Bowler hosts Title VI family info meeting

School district will continue to look at initiatives to help students become successful

By LUKE REIMER

Reporter

The Bowler School District hosted a parental information meeting explaining the Title VI program to families on May 4.

Title VI coordinator and athletic director Jeff DePerry explained that Title VI supports a comprehensive approach to educational improvement and reform for American Indian students.

"This is to help ensure that they benefit from national education reforms and receive every opportunity to achieve high standards," said DePerry.

DePerry said that the informational meeting is held annually to catch parents up to speed with what they need to know about the Title VI program.

"Every year for our Title VI grant, we are required to have a parent advisory committee meeting," said DePerry. "We tried to turn this year's meeting into a family night, where families were welcomed to come eat dinner, meet the staff and ask questions."

During the meeting, DePerry, with the help of other Bowler staff, informed families on things that are happening inside of the building, as well as the initiatives that they are looking at down the road.

"We do family nights and host events that families are encouraged to attend," said DePerry. "We want families to be involved as chaperones and classroom helpers."

He said that all of these initiatives and projects are provided to give students more opportunities to decide what they want to do when they leave the Bowler School District.

"Our Native American children can succeed, and it is exciting to see them do so," said DePerry.

DePerry said that there is a need for the Title VI program in the Bowler School District.

"There is probably a bigger need than we have currently," said DePerry. "This supports the educational and cultural needs of our American Indian children."

He added that this funding gives the school district an opportunity to spend money on cultural events and initiatives.

"We can put on a powwow, go to a college fair and purchase supplies for students," said DePerry.

Along with the school district, DePerry said that he wants families to be as involved as possible when it comes to Title VI and the school district as a whole.

"The bottom line is that these are all of our children," said DePerry. "We want families to have a voice as well. We have gotten feedback over the years. We want to hear what families want in regards to education and career-building. It is important to have a voice in your child's education."

DePerry summed this meeting up saying that the school district's goal is to give students as many options as they can and let them make their decision when that time comes.

"There are a lot of good things happening inside this building," said DePerry. "We want to continue to find ways promote that and communicate that. We will continue to uncover every stone to provide our kids with chances to be successful once they leave us."

Author points out not all Native Americans same

Treuer shows stereotypes only portray one narrow and often incorrect version of people

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Not all Native American tribes are the same, and not all Native Americans within a tribe are the same, according to Anton Treuer, author and professor of Ojibwe at Bemidji State University.

Treuer presented on his book, “Everything You Wanted to Know About Indians But Were Afraid to Ask,” and about the history of Native Americans on May 5 at the Arvid E. Miller Library and Museum on the Stockbridge-Munsee Reservation. He noted that many people who encounter Native Americans for the first time are still thinking that they remain in the small communities, wear feathers on their heads and live in squalor. That comes as a result of many books about Natives being written by non-Natives.

“Most of them haven’t spent time in a Native place or talked with them really, but they were the authorities on all things Native, which is kind of weird,” Treuer said. “By the way, it’s not just a problem for the historians, but also for the people developing our school system and wondering why it’s not working for our kids.”

That is changing, though. More Natives like Treuer are writing books and getting degrees, he said, so that they can go out and teach the world about the real history of Native American tribes.

“It’s still like a work in progress. We’re not done,” Treuer said. “We’re still fighting for our sovereignty. We’re still fighting for all of our rights and still trying to be seen. There is a lot of exciting stuff that’s happening, though, and I have a lot of hope we may be able to take things forward.”

He held up his mother, Margaret, as an example. She was born and lived on a reservation, but her mother had been taken at age 6 to the boarding schools, where many Native children were forced to assimilate into the American government’s way of thinking. Margaret moved past the cultural assimilation and became the first female Native American attorney in Minnesota, Treuer said.

“That was very powerful for me, watching her,” he said.

Healing the hurt is still something that Native Americans struggle to do. Treuer said that, in childhood, he had a chip on his shoulder, and many other children do as well due to the European-style of education that exists in America today.

Anton Treuer speaks before an intimate group of people May 5 at the Arvid E. Miller Library and Museum about his book, “Everything You Wanted to Know About Indians But Were Afraid to Ask.”

“When somebody feels assaulted, it takes you right back to your old caveman impulses — like flight, fight or freeze,” Treuer said. “People are asking, ‘Why do we have truancy problems with these kids?’ In some ways, we’re still doing education for assimilation stuff instead of empowering everyone to be exactly who they are.”

Native people walk a tightrope between their ancestral heritage and what the American ideal says they need to be, according to Treuer. They have to figure how to live in the world but still hold tight to the values of their people, he said.

“That’s what colonization is,” Treuer said. “It’s about erasure. You have to worry about becoming the other instead of being true to yourself.”

During his presentation, Treuer showed the financial information on his home community of Bena, Minnesota, on the Ojibwe Reservation, although he said he hesitated to do so. The naked numbers that show the average person per capita makes $8,693 annually with a household income average of $24,167, but that doesn’t show the community’s full picture, he said.

“The problem with stereotypes isn’t so much that they’re incorrect as much as they’re incomplete,” Treuer said. “They give you one, single, narrow little story and leave you to understand a whole group of people by that.”

The problems of perception have grown over millennia, so the resolution is not going to come overnight, Treuer said. He hopes his book and other efforts by Native Americans will make some steps forward in realizing that the big picture needs to come into focus.

“We need to keep planting the seeds, and then it can transform the entire landscape and ecosystem,” Treuer said. “That’s what we do in education, and that’s what we do when we work to rebuild our ceremonies, language and culture. That’s even what we do when we’re having a conversation like this. It’s important work you’re leading into in your own way.”

Treuer hadn’t even planned to write about Native American issues and ways of life, but fate had other plans for him.

“I stumbled into this book entirely by accident,” Treuer said. “My goal when I finished high school was to get out of town and never come back. I got into Princeton University and thought, ‘Yes, I’m now escaping the brambled racial borderland of my youth.’ That was just naive of me.”

Once Treuer got to Princeton, he was riddled with questions about his Native heritage, like “Where’s your tomahawk?” That led him to want to go back home and never leave. However, it also motivated him to move forward and help one person at a time understand that not everything about Native Americans fits into one box.

“I realized that even I didn’t have the answers to a lot of questions,” Treuer said, noting he’s learned as much as anyone else about Native Americans working on the book. “It didn’t fall out of the sky just because I was Native.”

Fredenburgh given 25 years for child sex abuse

Former Suring trustee groomed girl, 12, for sex

By WARREN BLUHM
Editor-in-chief

U.S. District Judge William Griesbach had a blunt message to friends and family of John Fredenburgh before sentencing him to 25 years in federal prison.

"No one pleads guilty to a 15- to 20-year crime if they didn't do it," Griesbach said during the May 5 sentencing hearing. "If you think she's making it up, get a life. Use your head. This is what he did, and he lied to you."

Fredenburgh, 37, a former Suring village trustee, pleaded guilty in December to traveling in interstate commerce for the purpose of having sex with a minor, and one count of attempting to entice a minor to engage in sexual conduct, in connection with an eight-year relationship with a girl, now 18, that turned sexual when she was 12.

She confided the affair to her mother when she was 17, and Oconto County authorities charged him in March 2021 with 24 felony counts stemming from the long-term abuse. Federal investigators got involved when they learned Fredenburgh had crossed the state line into Michigan for at least one of the sexual encounters with the girl.

Noting that letters he received from some supporters indicated they still believed Fredenburgh's early denials, Griesbach said any one of the acts he has admitted would result in a conviction and prison time.

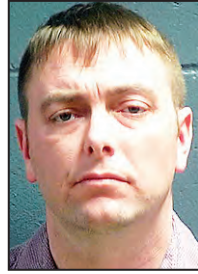

"This is hundreds of acts over eight years," he said.

Before the sentence was imposed, the victim and several family members and friends asked Griesbach to impose the maximum allowed by law, which could have been as much as 40 years.

Fredenburgh was a coach, and the victim was a friend of his daughter.

The girl's uncle said she was groomed by Fredenburgh, who built a great amount of trust with her and her family.

"He took away her childhood, he took away all of her adolescence, there were threats made with a gun, and she's got to live with all of this," the uncle said. "She did not deserve this horror."

Her mother said Fredenburgh came forward after the girl's beloved grandmother died, and the family was grateful to "let an adult bond with her, not realizing she was being preyed on."

When the mom reported Fredenburgh to the police, her daughter was angry and said she hated her. It took weeks for the girl to understand what he had done to her, the mother said. In their small town, they have had to endure community reaction with comments to the mother like "How could you not have known?" and comments to the girl that she was making up the allegations.

The girl's father said Fredenburgh came across as a friendly person who always had a smile on his face and an encouraging word, even convincing the community to elect him to the village board, all of it masking the dark reality.

"No young girl or family ever has to go through what this man did to her. I feel guilty every day that I didn't see the evil in this man," the father said. "I hope everybody in this room from both sides will understand what's happened to my little girl."

With her mother and aunt standing at her side, the victim read a four-page statement describing the abuse and its impact on her life.

"I don't know how old I will be when I finally feel I have my life back again," she said.

She described Fredenburgh giving her compliments about how pretty she was as early as when she was 10. When she was 11, he planted the idea that when she turned 18 they would get married and move to California.

Then he started suggesting sex, and during a sleepover one night when she was 12 he texted her to meet him upstairs, saying, "It's now or never ... otherwise you can't come over or be friends with my daughter anymore."

It was not the first threat that occurred during the secret relationship. She said he held a gun on her several times, including one incident in a hotel room when she was 17 when he held a gun on her and threatened to kill her and then himself.

She was overcome by emotion several times as she spoke, and at one point Griesbach stopped her, pointed out that he had read her statement before the hearing, and told her she did not have to continue.

"No," she replied. "I have to do this, to help myself heal."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Daniel Humble recommended a prison term of 320 months, or nearly 27 years.

"This court doesn't see many cases more serious and horrific as this," Humble said.

Fredenburgh abused the girl sexually and emotionally for years, he said, and yet "he still purports to be a pillar of the community," citing a statement in the pre-sentence report.

A 320-month sentence would be slightly above federal sentencing guidelines but would be a fair and just term, Humble said.

Defense attorney Krista Halla-Valdez argued for a 15- to 20-year term, citing that her client signed a plea agreement with a range of 188-285 months, or about 16 to 23 years.

"That is serious punishment, and he was willing to do that," he said. "At no point is Mr. Fredenburgh excusing or rationalizing his behavior ... Nobody is trying to downplay this as not a serious crime ... he's not doing that either."

Halla-Valdez pointed out that Fredenburgh had no previous criminal record, sustained a traumatic brain injury while serving in the military, and wants to go to a prison where he can obtain needed mental health and substance abuse treatment.

Given a chance to make a statement, Fredenburgh said he was sorry.

"I've let many people down in my community, in my family, (the victim) and her family," he said. "I'm devastated by what I've done to (her) mental health."

Fredenburgh said he wanted people to know that while his actions were "deplorable, they were not malicious."

Before imposing sentence Griesbach said Fredenburgh preyed on people's innocence and gained the trust of the community, portrayed himself as an upstanding leader.

"He could have been that person," the judge said, but instead committed "a horrible crime" over a long period of time. "This is not a one-time mistake of judgment. This is a lifestyle."

To the victim, who had said she feared she might never recover from the trauma, Griesbach said, "You can see in the letters of support that this is not irreparable damage. Don't throw in the towel. You've already helped a lot of people by coming forward. Your life is still of great value."

Fredenburgh himself is still salvageable if he uses his time in prison to "reflect on what he's done and make amends," Griesbach said.

The judge gave Fredenburgh credit for pleading guilty and sparing the victim the ordeal of testifying in an open trial, but added, "He also spared himself the complete airing of everything he did."

OBITUARIES

M. Eugene "Gene" Zeuske, 97, of Shawano, passed away peacefully on Thursday, May 5, 2022, at his home on the Wolf River Channel.

Gene was born on June 21, 1924, at the home farm on the shores of the Wolf River, Town of Matteson, a son of the late Max Paul and Ethel (Hanson) Zeuske. He received his love of hard work and the outdoors from his parents. Gene's mom, Ethel, instilled in him temperance and the importance of public service and community involvement that he exercised into the last days of his life.

Gene attended Wolf River School and graduated from Clintonville High School in 1943. He enlisted in the Army Air Corps and served America during World War II. After the war, he was hired as the farm bureau representative in Langlade County, where he met the love of his life, Vi Ourada, in Antigo.

After marriage, Gene and Vi moved to Waupaca County for the Farm Bureau for several years before moving to Shawano and starting an American Family Insurance Agency. Gene's tireless work on behalf of his customers earned him great respect and numerous achievement awards.

Together, Gene and Vi shared 68 years of loving marriage until Vi passed away in 2018.

Their greatest joy was their three children, son, Todd (Terry) Zeuske, Verona, and their family, Drew, Zachary (Terri) and Troy; daughter, Candee (Ray) Arndt, Brookfield, and their family, Catie, Chris (Allie) Arndt and their daughter, Sadie; and daughter, Cathy Zeuske (John Gard), Suamico, and their family, John (Sarah) Gard and Libby (Chris) Sobic and their daughters Madeleine and Lillian. Gene is survived by his sister, Joyce Geiger and many nieces and nephews.

Gene's service to the Shawano area spanned decades of appointed leadership positions: police/fire commission; Shawano Municipal Utilities; Badger Power Marketing Utilities (founding commissioner). Gene was active in many civic clubs, serving as president of the Shawano Jaycees and Lions. He personally worked to rebuild the Shawano Lake Gun Club and served as president.

Gene was presented with the Distinguished Service Award from the Shawano Area United Way. From its beginning, he was elected vice president and its first campaign chairman, followed by nearly a decade of his relentless effort to expand the program into the county. Gene's conscientious service to the state of Wisconsin included election as the Shawano delegate to the Wisconsin Conservation Congress for over 20 years and was appointed by four Wisconsin governors to be the Shawano County representative to the East Regional Planning Commission.

For over a half-century, Gene was a dedicated volunteer for local, state and national Republican candidates, earning awards for his hard work and efforts.

Yet, Gene was happiest planting trees on his farm or planning the next big project at his Gunn Lake cabin on Sunrise Point in Ontario, Canada. He found great joy in making over 200 trips to Canada with his wife, family and lifelong friends. Often his trips included more building supplies than fishing rods.

Over the last six months, Gene worked from home watching the birds in his backyard, entertaining his many visitors and family and discussing current events. We are so thankful to his wonderful caregivers who ensured his health and happiness: Sue Olson, Annette Hammond, Emily Parsons, Cheryl Sampson and Amy Dickson.

Gene was preceded in death by his parents, and three brothers, Dennis, Duane and Don.

A memorial service for Gene will be held on Thursday, May 19, 2022, at 11 a.m. at the First Presbyterian Church in Shawano. Pastor Debbie Pagels will officiate. Military rites to follow.

Donald A. Nordwig

Donald "Don" A. Nordwig, 86, of Clintonville, passed away Thursday, May 5, 2022, at the ThedaCare Regional Medical Center in Neenah.

Donald Arthur Nordwig was born Sept. 22, 1935, in Mattoon as the son of the late Arthur and Dulice (Kopelke) Nordwig. He grew up in the Shawano area and at the young age of 16 started driving truck for a local cheese factory. He met Barbara Lichtenberg at the Shawano County Fair, and a few years later the couple were united in marriage on July 20, 1956, in Clintonville. The couple resided in Clintonville while Don continued his truck driving career — first on his own and later working for Schneider and Foreway.

After retirement, he drove for Bayland and even delivered Christmas trees for Arneson's from Clintonville to Chicago. Don enjoyed going to antique truck shows with his buddy Bill Schoenike and volunteered in his spare time with the Clintonville Goodfells. He was a past member of the Clintonville Curling Club and enjoyed ushering as a faithful member at St. Martin Lutheran Church in Clintonville. Don will be remembered fondly by his family as the best dad who was a softy at heart.

Survivors include his wife, Barbara; children, Lynn (Tom) Paroubek, Debra (Tim) Stori and Paul (Cindy) Nordwig; grandchildren, Andy, Joseph (Emilee) and Mike (Danielle) Paroubek; Kara (Mathew) Zellner; Matt (Jessie) and Marc Stori; and Melissa, Lauren and Ben Nordwig; great-grandchildren, Jack, Arthur, Amelia, Graham, Bennett, Isabelle, Jayden, Mason and Owen; and his sister, Janet (Wayne) Habeck.

Don was preceded in death by his parents; a sister, Rita (Gene) Gurlt; and his brothers-in-law and sisters-in-law Don and Julie Lichtenberg and Gene and Arlyle Rosenthal.

Don's funeral service was held Monday, May 9, 2022, at the St. Martin Lutheran Church in Clintonville with the Rev. Jason Zobel officiating. Interment followed at Graceland Cemetery in Clintonville.

Don's family would like to express their most sincere thanks to the staff in the palliative care department of ThedaCare Medical Center in Neenah, the Clintonville Area Ambulance Service, the Clintonville Police Department and also to neighbors Dan Scherschel and Tim Morgan for their help and support.

Cecil man charged in vehicle standoff

Snowplows used to eventually trap driver, end incident

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

A chase involving a historic military vehicle with a standoff sandwiched in between kept state Highway 29 closed for hours on the evening of May 8, and a Cecil man has been arrested and charged in the incident.

The Shawano County Sheriff's Department responded around 5:15 p.m. to reports of a heavy truck-type military vehicle on the highway in western Shawano County travelling down the roadway with a flat tire, thus causing a traffic hazard, according to Lt. Jesse Sperberg.

Deputies located and attempted to stop the vehicle, according to Sperberg, but the driver, identified in court records as Aaron Renel, led them on a short chase, coming to a stop in about a half-mile on the eastbound lane median of Highway 29 near County Road G in the Town of Seneca. The eastbound highway was shut down due to the incident.

Renel, 39, allegedly would not cooperate and would not exit the vehicle. Because of comments allegedly made by Renel and the conditions of this incident, the Shawano County Special Response Team responded to this scene, Sperberg said. Deputies, including trained negotiators, communicated with Renel for about four hours, and during this time, arrangements were made with the Shawano County Highway Department for the use of snowplows in case the driver tried to flee the scene.

About 9:30 p.m. Renel allegedly did just that, heading eastbound on Highway 29. Deputies tried to stop the suspect vehicle, using the snowplows in an attempt to perform a moving roadblock. The vehicle then crossed the median and began heading eastbound in the westbound lanes of the highway, according to Sperberg.

Renel allegedly came back to the eastbound lanes but then against crossed the median and was driving the wrong way down the highway. At one point, Renel allegedly drove into the median and a deputy operating a snowplow was able to pin the truck into the median, immobilizing it. Renel allegedly would not exit his vehicle and had to be removed with force. No serious injuries were reported to any law enforcement or this suspect, Sperberg said.

Renel made his appearance in Shawano-Menominee County Circuit Court on May 9 and is being charged with felony count of fleeing and eluding an officer in a vehicle and second-degree recklessly endangering safety, along with a misdemeanor count of resisting or obstructing an officer.

Shawano-Menominee County Circuit Court Judge William Kussel Jr. set a $10,000 cash bond for Renel and scheduled an adjourned initial appearance for 1:30 p.m. May 18 in Branch 2 at the Shawano County Courthouse. At that appearance, Kussel will also address charges filed April 29 against Renel that include intentionally pointing a firearm at a person, disorderly conduct with the use of a dangerous weapon, possession of THC and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Other conditions of the bond include absolute sobriety and no illegal drugs, with prescription medication permitted. Renel is also not allowed to operate a motor vehicle.

Kussel also ordered a competency exam for Renel.

Musolff named new Shawano School Board president

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

There is still a Mike in the president's position on the Shawano School Board, but it's not Michael Sleeper.

Mike Musolff, who served the last year as vice president, was elected by a 6-3 vote on May 2, defeating Sleeper. Musolff will be taking charge of the board at a time when the trust between the Shawano School District and the parents and taxpayers who call the area home is a little shaky. Musolff's election generated applause from the audience of about 40 people.

Jamie Beyer, who was just elected to the board in 2021, was named vice president by unanimous consent. Another newer face, James Davel, was named the board's clerk, also by unanimous consent.

Chuck Dallas was reelected as treasurer for a second term, getting five votes and beating out Alysia Pillsbury and Mart Grams, who each received two votes.

The leadership positions are for one year, after which time the board will cast new votes at its reorganizational meeting in May.

Mike Musolff, left, was elected president of the Shawano School Board by a 6-3 vote, beating out incumbent Michael Sleeper, right.

Event planned to aid youth fighting leukemia

Celebration and fundraiser will take place May 21 at Doc's Harley Davidson in Bonduel

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

Doc's Harley-Davidson in Bonduel will be hosting a celebration and fundraiser for a 2-year-old who is battling leukemia.

Amira Rynish, of Green Bay, was diagnosed with leukemia last June, said her aunt, Ashley Pearce.

"She was diagnosed about a week after her second birthday," said Pearce. "The recovery for leukemia is about 2½ years of active chemotherapy treatment, in addition to steroids and other chemotherapy drugs."

Pearce added that Rynish is being treated at the Children's Hospital in Milwaukee.

"That is about a two-hour drive one-way for her family to get there," said Pearce. "How many times a week she is down there really depends on what part of treatment she is in."

To assist her sister and brother-in-law in covering financial costs, Pearce helped to organize the benefit at Doc's, which will be May 21 from 3-8 p.m.

"We are going to be close to the zoo area, so families can go and look at the animals," said Pearce. "We are going to also have a kids' game zone, which will feature face painting."

She added that raffles will also be included, with beef, guns, booze and a mystery box being raffled off, as well as pulled pork and sloppy Joes being supplied for food.

"It is kind of going to be a celebration for how far she has come in her treatment, but also an effort for us to cover as many of her financial expenses as possible," said Pearce.

Pearce said that, throughout the process, the family has met a lot of people in similar situations.

"I want people to leave this event knowing that this is more common than they think," said Pearce. "It is heartbreaking to know that so many families are hearing the news that we heard last June."

Pearce said that Rynish noticed this and is showing support for people in the same situation as her.

"You see how much she cares and loves for others around her — she is very receptive of others' emotions, I think, because she has gone through so many emotions herself," said Pearce. "Amira has a really good outlook on life, so I think it helps to relieve some of the hard days."

She noted that the family has heard support from the Shawano and Bonduel communities for Amira.

"The support that we have had from people looking to donate and volunteer, it is amazing," said Pearce. "To see how close a family and a community can come together when someone is affected by cancer is amazing."

Pearce added that the Rynish family is also donating to other families who are in similar situations.

"Amira has a little brother, Atlas, who just turned 1, so some of his clothes that he has out grown are getting passed forward to another family," said Pearce. "They are also looking for ways to ease the burden that leukemia brings on a family."

She also noted that although hearing the diagnosis was heartbreaking, the silver lining has been that the family has become much closer.

"We have always been a super close family, but this has brought us together in a way that can't be replicated," said Pearce. "To use humor and celebrating the good days has helped to handle the rough days."

In addition to organizing the event, Pearce mentioned that she and the rest of the committee are partnering with the Community Benefit Tree.

"They are a nonprofit organization that helps to plan benefits and help with families who are going through medical and financial situations," said Pearce. "All of the money that is raised in this benefit gets put into a special fund, and they will help to manage the money — including paying Amira's medical bills."

To sum up what visitors can expect at the event, Pearce said that it should be an afternoon and evening of family fun.

"Families should not be afraid to bring their kids," said Pearce. "There are multiple raffles. There is a full slew of things that will be available."

Pearce added that Rynish recently learned about celebrations and parties and is excited for this upcoming celebration.

"I don't know if she knows it's about her," said Pearce. "We are planning on having a birthday card stand, where visitors can give her card for her birthday in June. She loves dinosaurs, so she excited to see all of the different dinosaur decorations."

YOUR RIGHT TO KNOW

Ask lawmakers for the records they delete

If a legislator deletes an email, is it truly gone? Not necessarily.

On March 10, Dane County Circuit Judge Valerie Bailey-Rihn ordered Assembly Speaker Robin Vos to search for deleted emails that should have been preserved after an open records request from American Oversight, a watchdog group.

Weeks later, Vos' team surrendered an astounding 20,000 emails recovered from the "deleted items" folders of government email accounts.

Obtaining records from state lawmakers can be especially difficult. Decades ago, the Wisconsin Legislature exempted itself from the state's records retention statute. The smallest township in Wisconsin is required to keep some records for years, but the legislators and their staff can destroy records at will.

The state's open records law states that, once a record has been requested, destroying it is illegal. If you make an open records request, even legislators

JOHN FOUST

Steve Fawcett, Vos's staff counsel, waited up to 13 days before he notified staff to stop deleting records that may have been responsive to American Oversight's requests. On March 30, Bailey-Rihn found Vos in contempt of court in a different case, saying he and the Assembly had shown "a collective and abject disregard" of a prior order to produce the records.

Former Wisconsin Supreme Court Justice Michael Gableman, who was hired by Vos at taxpayer expense to search for evidence of fraud in the 2020 election, was also ordered by a need to pause their deletions to properly respond to your request.

Bailey-Rihn took this further, ordering Vos to search for records that had been deleted but were still retrievable.

judge to stop deleting records.

The Wisconsin Legislative Council, the nonpartisan agency that gives legal and policy advice to the Legislature, concluded last year that Gableman's Office of Special Counsel is subject to the records retention statutes, and yet it was continuing to delete records it decided were "irrelevant or useless" to its investigation.

As the Wisconsin Examiner recently reported, the ability to request records that have been deleted opens up a new avenue for reporters and others seeking to hold public officials accountable — and perhaps provides an end-run around lawmakers' ability to delete records.

"I've already changed my request template," Amanda St. Hilaire, an investigative reporter at Fox6 WITI in Milwaukee who makes hundreds of records requests a year, told the news outlet. "I've never thought to request specifically deleted records because based on the way the law works, I always was under the impression that if they could retrieve those records, that would be responsive to my request."

Jeff Ylvisaker, director of the Legislative Technology Services Bureau, declined to answer my questions regarding its retention policies that might explain how much email is in their archives and perhaps still accessible.

That's unfortunate, because lawmakers shouldn't be deciding which records to keep and which to destroy, a power that could be used to hide misconduct. Lawmakers' exemption from the retention rules in place for everyone else should be eliminated.

Until then, citizens seeking to know what lawmakers are up to should be asking them to search the trash cans, too.

As Roe v. Wade in limbo, is it 1849 or 2022?

On May 2, a leaked draft opinion of the U.S. Supreme Court showed that our nation's highest court intends to overturn Roe v. Wade, our constitutional right to abortion.

The leaked opinion from the Supreme Court is an unacceptable roll back of our constitutional rights. It's evidence of a frenzied effort from politicians and judges to restrict our freedom to choose, and continues a long-running war on women, health care and reproductive rights.

Right now, Roe v. Wade is the only thing standing between us and a 173-year backslide in Wisconsin's health care system. If the highest court's draft opinion becomes final, Wisconsin would revert back to a criminal abortion ban written into law in 1849.

books.

The 1849 law makes abortion illegal, even in cases of rape or incest, and would also threaten doctors who provide or facilitate abortions in Wisconsin with felonies. It could force local clinics to close their doors for good, barring millions of Americans from access to essential medical care.

This statute has not been enforceable since the U.S. Supreme Court ruled abortion was legal in the 1973 Roe v. Wade decision, but it was never repealed and remains on the

By punishing not only those who are in critical need of reproductive health care but also the medical professionals giving them a safe choice, politicians and supreme court justices against Roe v. Wade are telling Wisconsin one thing: your body, their choice.

Twenty-six states would lose access to safe abortions if this draft opinion were to become final. That means 36 million women could be stripped of their right to make decisions about their own bodies. Those 36 million women aren't strangers — they're our neighbors, our friends, our children and people who make our communities what they are.

For now, abortion is still legal. The draft opinion that was leaked has no current legal authority, but attacks on reproductive freedom are real and significant. The high court is opening the door for politicians to impose new restrictions on people's freedom to control their own bodies.

This is a wake-up call to come together to protect and support our friends and family members' ability to decide if or when they become a parent.

No judge, no politician, no elected or partisan-appointed official should be able to take away our right to make personal medical decisions for ourselves, or take away our ability to decide if we want to start a family.

Chris Walloch is the executive director at A Better Wisconsin Together.

CMN institute gets $650K sustainability grant

Recently the Bay and Paul Foundation awarded $650,000 to the Sustainable Development Institute at College of Menominee Nation.

President Christopher Caldwell expressed his gratitude for the large gift.

"We are always deeply indebted to those who see the importance of our work as one of the nation's 35 accredited tribal colleges and universities," Caldwell said. "Part of that work for the College of Menominee Nation includes the focus on sustainability that is led by our Sustainable Development Institute for over 25 years. SDI leads many projects to better understand human-environmental relationships, including Indigenous peoples and climate change."

These funds will be distributed over two years of programming to initiate a revisiting of the theoretical model of sustainability and SDI as an institution.

Tom Kenote Jr., SDI director, is excited to use the Bay and Paul Foundation's support to develop a new era of SDI focus and work.

"We are excited for this next iteration of the Menominee Theoretical Model of Sustainability," Kenote said. "We plan to host community dialogue sessions to reimagine what sustainable development looks like in today's context. We also plan to use the funding to support operations here at the institute."

The funds provided cover SDI staff costs to plan, implement, analyze and present community workshops and convening. Work has already begun.

Holt and Bascom Logging Camp Museum to reopen

The Holt and Balcom Logging Camp Museum in Lakewood will reopen on Memorial Day weekend. Maintenance and cleaning has been done by volunteer staff to ready the site for visitors.

A recoating of the camp is expected to be completed this summer by Mountain Log Homes, and Camp Manager Dave Zuleger's to-do list also includes repairing two windows. The recoating is an expensive procedure, and donations are needed to cover the cost.

"We are so happy these schools will be able to join us this year," said Bob Brown, school tours coordinator. "The staff always enjoys seeing the excitement build as the children enjoy a unique hands-on interactive experience at the logging camp."

Camp Director Kathleen Marsh reported that the museum lost one of its best school tour guides this past winter.

"Don Seifert was a loyal volunteer staffer at Holt and Balcom. Each spring for the past decade, he was part of our team of school tour guides. Don's face would light up as he watched fourth graders from area elementary schools bound off the bus and run across the lawn to enjoy a morning of living like a lumberjack."

The late Don Seifert, center with baseball cap, coaches students on how to use a two-person saw during a school trip to Holt and Bascom Logging Camp Museum. CONTRIBUTED

Seifert's favorite part was patiently teaching the kids how to use a two-man saw — repeating over and over that the key to success in sawing a log efficiently is to pull, not push, the saw, and to work as a team, Marsh said.

"To help them remember, Don would lead the kids in chants of 'Pull! Pull! Pull!' she said. "When the cut was almost made, he would have the kids yell out 'Timber!' — always aware that he would have to play the referee, as the wanna-be lumberjacks fought over who would be able to take home the cut piece as a souvenir."

One of his proudest moments was being named Oconto County History Society Volunteer of the Year, she said.

"That award, which meant so much to him and to his wife, Barb, has never been given to a more deserving person," Marsh said. "Just a few weeks ago, I saw him at a funeral and asked if he would help us out again this year. Without hesitation and wearing a big smile, he said, 'Of course.' Some people cannot be spared. Don was one of them for us. It will not be the same out at the camp this spring without him."

As in the past, the Logging Museum will be open 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays, Memorial Day through Labor Day. Special tours can also be arranged by calling Brown at 715-276-3505 or Marsh at 715-276-6515.

The museum is grateful for donations from those who want to help keep the area's logging heritage alive at the oldest logging camp in America still sitting where it was built, Marsh said. Tax-deductible contributions may be sent to: Kathleen Marsh, Director; Holt and Balcom Logging Camp Museum; 16965 Nicolet Road, Townsend, WI 54175.

USDA seeks proposals for wildlife enhancement initiative

The U.S. Department of Agriculture is welcoming new and modified proposals from conservation partners for the State Acres for Wildlife Enhancement initiative, a part of the Conservation Reserve Program focused on effectively managing wildlife habitat.

USDA's Farm Service Agency has expanded available practices under this initiative in response to feedback from partners.

"We are committed to offering a strong suite of voluntary conservation options through the Conservation Reserve Program," said FSA Administrator Zach Ducheneaux. "In 2021, we made several updates to CRP to improve program participation and strengthen its climate benefits. As we work to build on those efforts, we're now encouraging producers to help us strengthen the wildlife benefits of CRP through our SAWE initiative."

Through SAWE, producers and landowners restore vital habitat in alignment with high-priority state wildlife conservation goals. Specifically, landowners establish wetlands, grasses, and trees. These practices are designed to enhance important wildlife populations by creating critical habitat and food sources. They also protect soil and water health by working as a barrier to sediment and nutrient run-off before they reach waterways.

To help improve the planning and implementation of the SAWE initiative, FSA is adding two new practices with the assistance of USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service, FSA's sister agency. In partnership with FSA, NRCS employees across the country provide CRP participants with critical conservation planning assistance, which will now include managing for early successional habitat cover establishment or management, and wildlife habitat planting.

These additional eligible practices will enable SAWE partners to better target a wide variety of wildlife species, such as the Northern bobwhite, lesser prairie-chicken, and the New England cottontail.

As part of this year's SAWE sign-up, FSA will also authorize cost-share assistance for producers who would like to re-enroll acres in CRP but need assistance updating their vegetative cover to align with NRCS practice standards for early successional habitat or wildlife planting.

The true story behind an NBA legend

I've read biographies of some high-level professional athletes. Every one of them included challenges and perseverance. This week I chose "Where Tomorrows Aren't Promised: A Memoir of Survival and Hope" by NBA star Carmelo Anthony, with D. Watkins.

JAN JONES

From the very first page it was easy to see that the basketball star's life was grounded in love and loyalty but filled with loss and hurt. In this memoir, Carmelo or "Melo" shares what shaped him as both a person and a player.

Carmelo was 2 years old when his father died of cancer. He knows that his dad was tall and a well-known activist in the Red Hook housing project in Brooklyn, New York. Carmelo's family consists of his mother, Mary, her husband, Deek, half-brothers Justice (Robert) and Wilfred (Wolf), and sister, Michelle.

He never knew how she did it, but his mother always found a way to feed anyone who showed up hungry and welcomed anyone who needed a place to sleep. Mary was a deeply religious person but preferred to live her faith rather than forcing her kids to attend church.

Early on, Carmelo was able to hold his own with older boys on the basketball court. When his cousin Luck moved in, Carmelo had a fellow basketball phenom to help him up his game.

Carmelo loved the Red Hook. He loved the trips into New York for picnics and other low-cost activities and never wanted to leave, but he learned early that things can change in a heartbeat. Like many young men from the projects, Justice went to prison and Wolf disappeared into the city.

One day, his mother announced that they were moving to Baltimore. Suddenly Carmelo and Luck had to establish themselves in a new and dangerous housing project known as Murphy Homes. That entailed requisite fights and displays of confidence that Carmelo didn't really feel.

AT A GLANCE

BOOK: "Where Tomorrows Aren't Promised: A Memoir of Survival and Hope"

AUTHOR: Carmelo Anthony with D. Watkins

PUBLISHER: Gallery Books

YEAR PUBLISHED: 2021

NUMBER OF PAGES: 208

The one place he and Luck could dominate was the basketball court. It was the one thing that offered a way out of grinding poverty, drugs and crime. Carmelo was keenly aware that he lacked the support and guidance of a father, so his coaches, teachers and older boys became his mentors. They helped him stay focused on his goals and gave him a sense of family.

By high school, he had had a reputation on the court and was pressured into attending Towson Catholic as scholarship student. Surrounded by wealthy white kids and hostile white teachers, he was sorely tempted to forget about getting into college, but once again his mentors stepped in to steer him back toward his goal.

While he was struggling with school and overt racism, he got another blow. His beloved Luck was killed during a senseless argument. Carmelo wanted to grieve — needed to grieve — but had no place or way to do so. His only option was to channel his emotions into basketball.

His talent and hard work garnered a scholarship to Syracuse University. There he led the school to national championships, establishing it as a premier basketball school. But his coach could see that it was time for Carmelo to move on. In his sophomore year, Carmelo declared for the NBA draft and was selected by the Denver Nuggets.

Carmelo has had a stellar pro career, but he never forgot the challenges of his childhood. He has championed causes supporting equal rights and opportunities for all. Through the Carmelo Anthony Foundation, he continues to help other inner-city kids get a chance to rise above poverty, crime and racism and succeed in life.

Carmelo Anthony is a shining example of love and determination triumphing over great adversity. It was good to learn about the man behind the NBA star.

Graduates' bonds are everlasting at WBHS

In just a few weeks, we will once again be celebrating the culmination of another class's journey through the Wittenberg-Birnamwood School District.

All of our graduating seniors will move on to new and exciting futures in their chosen interests. All will maintain close connections to the friends they have grown up with. They might not see each other for months, maybe years, but the bond established as a student right here in our halls and classrooms, on our fields and in our gyms, in our auditorium and in our commons, will hold true through whatever time elapses.

That's the amazing thing about school. So much happens here in the relatively short time they attend, that the pride students leave here with and the bonds and friendships they make are everlasting. They will always be a Charger, and that is something that each of them can look back on and hold fond memories of.

We're proud of you, Class of 2022. Congratulations.

Garrett Rogowski is superintendent for the Wittenberg-Birnamwood School District.

Meverden twirls gem in Chargers' win

Witt-Birn blanks Bonduel

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

Mason Meverden pitched a gem to guide the Wittenberg-Birnamwood High School baseball team to a 5-0 Central Wisconsin Conference-East Division victory over Bonduel on May 2 in Bonduel.

Meverden finished just one out shy of a complete game shutout. He instead settled for 6 2/3 impressive innings, scattering nine hits. He struck out six batters and walked just two.

"Just trusting the coaches and the pitches that they call, and then just executing the pitch," said Meverden on what made him successful. "To go all the way through the whole game, you gotta be efficient and not walk people, and that's what I tried to do, just throw strikes."

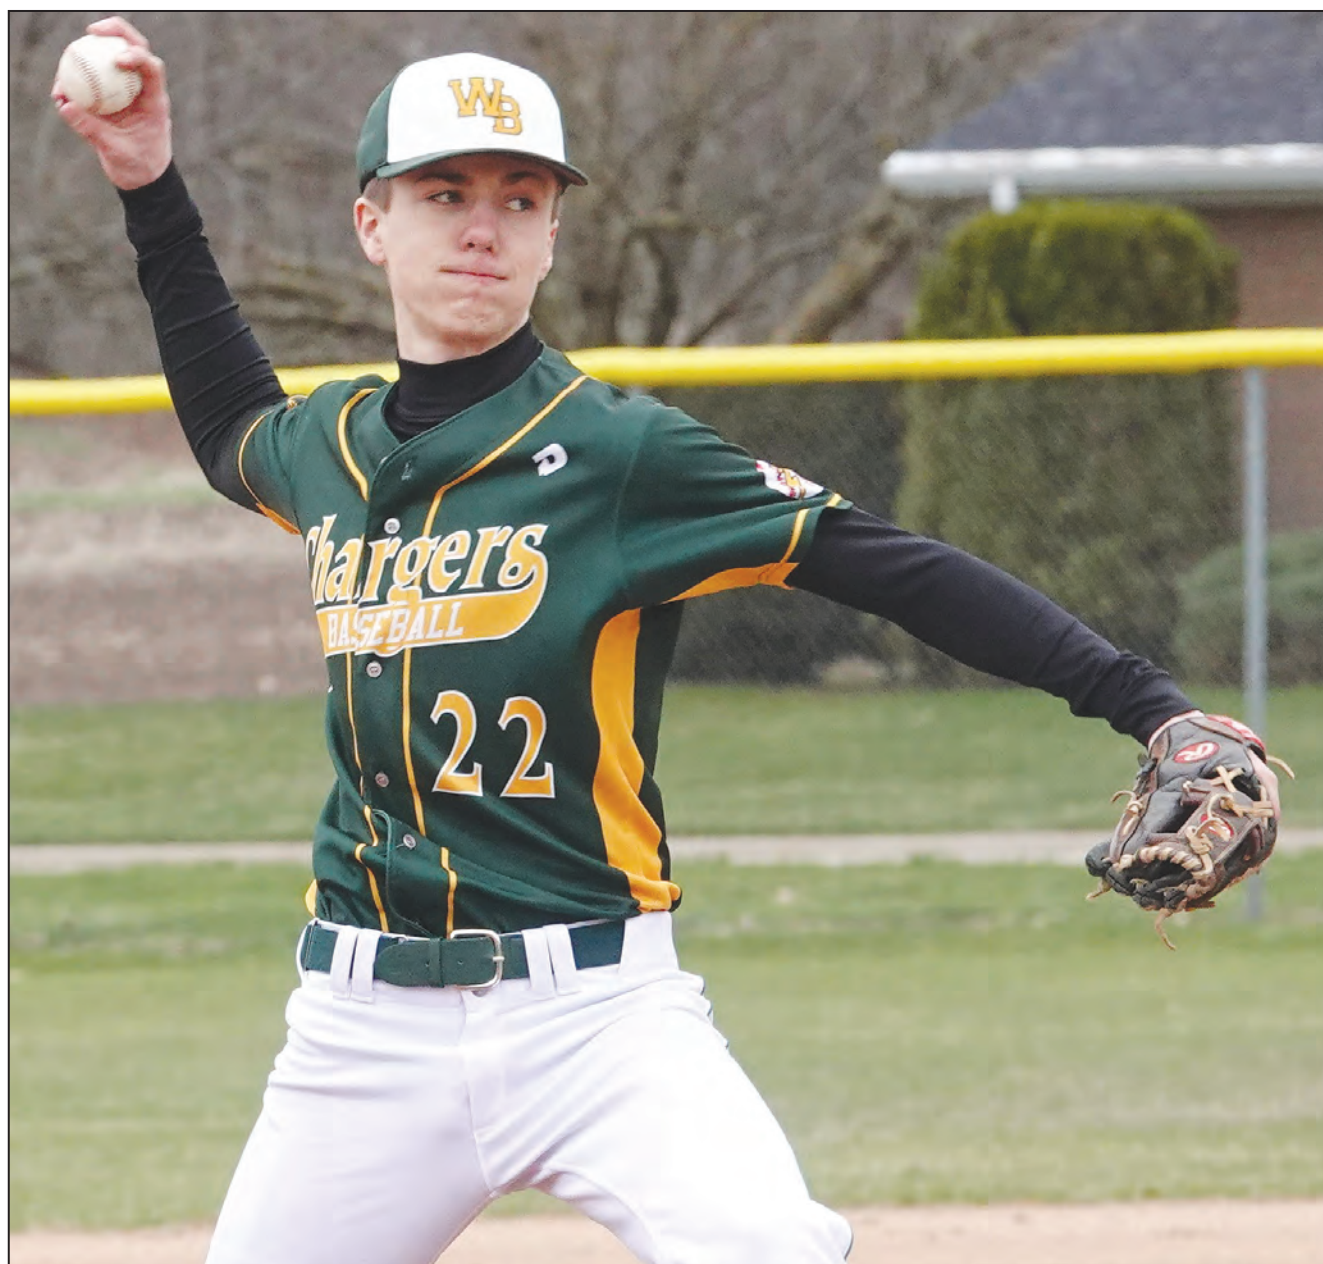

He got some timely defensive plays behind him and the team's offense was eventually able to get him some run support.

The first inning was one of Bonduel's best scoring chances after a leadoff double from Noah Weier. The Bears tried to bunt him to third, but the Chargers pounced on the ball and eventually got Weier out after a rundown. Later in the frame, Meverden got a flyout to strand runners at first and third.

Bonduel's Karson Stoss singled to open the third inning, but he never moved off the base as Meverden got a strikeout and two flyouts to escape the frame. Reece Stoltenow walked and Adam Beilfuss singled in the fourth inning for Bonduel, but Meverden was able to pick off a runner at second base to end the threat.

Charlie Tauchen and Colin Margelofsky each singled in the fifth for Bonduel, but Meverden escaped the inning with a strikeout. Bennett Engel and Stoltenow singled to open the sixth, but a forceout followed by a double play ended the scoring chance.

Tauchen and Weier each tallied hits in the seventh against Meverden, and he eventually went over 100 pitches. Ben Wesolowski came on in relief and needed just two pitches to induce a game-ending groundout.

"We've been really consistent all year, not many errors," said Meverden. "So I pitched to contact — let them put it in play because I'm confident every single time that we can get them out. Our outfielders are great, they cover so much ground out there. It calms you down a lot."

After stranding the bases loaded in the first two innings, Witt-Birn was able to push across the game's first run in the third.

Max Fraaza and Evan Meverden were hit by pitches and Chase Krull walked to load the bases for the Chargers. Kaden Schmidt then walked to plate Fraaza.

While it ended up being the only run against Bonduel starting pitcher Mason Bohm, the visitors drove his pitch count up in a hurry and forced a pitching change in the third.

The Bears ended up using three pitchers in the contest in an effort to preserve some pitching for later games in the week.

"So they really made me throw strikes. They were really patient in the box," said Bohm, who ended up getting the first seven outs. He walked four batters and hit three others while striking out three. "We were battling a tight zone all day — and they were too. I thought it was a pretty good zone, I just couldn't hit it."

In all, Witt-Birn drew nine walks, with Quinton Sippl having four of them.

Witt-Birn added two runs in the fourth, with Sippl walking and Ian Salvesen and Ben Wesolowski singling to load the bases at the start of the frame. Fraaza came through with a sacrifice flyout to plate Sippl, and then Pierson Potrykus grounded out to plate Salvesen.

In the sixth, a misplayed flyball and error on a grounder helped the Chargers score their final two runs. Wesolowski scored when Fraaza reached on the error. Fraaza later scored on a balk.

"This kept us in the running for first and second in conference, so we just have to play it that way I guess," said Fraaza on what the win meant to the team.

Stoltenow to continue basketball career at Concordia

Playing in college lifelong dream for Bonduel senior

By MORGAN RODE

Bonduel High School senior Reece Stoltenow fulfilled a dream of his May 6 inside the high school's gym when he signed a letter of intent to play basketball for Concordia University in Mequon.

"Playing college basketball has been a dream of mine ever since I've been growing up, so it's really just a good day, a happy day," said Stoltenow.

Stoltenow said that his recruiting process picked up a lot of steam in his senior year.

"Over the summer I really put in a lot of hard work — got in the weight room, got in the gym a lot," said Stoltenow. "Probably about the start of basketball season I started getting some looks from different colleges to come play basketball.

"Around December, we went down to Concordia to go look at the campus and meet the coaches and I just loved it there. I knew right there that that is where I wanted to go."

The hard work over the summer paid off in a big way for Stoltenow, who had his best season as a senior.

After making the Central Wisconsin Conference-East Division honorable mention team as a junior, Stoltenow jumped up to the first team as a senior. He put up averages of 16.7 points, 4.3 rebounds, 2.5 assists and 1.5 steals during the season.

Stoltenow knocked down 87 3-pointers this winter, putting him amongst the state leaders in that statistic.

"What I'll remember the most (about playing at Bonduel) is the team and the coaches I've been with along the way," said Stoltenow. "I mean, it's just been amazing. The bonds that we've built and the friendships that we've built will last forever."

Concordia being a Lutheran school is something that appealed to Stoltenow after attending St. Paul in Bonduel growing up. Stoltenow played state games at Concordia, so it became a dream of his to go there.

Stoltenow added that during his visit, everyone associated with the program "was really nice. It was just amazing there."

While the team didn't specify what role he might serve in the years to come, Stoltenow is excited to get on campus, prove his worth and enjoy the experience.

Concordia is coming off a 14-11 season and 11-6 run through the Northern Athletics Collegiate Conference. The team tied for first place with Concordia Chicago and St. Norbert.

Instead of signing his letter while others looked on, Stoltenow had family members, coaches, teammates and friends sit and stand alongside him as he signed.

"My parents have really been the driving factor in all my things," said Stoltenow. "Me and my dad, we come down here and shoot, we work out all the time. My mom supports me in everything that I do. Obviously my grandparents are there for me all the time too, and it's wonderful to have those kind of people there in your life."

Pecore's homer sparks Wildcats late in contest

The Gresham Community High School baseball team fell behind early and eventually lost 15-3 in five innings to Manawa in a Central Wisconsin Conference-North Division contest May 5 in Gresham.

Manawa seized control of the contest with a seven-run first inning. The visitors had their first eight batters reach and drew five walks in the frame. Gresham also gifted Manawa a couple runs on misplayed balls.

The visitors continued to tack on to their lead and led 15-0 before Gresham was able to score in the fourth and fifth innings.

In the fourth frame, Lukas Pecore started the inning with a single and came around to score after four walks. Wesley Thiex drew the bases-loaded walk to force in Pecore.

Gresham was able to end the game positively with two runs in the fifth. Belasaire Vele battled at the plate before drawing a walk, and then Pecore crushed a two-run homer to left field.

"We just use it as motivation," said Vele of the late runs against Manawa. "We want to win the conference this year. Might be a little tough, but we're just going to keep going hard and we'll see what happens."

After scoring late, Gresham is now focused on figuring out a way to have its offense show up earlier in games so they aren't playing from behind.

"We got to hype up our team, talk a lot more, encourage," said Pecore, who added the team was still very young.

Although it wasn't able to score until the later innings, Gresham had some other scoring chances.

Bryson Nelson and Pecore each singled in the first inning, but a strikeout on a check swing ended the frame.

Blade Hoffman singled to open the third, stole second and then moved up to third on a groundout, but he was doubled off third on a Vele lineout to the pitcher.

Gresham used three pitchers to get through the contest. Jack Haffner started but was unable to record an out. Kale James came on in relief and worked into the fourth inning before Robert Kaquatosh got the final six outs.

"I mean, we got to start out on top. Our pitchers have to throw strikes, and the defense has to play defense," said Pecore on how to team can improve at the start of games.

Along with his homer and two runs scored, Pecore ended up with three of the team's five hits.

"We just got to be strong," said Vele. "We have to get out fundamentals down, getting the easy plays that we can get. Getting in and out of the inning, getting the bats going — that helps a lot to either get a lead or stay in the game."

ATHLETE PROFILE: CALVIN SCHEURER

Dual-sport athlete excelling this spring

Wittenberg-Birnamwood High School senior Calvin Scheurer is enjoying a big spring as an athlete. He serves as one of the boys golf team's top individuals and also pitches for the baseball team.

He led the golf team and finished as the medalist during a Central Wisconsin Conference meet on May 2 at Greenwood Hills Country Club in Wausau. He also led the team at the Bonduel Invite on April 29 at Golden Sands Golf Course in Cecil and the Weymont Invite on April 21 at Weymont Run Country Club in Weymont.

Scheurer tossed five innings against to earn a CWC-East win for the baseball team on April 28. He worked four innings and got the win in a CWC crossover win over Manawa on April 19.

Q: When did your interest in golf and baseball begin?

A: I have always had an interest in baseball since I was little. But I started to pick up golf when I was about 11 years old. I give that credit to my grandpa (Bill Scheurer), which is who I learned the game from.

Q: What is your favorite part about the spring sports season?

A: Usually it's finally being able to get outside after a cold winter, but we weren't so lucky this spring. But one of my other favorites about the spring season is, hands down, definitely the golf bus rides.

Q: What has golf and baseball taught you over the years?

A: Baseball has taught me multiple things, but one thing to point out is the level of respect and discipline the game has taught me over the years. Golf, on the other hand, no matter how bad you are playing, getting mad at yourself is not gonna make it better. Personally, I believe golf is more of a mental than physical sport.

A: First, you definitely have to make time to practice both sports. So basically the grind never stops, and I'm very glad I am able to make both sports work.

Q: Talk about how golf and baseball overlap and makes playing both at the same time a bit easier for you.

A: Golf and baseball overlap quite a bit. Given that golf is my primary sport, my free days are usually filled up with baseball games. It is nice because not only am I out of school a lot, if I struggle one day, I am able to get away for a little bit and play another sport.

Q: What kind of individual accomplishments are you striving for in each sport this spring?

A: For golf, I would like to win conference player of the year. But as far as baseball, every time I take the start on the mound, I am just looking

Q: Before a game or meet starts, do you or your teams have any routines or rituals you go through?

A: Nothing much for baseball, but for golf I like to start every morning with a McDonald's breakfast sandwich and a mocha coffee.

Q: What are the keys to success for both your teams as the spring season begins to wind down?

A: Our golf success comes from playing our own game and not worrying about others and being able to forget the bad shots. For baseball, given that we have a pretty solid defense, when we are able to get the bats to rally, we are able to produce wins.

Q: What's your favorite memory of competing on the Wittenberg-Birnamwood golf and baseball teams?

A: Our 2021 conference champs for golf was 100% my favorite memory. Baseball would definitely have to be the dugout environment.

Q: Favorite movie, TV show and musical artist?

A: Movie — The "Rocky" series. TV show — "The Crush with Lee & Tiffany." Music artist — Thomas Rhett

Q: Name one thing about yourself that not many people know.

A: I am very quiet and humble in person.

Q: What are some things you hope to accomplish after graduating high school?

Bowler's Paiser commits to St. Norbert

Panther set to join Green Knights softball team

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

Bowler High School senior Morgan Paiser took the next step in her athletic career when she signed a letter of intent to play softball at St. Norbert College on May 3 in front of family, teammates, coaches and classmates inside the school's gymnasium.

"It means a lot," said Paiser after signing. "There's been a lot of tears, especially the last couple days. It's kind of like it's hit. Ten years of lots of hard work, countless nights out on the field hitting balls. It's finally paid off."

Paiser's recruitment process wasn't a quick one. It wasn't until a second visit to St. Norbert that the Bowler athlete decided that's where she wanted to continue playing.

"The coach (JoAnn Krueger) was just so welcoming. She felt like a grandma (to me)," said Paiser while chuckling. "She's just so nice."

Paiser, who also played volleyball and basketball at Bowler, added that the St. Norbert campus also appealed to her, and having the school be "close to home" was also a plus.

While Paiser's high school career has been hampered by the pandemic and some shortened springs because of inclement weather, she's left her mark.

As a junior, Paiser landed on the Central Wisconsin Conference-North Division honorable mention team.

She drove in eight runs and clubbed six doubles during the conference portion of the season to help nab that honor, and ended up finishing near the top of the conference in RBIs for the entire spring.

This spring has added another dimension to Paiser's high school career, with Gresham athletes joining the softball team to form a co-op.

Bowler was able to schedule the signing at a time when both her Bowler teammates and new Gresham teammates could be in attendance, which Paiser enjoyed greatly.

"It was actually nice that we got Gresham here," said Paiser, adding there were issues earlier in the week.

"It was comforting knowing I have a family backing me up no matter what."

With the high school softball season still ongoing, there's time for Paiser to continue making memories.

She said she's hit a few home runs in her lifetime, but hopes to hit a grand slam before she heads off to college.

After her high school career comes to a close, Paiser will continue putting in the work so she can earn a prominent role on the St. Norbert team.

The Green Knights senior first baseman will leave after this season, and the coaching staff believes Paiser could be the one taking over that spot in the years to come. She also said third base would be another option.

Wildcats fall just short in wild conference game

Miscues hurt Lena against Wausaukee

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The Lena High School baseball team suffered a tough 13-12 loss to Marinette & Oconto Conference foe Wausaukee on May 6 in Lena.

The contest looked to be a pitcher's duel through three innings before turning into a slugfest in the final three frames. The lead switched hands several times over the final couple innings, and Lena eventually came up a run short.

"We just got to take out of it to make the plays we can and get better every day," said Logan Shallow who started on the mound and pitched the first five innings. "We fought hard and we were in it the whole time, we just couldn't pull it out."

After Shallow worked a 1-2-3 first inning, Lena took advantage of some Wausaukee miscues to go ahead 3-0 in the bottom of the first. Logan Graef singled before Shallow walked, and both scored after a Lane Whiting sacrifice bunt turned into an error. Whiting stole third base and then scampered home after a throwing error for the third run.

Wausaukee was able to scratch across a run in the third frame, but Lena still appeared to be in control.

Things changed in a hurry in the fourth, when Wausaukee plated five runs to go ahead 6-3. A couple of errors and misplays in the field aided the big inning, with every run scoring with two outs.

"We just made too many mistakes, bad throws. We just gotta throw the ball," said Whiting, referencing a couple times fielders hesitated before making a throw, which cost the team a couple potential outs.

"We just have to think about what we're gonna do before the play happens. We just have to keep practicing hard and learn from our mistakes."

Lena wasn't going to go down without a fight though, rattling off six runs in its half of the fourth to take a 9-6 lead.

Logan Shallow drove in Bryce Kittredge and Tyler Shallow before Whiting put another ball in play that was misplayed by Wausaukee, allowing Graef and Shallow to score. Anthony Seefeldt plated Whiting on a double, and then came around to score when Luke Misco tripled on a flyball to right.

The wild contest continued with Wausaukee tallying two runs in the fifth off some more Lena miscues. Logan Shallow capped his day with a couple strikeouts and a groundout to escape with a lead still.

Tyler Shallow pitched next for Lena and worked into the seventh inning. He surrendered a run in the sixth, but the Wildcats got the lead back with a run of their own in the sixth.

Sam Marquardt singled in Whiting with two outs to make it a 10-9 game.

Wausaukee was able to capitalize on a couple more Lena misplays in the seventh and scored four times. Tyler Shallow pitched to two batters before Graef came on and worked the rest of the inning.

Down three, Lena continued to fight until the end.

Kittredge walked before Tyler Shallow and Graef singled to load the bases. With two outs and two strikes on him, Whiting kept the Wildcats' hopes alive with a two-RBI single, scoring Kittredge and Shallow. Seefeldt then walked to load the bases again.

Marquardt was the next batter, and ripped what looked to be the game-winning hit to center, only to have the ball hang up long enough in the air for the Wausaukee center fielder to make the catch and end the contest.

"The fact that the guys kept their fight was very impressive," said Logan Shallow. "It shows a lot to how much it means to them that they stayed in it and didn't get discouraged."

Hawks finish 7th, Red Raiders 9th at Oneida Classic

Marcell, Moesch lead Shawano

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The Shawano and Pulaski boys golf teams each competed in the Oneida Classic on May 2 at Oneida Golf and Country Club in Green Bay, placing seventh and ninth, respectively.

Shawano earned a team score of 337 for its seventh-place finish. Pulaski came in ninth with its score of 352.

De Pere and West De Pere each had scores of 313 to finish as the top teams. Ashwaubenon posted a 326, Bay Port a 331 and two Notre Dame teams had 332s to fill out the top five. Green Bay Preble was eighth with a mark of 342, while Seymour and Green Bay Southwest rounded things out with scores of 391 and 406, respectively.

Even though it finished outside the top five with its team score, Shawano had two golfers place among the top 10 individuals. Kaden Marcell fired an 18-hole round of 76 to take fifth outright, while Owen Moesch tied for 10th with a round of 79.

"I feel like today what kept my round going was my confidence level and my mental game," said Marcell. "I never really got down on myself today and when I did, I got right back into it. My putting was the strong suit today, also."

"Today, I was able to hit around 50% of greens in regulation and around 62% of fairways off the tee," said Moesch. "So, I would say that my accuracy off the tee and my ability to give myself birdie putts by hitting greens in regulation allowed me to place as well as I did."

Akrin Verhein fired a round of 88 for the Hawks. Gage Gorman carded a 94 and Ayden Hale a 99 to round out the five-golfer team.

"I feel like this gives our team a very good idea of what regionals will look like and what it will take to advance," said Marcell, who added the classic was beneficial in preparing the team for 18-hole meets and what challenges those meets present.

"My team and I learned that every stroke is important and contributes equally among ourselves," said Moesch. "Even though all five guys may not be playing well, every stroke from every person on the team is critical for us to place well in meets. We will definitely take that thought in consideration when playing in upcoming matches."

Colin Schultz was Pulaski's top finisher at the classic, firing a round of 83. He credited his chipping for helping him to the strong round.

Dylan Carley was second on the team with a round of 86.

"The first nine holes, I really had a tough time hitting my irons from 150 yards in," said Carley. "I really had to get my head in the game if I wanted to turn in a score to help out my team."

"On my eighth hole, I turned things around with the first par of the day. With this first par under my belt I was able to turn my bogeys from the previous holes into pars, turning my score around."

Connor Burant carded a round of 90 for the Red Raiders, while Dixon Holewinski was three shots back at 93. Zachary Valeria was the fifth golfer on the team, posting a score of 98.

Unlike Shawano's lineup that boasted five seniors, Pulaski's included no seniors and just one junior.

"The team learned that nothing is going to come easy," said Schultz.

Shawano's Gage Gorman follows through on a shot during the Oneida Classic on May 2 at Oneida Golf and Country Club in Green Bay.

Oconto Falls' Hannah Ludemann, Brooke Hodkiewicz, Brynn Hodkiewicz and Maddy Przybylski teamed up for a first-place finish in the girls 4x400-meter relay with a time of 4 minutes, 31.82 seconds.

Evan Yuma, Devon Dorn, Noah

Hirst and Conner Wilquet formed the first-place finishing 4x100 relay team for the Oconto Falls boys. The quartet posted a time of 46.88 seconds.

Leading the Lena/STAA co-ops were Sam Marquardt, Sidney Sylvestor and Eva Brooks. Marquardt won the boys 200 dash in 23.99 seconds, while Sylvester had the top leap of 38 feet, 5½ inches in the triple jump. Brooks won the girls high jump after clearing 5 feet.

Gillett had four first-place finishes on the night. On the girls side, Ryann Wagner won the 800 (2:41.81), while Angela Mosconi claimed first in the 1,600 (5:45.41). For the boys, Alex Peterson took first in the 1,600 (4:36.08), with Evan Peterson first in the 3,200 (10:22.4).

Menominee Indian's top individual finishes came from Emma Komanekin. She was second in the long jump (14-5) and 300 hurdles (52.03). Asenex Turney led the boys team with a fourth-place finish in the discus (113-4).

Artist draws on wood, wildlife for inspiration

White brings nature of Oconto County alive from old Baptist church

By GREG SEUBERT
Correspondent

A vivid imagination, an eye for detail and a love of wildlife have added up to a successful career for Lakewood's Joan White.

She has owned and operated Nicolet Studio out of a former church building in the northern Oconto County community for nearly 40 years.

"The idea was when I graduated from art school, I wanted to be an artist," White said on a recent Saturday afternoon in her studio.

"I guess I didn't realize how unusual that is, to make a living as an artist. When I moved up here, I needed a studio space, and this place was sitting vacant. It's an old Baptist church. I got it for a song, fixed it up and have been here ever since. That was 38 years ago."

White is no stranger to the Lakewood area.

"I'm from Appleton, but my folks had a cottage up here on the Oconto River," she said. "That's what started me coming up here as a kid. I just fell in love with the area. It's peaceful."

With a lot of help from her husband, Ken, a retired carpenter, White's speciality is paintings on carefully selected slices of wood.

"I'm drawn to the forest — always have been," she said. "I always liked wood. I started painting on a couple boards and realized I had a feel for it. Sometimes, I have an idea in my head of what I want to paint, and then I have to look for the right piece of wood. Normally, I stare at the wood, I see something and I go from there."

White's original plan was to come up with unique pieces of art.

"Initially, it was trying to sell something and put food on the table," she said. "I was doing landscapes, a whole smattering of things for the first few years. I started painting on boards and then my husband starting finding some more unusual wood."

"I wanted to paint something that no one else was doing or couldn't do. Instead of just putting a bird on a branch, I really studied the wood, tried to see what was in it and let it tell a story to me. The knots, the grain, the color, the shape, I took it all in. I sketch out what I see and paint from there."

Joan White paints in her art gallery in Lakewood. Most of White's paintings feature animals, but some include people.

GREG SEUBERT

Ken cuts the wood, cures it for a year or more, kiln-dries the wood and planes and sands every piece until they are glassy smooth. The final painting is finished with several coats of wood sealer.

White prefers burl wood, but she also uses wood from birch, maple, cherry, black walnut, oak and ash trees.

She sells much of her work through a website — joanwhite.com — and the studio's Facebook page, facebook.com/JoanWhiteWoodPaintings.

"We traveled around the country and did log home shows," she said. "Usually, I was the only artist at the show because nobody had thought of it. I formed a relationship with collectors all over the country."

Many of White's pieces feature endangered or threatened animals.

"Probably 80% are bears and deer, the usual thing, but then I have to break away from that," she said. "We travel a lot, so I have a lot of subject photos from different places that I can use."

White said she has painted thousands of pieces over the years and usually works on one at a time.

Most of her work are reproductions.

"Mostly everything in here are reproductions of wood pieces," she said. "They look like wood, but they're a print. My printer laminates a lithograph to a composite and then cuts it out so they look like wood. They've really been selling well. People like them for their cabins, and they're a fraction of what an original costs."

"I have a really good printer in Green Bay," she said. "She's a photographer. I take her the original piece, she does a really high-res photo of it and she has a really fancy printer and makes the prints. I sign and number them on the back so they're a limited edition."

Customers who wander into Nicolet Studio, located at 15346 Gage St., a block off of state Highway 32, usually purchase the reproductions.

"The online sales are more the original pieces because those are true collectors that are looking for my original work," White said. "Once people started liking my work and word got around, I formed close relationships with my collectors. When I would paint a piece and think, 'Oh, Karen would like this piece,' I'd contact her."

Some of those collectors have dozens of White's original pieces.

"One time, Ken and I did a show in Chicago and one of our collectors invited us over for dinner," she said. "It was up and down the halls and everywhere. He and I hadn't seen some of these pieces in quite awhile, so it was fun to revisit them."

White has kept only one piece for herself.

"The one thing I took away from going to art school is I remember one instructor said, 'If you're going to make a living at it, you can't get attached to your own work,'" she said. "I've kept one piece for myself out of all of them. It was after a trip to Africa. When I got back, I did a collage of the trip and it was meaningful, so I kept it."

White knows the day she stops painting will eventually come, but that won't be anytime soon.

"I get days where I'm not feeling creative, but it doesn't happen very often," she said. "I just go sit in the woods or go trout fishing and it re-inspires me. I am working a little less now because I feel like I've earned it. I used to work every single day in the summer. I try to be here from 10 to 4:30, but if we want to take off and go camping, we do. I probably worked too hard, but that's how you get good at it."

Fashion show provides more than dapper attire

Event helps Shawano Woman's Club provide things for the community

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

The fashion was in the 1920s, but the atmosphere was in the 1920s as the Shawano Woman's Club held its first fashion show since the coronavirus pandemic ground everything to a halt two years ago.

Even though the event, which started 16 years ago, gave female volunteers a chance to show off modern fashions from local retailers May 5 at The Gathering, the main purpose for the show was to raise money for the club to help nonprofit organizations and provide scholarships for secondary education.

"We do this for our philanthropy," said Cindy Holewinski, the chairwoman for the fashion show. "This is to benefit our community."

The 1920s were known as the Roaring Twenties and, with COVID-19 sidelining the woman's club's main fundraiser, Holewinski said it made sense to commemorate such a liberating time for women.

"We had the suffrage (movement)," Holewinski said. "It was so fitting to use the 'Women Roaring Back' theme, because it meant we were back generating the money for our philanthropy. The second reason we chose to do this type of event is to bring women together. They become partners and sisters in our mission."

Many in attendance decided to don 1920s attire, wearing sequin fringe dresses and other items that looked like they came out of "The Great Gatsby."

More than $16,000 in items were donated by local businesses and organizations for raffles and auctions, and over 250 people packed the dining hall to check out the goodies and watch their fellow women strut the runway. The showcased fashion items are for sale at Body Essentials, Dreier's Pharmacy, Tumbleweed, Thornberry Cottage Baby and Gifts and B&H.

"This event celebrates the woman, the power of the woman," Holewinski said. "This looks at our heritage and the organization of this club."

The club is one of Shawano's oldest, with roots dating back to the 1800s, and Holewinski said it was important to continue its mission of goodwill by holding events like the fashion show.

"Their mission was to support the staples of the community — the library, Heritage Park and the cemetery," Holewinski said. "We are following what they started."

'Feather Chronicles' continues to soar at CMN

"We are what we imagine," Kiowa author N. Scott Momaday wrote. "Our very existence consists in our imagination of ourselves. Our best destiny is to imagine, at least, completely, who and what, and that we are. The greatest tragedy that can befall us is to go unimagined."

While Momaday's message affirms the views of optimists who see life's proverbial glass half-full, as well as those dreaming lofty dreams for themselves and their loved ones, I've found it resonates loudest in the output of artists. The assertion is perhaps most apparent in the works of emerging talent.

Since 2008, College of Menominee Nation has produced an annual journal dedicated to showcasing the art of the college community titled, "Feather Chronicles." Spearheaded by faculty emeritus Dr. Dennis Vickers, the text features the work of people affiliated with CMN.

"It began as a writing campus club where students workshopped their stories," Vickers said. The periodical evolved out of those gatherings, as "the principal objective for the journal was to provide a place for students to publish their work." With Vickers' editorial guidance it became more — a creative hub where art could be both shared and enjoyed.

Available in both print and electronic versions, the issues circulate widely and are often offered as gifts to visitors at either the college's Keshena or Green Bay campus. Yet, Vickers noted what pleased him was contributors' desire to "share the journal with their family and list the accomplishment on their resumes." The success of the publication was evident from the get-go, and soon CMN employees and community artists were adding their voices to the fold.

Flipping through the pages, one finds lines examining the natural world, humanity and personal identity. There are verses on both love and loss and all of the cathartic emotions that accompany them, as well as some celebrating humor, friendship and wonder about what has been and what will come next.

The covers of the CMN periodical showcase beautiful imagery every year, but once someone turns the page, the words can evoke images of their own.

The presentation is noteworthy in its own right, as the images on the covers as well as those shuffled within the pages showcase contributors' photographic eye for moments worth savoring. Upon reviewing an issue for yourself, it's easy to recognize why the announcement of each new entry is eagerly anticipated.

In 2012, CMN's founding president, Dr. Verna Fowler, wrote the introduction to that year's issue which spoke to a sentiment that faithful readers share: "In many ways each year, our students, faculty and staff, and friends of the College generously express their thoughts and insights on American Indian and other cultures. Their work in the visual and theatre arts, and through music, poetry and prose, makes our College a more lively, spiritual and satisfying place for all.

'Feather Chronicles' is one of our most enduring channels for sharing the creative writing and art of the College."

This spring's production of the 2021 issue marks a turning point in the journal, as Vickers is handing over the editor's keyboard. Although he has only been officially retired from teaching since the fall, a cancer diagnosis and its subsequent care has sidelined Vickers' vigor the past few years. Still, he continued to serve CMN and its students with strength and determination. Joining our department meeting last week, Vickers stated that ensuring the continuation of "Feather Chronicles" was "the last thing on my to-do list."

Having begun my own teaching at CMN the same day as Vickers in the fall of 2005, I can attest that his engagement with our students has been extraordinary to witness. Vickers' kindness, humility and tact has amazed me time and time again, and that includes hearing him share the ins-and-outs of the campus publication that will forever be a part of his legacy.

Using the disarming humor that endears him to so many, Vickers explained the truth about inclusive, affirming publications: "It doesn't have to turn into 'The New Yorker' to be successful. It is successful as it is."

"Art is affirmation," is another line that Momaday wrote, but it's the showcasing of that art that allows it to reverberate. "Feather Chronicles" reverberates.

Maec waewaenen, Dr. Vickers, for creating a space that allows so many students, staff, and community members to share the works they imagine.

Ryan Winn teaches communications, English and theater at the College of Menominee Nation. Visit www.menominee.edu for information about the school.

Saving today's youth from Nature-Deficit Disorder

I once took a birding class when I was an English major at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale. On the first day, my jaw sank when the professor explained that this class would not be a field course as I had hoped. Instead, we would study the skins of dead birds for a semester.

You'll never see a Cassin's auklet or an Antarctic petrel in Shawano County, but I held their preserved skins in my hand. I needed a certain number of science credits and it served a purpose, but it was probably one of the dumber classes I ever took.

We were given a 10-bird quiz on the first day to test our knowledge. I think I got them all right. At the end, we were given the same quiz.

One girl from Chicago (Carbondale attracts many Chicago-area students because of its natural beauty and a direct train line there) confided on our last day of class: "I still can't identify birds that are flying around."

Such is the nature of our young people today. Their faces are buried in $1,200 iPhones, watching 10-second videos on TikTok of girls preening in front of a mirror, kittens climbing screen doors and camels spitting out their tongues. The days of kids going outside to play tag, sandlot baseball or anything else seem as unlikely as them asking for seconds on broccoli. A walk through the woods to look for animal tracks, shed antlers or birds seems even more remote.

Author Richard Louv has even come up with a term for those kids and adults who don't get outdoors much or experience the wonders of nature: He calls it "Nature-Deficit Disorder." His book, "Last Child in the Woods" is a great read. The cure is as simple as an occasional hike or hunt.

Introducing kids to nature seems natural for those of us who appreciate the natural world around us. At the same time, introducing youngsters to hunting is the next step. It's no secret that hunter numbers have been dwindling for the past few decades.

In 1980, there were about 17 million hunting licenses sold nation-

Andy Beals, 17, of rural New London, helps pull decoys April 24 during his first turkey hunt near his home. Although he was just an observer, he did enjoy seeing two hen turkeys, some sandhill cranes and a raccoon during the morning hunt.

ROSS BIELEMA

wide, according to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. By 2016, that number had fallen to 11.5 million. An aging population, more single-parent families (many who have not been exposed to hunting), more private lands being closed to hunting for a variety of reasons, and the dozens of electronic and indoor distractions competing for our children's diminished attention span are just a few reasons that fewer people are hunting.

Did I mention the lack of hunter recruitment? Many of us hunters tend to be loners, or at least we enjoy alone time in a tree stand or ground blind.

My opportunity to recruit a new hunter came last fall, when a neighbor boy stopped by our rural New London home to see if he could rake leaves for us.

I've learned that raking leaves on a 2-acre parcel surrounded by trees is an exercise in futility and only serves to encourage the grass to grow faster, which requires more mowing. Few ever see our yard anyway, but I admired his willingness to work, so I said sure. Soon Andy Beals was busily raking leaves and loading them into the dump bed of my 6x6 Polaris Sportsman, then driving them the 100 feet to a pile in another section of the yard. He smiled broadly when I offered the ATV for him to use. That's when he explained all the mishaps he had with ATVs, dirt bikes, knives and even a roll of Saran Wrap.

The stocky lad seems content with the world, always smiling and speaking in a slow, deliberate fashion as he offers his views on any topic.

Beals, 17, loves firearms and plans to one day enter the military. Our discussions on firearms led toward hunting, and soon I was inviting him on a deer hunt. This spring, the topic turned to turkeys and he was happy to share a blind with me, just to observe and learn more about the sport.

I loaned him a camouflage jacket, cap and mask, but since we were in a large permanent ground blind built of scrap wood, he didn't need camo pants. After putting out three decoys, we settled in. I sent out a few notes with my trusty box call, but as I had experienced on several days earlier, not a single tom answered.

Two hens appeared, briefly walked past our decoys and then moved off to a nearby cornfield to look for breakfast.

"I see one. There's a turkey," Beals whispered, pointing toward a nearby woods. It was still a bit dark, but I could clearly see the butt-up walk of a small raccoon.

"That's a 'coon," I said.

"I'm not very good at this," he answered.

We watched sandhill cranes picking around in the same cornfield. Ducks and geese were plentiful in the marsh area, with the whistle of wood ducks overhead a couple times.

Later, a coyote started to come to my calls, but the wind gave us away and he trotted off, never coming in range of my 12-gauge Remington 870 Super Magnum, loaded with 3-1/2-inch No. 5 shot.

Then it was time for breakfast at a nearby café.

Sharing our knowledge of and love for the outdoors seems both simple and profound. Reaching out to a neighbor kid is easy to do, but easier not to do. Take the time to reach out and save a generation from Nature-Deficit Disorder. You'll benefit as much as they will.

The Gillett FFA Chapter placed third in milk quality career development during the Wisconsin FFA career development event on April 29 in Madison.

Team members Zander Davis, Scott Heroux, Brody Kohls and Tani Lucht brought home the honor. Kohls placed 10th overall individually and was the high member on the team.

The event included 35 teams and 137 contestants. Members scored milk, sampled cheese, identified natural versus artificial product, and scored sediment disc after completing a general dairy product knowledge exam.

Gillett FFA had two additional teams qualify for state events in Madison.

The dairy cattle evaluation team, which included Bradin Bjelland, Thayne Bjelland, Laney DeBauch and Taylor Schuster, placed 16th. Members completed a written exam, evaluated pedigrees and live animals, and prepared oral reasons and delivered them to the judges.

The meats evaluation and technology team, which included Kierstin Genz, Cheyenne Krueger, Cole Schaal and Ryann Wagner, placed 18th. Members evaluated beef, swine and sheep carcasses, identified cuts of meat, and graded the carcasses for quality.

During career development event competitions, FFA members in grades 7 to 12 are challenged to develop critical thinking skills and effective decision-making skills, foster teamwork and promote communication while recognizing the value of ethical competition and individual achievement. Most career development event teams consisted of four members who advanced through regional live and virtual competitions to be able to represent their FFA chapter at the state level.

Chronic lower back pain can be conquered

If you are like most people, you will have at least one episode of low back pain in your life. In fact, low back pain is the No. 2 reason that Americans see their doctor — second only to colds and flus. Low back pain is most commonly associated with heavy physical work, lifting or forceful movement, bending or twisting, awkward positions or standing in one position too long. Even minor events may contribute to an episode. Typically, the pain varies from severe and long-term to mild and short-lived.

Although low back pain has been considered self-limiting, recent research suggests that it is not. The results of several studies show that short-term symptoms do not always resolve in one to two months. Instead, they tend to recur intermittently in most patients. Once chronic, the condition is associated with long-term disability and work absence.

There are many treatment strategies for chronic low back pain. All of these approaches have one thing in common — they are accompanied by a recommendation for exercise. Research has concluded that exercise is beneficial for people with chronic low back pain. However, until recently, health care providers were not able to advise their patients about the probability of success under specific exercise programs.

A scientific review sought to determine which exercise program was the most effective for people with chronic low back pain. The review found that back strengthening and stabilization exercises are more effective than aerobics for reducing pain and improving function. Still, aerobic exercise is important for heart health and should not be abandoned.

What does this mean to someone with low back pain or someone wanting to reduce the chance of a low back pain attack? You should focus upon strengthening and stabilization exercises and do them on a consistent basis. Exercise is important to your overall health, and it will increase your spine's ability to help you do the things you want and need to do. It is important to start any exercise program slowly and to gradually build up your speed and the length of exercise sessions.

Please note that before starting any exercise program, you should consult with your health care professional.

Sader Speedway sends kindergarten off to the races

The close proximity of St. James Lutheran School to the Shawano Speedway has turned the kindergarten students into race car drivers of their own.

St. James recently held its inaugural Sader Speedway. Summer Wisnfske was the champion once the dust settled and received a trophy for her efforts. Taking second place was Landon Stuebs, followed by Keaton Kropp in third and Livia Buckett in fourth.

"I love to find ways for my students to learn at home as well as here at St. James," said kindergarten teacher Erika Kaiser. "This project allows the student's entire family to be part of a special event."

Sader Speedway spans across the curriculum from art to physical education, according to Kaiser, with students who love their artistic talents to put them on full display. All the race cars were built from scratch by kindergarten families for their children to drive around our racetrack. Each car had to be made from a cardboard box and measure no more than 2 feet by 3 feet. Kindergartners were also tasked with finding sponsors for their cars. Racers competed in four heats to determine who would make it to the final feature.

"Since the Shawano Speedway is such a big part of our community and an event that is a highlight to many of my students' lives, I felt this was a great way for them to work with their families to build a car and to imagine what it feels like to be a real race car driver," Kaiser said.

The kindergarten class provided a program of the 23 racers who would be taking part in the race activities. The program included a picture of each racer, birthday, car number (from 1 to 1,000) and, finally, a fun fact about each driver. These facts included favorite colors, favorite animal and hobbies.

During each heat, all drivers were required to make two fuel stops and one pit stop. A fuel stop consisted of drivers drinking glasses of water and throwing away their cups. The pit stop was drivers working with their pit crews — eighth grade students — changing their shoes and continuing the race to the finish line.

"These little students were given support and shown Christian love by all the students as they raced around the track, sometimes not in first place," Kaiser said. "Each student was encouraged to finish the race, whether they were in last place or first place. The crowd wanted them to do their best. Our students and their families will have a memory that will last a lifetime."

Dairy and crop production are the largest agricultural industries in the state, and regional educators will offer specific expertise that can serve those industries across several counties.

Library, museum get Riverview grants

Two Lakewood nonprofits, the Holt and Balcom Logging Camp Museum and Lakes Country Public Library, have announced grants from the Town of Riverview.

A $500 grant was made to Lakes Country Public Library in support of its fundraising dinner May 14 at McCauslin Country Club in Lakewood.

As one of the four towns that jointly owns and operates the library with Doty, Lakewood and Townsend, Riverview gave the award in support of a capital campaign currently underway to raise money to renovate and expand Lakewood Library.

The Logging Camp Museum donation of $200 is the second one awarded to Holt and Balcom. As in 2021, the grant was one of several made from short-term rental room tax proceeds earmarked to assist local tourist attractions.

Hats off to the Hanke's Super Market Team for all the many years you have served your community. I take great pleasure in being a part of your lives for the last 30 years. Glad I could help when we sold your old store and moved to the new one where you are now. You have done so many wonderful services for so many people and now it is time for you all, Sherry, Dale, Sandy, and Gary to retire and sit back and relax. I always enjoyed shopping at your store for so many years and plan to continue to do so for hopefully, many more years to come.

The time spent serving community was 'an honor and a pleasure'

Hanke's Sentry Foods is under new ownership, and the family that has owned Wittenberg's grocery store for more than 70 years has retired.

The Hanke family has sold the local grocery store, located at 110 S. Mission St., Wittenberg, to Hometown Grocers Inc., a family-owned and Wisconsin-based company. The Skogen family that owns Hometown Grocers has been in the industry since 1946. Hometown Grocers, a subsidiary of Festival Foods, also operates four other grocery stores in Wisconsin.

"The main reason that we purchased Hanke's is because we are in the business and enjoy grocery stores," said Steve Burkhardt, vice president of Hometown Grocers, or HGI. "We have found that smaller grocery stores like this, we feel like we can help serve them. There are lot of independent grocers looking to sell as they get to the end of their career, and they are looking to someone that they can trust that is honest and will take of their people. HGI is doing what we can to do that for them."

The sale was initiated by members of the Hanke family who decided to retire. Their last day was April 26.

"I think it was just time," said Sandy Hanke, who helped run the store with her husband, Gary.

"We are just going to spend some time with family and try to get to a couple ball games here and there," Gary Hanke added.

Hanke's began as a Red Owl corner store in Wittenberg in 1951. From there, Roger and Bernice Hanke purchased the former International Harvester building that was located on Howard and Reed streets. In 1988, the Red Owl name was purchased by SuperValu, and the store in Wittenberg became Hanke's SuperValu in 1989.

Eventually, Roger and Bernice's children became involved with the store. Under the ownership of Gary Hanke, Dale Hanke, Sherry Hersant and Gary's wife, Sandy, the store moved to its current location in 2012.

"This has been a place where people come to get together and catch up," said Sandy Hanke. "There are people of all ages who just come in here and feel comfortable and talk about their families, children and lives."

Gary Hanke said that with the sale of the store, the family is confident the next owners will continue the tradition of providing high-quality food to the people of Wittenberg.

"We are happy to find another grocery store that is family-oriented and that shares our values with the community," said Gary Hanke.

"We aren't completely sure on the name yet," added Sandy Hanke. "I believe that they will keep it a Sentry Foods, though."

"Community involvement is one of our values," said Burkhardt. "For the most part, we are going to continue to do the same things that they are doing."

Burkhardt added that over the next few months, Hometown Grocers wants to integrate into the community before they make any major changes.

"There are always categories that are expanding and shrinking in the grocery industry," said Burkhardt. "Over the next few months, those things will become evident to us. When we first go in, our goal is to keep as much the same as possible. We want to get to know the people, get to know the schedule and keep the shelves stocked."

Sandy Hanke said that the family was ready to sell.

"We went to UNFI, the parent company of Sentry Foods, and said that we are thinking about selling, but nothing is concrete yet," she said. "They called us in December and said that we have someone who might be interested. From there, it just kind of happened."

She added that Hometown Grocers will try to keep the store the same as when the Hanks owned and ran the store.

"They have said that in so many words," said Sandy Hanke. "They want to keep it as local as possible. We are not aware of anything new that they want to introduce. The basics will stay the same. They told me that they are going to continue to be involved in the community."

According to Sandy Hanke, Hometown Grocers has offered the same positions to all of the employees who are currently employed at Hanke's.

Throughout their existence, Hanke's has been involved by serving the community, as well as being involved in local organizations.

"We have played a large role in the community," said Sandy Hanke. "We help with local groups that need support. We put flyers in bags for organizations that are doing fundraisers. We are there for our community; they can shop here comfortably."

She added that they wanted to carry on the tradition of supporting local businesses and organizations that started with her father-in-law.

"Roger was heavily involved in the community," said Sandy Hanke. "He was involved with the Legion, the church and other organizations. It has been what the Hanks have been doing since I have known them."

Gary Hanke said that with their community activism, the family received the Melvin Jones Fellowship Award, rewarded by Lions International.

"That is an award given to individuals and businesses that serve the community," said Gary Hanke. "We are really honored to receive that award."

Hersant added that her family has always felt like they were a part of the community, especially before they moved to their current location.

"At the old store, we knew everybody and could talk to them about their lives and families," said Hersant. "With the new store, there are some strangers that come in, but we get to know them."

Gary Hanke said that to have the opportunity to provide community members with groceries has been impactful.

"It has been an honor and a pleasure to serve our friends and customers in the Wittenberg area and the surrounding communities," said Gary Hanke. "We have developed quite a few friendships and relationships inside and outside of Wittenberg."

Reflecting on their time owning the store, the family chose some fond memories that stuck out over the past 70 years.

"I really enjoyed doing our June Dairy Month, where I could dress up like a character," said Dale Hanke.

"We also did frozen food months, where we would hold contests," added Gary Hanke. "There was usually a customer who would win a special sale. We also used to do a produce sale — that was always a lot of fun."

Throughout their time owning and managing the store, the Hanks said that they have learned a lot about being involved in the community and will continue to stay in touch during retirement.

"I don't see me stopping working with community groups," said Sandy Hanke. "I see us doing that, because it is what we do. I have made a lot of friends. I enjoy people, and I enjoy being a part of the community."

Gary Hanke thanked the staff for the hard work that they put in under the family's ownership.

"The staff and our employees have been essential to our success," said Gary Hanke. "We appreciate what they have done for us."

A grateful community says thanks

As a longtime Wittenberg grocery store transfers ownership, members of the community have nothing but good things to say about the store and the family that ran it for decades.

The Hanke family recently sold Hanke's Sentry Foods to Hometown Grocers Inc., a subsidiary of Wisconsin-based Festival Foods. Both the Hanke family and their store, which began as a Red Owl corner store in 1951, have played a large role in the Wittenberg community and left an impact on community members.

Wittenberg resident Miriam Nelson, who is active in the Crossroads Community Theatre, said the Hanks have always supported the group.

"Their staff at their store have sold our tickets at their service center," said Nelson. "They do that for a lot of nonprofit events as it's a key location for the area."

Nelson said that the Hanke family's relationship with the community has always been strong. She gave as an example the location they chose when they moved the store in 2012.

"It was a big decision for them to build a new store, and it turned out to be one that was well supported by the surrounding area," said Nelson.

Wittenberg-Birnamwood Superintendent Garrett Rogowski said the Hanke family has been great for the school district to work with.

"They have supported this community and school district in so many ways. They have provided a major resource and need to families throughout the entire region," said Rogowski. "They have been a great employer in the Wittenberg-Birnamwood area. We have been very fortunate to have access to such a great resource in our community."

Wittenberg Village President Bill

Switalla also noted that Hanke's Sentry Foods has provided the community with careers as well as groceries.

"They have always provided our community with jobs and good service," said Switalla. "They are a hometown store. They have lived right here in the community; they go to the same churches and go to same events as the rest of us. They are great family to have around. We are sorry to see them go."

Switalla added that the family has always supported all of the village's functions and events, including Community Days, in addition to supporting the schools in the district.

The Hanke family said that they wanted their store to feel like a place where community members could meet and visit, as opposed to just coming in for groceries. Rogowski said that this has been the case in his experience.

"It was very common to visit the store and chat with many local friends and families that were there at the same time," said Rogowski.

Former Wittenberg Chamber of Commerce President Travis Rose said the store has always been a place where he was recognized or he recognized someone else.

"It was always fun to be able to see community members, knowing that there was a local resource without having to drive to a bigger area," said Rose. "That was place that I felt comfortable, where I could just engage with others in the community."

He added that the community is very grateful to the Hanks for their years of dedication to the people of Wittenberg.

"We are very appreciative of the efforts that they have made to make their service available to us," said Rose. "It is nice to have that local resource as opposed to traveling to Wausau, Shawano or Green Bay."
