Wittenberg board approves plan for Little League field

Youth baseball officials now waiting on clearance from DNR

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

The Wittenberg Village Board on Jan. 6 unanimously approved a request to move forward with plans to construct a new Little League baseball field in the village.

With a recent influx of kids who are playing Little League, officials are struggling to find a field that suits all of the teams. Several teams currently use the existing Little League field — including the American Legion teams, BABA and high school teams. With all of the teams using the field, scheduling games and practices for Little League has become difficult.

“We had a lady go ahead and develop a field next to the field that we have right now,” said Little League A Team coach Nick Davis. “We took measurements and pictures and spent some design time down there.”

Davis came to the board in hopes of getting the village’s approval of installing a new field next to the existing one.

“We have enough room to put a Little League field with the standard dimensions,” said Davis. “There is enough room for a park and a new concession area.”

He added that the officials do have sponsors lined up to help with costs.

“We have a local bar who has experience with this,” said Davis. “He would host four meat raffles throughout the season, including a gun raffle.”

Davis said he does not believe raising the money would be an issue. He added that Jacob’s Trucking (from Antigo) would help to remove trees and put gravel down in the area.

Board trustee Barb Buchholz wanted clarification if the village would still own the field.

“What is going on, is that we are struggling for field time,” Davis said. “So we are just looking at using the 10 acres for the field.”

Davis said that a new concession stand would be placed next to the existing field.

“It would be straight to the east of the existing field, so that it would be easier to tie the pipes in,” said Davis.

He said that Drexel Builders would put together a plan for everything after the village has OK’d the proposal.

Board president Bill Switalla asked Davis if any of the land contains wetlands.

“When I called the county, they said no,” said Davis. “They told me that the township owns it, not the village.”

Switalla responded that the property is in the town, but the village owns it.

Board trustee Paul Yaeger asked what the village would have to pay for the field.

“Whatever you can give,” responded Davis. “I think that we can get enough — we have enough local businesses. I have a quote in for fencing, I have a quote in for gravel. We are going to go out and attack people for dugout and concession sponsorships. We will go out and raise the money.”

Yaeger said that the budget for 2022 is already finalized and passed.

“If you are looking for permission for the property, that is easy to do,” said Yaeger. “It’s our portion of the finances that would be more difficult until the next budget.”

Davis said that the lack of parks in Wittenberg attributes to why a new field needs to be constructed.

“I was talking to the softball team, and they have nowhere to practice half of the time,” said Davis. “We are about four or five baseball/softball parks short right now for everyone to operate smoothly.”

He said that he wanted to break ground as soon as possible.

“We should be able to co-op with light poles,” said Davis. “We are not starting from scratch. Plumbing and water is in.”

Board trustee David Timm asked whether Little League officials had talked with officials in surrounding areas, like Elderon, about using their fields.

“The problem is that kids need to walk to the field,” said Davis. “Mom or Dad aren’t home or are working or whatever.”

Switalla said that Davis and other Little League officials would need clearance from the DNR to move forward with the project.

Trespassing an issue for hunting land owners

Shawano County can't honor request to sell public land

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

The Shawano County public property committee told a Bowler area landowner Jan. 4 that the county can't sell some of its public-access land to him to address hunters trespassing on his adjacent property.

Trevor Floren recently contacted the county to discuss people hunting on his family's land.

"We have 100 acres north of the public property off of County Road D," said Floren.

He said that he and his family heard a gunshot when they were hunting on their land three years ago. After investigating it, they realized that people were wandering off the public land onto their private land.

"We are worried about the unknown shooting coming from the land," Floren said. "We just want to know what is going on and make sure that everyone is safe."

Floren pointed to another example when he was flashed in the face on opening day last year.

"I was walking out at twilight, when I had a flashlight shined in my face," said Floren.

He said that he found two cars and, overall, has caught five people over the last couple of years.

"Our property is properly marked," said Floren. "We have markers up every 30 feet."

He said he and his in-laws have been hunting on the land for more than 30 years.

"Hunters this season have been a bit more aggressive in trespassing, and it is getting tiresome," wrote Floren in his message to Shawano County.

Floren called this situation frustrating and said that others he has talked to have run into the same problem.

"I know that people rely on hunting for meat," said Floren. "It is not fun to police hunting."

He reached out to Shawano County to see if they had any ideas on how to help the situation.

"It is not fun to be the one patrolling this," he added.

County officials told Floren they cannot sell the land because it was purchased with money obtained through the state Department of Natural Resources.

"The DNR won't let us sell the land, unless we purchase additional land to provide the public access," said Shawano County Building Maintenance Manager Steve Dreher in a response to Floren.

The public property committee voted not to entertain selling the land.

Floren said that he understood the county's response and just wanted the county to be aware of what was happening.

"I don't have any solutions but just want to make sure that everyone is safe and has a good time hunting," he said.

Omicron variant taxing Shawano hospital, others

ThedaCare getting creative, implementing new triage system

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

The omicron variant of COVID-19 is taxing hospital systems in northeast Wisconsin and Shawano's in particular, but steps are being taken to keep the systems from breaking down completely.

Lynn Detterman, senior vice president of ThedaCare's south region, said in a Zoom news conference Jan. 10 with officials from Aurora and other health care systems in the Appleton area that the medical center in Shawano is seeing an increase in the number of COVID-19 cases admitted to the hospital and noted that surges in cases tend to hit Shawano a few days before the facilities in the Fox Valley.

"The challenge is there are no beds for those patients to transfer to," Detterman said. "Shawano is getting really creative and implementing a new triage system in the ED (emergency department)."

Under the triage system, according to Detterman, those with a lower acuity for having COVID-19 could be sent to other locations for services, like an urgent care facility or a primary doctor's office.

"Only the sickest will be seen in our emergency department, but there is a struggle in Shawano for beds," Detterman said. "We have so many beds, and we are backing up (patients) into the emergency department."

Hospital systems in Wisconsin are reporting that 91% of hospital beds are filled as of early this week, and 95% of intensive care beds are filled. According to Detterman, officials with Shawano's and Neenah's ThedaCare facilities have been in communication constantly to see if beds are available should the Shawano hospital fill up completely. She said there have been times when patients are "boarded" in the emergency department, meaning they take up a bed there because there is not a regular bed available.

"It is a challenge because everyone is full," Detterman said. "Hopefully, these steps will alleviate the emergency department and get people in the right place of care."

Frank Mellon, ThedaCare senior innovation executive, expects that the region will see 2,000 confirmed cases of COVID-19 per day by Jan. 17 with the omicron variant, much higher than the 700-800 cases per day with the delta variant. He noted that the omicron variant is not as dangerous, but it still impacts hospital systems in that the length of the hospital stay is shorter — three to four days compared on average compared to the eight to 10-day average when the delta variant was dominating.

"The length of stay is shorter, so they're putting different kinds of pressure on the system," Mellon said. "It will affect far more people in our region; up to 50% of the people could end getting omicron if the predictions hold true."

Statistics have shown that one in 20 cases of COVID-19 require hospitalization, with one in 100 being fatal, according to Detterman. As a result, those who have to go to the hospital for reasons other than COVID-19 are being impacted.

"Our hospitals are full, and our wait times are long," Detterman said. "This is coupled with the challenge of the labor shortage that we have across the country, and health care is even more prevalent in that labor shortage because people have been leaving health care over the last two years. Some have retired, and some have chosen different careers, and so that challenge, in addition to the demand on services, is really creating these issues for us."

The challenge with the omicron variant is that it is much more transmissible than the other variants. Tom Nichols, regional chief medical officer for Ascension Wisconsin, said at the news conference that one person with the omicron variant could infect up to 10 other people, compared with one or two other people with previous versions of COVID-19.

As a result of the impact on hospitals and emergency departments, health officials are urging people not to go to those places for simple testing.

"If you have mild symptoms, please don't go to the emergency room for that," Nichols said. "We have primary care physicians, we have urgent care clinics and we have pharmacies like CVS and Walgreens."

OBITUARIES

Ronald E. Waloway

Ronald E. "Chummy" Waloway, 84, of Marinette, passed away Wednesday, Dec. 29, 2021, at Aurora Medical Center-Bay Area. He was born April 19, 1937, in Menominee to Emil and Virginia (Lemire) Waloway. His early life was spent on the family's Town of Peshtigo farm on Shore Drive, where he attended the Little Red School House. Ron graduated from Marinette High School with the Class of 1956. He later served his country for four years in the United States Air Force.

Returning to Marinette, Ron's early employment was with Scott Paper Co. and Waupaca Foundry. For many years he worked as an independent telecommunications contractor with major telephone companies and also regional telephone companies in Wittenberg and Niagara.

Ron was a devoted husband, father and grandfather as well as a great friend to many! He enjoyed spending time with his family and making lots of unforgettable memories. He will be remembered for his love of fishing, watching Westerns and Packer games and as a devoted dog owner. Ron had a contagious smile, great sense of humor and many stories to share.

He was a member of Bethel Lutheran Church in Menominee.

Ron married the former Linda Jorgensen on Oct. 25, 1986. She survives along with children, Scott (Debbie) Waloway, Tracey (Harvey) Nielsen, Chris Waloway, Amy (Mike) Bergfelt and Jeff (Monika) Waloway; nine grandchildren, Katelyn (Michael), Mikey (Alexis), Sarah, Nick (Monica), Kala, Mackenzie, Madelyn, Libby and Vivien; four great-grandchildren, Caio, Lillian, Vincent, Jaxon and one on the way; one sister, Susie Chernetski, of Green Bay; brothers, Rich (Phyllis) Waloway and Ralph Waloway, both of Marinette, and Roger (Ya Ping) Waloway, of De Pere; many nieces and nephews; and brothers- and sisters-in-law in the Jorgensen family, Susan LeClaire, Louis (Carl) Anderson, Nancy (Paul) Pehlke and Richard Jorgensen.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Emil and Virginia Waloway; his stepmother, Mary; grandparents; one sister, Nancy Hayward; brothers, Robert and Russell Waloway; a brother-in-law, Bob LeClaire; and mother- and father-in-law, Rachel and Vernon Jorgensen.

A memorial service was held Thursday, Jan. 6, 2022, at Bethel Lutheran Church in Menominee. The Rev. Scott Ehle officiated.

See ya' later, Chummy.

Hansen-Onion-Martell funeral home is assisting the family.

Roger L. Flaig

Roger Louis Flaig, 81, Green Bay, passed away Monday, Jan. 3, 2022. He was born on March 1, 1940, in the Town of Belle Plaine to Edward and Elizabeth (Kleman) Flaig. His mother passed at an early age and Edward remarried Emily Weller.

After graduating from Shawano High School, Roger joined the U.S. Army Reserves, serving from November 1959 to 1965, achieving the rank of staff sergeant. On Oct. 7, 1961, he married Donna Weller at St. Joseph Catholic Church in Galloway. In 1959, he started working at F. Hurlbut Co. for 48 years, retiring as a payloader from Great Lakes Calcium.

Roger enjoyed deer hunting, going to the cottage and taking care of the land. He was a hard worker, having planted thousands of trees to keep the land viable. He also enjoyed teaching local children how to take care of the forest.

He loved John Deere tractors. Roger was a huge Packers fan and he relished the stadium atmosphere as he ushered for their games.

Roger was dedicated to his family. His only goal was to make sure they were cared for. He loved his grandchildren and deeply cherished the time he spent with them.

Survivors include his wife, Donna; children, Robert (Kelly) Flaig, Michael (Debbie) Flaig, Daniel (Katie) Flaig and Karen (Joseph) Foss; grandchildren, Cierrah (Alex) Prunty, Somer

(Thomas) Kern, Shane Flaig, Camden Flaig, Michael Flaig, Anthony (Christine) Flaig, Jacob Flaig, Matthew Flaig, Adam Flaig, Leah Foss, Logan Foss, Tony (Amanda) Meissner, Jamie Haffeman (Rich Ellman) Jennifer Haffeman (Terry Lee) and Elizabeth (Marshall) Cohen; great-grandchildren, Thea, Lauren, Michael, Gabrielle, Cora, Emma, Lily, Ruby, Bryce, Kenlee, Jakk, Evelyn, Kennedy, Brennan, Nasya, Moshe and Hadassah; in-laws, Frank Ferguson, Ruth Flaig and Pilar Flaig; and numerous nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his parents; and siblings, Gordon (Bette) Flaig, Evelyn Oman, Jim (Delores) Flaig, Alvin Flaig, Marcella (Frank) Cheyka, and Howard Flaig.

Visitation will be at Fort Howard Memorial Park Chapel, 1350 North Military Ave., from 9-a.m. Friday, Jan. 7, and will be followed by the funeral service at 11 a.m. Entombment will be in Fort Howard Memorial Park.

To send online condolences, please go to www.BlaneyFuneralHome.com.

A special thank you is extended to the staff of Unity Hospice for their compassionate care and all his family for their visits to ensure Roger could stay at home.

Christine E. Okerlund

Christine E. Okerlund, 74, of Shawano, formerly of Wittenberg, died on Wednesday, Jan. 5, 2022, at Kindred Hearts in Shawano.

Christine was born Nov. 12, 1947, in Milwaukee, the daughter of William and Janet (Vincent) Okerlund.

Christine was a counselor and a cook at the Ho-Chunk Elder Center for many years. She enjoyed crafts but had a talent for making birch bark baskets, with some of her baskets being displayed in the Smithsonian. Christine loved spending time with her family.

Christine is survived by one son, Kawa-She-Quoen "Kash" (Helen) Okerlund, of Wittenberg; three grandchildren, Cassandra (Zach) Wendler, Taylor (Carolina) Okerlund and Parker Okerlund; two great-grandchildren, Charlotte and Valentina; five siblings, Gail (Rich) Wojcik, of Glendale, Bill Okerlund, of Katy, Texas, Mary Okerlund, James Okerlund and Kathleen Okerlund, all of Milwaukee, and many nieces, nephews, other relatives and friends.

Gresham school goes back to mask mandate

Board to look at new plan that would require masks at certain number of cases reached

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

The issue of whether masks should be required in Gresham Community School divided the Gresham School Board on Jan. 10, but a new mandate was put into place for at least two weeks.

Originally, board members who sought the mandate wanted to put it into effect for at least six weeks, through Feb. 21. The measure, however, saw pushback from other members of the board, community members and even the staff, with some expressing disappointment that such action was being taken — even though there was clear consensus from local and state health officials that the Christmas break and family gatherings caused the sudden spike in cases throughout Wisconsin last week.

Instead, the board voted 5-2 to require masks through Jan. 24, when the next board meeting is scheduled to take place, and the board will look at recommendations presented by Superintendent Newell Haffner to establish benchmarks for when to mask or not mask.

Board member Marge Eberhard said her intent on having the mandate go into February was to allow for establishing a pattern of a downward trend in COVID-19 cases. She felt it was necessary to keep the school open and prevent it from having to go to virtual learning, a setup that has been made very difficult for rural school districts where broadband internet access is at a premium.

"In two weeks, we may see a decrease or an increase, but we won't see a pattern," Eberhard said. "I chose the period of time to continue seeing decreasing cases and quarantines."

The latest COVID-19 statistics from the school show 12 active cases last week, with 25 total students and staff being quarantined. The week before, the district recorded four positive cases but didn't record quarantines because the school was on break for the holidays.

Board member Joe Ejnik, who voted against mandates both on Jan. 10 and back in September when the board initially voted to require masks, accused board members of hitting the panic button, noting that the omicron variant is being described as more transmissible but less lethal than other strains of COVID-19. He also noted recent reports that showed the cloth masks many were wearing at the meeting were "useless" against stopping the spread of the virus and that the school would need to invest in N95 masks for the requirement to have any real effect.

"If you look at the (Wisconsin) Department of Health Services and the flow charts, they mimic each other (whether masked or unmasked) except for little blips for all the schools that are optional," Ejnik said. "We just keep doing circles right now. Are we going to set exceptions for policy from now on, or are we going to set them on what we were put here to do? If we're going to set them on exceptions, to me that ain't right, because then we're taking the few and abusing our power."

Haffner, who was speaking to the board remotely after testing positive for COVID-19, noted that the big increase in positive numbers was "screwy" because the cases were mainly confined to two large families in the area. He expressed concern that requiring masks would hurt morale at the school, noting that at least 80% of students and most of the staff chucked the masks once they were no longer required.

"How can we force this stuff on them anymore?" Haffner said. "I did what I was supposed to, and I still got it, so we're not going to stop it right now (with masking)."

Haffner plans to present a plan where the requirement to mask or not mask can be set weekly dependent on the percentage of students and staff confirmed to be positive for COVID-19. He noted 1% would constitute four cases, while seven cases would be at 2%. It will be up to the board where to set the benchmark.

Shawano School District implemented something similar earlier in the year, although the benchmarks were specific numbers of students and not percentages. For elementary and middle schools, there would have to be at least five positive cases to require masking in the school, and nine cases to require it at the high school.

Gresham parent Ethan Schmidt

chastised the board for going back on action taken in November to follow the Centers for Disease Control guidelines, which still "recommend" masks be worn in indoor spaces, especially where there are large groups. To suddenly decide to require masks seemed to be going back against what they'd promised.

"What we're doing here at school isn't the problem," Schmidt said. "It's what happens outside this building. I think the board needs to come to the realization that COVID is not going to go away once everyone is vaccinated or herd immunity is here. It's here to stay like the flu. You, the board, need to prepare for how we can move forward and not when something happens run back to masks or the second agenda item, which is virtual meetings."

The board took no action on going to virtual meetings, with board members believing the distancing measures in the school gymnasium were sufficient to keep board meetings in person.

School district makes case on facility needs

Officials hope community survey will provide input on where to go with school improvements

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

The Shawano School District is facing declining enrollment, which means declining revenues, at a time when it is also having to catch up on deferred maintenance and expand facilities that are decades old.

District officials made their case Jan. 11 to a group of community members at Shawano City Hall, showing how enrollment could dip below 2,000 students in the next few years, but there are also maintenance needs that could cost the district in excess of $26 million. Also, plans to improve fine arts and athletic facilities at Shawano Community High School are looking to be revived by the district, coming with their own price tag.

"We still have some significant needs on both the fine arts and the athletic sides of the house that need to be addressed," Superintendent Randi Anderson said at the town hall meeting.

A community survey is expected to go out later this month, with plans to present strategies and priorities around the end of March. Those plans could include ambitious fundraisers, or they could include a future referendum to take care of the needs.

"It is imperative that a school district be fiscally responsible to the taxpayers. That is a number one priority as we continue to move forward," Anderson said. "Just as you have a plan as a homeowner that says, 'You know, my home is 10-15 years old. I probably need to look at shingle replacement, right?' and you have a conversation about how you're going to budget that. It's a significant cost. The same thing for the school district, we need to have a long-range facility plan."

The Shawano School District has lost more than 200 students in enrollment in the last few years, in some cases due to fewer students enrolling due to fewer births from families in the area, but also due to school voucher programs helping more families get education through private schools. According to Anderson, the enrollment numbers dropping at Shawano Community Middle School could impact Shawano Community High School in the next four years, dropping total numbers of graduates.

Total enrollment is expected to continue to drop in the next 10 years, with the numbers projected to dip below 2,000 in half that time.

Christopher Kent, Shawano Community High School band director, shows an image of costumes taking up space in the scene shop at the school during a town hall meeting Jan. 11 at Shawano City Hall. The issue is one of many the district is dealing with as it tries to determine where to go with its schools in the future.

The district got a jolt on how deferred maintenance could cost it down the road in 2021 when the middle school's wastewater system had to be overhauled because water was starting to damage its basements and foundations, according to Josh Swanson, the district's finance director. The district can no longer wait for things to break down to take action, he said.

"We can't be waiting for water in the basement to fix the sump pump, or we can't wait for water to leak from the roof to fix that," Swanson said.

There are an estimated $26 million in maintenance projects expected in the next 10 years, much of that going to SCHS, which was built 25 years ago and has a lot of amenities reaching their end of life, according to Swanson. However, the district's annual maintenance budget is $2 million, and that includes a lot of the basics like cleaning schools, removing snow from parking lots and sidewalks, and mowing grass.

District officials touted how amazing a lot of the high school programs are, but the facilities that have been housing these programs are starting to crumble and run out of space, even as the number of students drops.

Among some of the athletic improvements at SCHS are fixes at the football fields, including the bleachers, which are no longer compliant with the Americans with Disabilities Act, according to activities director Joel Wondra. Also, the scoreboard is failing, at times during games, and an outdated press box and facelift plans for the concession stand and restrooms are also needs the high school faces.

The weight room is outdated and can no longer accommodate the number of athletes who use the facility. Equipment is being stored in hallways. The wrestling program has experienced growth, but the room where wrestlers practice is now too small for everyone to practice at once.

Over on the fine arts side, storage is also an issue, with items being stored in hallways and practice rooms. A scene shop where flats and other scene equipment used to be built now houses costumes because there is no other place to store them, and now scene building has to take place elsewhere in the school, which is inconvenient, according to the school's band director, Christopher Kent.

Kent pointed out that the fine arts and athletics not only help to tap into student talents, but they create memories that last a lifetime.

"Whether it's athletics or it's one of the fine arts, it doesn't matter. They're life-changing for many of the students that we encounter," Kent said.

The big question the district is grappling with is how to fund maintenance needs and future facility improvements when the loss of a single student cuts $10,000 in state funding from the school. Anderson and her colleagues with the district are hoping that the community survey will provide the solution.

"We really need to hear from the community in the next three months," Anderson said. "We have a lot of opportunity."

Woman held in shooting incident at estranged husband's house

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

Bond was set at $500,000 on Jan. 7 for a former Tigerton area woman accused of shooting her estranged husband in the leg during an argument over another woman.

Tina L. McCandless, 48, of Menasha, was charged with attempted first-degree homicide and first-degree recklessly endangerment in connection with the Jan. 4 incident at her husband's home on Dent Creek Road in the Town of Morris.

Judge Katherine Sloma adjourned McCandless' initial appearance until 1:30 p.m. Jan. 19.

According to the criminal complaint, officers were called to Mark A. McCandless' home at 12:36 a.m. Jan. 4 on a report that shots had been fired and an individual was wounded in the leg. The responding officer found the couple across from each other with a .22 caliber pistol on a living room table.

Mark McCandless said they had gone out for drinks, and then Tina left to go back to Menasha, where she was staying with family. Later he woke up to find her holding the pistol, and she told him to put his wedding ring back on. When he declined because the marriage is over, she fired off a round, the complaint said.

The court document said she then chased him through the house, occasionally firing the pistol, and one of the bullets struck him in the calf. At one point, he grabbed for the weapon and they struggled, and he was able to restrain her long enough to call police, the complaint said.

The gun was registered in Mark McCandless' name, and at first Tina claimed self-defense, telling the investigator that he had the gun and it went off as they struggled, but the location of the spent casings — officers found more than a half-dozen rounds scattered around the house — lent credence to his version of events.

Online court documents indicate that the couple filed for divorce at the end of October, and a stipulated divorce hearing is scheduled for March 15. The complaint indicates that Tina McCandless had just found out her estranged husband has begun dating another woman.

DNR's Winter Free Fishing Weekend is Jan. 15-16

The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources is hosting Winter Free Fishing Weekend Jan. 15-16 to share the fun and excitement of winter fishing. No fishing license or trout and salmon stamps are required.

Anglers can fish state waters where there is an open season. All other fishing regulations (<https://dnr.wisconsin.gov/topic/fishing/regulations>) apply, such as limits on the number and size of fish you can keep and any seasons when you must release certain fish species.

Anglers cannot fish spring trout ponds during the Winter Free Fishing Weekend. Review the trout regulations (<https://dnr.wisconsin.gov/topic/Fishing/regulations/troutregs.html>) and 2021-2022 hook and line regulations (<https://widnr.widen.net/s/xvldvfnblh/fishregselectronic2122>) for more information.

If you plan to keep your catch, be sure to review the DNR's Safe Eating Guidelines (<https://dnr.wisconsin.gov/topic/Fishing/consumption>) to stay informed of potential consumption advisories impacting some waterbodies throughout the state.

Patrons warm up with soup at library

Program first in a series of Friday events in January

By LUKE REIMER

Reporter

Visitors to the Shawano County Library had the opportunity to warm up as temperatures dipped below 20 degrees Jan. 7.

Library officials offered every patron a cup of Italian wedding soup as they entered the library.

"This is our January thaw," said library assistant Helen Rowinski. "We have soups available every Friday at 11:30 a.m. in January."

Librarian Paige Crawford said this is something the library likes to do for people in the area.

"It's just a nice thing for the community," said Crawford. "People can come in and kind of warm up with a cup of soup."

Crawford said that they have been hosting this event for the last few years.

"This has been pretty well-received in the past, so we want to keep it going," said Crawford.

This event is sponsored by Friends of the Library, which library director Kristie Hauer called a voluntary membership organization. "In that group, they just want to help make the library better."

She said that the group works on donations and grants from around the community for projects within the library.

"One of the big things that they fund are the programs in this library and the other five branches," said Hauer. "The January thaw is one example of the programs that the staff come up with and put together."

All told, library staff made enough soup in preparation to serve about 30 people.

"We usually have about 30 people per time that we host this," said Rowinski. "With us doing it every Friday in January, we are making a lot of soup."

As the staff has put this on for the last couple of years, it has become a part of some community members' routines.

"When we were shut down during the pandemic, we had a lot of people asking us what we are going to be doing with the soup," said Rowinski.

Rowinski said that people come in just for the soup, but even that is a step to getting more people into the library.

"They come in just for soup, but they have to walk by our bulletin boards and they can see what is going on," said Rowinski. "It may not be someone that comes in on a weekly basis, but just coming in for soup will get them to attend something else."

Hauer added that something like this also gives staff the opportunity to share other events that are happening.

"This is a good conversation piece for us," said Hauer. "We can talk about the soup with patrons and then mention our other programs as well."

The library will be serving Olive Garden's chicken gnocchi soup, tomato soup with grilled cheese croutons and vegetable wild rice soup in the coming weeks.

"This is great for us," said Rowinski. "We have a grand old time when we can do this."

Gallagher grilled by SCHS seniors

Students ask for answers on vaccine mandates, Build Back Better, tribal sovereignty

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

U.S. Rep. Mike Gallagher found himself under scrutiny Jan. 6 at Shawano Community High School as he visited the school to talk with the Class of 2022 and talk one-on-one with one of its members who will be going to the U.S. Naval Academy in the fall.

Jackson Smits was appointed to the academy by Gallagher, who had been in the U.S. Marine Corps before he decided to run for public office. Gallagher sat down with Smits for a closed-door session to talk about the academy, but before that, he talked civics with the senior class.

One of the first questions Gallagher fielded addressed remarks he had made on Fox Business News regarding the harmful effects of virtual learning and masking during the COVID-19 pandemic, and he was asked why he wasn't pushing for vaccine mandates. Gallagher said that he didn't feel it was the federal government's role to impose mandates, noting that he and his wife have both been vaccinated, and that he is pro-vaccine.

"As a constitutional matter, with the exception of the U.S. military, it is unconstitutional for the president and the federal government to impose a vaccine mandate," he said. "Joe Biden, as a candidate, said the same thing."

Gallagher added that there is Supreme Court case history that the states have the authority to impose mandates on vaccines and other matters. He said it should be up to state and local governments to decide if they're going to require vaccines for people to move about in public.

"In more concentrated urban areas, you can make a better case of it," Gallagher said. "In rural areas, I don't see the need for it."

He conceded that the vaccines reduce hospitalizations and deaths from COVID-19, but they don't stop the spread of variants like omicron and delta.

One student recalled when Gallagher visited Shawano Community Middle School five years ago, and when asked what the biggest problem in the United States was, he said it was the national debt. Gallagher said it's still the biggest problem today, but the dysfunction in Congress in addressing the issue was a key reason that it remains a huge issue.

U.S. Rep. Mike Gallagher answers a student's question Jan. 6 after a presentation in the auditorium at Shawano Community High School. Gallagher spoke to the senior class and sat down with one of its members who is going to the U.S. Naval Academy.

LEE PULASKI | NEW MEDIA

"The problem has gotten dramatically worse in the last four years, where we're now at $24-$28 trillion in debt, depending on how you look at it," Gallagher said. "At some point, we're going to have to pay back that debt. If you look at governments throughout history, the message is clear. Governments that can't keep their fiscal house in order tend to collapse."

He added that the United States is passing on a huge obligation to the seniors sitting in the auditorium and their children. Only by making hard choices can the debt be brought down, according to Gallagher.

The congressman also expressed his opposition to the Build Back Better plan being pushed by Biden, claiming it has a lot of divisive issues and only serves to increase the debt.

"There's a massive expansion of the role of the federal government in the health care system, a lot of counterproductive climate policies that won't help us win the race for clean technology moving forward, and just the creation of massive new federal bureaucracy at a time when we spent $2 trillion recently and $6 trillion total fighting COVID-19," Gallagher said, noting that the federal government just spent $2 trillion on a bipartisan infrastructure bill. "I fear this is going to make inflation worse and not solve our underlying problems."

Gallagher was asked to give his own solutions on dealing with climate change, to which he replied that the country should do more to address natural gas and its role in reducing emissions. He also recommended more be done to incorporate hydro and solar energy, but he also recommended looking at nuclear energy.

Another student pointed out that the Shawano area is on the border of the Menominee Reservation and asked Gallagher about his stance on the federal government and how it should respect tribal sovereignty. He replied that the federal government should not do anything that infringes on the tribes' rights to handle their own affairs.

"We have to honor those treaties, and I don't support any efforts to abrogate them," Gallagher said. "As a result, we have a unique arrangement. Sometimes we have to simultaneously respect tribal sovereignty as much as possible to respect those treaties while also making sure we have a productive relationship with the tribal government, the federal government and the state government."

Gallagher pointed to the Oneida Casino shooting in May 2021 as an example of that. While tribal police took the lead on the investigation, he said, the tribe worked closely with state and county law enforcement.

"The reason I have a good relationship with the tribes is because I'm very deferential to their sovereignty," Gallagher said, noting that Native American tribes have led the way on clean water issues.

However, there was one other question that Gallagher had to answer before leaving — what his favorite pizza is at Gallagher's Pizza in Green Bay, a company that's part of the family. He said he preferred something simple like thin crust pepperoni before launching an attack on pineapple.

"Don't put pineapple on your pizza," Gallagher said. "It's sacrilegious."

Acetaminophen fails to help with low back pain

The lifetime prevalence of low back pain is reported to be as high as 84%, and costs for this condition in the United States are estimated at over $100 billion per year. Low back pain can be caused by any number of disorders and diseases. The most common cause is mechanical malfunction, which occurs after years of normal use, overuse and misuse.

Common misuses are strains such as overdoing it at the gym or golf course or back injuries like lifting or falling, but sitting at a desk all day or simply having weak core muscles can also increase the likelihood of back problems. Nearly everyone will experience back pain at some point, and for mild to moderate pain, most people reach for non-prescription medications, including acetaminophen. Contact your doctor if you have any of the following warning signs along with your back pain: loss of bowel or bladder control, leg weakness, fever or pain when coughing or urinating.

Recently, medical researchers investigated the effects of acetaminophen (e.g., Tylenol, Excedrin) on patients with acute low back pain. In a large randomized trial published in the prestigious medical journal, "The Lancet," researchers discovered that acetaminophen for was no more effective than placebo for acute low back pain. Among patients who took acetaminophen, median time to recover was 17 days compared with 16 days for patients receiving a placebo.

Previous research supports these current findings, and two scientific reviews found acetaminophen to be ineffective for acute low back pain, but research has found acetaminophen to be effective for other types of pain, such as tooth extraction and postoperative pain.

Acetaminophen is associated with several serious adverse events, like increased risk of gastrointestinal bleeding, myocardial infarction, stroke, heart failure, hypertension, renal disease and death. Acetaminophen overdose is the No. 1 cause of acute liver failure in the United States; it accounts for 50% of all cases of acute liver failure and carries a 30% mortality rate.

Additionally, maternal acetaminophen use during pregnancy is associated with a higher risk for attention-deficit/hyperactivity disorder-like behaviors and asthma in children. In the United States, the FDA reports that acetaminophen ranks fifth on the list of drugs related to death, right below morphine in the fourth position.

Witt-Birn girls falter late in home loss

Chargers fall to Wabeno/Laona

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The Wittenberg-Birnamwood High School girls basketball team was unable to hold on to a late lead in an eventual 51-49 nonconference loss to Wabeno/Laona on Jan. 6 in Wittenberg.

Witt-Birn led 48-43 with just a couple minutes remaining, but a Wabeno/Laona 3-pointer followed by another field goal knotted the score with about 40 seconds to play.

Witt-Birn then turned the ball over, giving the visitors a chance to take the lead. The Rebels took advantage by converting a three-point play with 13.4 seconds remaining.

Witt-Birn advanced to ball into the frontcourt before calling a timeout with 8.7 ticks left. The Chargers struggled to get a clean look at the basket before junior Allison Linke took a contested jumpshot.

Linke was fouled on the play, but her left foot was on the 3-point line, meaning she would only get two free attempts with a second left. Linke missed the first attempt before hitting the second one.

Witt-Birn called timeout to set up a last-second defensive stand. Freshman Faith Resch got in front of the inbounds pass but wasn't able to corral it, allowing the final second to run out.

"We panicked when it came down to that situation," said Witt-Birn junior Reese Rogowski of the team's play over the final few minutes. "We had some stupid turnovers that we shouldn't have had. On the defensive side, we struggled with boxing out, and they got those second shots that put them up."

Rogowski had a huge game and kept the Chargers in it by scoring 15 of the team's 20 second-half points. Rogowski finished with 27 points, seven rebounds, three steals and five assists.

Senior Kaylee Schram was the only other Charger over four points. She scored 10 of her 12 points in the first half. She also grabbed nine rebounds.

The teams battled throughout the first half, with Witt-Birn jumping out to a 7-1 lead after buckets from Schram, senior Jadalynn Davids and Linke. Wabeno/Laona scored 13 of the next 19 points to pull ahead 14-13.

It was then Witt-Birn's turn to go on a run, with Rogowski and Schram providing the scoring to put the hosts up 20-14. The visitors responded with a 7-0 run to take a one-point lead again.

The teams then traded several 3-pointers across the last five minutes of the opening half. Schram added two field goals before Rogowski had the final bucket to give the Chargers a 29-26 lead at the break.

Rogowski was the only Charger to score in the first eight minutes of the half, but her 11 points were enough to keep Witt-Birn ahead. Resch then converted a shot with about 9:30 to play to give the Chargers a three-point advantage, 42-39.

Wabeno/Laona hit a couple free throws with 6:02 to play before Rogowski converted a shot on a fastbreak opportunity. After two more free throws from the visitors, Rogowski made another shot after a steal from Davids, giving the team a 46-43 lead.

Schram then hit a shot after a pass from Rogowski on an inbounds play to give the team its 48-43 advantage.

The two-point loss marks the fourth time this season the Chargers have lost by three or less points. Those four games are the only four times the team has lost this winter.

"I think when we're open, we have to take more shots and to make sure we finish by the basket, and that we go towards the ball and, even if they do foul us, knock down the free throws," said Davids on what the team can do better to improve in close games.

Witt-Birn (49): Reese Rogowski 3-4 27, Jadalynn Davids 0-1 4, Allison Linke 1-2 4, Faith Resch 0-0 2, Kaylee Schram 2-2 12.

ATHLETE PROFILE: TAYLYN PAISER

Bowler senior helps out wherever needed

Bowler's Taylyn Paiser, front, takes a shot during the team's conference win over Tigerton on Dec. 9 in Bowler.

MORGAN RODE | NEW MEDIA

Basketball teams can benefit from players who are willing to do whatever it takes to help the squad. Bowler senior Taylyn Paiser is a player whose mindset is primarily focused on her team, rather than her individual goals.

Whether it's scoring, setting up her teammates, playing strong defense or helping out as a rebounder, Paiser is willing to help wherever she can.

She scored nine points in a win over White Lake on Dec. 14 and had six points in a Central Wisconsin Conference-North Division victory over Tigerton on Dec. 9.

Paiser also had six rebounds in the win over Tigerton and three steals against White Lake.

Q: When did your interest in basketball begin?

A: My interest in basketball started from always watching my older brother (Justice) play. I played off and on since I was in fifth grade.

Q: What is your favorite part about the basketball season?

A: My favorite part about the basketball season is the postgame talks with my dad (Chad).

Q: What has the game of basketball taught you over the years?

A: The game of basketball has taught me that hard work always pays off.

Q: What are some of the team's goals this winter, and what needs to happen in order to achieve the goals?

A: Some of my team's goals this winter is to start playing better as a team, and improve in every game. In order to achieve the goals, we need to work hard and play as a team at practice.

Q: Do you have any individual goals you hope to reach this season?

A: I have a few personal goals I hope to reach this season. The main goal I have for myself is to score 15 points in a game.

Q: Do you have any rituals you go through before a basketball game begins?

A: Not really. I listen to my pre-game playlist before every game, but that's pretty much it.

Q: When you step on the basketball court, what is your mindset?

A: When I step on the court, my mindset is to do what I need to do to help my team and to play hard the whole game.

Q: As a senior, how do you try and help lead the team?

A: As a senior, I try to encourage and help out my teammates in any way that I can.

Q: What's your favorite memory of competing on the Bowler girls basketball team?

A: My favorite memory of competing on the Bowler girls basketball team is the first time I heard my name get called in the starting lineup.

Q: Favorite movie, TV show and musical artist?

A: Movie — "The Hate You Give." TV show — "Keeping up with the Kardashians." Musical artist — Polo G.

Q: Name one thing about yourself that not many people know.

A: I'm scared of heights.

Q: What are some things you hope to accomplish after graduating high school?

A: After graduation high school, I hope to go to a four-year university and get my bachelors degree in early childhood education.

BOOKS AND STUFF

Spenser hired to protect reluctant client

JAN JONES

While perusing the library's e-book offerings, I noticed the late Robert B. Parker's "Looking for Rachel Wallace." This one was written before cellphones or other gizmos we take for granted today.

Rachel Wallace is a radical, militant, lesbian feminist author. Her books have called attention to inequality on every level of society. The subject matter is controversial, but Rachel wants to get people talking — besides, it sells books. With her fourth book about to hit the bookstores, she is doing a book tour in and around Boston.

She's used to harassment, but lately that has turned to actual threats. Consequently, her editor has hired Spenser (no first name) as her bodyguard. It's no secret that Rachel is difficult and demanding and claims to detest everything a man like Spenser represents.

AT A GLANCE

BOOK: "Looking for Rachel Wallace" (Spenser, Book 6)

AUTHOR: Robert B. Parker

PUBLISHER: Dell

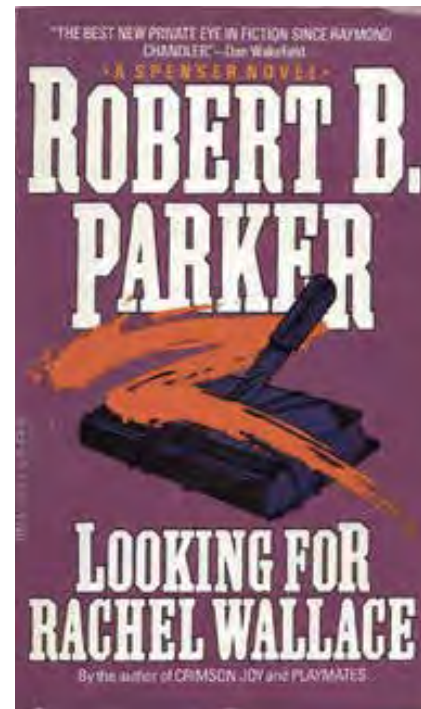

YEAR PUBLISHED: 1980

NUMBER OF PAGES: 224

In truth, Spenser respects and likes women, but he can't escape the fact that he feels the need to "ride to the rescue" from time to time. In the end, Spenser is the only bodyguard willing to deal with Rachel's attitude, and she'll have to deal with his machismo and smart-mouth commentary.

It doesn't take long to convince Spenser that someone really does want to hurt Rachel when they are nearly run off the road. He can't explain why, but he decides not to report it to the police.

The next day they are confronted by protesters when they try to enter a library. Rachel abhors violence and is furious when Spenser roughs up the group's leader, Lawrence English. English is very wealthy, ultra-conservative and used to getting his way.

With only a little digging Spenser's gut says that English is involved in the threats against Rachel. Spenser pays him a visit and confirms everything plus the fact that English lives with his controlling mother. When he asks Rachel about the background of her lover, Julie Wells, she abruptly fires him.

That night Rachel is kidnapped, and Boston heads into a rare snow emergency. Spenser could walk away, but that's not how he operates. Instead, he tracks down the people involved in the first incident on the highway. They were hired by a man named Mingo. Mingo just happens to be the English family's chauffeur. By putting pressure on a lowlife he'd once arrested, he is further convinced that they orchestrated them.

The key to finding Rachel is Julie Wells. She admits that she is Lawrence English's sister. She is everything her mother and brother hate. The threats against Rachel are a way to punish Julie.

Certain that he'll find Rachel there, Spenser has Julie create a detailed map of the English mansion. Then he makes the long, snowy walk to rescue her. It doesn't take him long to reach the attic and pry open the locked door. He finds Rachel wrapped in a blanket and very relieved to see him. But before they can leave, they are confronted by English, his mother and Mingo.

All are armed and ready to shoot. Spenser tries to reason with them, but they open fire. Spenser only has his .38, but he's an experienced shooter and quickly kills English and Mingo and disarms the mother. That's when the police arrive. They want to take Rachel in for questioning, but Spenser convinces them to let him take her to his apartment where his psychiatrist girlfriend, Susan, is waiting. Together they help Rachel vent all the fear and pain she's been repressing before tucking her in for a good night's rest.

By morning, Rachel has come to a better understanding of what makes Spenser tick. She may never like what he stands for, but she is able to accept and respect him for it. Since he is comfortable with himself, Spenser admits he respects Rachel for what she has managed to express so well in her books.

We can't know exactly what motives the words and actions of others, but we can try see all sides of an issue. And we can find books representing all kinds of opinions at your public library. To stock up for when the cold sets in, drop by and check it out.

SCEPI seeks input on housing needs assessment

Shawano County Economic Progress Inc. is seeking input for a county-wide housing needs assessment being completed in partnership with: the city of Shawano; the villages of Bonduel, Gresham, Tigerton and Wittenberg; and the Stockbridge-Munsee Tribe.

The purpose of the needs assessment is to better understand unmet housing demand across the county, understand how demand will evolve over the next five to 10 years and offer strategies that can be leveraged to best meet identified housing needs.

The survey will be available through Jan. 31 at <https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/ShawanoCountyHousing>.

Pulaski schools sponsoring community book study

The Pulaski Community School District is planning to sponsor a community book study for January and February, including discussion sessions and a conversation with the author.

The book to be read and enjoyed together is "A Chance in the World" by Steve Pemberton. The award-winning book details Pemberton's upbringing from being placed with abusive foster parents to becoming a successful adult, regardless. The story shares his resilience and perseverance as well as some of the "light-houses" or people who showed up for him through his difficult childhood and challenging teenage years. The story was made into a 2017 movie.

The sessions will either be in person, via Google Meet or possibly alternate, depending on participants' preferences, according to Janelle Bailey, who will facilitate the book study. Bailey was a longtime teacher in the Howard-Suamico School District and is now state director of the Wisconsin Academic Decathlon program at CESA 7.

"Wonderful things can happen when two or more people read the same book and then process their different perspectives as the story affects their heads and hearts," Bailey said. "It is so much fun to read any book but especially such a good one as this, sharing Steve Pemberton's true story, one sure to stir your heart and mind."

While Bailey is a longtime teacher, she is even more so and to-her-core an avid reader, and said she will not be giving quizzes or tests or "teaching" this book, but relishes the opportunity to read it with community members and talk about all that can be learned through sharing this reading experience.

Sessions are planned for six Tuesdays from 6-7 p.m.:

- Jan. 18: Introduce the book and meet each other
- Jan. 25: Discussion of part 1, chapters 1-16
- Feb. 1: Discussion of part 2, chapters 17-26
- Feb. 8: Discussion of part 3, chapters 27-35
- Feb. 15: Discussion of part 4, chapters 36-43 and the epilogue
- Feb. 22: Discussion of the epilogue and book overall, create community questions for Steve Interested people may contact Bailey at jbailey@cesa7.org or 920-617-5617 to sign up for the book study. They may also sign up on a Google doc at this link: <https://forms.gle/8LU3S5DZ7SRY2D6Q9>.

School district staff members received a copy of the book earlier this school year and have been participating in discussions on its content. Pemberton will be speaking to the Pulaski High School Student body on March 1. Book study community members can also join one of the two sessions.

The book club is sponsored by PCSD, and books can be mailed to participants or picked up at the PCSD Teaching and Learning Department at PHS District Offices at Glenbrook Elementary.

Pathways grant to help build new Maple Hills trail

A proposal submitted by Shawano Pathways to create a new snowshoe trail with signage and new maps in a small county park just south of Shawano has been selected to receive a $1,000 AARP Wisconsin "Small Dollar, Big Impact" grant.

Grants were awarded throughout 2021 to projects across Wisconsin that are designed to improve communities and make them better places for everyone to live, work and play as they age.

"This project fits perfectly with the spirit and intent of the Small Dollar, Big Impact grant program," said AARP Wisconsin interim state director Christina FitzPatrick. "Our goal is to support communities as they make positive changes that inspire long-term progress on livable issues. This proposal hits that nail right on the head."

A seldom-used snowshoe trail has existed in the Maple Hills Recreation Area in Shawano County for many years, but it will not be available at all after this season because of a coming solar panel installation, according to Nancy Brown-Koeller, president of Shawano Pathways, who submitted the grant proposal.

"This is unfortunate, as interest in this easy-to-do winter activity has grown and Shawano County needs more access to low-cost physical activities in winter," Brown-Koeller said. "The county parks department budget is small because of a small tax base, so extras, such as building a new snowshoe trail, are difficult. This recreation area needs a replacement for the trail that will be lost and add new signage and maps. We'll recruit for several volunteer days to help with these efforts."

In addition to ordering new signs and printing new maps for the trail network, work will begin soon to map out a new trail and remove obstacles such as fallen branches and trees from the new pathway so that people can start using it as soon as possible, potentially even this winter.

"Our group is made up solely of volunteers and our funding comes from grants, fundraising events and membership dues," Brown-Koeller said. "This grant enables us to move forward on creating recreational opportunities and improving safety in the county."

Brown-Koeller said Shawano Pathways will work closely with the county's parks department and get public input to prioritize the work that needs to be done.

"Our mission is to get people outside on bikes and on their feet, and it's hard to do that when the trails are not well defined," she said. "We want to improve that."

This is the second Small Dollar, Big Impact grant awarded to Shawano Pathways this year. In March the group received its first $1,000 grant, which helped create a new, contemplative walking path in Alpine Shores Park.

AARP Wisconsin's launched its Small Dollar, Big Impact grant program in 2020 and is now in its second year of helping proposed projects move forward in rural and urban parts of the state.

Got fruit? Soon you'll have cedar waxwings

It's a beautiful snowy day as we watch a flock of cedar waxwings flitting through the crabapple trees in a friend's yard, eagerly feasting on the small plump apples that hang like red rubies from the snow-covered branches. They feed with a restless energy, moving in waves through the trees. They are a beautiful bird with history.

Consider their moniker: waxwing. How was the name derived? According to "What It's Like to be a Bird" by David Sibley (Sibley), the small red tips on the feathers of their inner wings gave them their name; the red wingtips reminded early naturalists of the red sealing wax used to seal important letters.

As they flit through the trees, the cold morning light reveals the soft yellow brown of the cedar waxwing's back, head and jaunty crest of feathers that tops its head. A dashing black "mask" edged in white sweeps across the eyes giving it a roguish look. Its belly is a soft yellow and wings mostly dark gray. In addition to the red-tipped wing feathers, it has a yellow-tipped tail adding more color to its sleek palette.

Listen for their two common calls. The Cornell Lab All about Birds website describes them as a high-pitched, trilled "bzeee" and a sighing whistle that is about a half-second long and often rising in pitch at the beginning.

Crab apples may seem too big for the birds to eat, but according to Sibley, a wide mouth allows them to swallow the fruits whole. And a tongue with inward-facing barbs helps them pull the fruit into their mouth and throat. In winter, according to the All About Birds website, they also eat mistletoe, juniper, mountain ash, honeysuckle, hawthorn, and other fruits. In the summer, they feast on serviceberry, cherries, strawberry, mulberry, dogwood, raspberries and insects.

Cedar waxwings are a social bird; liking each other's company, they travel in flocks in search of fruit.

According to Alan Haney (Haney) in his book, "Jewels of Nature, Delightful Birds I have Known," pairs do separate from the flock for nesting, but even then nesting is often done in groups.

The birds have a rather elaborate interactive courtship ritual. The male hops toward a female and offers her an object — e.g., a flower petal, small leaf or insect. She may show her interest through a little dance, then take and return the object to her suitor. They may even touch beaks. Once mated, the females lay two to six eggs in a cup-shaped nest. Both parents feed the young — insects when very young, with fruits added as the chicks get older.

According to Haney, the birds can be found year-round across the northern United States and as far south as the Carolinas. In summer, they range into the lower Canadian provinces from coast to coast. They overwinter across all of the United States and Central American and south to Colombia, South America. Their broad range gives us a chance to see them throughout the year.

and, better yet, attract them to your yard by planting native trees and shrubs that bear small fruits — such as dogwood, serviceberry, cedar, juniper, hawthorn, mulberry and winterberry. They are a delight to see.

CoVantage patronage payments are largest to date

A record of over $5 million in patronage has been deposited into the accounts of members who borrowed and saved with CoVantage Credit Union. This is the largest patronage payment in the history of CoVantage Credit Union, and an $800,000 increase over what was provided to borrowers and savers for 2020.

Patronage is a concept of giving back that originated among cooperatives many years ago. CoVantage is one of a few credit unions in the country that continue the practice, and this marks the 41st consecutive year CoVantage member-owners have received this unique financial benefit.

"I am so proud to be part of a credit union that truly lives their mission like we do at CoVantage. As the credit union grows and more members come to us with their savings, checking and other deposits, we loan those dollars out, so other members can buy a home, purchase a car, or in some cases, start a business," said CoVantage Board Chair Susan Gitzlaff. "When the board and I meet at year-end, we evaluate how much income is needed in reserves to protect the credit union, and to fund regular dividends and operating expenses."

The year-end patronage payment includes a bonus on dividends earned for those who save, and a loan interest rebate for those who borrow.

CoVantage depositors received a 6.1% bonus on dividends earned on eligible savings, term share certificates and variable rate accounts. Borrowers received a rebate of 6.1% of their total 2021 interest paid on qualifying vehicle, home equity, in-house mortgage, credit card, and commercial loans. For instance, if $5,000 of interest had been paid on a home loan, the borrower would receive $305 in patronage for just that loan.

OPINION

YOUR RIGHT TO KNOW

How to obtain public records: A primer

Every time an elected official sends an email, it becomes a public record. When an employee at a government agency makes a purchase, that transaction is the public's business. Whenever a permit or license is issued by a government authority, this is information you should be able to obtain.

These records, which include everything from construction contracts and meeting minutes to electronic correspondence and court filings, offer a behind-the-scenes look into how governments function. In many cases, public records contain discussions that show how and why individuals employed by city, county, state and federal agencies make decisions and spend tax dollars.

Wisconsin's open records law begins with a declaration: "In recognition of the fact that a representative government is dependent upon an informed electorate, it is declared to be the public policy of this state that all persons are entitled to the greatest possible information regarding the affairs of government and the official acts of those officers and employees who represent them."

That's pretty unequivocal. When government officials at the state and local level create a record, any record, under this law the public has a right to see it. We are allowed to obtain, inspect and even scrutinize these records.

That's exactly what you should do when you want information.

If you have questions about how much a government agency spent on a project or who was at the table for an important committee meeting and how they voted, start by making a public records request.

Commonly used by journalists as well as everyday residents, what are called "open records" or "public records" requests can be made by anyone at any time for any reason.

While the process of making a public records request is relatively simple, it is a formal process nonetheless and there are a few steps to follow.

First, determine what you want to know and who has that record. The person in charge of keeping and managing these documents at an agency or department is known as the "custodian" of public records. It doesn't hurt to call the agency to find out who that custodian is.

In crafting your request, it may be best to use a simple template. A particularly good one for state and local entities can be found on the Wisconsin Freedom of Information Council's website, as the top offering under "Resources." (For federal records, you need to file what's called a "FOIA request," which stands for "Freedom of Information Act.")

After you've filed your request with the record-keeping entity, you wait. Usually, the custodian will acknowledge your request pretty quickly and may tell you when you can expect your records.

Not all records are available. Some personnel — and personal — data and information may be protected. Also, records aren't kept forever and some may have been deleted, destroyed or lost.

Sometimes, there is a cost for retrieving records, but you should ask to be informed of that beforehand. You can also ask that the request be fulfilled for free, as the law allows. Further, to expedite their processing — and for environmental reasons — you may ask to receive your records electronically.

Requesting public records can take time and a fair amount of back-and-forth with record keepers to obtain the information you need. When you have the records, you've completed an important check on the balance of power our government has over the public, and you're one step closer to understanding why and how elected officials and other authorities make their decisions.

Don't forget: These records are not the government's records — they're your records.

Your Right to Know is a monthly column distributed by the Wisconsin Freedom of Information Council (WisFOIC.org), a group dedicated to open government. Council member Steven Potter is a reporter and radio producer based in Madison.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Disappointed library board rejected memorial donation

To the editor:

You may or may not have known our mother, Jeanne Waschbisch, personally, but you may have met her on occasion or heard her name mentioned. In our humble opinion, Jeanne was a pillar of the community. She started her journey of community involvement in 1974 when she accepted a position at Cook Memorial Library and continued her work when the library moved to its new location on Main Street. She continued to volunteer at the library after her retirement in 2005.

Mom was involved in so much more than the library. She took part in the chamber of commerce, the Red Hatters, Friends of the Library. She drove friends and neighbors and sometimes people she hardly knew to doctors or the Silver Sneakers programs. Her generosity and giving nature weren't only restricted to Oconto Falls, they expanded into the surrounding communities as well.

Jeanne left us unexpectedly last Feb. 20. Mom loved being around people and learning new things and helping others. The Town of Oconto Falls gave her so much opportunity to be able to do those things. As a family, we felt it only right to give back something to the town that gave her so much joy.

We approached the Oconto Falls Community Library with three proposals as a memorial to her. Our first and favored proposal was a Wi-Fi park built behind the library, a 16-by-16 gazebo with seating within range of the library Wi-Fi that would provide a place for people to gather, read and relax. All we asked was the library contribute what they felt they could, and we would cover the rest. The second proposal was for a clock/sign in front of the library, and the third was a bench/statue outside by the front of the library.

We are sad to say the library turned down our proposed donated plans and funds. Our mother did everything she could to make the library a success, either while employed or volunteering. The library can only see the potential future cost to it rather than the opportunity to honor a woman whose hard work and dedication for 47 years helped the community as well as the library. As a family, we are deeply disappointed in its choice.

If you are as disappointed in the board's decision as we were, please contact it with your concerns at Oconto Falls Community Library, 251 N. Main St., Oconto Falls, WI 54154, Attn: Larry Kindel, board president.

Frank Waschbisch, for the Waschbisch family, Oconto Falls

Cardinals appear for angels on barn quilt

Zachary and Amber Selle have sponsored Shawano County's 382nd barn quilt, which is now on display on their barn at N6502 Cardinal Lane, Wittenberg.

Featuring a male and female northern cardinal, the pattern has been named "Cardinals Appear When Angels Are Near."

"With us living on Cardinal Lane, we named our property Cardinal Hill Ranch," Amber Selle said, "so it's only fitting to add a barn quilt featuring our favorite red bird, the cardinal. It's always special to see a cardinal as it reminds us of our loved ones and brings us joy. I've always thought this area was absolutely beautiful, and the barn quilts really add to the charm and beauty of this part of our state. I feel extremely blessed to be able to live here and have an old barn to put a quilt on."

Making it even more special for Amber is that the quilt was put on display on Dec. 17, which just happened to be her birthday.

Zachary, a Tigerton native, and Amber, a transplant from Neenah, purchased the 70-acre farm from Milan Bernarde in 2016. He and his family operated the small dairy farm for many years, and it is still referred to by locals as the "old Bernarde farm."

The barn still has stanchions, a gutter and even a barn cleaner. When the Selles purchased the farm, both the house and barn were in bad shape and needed a lot of repairs and updates. They first saved the barn by putting on a new roof. Then they gutted and remodeled the entire house, during which they found an old Tigerton checkbook in the insulation dating back to the early 1900s, so they know both the house and barn are more than 100 years old. They also found many old articles, postcards and records in the barn and milk house that harken back to a simpler place and time.

Since moving to the Wittenberg area, the Selles have had three children — Isaac, age 4, Noah, 2 and Eloise, 11 months. All were born in the farmhouse with a midwife.

They also added heritage pastured red wattle pigs, chickens, goats, ducks and horses and hope to add grass-fed beef in the future. Heritage is an umbrella term that embraces pure breeds of livestock and poultry with deep histories in the United States. The Selles also planted a 20-tree fruit orchard and created a couple vegetable gardens.

"It's been fun making this property our own," Amber Selle said, "although the to-do list is never ending."

The Selle barn quilt was painted by the Shawano County barn quilt committee and was put on display by LeRoy and Keenan Raddant, both of whom work for Raddant Electric in Shawano.

Zach and Amber Selle, with their children Isaac, Noah and Eloise, are shown with Shawano County's 382nd barn quilt on their barn at N6502 Cardinal Lane, Wittenberg. JIM LEUENBERGER

Student writing contest starts its 16th year

The 16th year of the George Putz Memorial Student Writing Contest is now open for entries.

All students in grades 1-12 who live or go to school in either Shawano or Menominee counties are welcome to submit entries. Students can submit their fiction, nonfiction and poetry work for a chance to win a cash prize and a certificate of achievement. The contest is free to enter, and the deadline is April 1.

Through the years, Shawano Area Writers has given away thousands of dollars to winning student writers. A couple of years ago, the organization started giving out a $2,000 scholarship for a graduating senior.

For information about the writing contest and scholarship, visit www.shawanoareawriters.org. Questions may be directed to John J. Mutter Jr. at 715-524-4520.

Positive change can happen when you take responsibility

It's this time of the year — one that we all think about with a sense of renewal, change and improvement — that brings with it great reflection and hope for what 2022 can become. It's exciting to think about hitting the reset button, especially with the litany of difficult challenges we've endured as a community and society of late.

GARRETT ROGOWSKI

We all want positive change. We all want growth. We all want to see our situations for those we care about and those we are responsible for improve.

All of this reminds me of a quote from a recent blog I enjoy reading: "Life rarely changes in a positive way without an increase in responsibility." Think about it. We need to take ownership in our health in order for our health to improve. We need to better commit to those things in our relationships that help our relationships improve. We need to commit to starting a business, or an endeavor or a friendship for any of those things to come to fruition.

It's quite true. "Whatever it is, if you want the trajectory to change, the amount of responsibility usually has to change." It's exciting to think about the reset button a new year provides, but it's embracing the responsibility that comes with desired change that makes all the difference.

Wishing you a great start to the new year, success in 2022 and happiness in your journey!

Garrett Rogowski is superintendent for the Wittenberg-Birnamwood School District.

Green Bay Packers offensive players take a break from the action during the team's loss to the Detroit Lions on Jan. 9 in Detroit. The futures of several key players within the Packers organization are in question, making a Super Bowl run this year that much more important.

Green Bay Packers eye deep postseason run before offseason of uncertainty

Way back in September, the Green Bay Packers began their quest to bring the Lombardi Trophy back to Green Bay.

MORGAN RODE

Here we are, several months later, and the Packers are closing in on their big goal, despite the future still being very much up in the air. That makes this playoff run that much more intriguing, and one fans need to soak up. Green Bay started the season knowing this could be the last time that several core players might be on the roster, but it didn't stop the organization from dreaming big.

Here we are, several months later, and the Packers are closing in on their big goal, despite the future still being very much up in the air. That makes this playoff run that much more intriguing, and one fans need to soak up.

The biggest question facing the Packers and their future is whether quarterback Aaron Rodgers will be the one leading the team. He came into the season not thrilled with how the organization had treated him during his Hall of Fame career, and many people expected this year to be No. 12's final one in Green Bay.

The relationship between Rodgers, the likely soon-to-be MVP for a second straight season, and the front office has improved by all accounts, and it seems much more likely that he'll keep wearing the green and gold uniform in the future than it did back in September.

Still, the team is going to have to make several hard decisions in order to get under the salary cap, and it's possible trading or moving on from Rodgers is the move needed to keep most of the rest of the team in place and competitive for years to come. It's also a possibility that Rodgers asks to be traded.

Another big piece to the puzzle of the Packers' future is wide receiver Davante Adams — who, like Rodgers, had another big season.

Adams, who set new team single season records for receptions and receiving yards, is a free agent after the season. It's been reported that the team and Adams haven't had any contract extension talks since July, and that the team will likely place the franchise tag on Adams for the 2022 season and then try and work on a longer extension.

Of course, if Green Bay ends up moving on from No. 12 and 17, the offense and team will likely experience a far different season than it did this go 'round.

After those two players' futures are figured out, then the attention will turn to the team's huge list of free agents.

Among the list of unrestricted free agents the team must make decisions on are: cornerbacks Rasul Douglas, Kevin King and Chandon Sullivan, tight end Robert Tonyan, inside linebacker De'Vondre Campbell, offensive lineman Lucas Patrick and wide receiver Marquez Valdes-Scantling.

Then throw in restricted free agent receiver Allen Lazard and offensive lineman Yosh Nijman and exclusive restricted free agent inside linebacker Krys Barnes, among others, and you realize the tall task that awaits the Packers' front office.

Like it did last offseason, the Packers might also have to restructure or move on from the contracts of veteran players, like outside linebackers Za'Darius Smith and Preston Smith, offensive lineman David Bakhtiari, defensive lineman Kenny Clark, receiver Randall Cobb, kicker Mason Crosby and safeties Adrian Amos and Darnell Savage.

The more you dig into things, the more you realize that running it back with this particular roster — what the Pack essentially attempted this season — is going to be practically impossible.

That means “The Last Dance” that Rodgers and Adams mentioned before the season is going to be the case, even if those two are back in Green Bay next season.

While the Packers’ title aspirations and outlook won’t be completely decimated after the season, it’s likely to take a hit, which puts a little extra pressure on the team in this postseason run.

By earning the NFC’s top seed with a 13-4 record, the Packers boosted their Super Bowl hopes a bit.

Now their goal is to avoid a repeat of last year, when the team also had the No. 1 seed but fell to the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in the NFC Championship Game — a game that’s tripped the Packers up four times since their last Super Bowl win in the 2010-11 season.

Those two teams appear destined for a rematch in this year’s conference championship, but first the Packers will have to take care of business in the Divisional Round.

Should the Eagles shock the world and pull off an upset win over the Buccaneers, they would travel to Green Bay for the Divisional Round game. If they don’t then there’s three teams that the Packers could face.

The first would be the San Francisco 49ers, a team that Green Bay defeated early in the season but that could pose some big problems with its stellar running game. If the 49ers lose to the Dallas Cowboys, then the winner of the Arizona Cardinals and Los Angeles Rams game will head to Lambeau Field.

Green Bay also beat those two teams during the regular season. In fact, of the Packers’ losses this season, only one of those teams is in the playoffs — the Kansas City Chiefs in the AFC bracket.

The road to the Super Bowl definitely won’t be a cakewalk, but it’s one that Packers’ fans need to try and enjoy as best they can with the team’s future so up in the air.

NFC PLAYOFF PREVIEW

By BILL HUBER
Correspondent

The Green Bay Packers are the No. 1 seed in the NFC playoffs with an NFL-best 13-4 record. As they embark yet again on their elusive quest for a fifth Super Bowl championship and 14th NFL title, here is a look at the seven-team NFC playoff field:

No. 1: Green Bay Packers (13-4)

Points scored: 26.5 (ninth). Points against: 21.8 (14th).

Record vs. playoff teams: 5-1.

Why they'll win the Super Bowl: The Rodgers-led offense is on a roll. Over the last seven games, they were second in the NFL in scoring. A really good unit is about to get even better.

Former All-Pro left tackle David Bakhtiari is back, receiver Randall Cobb is coming back and former Pro Bowl running back Aaron Jones should be rejuvenated after getting week 18 off to rest his ailing knee.

The Packers won't beat themselves. They take care of the football (league-low 13 giveaways, even after the backups had three against Detroit) and they follow the rules (league-low 69 penalties).

Two things are critical in winning a Super Bowl: the play of the quarterback and having a relatively healthy roster. With Rodgers, the Packers have the presumptive MVP.

With the return of Bakhtiari and the potential returns of Jaire Alexander and Za'Darius Smith, the Packers suddenly could get three Pro Bowl-caliber players added to the lineup.

No. 2: Tampa Bay Buccaneers (13-4)

Points scored: 30.1 (second). Points against: 20.8 (fifth).

Record vs. playoff teams: 4-1.

Why they could beat the Packers:

Green Bay Packers running back A.J. Dillon runs with the ball during the team's game against the Detroit Lions on Jan. 9 in Detroit. After going 13-4 in the regular season, the Packers have the No. 1 seed and a bye for the first week of the postseason.

GREG MELLIS | NEW MEDIA

We could wrap this section up by simply saying "Tom Brady" and moving on. Brady is the greatest quarterback in NFL history. He's won a staggering seven Super Bowls — including last year, when he led the Buccaneers into Lambeau Field and beat the Packers in the NFC Championship Game.

The Packers were the only team in the NFL to go undefeated at home this season, but the Bucs won't be fazed one bit if they make a return visit.

The 44-year-old Brady remains a marvel. He led the NFL with 5,316 passing yards and 41 touchdowns. The offense isn't as good as last year with standout receiver Chris Godwin out with a torn ACL. He caught five passes for 110 yards in last year's title game and led the Bucs with 98 catches for 1,110 yards this season.

But towering Mike Evans (14 touchdowns) and Hall of Fame-bound tight end Rob Gronkowski are good enough to carry the passing game, and the offensive line features three Pro Bowlers.

Like the Packers, the Bucs are getting healthier. Do-it-all running back Leonard Fournette and starting outside linebackers Shaquil Barrett and Jason Pierre-Paul are expected back this week. Without Bakhtiari, Barrett and Pierre-Paul combined for five sacks in last year's title game. That defense returns just about intact.

A front seven that includes Vita Vea and Ndamukong Suh on the line and Lavonte David and Devin White at linebacker is as good as it gets.

No. 3: Dallas Cowboys (12-5)

Points scored: 31.2 (first). Points against: 21.7 (seventh).

Record vs. playoff teams: 3-4.

Why they could beat the Packers: Mike McCarthy's team might be the most dangerous team in the 14-team field. This is a group filled with star players capable of making a game-changing play on any snap.

Showing their power, their plus-10.1 scoring differential was tops in the NFC and their plus-14 in turnovers paced the NFL.

In a sense, this team is a carbon copy of McCarthy's best teams in Green Bay. Score, force a turnover, score again and step on the gas. The Cowboys are an offensive powerhouse. They led the NFL in scoring and yards behind quarterback Dak Prescott, who set career highs for completion percentage (68.8) and touchdowns (37).

With receivers CeeDee Lamb, Amari Cooper and Cedric Wilson, plus tight end Dalton Schultz, he's got weapons galore and doesn't play favorites. Running back Ezekiel Elliott isn't the menace he was a few years ago, but he and Tony Pollard combined for 1,721 rushing yards and 86 receptions.

A defense that ranked second on third down finished strong. The rookie duo of linebacker Micah Parsons and cornerback Trevon Diggs are franchise-changing players. Parsons not only had 84 tackles but finished sixth in the NFL with 13 sacks, fourth with 30 quarterback hits and added three forced fumbles.

Diggs led the NFL with 11 interceptions. Bakhtiari vs. Parsons and Davante Adams vs. Diggs would be made-for-TV gold.

No. 4: Los Angeles Rams (12-5)

Points scored: 27.1 (eighth). Points against: 21.9 (15th).

Record vs. playoff teams: 2-5.

Why they could beat the Packers: The Rams are hard to figure. With the high-profile additions of Matthew Stafford, Von Miller and Odell Beckham, they've got a roster built to win a Super Bowl.

After three consecutive midseason losses to the Titans, 49ers and Packers – all playoff teams – they recovered to win five straight. But with a chance to secure the No. 2 seed, the Rams lost at home to the 49ers on Sunday.

The Rams will go as far as Stafford can take them. Acquired from the Lions during the offseason, he finished sixth in passer rating (102.9), third in yards (4,886) and second in touchdowns (41). He also threw eight interceptions in his final three games after tossing just 10 in the first 14. That's not going to cut it in the playoffs.

Receiver Cooper Kupp had a superb season with 145 receptions for 1,947 yards and 16 touchdowns. In eight games, Beckham added 27 receptions for 305 yards and five touchdowns.

The potential return of running back Cam Akers from a torn Achilles could provide a lift.

Defensively, Aaron Donald is a generational talent on the line. Despite a steady stream of double teams, he had 12½ sacks and four forced fumbles. Outside linebackers Leonard Floyd and Miller combined for 14½ sacks.

Even while rarely tested, premier cornerback Jalen Ramsey had four interceptions, 16 passes defended and nine tackles for losses.

No. 5: Arizona Cardinals (11-6)

Points scored: 26.4 (11th). Points against: 21.5 (ninth).

Record vs. playoff teams: 5-2.

Why they could beat the Packers: Which Cardinals team will show up for the playoffs? Will it be the one that started 7-0, including a signature victory at the Rams, then won at Dallas in week 17? Or will it be the one that dropped four of its last five entering the playoffs? Will it be the team that went 8-1 on the road? Or will it be the club that got crushed at Detroit?

Young quarterback Kyler Murray is capable of winning a game with his arm as well as his legs. That's a dangerous combination in a do-or-die scenario. He finished eighth in passer rating (100.5) and second in completion percentage (69.2). While he didn't run with the ball as much this year, his 6.2-yard average and 11 touchdowns in 2020 serve as a reminder of what he brings to the party.

With James Conner (15 touchdowns) and Chase Edmonds (5.1 average), the Cardinals can run the ball against anyone. With receivers DeAndre Hopkins, Christian Kirk and A.J. Green and tight end Zach Ertz, Murray's got some top-flight targets. Hopkins, who caught 115 passes last season, is a name to watch as the playoffs begin. He missed the last four games with a knee injury, and his return for the playoffs is in doubt.

The defense is led by outside linebackers Chandler Jones and Markus Golden, who combined for 21½ sacks and 10 forced fumbles. They finished plus-12 in turnovers.

No. 6: San Francisco 49ers (10-7)

Points scored: 25.1 (13th). Points against: 21.5 (12th).

Record vs. playoff teams: 4-4.

Why they could beat the Packers: The 49ers went 4-1 down the stretch, including an upset at the Rams in week 18.

Quarterback Jimmy Garoppolo had a solid season with a 68.3% completion rate and 98.8 passer rating. He's got a lot of talent around him with receivers Deebo Samuel and Brandon Aiyuk and tight end George Kittle. While Kittle is an established star and arguably the best tight end in the game, Samuel is one of the league's emerging studs. Not only did he catch 77 passes for 1,405 yards and six touchdowns, but he carried 59 times for 365 yards and eight touchdowns.

In 12 games, Elijah Mitchell rushed for 963 yards. With Bakhtiari missing most of the season, Trent Williams has taken over as the best left tackle in the NFL.

The defense might not be of recent vintage, but the Niners ranked third in yards allowed and third in sack percentage. Nick Bosa ranked fourth with 15½ sacks and third with 32 quarterback hits. His best days are long behind him, but cornerback Josh Norman forced a whopping seven fumbles.

No. 7: Philadelphia Eagles (9-8)

Points scored: 26.1 (12th). Points against: 22.6 (18th).

Record vs. playoff teams: 0-6.

Why they could beat the Packers: The Eagles can run the football. They finished first with 159.7 rushing yards per game and fourth with 4.94 yards per carry. Quarterback Jalen Hurts (784 yards, 5.6 average, 10 touchdowns) and running back Miles Sanders (754 yards, 5.5 average) are big-time threats to move the chains and keep the opposing offense chilling on the bench.

The Eagles can also stop other teams from running the football, ranking sixth with 4 yards allowed per carry behind linebackers Alex Singleton and T.J. Edwards. Darius Slay gives the Eagles a premier cornerback.

Philly is a flawed team in most every other sense – it lost to the woeful Giants and just got crushed 51-26 by Dallas – but it did go 6-3 on the road.

Aaron Rodgers closes in on 4th MVP award

QB focused on winning Super Bowl

By BILL HUBER
Correspondent

When Aaron Rodgers won his first MVP in 2011, it was the culmination of a professional journey that started with his unforgettable plunge deep into the first round of the 2005 draft to his rise to the summit of the NFL.

When Rodgers won his second MVP in 2014, it put his stamp on Hall of Fame credentials.

When Rodgers won his third MVP in 2020, it marked his return to the pinnacle of the NFL after a couple so-so seasons.

What of Rodgers' potential fourth MVP?

"I don't think you can be the biggest jerk in the league and punish your team and your organization and your fan base the way he did and be the Most Valuable Player," MVP voter and Pro Football Weekly editor Hub Arkush said on Chicago radio station 670 AM. "I think he's a bad guy, and I don't think a bad guy can be the most valuable guy at the same time."

A "jerk" to some but beloved by his teammates, Rodgers has turned in another phenomenal season. After throwing two interceptions in the week one loss against New Orleans, Rodgers threw 37 touchdowns vs. two interceptions in his final 15 games. He ended the season ranked No. 1 in the league in passer rating, touchdown percentage and interception percentage, a feat accomplished in the Super Bowl era only Rodgers last season, Tom Brady in 2010, Steve Young in 1992 and Ken Anderson in 1981.

He threw at least two touchdowns with zero interceptions in his last seven games, the second-longest streak in NFL history. It was his 13th game with those credentials this season, an NFL record. In NFL history, there have been four seasons of at least 11 games of two touchdowns and zero picks: Rodgers in 2021, Rodgers in 2020, Rodgers in 2014 and Brady in 2010.

It's all absurd as Rodgers appears poised to win his fourth MVP exactly one decade after winning his first.

Physically, he still throws the ball as well as anyone in the NFL. Mentally, he's leaps-and-bounds better than he was in 2011 through more than 10,000 additional game reps and countless numbers of practices and film sessions.

"The physical part is an interesting

Green Bay Packers quarterback Aaron Rodgers smiles during the team's final regular season game against the Detroit Lions on Jan. 9 in Detroit. Rodgers is the favorite to win this year's MVP award, his fourth, but says he is more focused on winning the Super Bowl.

one because, obviously, I don't run as much as I used to — less scrambles, less scramble drills, less touchdowns outside the pocket, I would assume, based on that year," Rodgers said last week. "I think the older you get, the smarter you have to get in a number of different areas. Obviously, the experience gives you a lot of banked memories you can draw from."

Physically, Rodgers has adapted to stay ahead of Father Time. Former coach Mike McCarthy used to say that a quarterback is done when his legs are shot. That stuck with Rodgers.

"Just from a physical standpoint, I probably weighed between 225 and 230 the majority of the season in 2011, and I've been between 215 and 220 in the majority of this season, so that 10 pounds has made a big difference for me," he said.

"It's allowed me to still move in the pocket, to still keep legs. I rededicated myself in the weight room to squats, which has been really important. I haven't had the knee problems that I even had 10 years ago, which has been great. Just playing smarter, smarter with diet and body maintenance off the field has been important to still play at a high level. But the greatest asset is the experience and the banked memories and just the ability to play on instincts so often on game day."

Here's a comparison of Rodgers' MVP seasons:

- 2014 (fourth-best of his MVP seasons): Rodgers' passer rating of 112.2 trailed only Dallas' Tony Romo and ranks 17th in NFL history. He threw 38 touchdowns vs. only five interceptions as the Packers went 7-1 after getting crushed at New Orleans. Jordy Nelson caught 98 passes for a franchise-record 1,519 yards and 13 touchdowns, Randall Cobb had his best season with 91 receptions for 1,287 yards and 12 touchdowns and a rookie named Davante Adams chipped in 38 catches for 446 yards and three scores.

- 2021 (third): Rodgers' passer rating of 111.9 led the NFL and ranks 20th in NFL history. The Packers once again won 13 games despite All-Pro left tackle David Bakhtiari missing the first 16 games and the losses of Pro Bowl left guard Elgton Jenkins and rising tight end Robert Tonyan to torn ACLs. The passing game revolved almost wholly around Adams, whose 123 receptions were almost as many as the next three players on the team combined. Adams had 1,040 more receiving yards than anyone else, as well.

- 2011 (second): Rodgers set the NFL record with a passer rating of 122.5, a mark that has held up for a decade. He threw 45 touchdowns vs. six interceptions as the Packers scored the second-most points in NFL history and finished 15-1. It was a star-studded group of pass catchers. Led by Nelson's 68 receptions for 1,263 yards and 15 touchdowns, the Packers had five players with at least 37 receptions and six touchdowns (receivers Nelson, Greg Jennings, James Jones and Donald Driver and tight end Jermichael Finley). It was a group so good that rookie Cobb finished just seventh in catches.

- 2020 (first): Rodgers had arguably the best quarterbacking season in football history. His passer rating of 121.5 led the NFL and is the second-best in the NFL history. Rodgers joined one of his mentors, Steve Young, as the only quarterback since 1940 to lead the NFL in passer rating, touchdown percentage, interception percentage and completion percentage in the same season.

Rodgers threw 48 touchdowns vs. five interceptions in 2020 despite having only one consistently reliable receiving threat, Adams, who had more than twice as many receptions and almost twice as many receiving yards as anyone else on the roster. With Rodgers' passer rating rising by 26.1 points compared to 2019, the Packers averaged 8.3 more points per game.

Of course, the Packers didn't win the Super Bowl after each of Rodgers' first three MVP seasons. In fact, no NFL MVP has won a Super Bowl since the Rams' Kurt Warner in 1999. Entering the playoffs, Rodgers knows what's at stake. In the locker room after the loss at Detroit, he reminded his teammates.

"The fact is it's win or go home at this point," Rodgers said after the game. "We have a little over a month left in the season. Let's make sure we're thinking about the right things, doing the right things, focused on the end goal."

Packers lose to Lions in regular season finale

Rodgers throws 2 TDs in 1st half

By LARRY LAGE
The Associated Press

Aaron Rodgers got off the field unscathed, giving Green Bay a win of sorts in a game it lost on the scoreboard.

Rodgers threw two touchdown passes in the first half and sat out the second half with nothing at stake as the Detroit Lions beat the top-seeded Packers 37-30 on Jan. 9 in Detroit.

"The win obviously would be nice, but the most important thing was to get out there," Rodgers said.

Backup Jordan Love threw two late interceptions, sealing a defeat that didn't affect Green Bay's play-off positioning.

The NFC North champion Packers (13-4) rolled into the Motor City after already clinching the conference's No. 1 seed and its only first-round bye.

"I might have a better perspective tomorrow," Green Bay coach Matt LaFleur said. "We're all competitors, and we don't like losing.

"I am happy in the fact that we got out fairly healthy."

Rodgers, the reigning NFL MVP who may win the award for a fourth time, was 14 of 18 for 138 yards.

He threw a 1-yard pass to Allen Lazard to cap a 13-play, 74-yard drive that took 7:18 off the clock to open the game and a 29-yard pass to the fourth-year receiver late in the second quarter for another score.

Rodgers replaced his helmet with a baseball cap at halftime and watched the rest of the game from the sideline out of harm's way after getting roughed up at times by the hard-charging Lions.

"I hold my breath every time he gets hit," LaFleur said.

The Lions (3-13-1) closed coach Dan Campbell's first season with plenty of pride and some nothing-to-lose plays.

The tricky Lions tied it 7-all late in the first quarter when seldom-used Tom Kennedy ended up with the ball on a reverse and threw a 75-yard touchdown pass to Kalif Raymond.

Detroit took a 24-13 lead early in the third on a reverse flea-flicker with Jared Goff throwing a 36-yard touchdown pass to Brock Wright.

Love threw a go-ahead, 62-yard touchdown pass to Josiah Deguara with 4:49 left in the fourth, but the Packers could not hold on for the win.

D'Andre Swift scored on a 14-yard run with 1:54 left to put Detroit back ahead.

C.J. Moore intercepted Love's pass at the Green Bay 36 on the ensuing possessions after it was deflected by linebacker Jalen Reeves-Maybin, setting up Riley Patterson's field goal to put the Lions up by a touchdown.

Love threw a second interception with 21 seconds left after his pass went off rookie receiver Amari Rodgers' hands.

Packer pacer

Green Bay's Davante Adams had six catches for 55 yards, giving him a single-season franchise record of 1,553 yards receiving that Jordy Nelson set in 2014.

"He just texted me when I was walking in here right now," Adams told reporters after the game, saying his former teammate congratulated him.

Injuries

Left tackle David Bakhtiari, a 2020 All-Pro, started and played for first time since tearing his left ACL on Dec. 31, 2020, and having two surgeries.

Center Josh Myers started after getting removed from IR on Saturday. The rookie second-round pick from Ohio State had been out since had a knee injury on Oct. 17 at Chicago.

"Like I told (Bakhtiari) and Josh, there's no substitute for football shape, and it will be good for them to be out there," LaFleur said.
