Native American issues, being surprised by just how many sports teams, products and even works of art had negatively exploited tribes. Some items, like a T-shirt with the name "Caucasians" and a whitewashed version of the former Cleveland mascot, flipped the script and showed how denigrating it would be to other cultures if their image was exploited for money and chuckles.

With the continued debate on racism in this country, it might be time for Congress to pass a law that bans sports mascots that are degrading to Native Americans and other cultures. Cleveland has stepped forward to make the change, as has Washington's football team when it killed its Redskins moniker, but there are plenty of school and professional teams that still haven't gotten the message yet, so it might be time for a clean sweep.

Such a bill probably won't get a yes vote from Cruz, though.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Town hall needs to open to public again

To the editor:

Abuse of the COVID-19 Emergency Order of Wisconsin is happening in the Town of Little Suamico. The town is still claiming an emergency order, and citizens do not have full access to their town office now since April 2020. Over 1½ years later, and the town still feels the emergency order should be in effect when everything else is open. When this happens, citizens have no access to monthly check information as previously provided at meetings (i.e. we have no clue what our tax dollars are being spent on). When transparency is lacking, you lose trust.

I have requested a copy of our monthly expenses to include the check register and documentation for a particular month that we used to receive at town meetings and was denied.

Without transparency, citizens are not aware of what is being spent in our town monthly. Specifically, when checks are being written for approximately $9,000, $7,000, and $3,000 reimbursements to town employees as listed in the audit book of 2020, we deserve a full explanation.

Taxpayers deserve to have full access to our town hall and not just by email or call. We, as a town, need to demand of our leaders that our office be open full service as we deserve and pay taxes for. Enough is enough; please open up the Little Suamico Town Hall so we have normal full access to our town that the citizens of Little Suamico deserve.

It's the summer of the hydrangea

My favorite flowering shrubs of the summer season are the beautiful, lush hydrangeas that fill our landscapes and gardens with their billowy blooms and elegant form. A must-have for every garden and providing a long bloom season from July all the way through Halloween, hydrangeas come in many forms, colors and sizes. Chances are there's a hydrangea for every spot in your yard and garden.

ROB ZIMMER

While garden centers are filled with colorful hydrangeas during the spring gardening season, it is important to do your research and select varieties that will grow here in our area. Many of those sold at garden centers are not reliably hardy here in northern Wisconsin. Visit a reputable, local nursery or garden center to select your hydrangea varieties. The ones covered in this column are perfect for our area.

Hydrangeas come in five basic types, or forms. There are the smooth hydrangeas, such as the ever popular Annabelle. These are normally lush, mophead varieties.

There are panicle hydrangeas, or those that resemble cones or pyramids in bloom. Many popular hydrangeas for our area are panicles.

Big leaf hydrangeas are the ones that are often tricky to overwinter here in our area. This includes the popular Endless Summer series and many others. Special care needs to be taken with these plants over the winter season.

Climbing hydrangeas are lush, woody vines that can grow quite large and feature massive, white, lace cap blooms.

Oakleaf hydrangeas are also touchy here in our area but provide fascinating foliage that is especially colorful during fall. Many people grow oakleaf hydrangeas for the foliage alone, not caring if the plant blooms or not.

Hydrangeas in the Annabelle series or smooth hydrangeas are quite simple to grow in our area. Many of these require a bit of shade, so be sure to site accordingly. Research online or follow the directions on the plant tag. Smooth hydrangeas come in more than white. There are many varieties that are pink, even reddish in color. Some of my favorite smooth hydrangeas are Mini Mauvette, that blooms in reddish pink, Incrediball, Incrediball Blush, Invincibelle Spirit, Garnetta and Limetta.

Twist and Shout is a big leaf hydrangea that requires a bit of extra care here in our area.

ROB ZIMMER

The panicle hydrangeas are becoming the most popular variety of hydrangeas in our area. This group of hydrangeas includes the highly popular Limelight, as well as Pinky Winky, Quick Fire, Vanilla Strawberry, Bobo, Little Lime, Firelight, Diamond Rouge and many more.

Panicle hydrangeas, along with smooth hydrangeas are the easiest to grow here in our area and require very little care. They bloom on newly formed wood each year, so can be cut back in fall or late winter to about 1 foot in height. I recommend allowing the beautiful flower heads to remain standing all winter, because they look amazing when tufted with fresh snow.

Most panicle hydrangeas transform through several color phases throughout the season. Panicle hydrangea start out creamy white or lime green, then gradually turn pink, even red throughout summer and fall. By September and October, many of these hydrangeas are a deep, rich red in color.

Big leaf hydrangeas are the tricky ones to grow here in our area. This is because they bloom on old wood each year, the branches that were formed in the previous season. If you cut them back, or if they freeze off during the winter, then you will get lots of leaves the following year but very few blooms. For this reason, it is important to protect the entire plant, stems and all, over the winter season. Many gardeners have found the best success by simply digging the plant up overwinter and storing it in an unheated basement or garage where temperatures won't fall severely during winter.

Big leaf hydrangeas include the Endless Summer series, as well as Cherry Explosion and others. Again, take care with these plants. Even though the root systems are hardy here, the flowering branches and buds must be protected gea will bloom on both new and old wood, making them a better choice for our area since they will still bloom even if the flower buds on old wood have frozen off.

Climbing hydrangeas are popular for large spaces since they grow quite extensively. Often, we see them creeping up the sides of silos and barns.

Often, gardeners assume that hydrangea color can be changed by altering the pH of the soil. While this is nice in theory, in reality it rarely works. While chemicals are sold that can be added to the soil, it generally is never enough to fully transform the color. Additionally, this process only works on certain big leaf hydrangeas. It will not work on smooth hydrangeas or panicle hydrangeas as the colors they bloom in are their permanent color. Don't be taken by this gimmick.

Enjoy the summer of the hydrangea.

Signs of emerald ash borer in Shawano County

The first confirmed report of emerald ash borer for the county occurred in the city of Shawano last summer. Since then, there has not been any other confirmed reports to the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection within the county.

KIMBERLY SCHMIDT

You can stay up to date with Wisconsin Emerald Ash Borer (EAB) Detections Look-Up Tool found at <http://datcp-services.wisconsin.gov/eab/index.jsp>.

The confirmed presence of emerald ash borer in the county means homeowners of ash trees should be aware of what the emerald ash borer looks like. As adults they are small, only 3/8- to 1/2-inch long and 1/16-inch wide, metallic green beetles. They emerge from late May to mid-July and live for 3-6 weeks, so they may be visible on ash trees now. There are some insects that look similar, such as the blister beetle, so confirmation before treatments are done is recommended.

In addition to finding adult beetles, decline of ash trees can be an indication that further investigation is needed. It takes years for emerald ash borer to kill an ash tree. Before it dies, it will show signs of decline, such as canopy thinning and crown dieback, sprouting shoots at the base of the trunk or on main branches, or woodpecker damage. These signs of decline are not just specific to emerald ash borer but can be clues to investigate further.

Other signs to look for is the damage created by the emerald ash borer. Larvae, which are cream-colored with bell-shaped body segments, cause the most damage to ash trees by feeding on the cambial layer. While feeding on the cambial layer, they create distinct S-shaped tunnels or galleries under the bark. When large amounts of these galleries occur, the cambial layer becomes too damaged to transport water and nutrients through the tree.

When adult emerald ash borers finish maturing, they emerge from the bark, creating distinct D-shaped holes. Visit <https://eab.russell.wisc.edu/> or <http://www.emeraldashborer.info/index.php> for information on identifying emerald ash borers. If you

Emerald ash borers have been spotted in the city of Shawano. Property owners of ash trees will need to keep an eye out for the invasive species.

CONTRIBUTED

suspect you have emerald ash borer, please contact the EAB Hotline at 800-462-2803 for confirmation.

Homeowners with ash trees may want to treat their trees for emerald ash borer. However, there are some considerations. Currently, insecticide treatments for emerald ash borer are suggested only for ash trees located within 15 miles of a confirmed site, or for trees located within a quarantined area. That does not mean that all ash trees should receive treatment. Homeowners need to determine if the ash tree is valuable enough to justify insecticide treatments.

Things to consider are the overall health of the tree and its contribution to the property's landscape as well as others. A tree that is infested with emerald ash borer should not be treated when the canopy has thinning greater than 50%. The Extension fact sheet "Is My Ash Tree Worth Treating for Emerald Ash Borer?" gives detailed information and can be found at https:// eab.russell.wisc.edu/eab-news-and-resources/#Management\_Factsheets.

There are insecticides available to homeowners to use to treat emerald ash borer. When using insecticides, read and follow all label directions. Depending on the circumstances such as the size of the tree, a homeowner may want to work with a professional, due to their access to specialized equipment and insecticides that are not available to the general public.

More information on insecticide treatments available to homeowners can be found in the Extension fact sheet "Homeowner Guide to Emerald Ash Borer Insecticide Treatments" at https://eab.russell.wisc.edu/eab-news-and-resources/#Management\_Factsheets.

Homeowners can also remove ash trees, healthy or declining. If this is the option a homeowner chooses, properly managing the infested wood is important to preventing the spread. It is an option to work with a certified arborist and have them handle the removal of the tree and proper processing of the wood.

The Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection also has a document discussing how to properly use ash wood titled "Ash Wood Processing Options for the Homeowner," which is posted on <https://eab.russell.wisc.edu/considerations-for-homeowners>. Firewood is strongly recommended to be burned in the county it originates in to help prevent not only the spread of emerald ash borer but other invasive species as well.

If you are interested in hard copies of these fact sheets, they are available at the Shawano County Extension Office at the Shawano County Courthouse, Room 109, 311 N. Main St., Shawano. Owners of woodlots and forested areas should consult a DNR forester to develop a plan to help lessen the impacts of emerald ash borer.

County jail staff could see pay increase

Use of ARPA funds will require county board to come up with future plans

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Workers with the Shawano County Jail could see a significant pay hike in their future in the hopes of halting the high turnover at the facility, even though county officials see the action as a Band-Aid for solving a long-term issue.

The county's public safety and executive committees met separately on July 22 and voted to recommend a $3 pay hike across the board for corrections officers, jail sergeants, cooks and other lower-echelon staffers, with the money expected to come from the federal American Rescue Plan Act. The county has received almost $4 million in ARPA funds this year and is expected to receive a similar amount in the future, and the jail pay is expected to cost the county over $750,000 in that time period.

However, that funding is only available to the county through the end of 2024, which is going to require a plan to figure out what to do in three years' time. Counties are subject to spending caps by the state, so Shawano County cannot merely raise local taxes to provide workers with a fair wage, according to County Board Chairman Tom Kautza.

While the pay issue is common with almost all departments with the county, it's more pronounced with the jail because of the public safety factor, according to Chief Deputy George Lenzner.

"We're losing employees. It started during COVID, and one of the big problems is finding people to even hire when you're losing employees," Lenzner said. "It's pretty common to lose employees at the jail, but now it's going up more. We're losing our local people who live in the community."

Lenzner noted that it's not just losing employees to other counties. Recently, corrections officers have found better pay or the same pay and better scheduling working at Walmart, Charlie's County Market, Torborg's and other private-sector businesses. Lenzner told the public safety committee that one corrections officer recently left to work for Calumet County because he would get $15,000 more annually there.

Many of the corrections officers remaining are quickly burning out as many of them are working 18-hour shifts, according to Lenzner. With the corrections officers, county policy dictates that overtime doesn't kick in until they have worked 86 hours in the 14-day pay period.

"There are a couple of officers that are looking for jobs because now what's happening is you're getting low staff," Lenzner said. "The jail has to meet that magic number, and so it depends what their schedule is. They may work 18 hours, and then six hours later, they have to be back to work. It's starting to burn people out."

The $3 pay increase is expected to bring the wages in line with the starting pay for corrections officers. According to Kautza, Shawano County's starting pay is $17.95 per hour for corrections officers, while Marinette County starts at $19.94 and Oconto County offers $20.57.

"They can leave here, if they're fully trained and go to Oconto, which will start them out at $22 because they're already trained," Kautza said.

Hiring people is still a factor, Lenzner noted. He said the sheriff's department had at least eight applicants lined up for potential interviews, but only two have confirmed.

The department has made offers to prospective employees only to be turned down because they found other jobs. That's from the ones who have called Lenzner and other officials back, he said, adding that oftentimes potential hires will ghost him — not call back at all.

"For some reason, people do not want to work right now," Lenzner said.

The alternative to not raising wages would be to farm out inmates to other county jails, but that is expected to cost Shawano County more in the long run, according to Lenzner. At the cost of $135 per day, the county could pay $100,000 annually to other jails holding Shawano County prisoners.

FYI

The pay increase for Shawano County Jail employees still requires county board approval, but the board was scheduled to meet after the Enterprise-News went to press. Visit www.newmedia-wi.com for an update on this story.

"That's a huge cost to the county," Lenzner said. "I can't just throw in patrol officers to work in the jail because they're not certified jailors. Plus, there wouldn't be anyone left to work on the road, right now, as we had a lot of turnover with traffic this spring, too."

Lenzner noted the jail is holding more inmates than normal due to the pandemic freezing the county's ability to have jury trials for more than a year.

"They're not happy because they've been in there longer than most of them expected and what we expected," Lenzner said. "They take it out on the corrections officers."

Kautza pointed out that county supervisors will need to knuckle down and re-evaluate priorities across all departments, because the county cannot provide current services indefinitely without other revenue sources.

"We can do this for a couple of years until we do a revamping of the whole county," Kautza said. "The whole county has to be looked at, and we've got to get back to a few of the basics and concentrate on doing that."

Supervisor Mark Bolin urged the public safety committee to move quickly to come up with a plan that will sustain the jail and other departments beyond 2024.

"The fact of the matter is the can has been kicked down the road for years, and it's come to a head," Bolin said. "We've got a serious freaking problem, so let's just deal with it and take care of it."

The overtime issue is expected to be resolved by the public safety committee in August.

Stubborn Brothers beer sales help volunteers

Every Hometown Hero American ale sold donates $1 to volunteer first responders

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

A new beer is taking over Stubborn Brothers Brewery in Shawano.

The Hometown Hero American ale has become a new staple for the brewery. What separates this ale from the others at the brewery is that every beer that is sold sees $1 go towards volunteer first responders. The money goes to helping them, whether it be for equipment, staffing or budgeting issues.

"We wanted to do our best to help those in the community that help others," said Stubborn Brothers co-owner Aaron Gilling. "We want to honor those who may be underappreciated and undervalued."

Gilling said that the gluten-reduced, light ale has been selling very fast.

"We have sold about 80 gallons in the last week," said Gilling.

With the ale now being part of the selection of beers to drink, Gilling said that Stubborn Brothers Brewery has been packed to the gills. He said though, that the inclusion of the ale was not a marketing tactic to bring more people in, but a strategy to show recognition and help those that play a major part in the community.

"This was not a marketing ploy," said Gilling. "This is not about increasing our business, but rather about supporting those individuals in the community."

With the high amounts of beer that are selling, Gilling said that employees at the brewery will continue to make more of the ale.

He said that the money that is being made and donated to local volunteer organizations will alternate as weeks go by. Right now the proceeds are going to the volunteer fire fighters, but Gilling plans to also include other emergencies services like the search and rescue team, the EMS employees and law enforcement.

Gilling believes that offering this ale and the money that goes to the groups is a positive in for the Shawano community.

"We are lucky to be able to tie our beer into good deeds," said Gilling. "This is good for the Shawano community as a whole."

He said that the public reaction has been very positive as customers have enjoyed the light taste of the ale, as well as have enjoyed donating to a good cause.

"We wanted to do our best to help those in the community that help others."

AARON GILLING

According to Gilling, accounts in Wausau and Green Bay, who have been selling the beer have been constantly asking for half barrels of the ale as they want to donate as well.

In a Facebook post promoting the ale, Gilling urged other businesses in Marion, Green Bay, Clintonville and New London to match his donation of $1,500 to the local volunteers.

All together, Gilling said that he wanted to be able to help those who help others in the community, and he found it appropriate to do so through the ale.

"I am very fortunate to be able to help others," said Gilling. "It is great to have people drink a good beer that goes to a good cause. It is important that we are making our community stronger by helping out those that are in need."

The new Hometown Hero American ale is available at Stubborn Brothers Brewery. Every beer that is sold sees $1 donated to local first responders.
