Armstrong was sentenced to a year in jail with six months stayed, along with five years' probation, after he put a barrel with gasoline into a bonfire and injured at least 13 people. Future high school will have new designation

Menominee Nation High School name came through club's efforts, research

By LEE PULASKI City Editor

The Keshena community has endured for decades with having a high school with Indian as part of its name. No more. When it opens later this year, the new high school will be known as Menominee Nation High School, ending an era of having a name that many tribal members feel diminishes and denigrates its people. It was all made possible because of a mission that the high school's human rights club went on in the last couple of years. The Menominee Indian School Board approved the name change earlier this year after the club gathered 183 student signatures on a petition and surveyed community members to see what the name change should be. Colt Denny, a senior with the human rights club, noted that the effort to make the change started his sophomore year. He said it was important to him that the new high school building, which is expected to be completed later in 2024, did not have to bear the Indian name.

"As time evolves, words can have new meaning," Denny said. "Indian' refers to someone ... on the other side of the world in India. We're natives, native to this land — Native American, not Indians. So we wanted to remove that because it was offensive to our culture." According to Miklo Guzman, another human rights club member, it's unclear how the high school got stuck with the name Menominee Indian, with the school district established in the 1970s, but it's believed that the school had to be named that way. "Back in the day, the contract with our tribal members ... it says Indian on it, so they thought the high school had to be Indian, too," Guzman said. "We found out it doesn't have to be Indian, so we could change it. So that's what we did." Denny said having the Indian name really hit home for him and Guzman, both football players, when they played in an away game, instead of having the team

Parents testify about horrific aftermath of 2022 bonfire

Armstrong gets jail time, probation — but also forgiveness

By LEE PULASKI City Editor

Samuel Armstrong, the Pulaski High School student found guilty of 13 counts of injury by negligent use of an explosive, listened to about an hour of testimony from one of his victims and two families, along with evidence presented by the Shawano-Menominee County district attorney, before he was sentenced to one year in jail and five years' probation for his role in a homecoming bonfire gone horribly wrong. Armstrong, who turns 19 in May, sat quietly in the Branch I courtroom April 11, at times moved to tears, as parents described the horrible sights and smells as they saw their children in the hospital, burned over much of their bodies. They also described the pain of having to care for them over multiple surgeries in the last 18 months, and the continued anguish they face with more surgeries and care with dim possibilities that their lives will ever reach a sense of normalcy.

Armstrong was charged by the district attorney's office on Aug. 3, 2023, nearly 10 months after Shawano County sheriff's deputies responded to the site of the bonfire in the Town of Maple Grove. Armstrong, who was drunk at the time and said he'd consumed six beers, has admitted that he helped to throw a blue plastic 55-gallon barrel with a diesel/gasoline mixture into the fire with the help of someone identified as "TJF" in the criminal complaint. Among the conditions of the probation were absolute sobriety, no use of prescription drugs or cannabinoids of any kind, no handling of flammables or explosives, 200 hours of community service and restitution to be determined within 60 days. Shawano-Menominee County Circuit Court Judge Katherine Sloma gave credit for the one day Armstrong spent in the Shawano County Jail, and he will be required to report there by the end of May. During the testimony at the sentencing, parents testified that the case could have been a murder trial if any of the victims had died from their injuries, that they felt so helpless about the agony and pain their sons were in — and that, in spite of everything that happened, they forgive him. Relentless cycle of heartbreak Tammy Brzezowski testified that, even though her family is moving past what happened to her son, Brandon, and getting back to an altered sense of normalcy, no one has forgotten what happened on the night of Oct. 14, 2022. Brzezowski said she was recovering at the time from a broken leg and that her family members, including Brandon, were caring for her. She did not realize that soon she would be providing full-time care for her son's injuries in the coming months. Brzezowski said that Brandon was excited about going to the homecoming dance — it was going to be the first in which he participated — and that night, she received texts from her son making sure she was all was all right and comfortable. An hour after that final text, she was witnessing her son in a hospital emergency room.

“It marked the end of his innocence and the beginning of a nightmare,” Brzeczowski said. “His once vibrant skin was now marred by burns. I remember his hands were peeled. His skin peeled like a banana, and that’s an image that will forever be on my soul — the pain in his eyes, the anguish in his voice when he whispered to me, ‘I’m never going to be able to work again.’

“These are the wounds that no amount of time,” Brzeczowski added before testifying that she saw a video showing what had happened and described it as resembling a war zone.

The mother described the hardship the family endured having to care for Brandon over the next few months, with her and her husband trying to operate their family business remotely as most of their attention turned to caring for their son. Brzeczowski said that Brandon couldn’t eat, bathe or even use the bathroom without help.

Brandon has been able to resume his construction job, despite his fears in the ER, but it has been a long road, according to Brzeczowski, who noted her family has found a way to forgive Armstrong.

“We watched helplessly as our son, at times, fought for his life — countless surgeries, infections, endless nights of worry and despair,” Brzeczowski said. “The relentless cycle of hope and heartbreak, all at the hands of Samuel Armstrong’s thoughtless act.”

A door knock late at night

Julie Van Asten, whose son, Benjamin, was another victim of Armstrong’s action, also described how the memory of the night of Oct. 14, 2022, will always haunt her.

“Each family’s story is different, but the common denominator is you,” Van Asten said as she spoke directly to Armstrong from the witness stand. “A knock on the front door in the middle of the night is something that I can never forget.”

Van Asten noted that Benjamin’s phone was still in his pocket, so she was able to track it to a hospital in Green Bay. She recounted how burns covered 55.5% of her son’s body, how he lost 50 pounds during his time in the hospital, and how the survival rate from his level of burning was only 26%. She said bluntly that Armstrong’s case could easily have been “a murder trial.”

Like Brzeczowski, Van Asten said she has found a way to forgive Armstrong for his actions, even though he was not present for the agonizing screams when bandages had to be changed at home or at the hospital. Van Asten recalled how Armstrong tried to put out the flames on Benjamin right after the Fire damages storage facility in southern Shawano

By LEE PULASKI

A major fire on April 8 that burned a number of storage spaces for All-Stor Self Storage is under investigation.

Shawano Fire Chief Shawn Borlace said the Shawano County Sheriff’s Department is investigating the blaze, a routine matter when a commercial facility catches fire, so there were very few details he could divulge presently. The Shawano Fire Department was dispatched around 6:30 p.m., according to Borlace. When crews arrived, he said the facility was already covered in heavy smoke and fire.

Crews were on the scene until almost 1 a.m., Borlace said, with 39 firefighters called out and 10 fire apparatus used to combat the fire.

“We were putting out any hotspots and doing some investigating,” Borlace said.

Waukechon Street near County Road B was blocked off, but that didn’t stop people from the nearby residential neighborhood from checking out the scene as large billows of black smoke filled the sky.

There was a gas leak at the scene, but Borlace said it wasn’t there initially when firefighters got to the scene.

“When the building and the back of the structure fell down, it must have struck the gas line, and then we had a secondary gas leak at the time,” Borlace said. “WE Energies arrived to help shut that situation down.”

Borlace acknowledged it has been a while since there has been a major commercial fire in the Shawano area.

“It’s a commercial structure, and any commercial setting is usually a bigger fire,” he said.

No injuries were reported.

explosion occurred.

“I willingly admit I still get angry sometimes that something like this happened and ruined so many lives,” Van Asten said. “I believe what happened that night is something that you, too, will never forget — seeing your friends on fire and screaming in pain must be something you, too, see every day in your mind.”

Attorneys make their case

District Attorney Greg Parker read additional statements from victims, some forgiving while others claiming they don’t believe Armstrong should get a second chance to be part of society. He also showed photos of the crime scene, pointing out the blue barrels that had the gas mixture in a couple of them and recalled how others at the bonfire had warned Armstrong not to throw the barrel on the fire.

“I don’t know how somebody that was that intoxicated got the where-withal to do this knowing other people were around,” Parker said. “Youth, I guess youth has something to do with it.”

He read from a pre-sentencing investigation where Armstrong admitted he has drank beer since age 16, and that he minimized his actions to the investigator and claimed that he would not benefit from entering treatment programs. Despite the pre-sentencing report, Parker said he still believed the agreed-upon plea deal was fitting for what Armstrong had done.

Greg Petit, Armstrong’s attorney, painted a different picture than what the pre-sentencing investigation portrayed. He recounted how Armstrong was in full cooperation with law enforcement from the very beginning, never tried to shirk his actions on others and how he had been saving up the money he earned from working in preparation for providing restitution.

Petit also questioned why Armstrong, who was under 18 at the time of the incident but turned 18 before the district attorney filed charges, was charged in an adult court while his co-conspirator went through the juvenile court system. Petit added that Armstrong had no criminal record prior to being charged in the bonfire explosion.

“The result is that the pain is there, but the intent wasn’t,” Petit said. “That’s very important when you take into account what to do here. Sam has taken complete responsibility for this.”

Judge: Forgiveness rare

Sloma, while delivering the sentence, said she heard the word “forgiveness” five times during the hearing.

“I’ve heard a lot of people say they forgive you,” Sloma said. “I think you’re a lucky person for that. I’ve had cases where people have apologized (for their actions), but I almost never hear people say they forgive someone.”

Sloma noted that Armstrong doesn’t seem like a problem child, but she added that, whether sober or intoxicated, it was his choice to put the barrel in the fire. She recommended Armstrong find a way to apologize to his victims through the probation office, whether agents would facilitate written letters or supervised in-person apologies.

“I know one of the victims said you shouldn’t drink until your 21st birthday,” Sloma said. “Frankly, I think you should never drink again.”

The normal sentence for the 13 counts could have been 19½ years in prison total with 26 years of probation, which Sloma urged Armstrong to remember as he spends the next chapter of his life under the close scrutiny of the law.

“If you don’t do well, you have a hammer hanging over your head with this sentence,” Sloma said.

Crawford Center's twists and turns continue

One-day rentals, seasonal leases, property purchase discussed

BY KEVIN PASSON
Editor-in-chief

The twists and turns surrounding programs and leases at the Crawford Center continues.

A circus recently approved for a one-day engagement has backed out due to cost and lack of insurance, Steve Dreher, Shawano County building maintenance manager, told the public property committee on April 4.

However, the committee did approve a repeat deal with Shooting Sports, a 4-H event, to return May 10-11.

While a new lease with the Shawano County Agricultural Society was approved for the fairgrounds, renewing the lease with the Shawano Hockey League to use the Crawford Center for its home during the winter is still being discussed.

"The hockey league would be asking for a longer lease," Dreher said. "Their current term when they're elected to the board is two years, so I would be hesitant to give them a five-year lease when the president is only going to be there two years."

The last lease, which ended April 6, was for one year. Dreher said he was told it's difficult for the hockey league to plan on tournaments a couple years in the future when they don't know if they will have a lease for the building.

Elections for a new hockey board will be held in May.

Dreher suggested the lease coincide with the length of the term of office for the hockey league president.

Committee also continued to discuss a lease for operating the Crawford Center when the hockey league lease ends each spring.

Kevin Helmuth, vice president of the hockey league, said earlier he, through one of his businesses, would guarantee the utilities and then would also pay the person hired to market the Crawford Center to help make it a more profitable venue.

"We would give them a fixed amount with the understanding that anything over in costs of operations ... he would also be responsible for," Dreher said.

Supervisor Randy Young inquired about whether the Crawford Center could be used for wedding receptions and other large events, noting the announcement that The Gathering banquet hall will soon shut down.

Dreher said Chuck Dallas, head of the Shawano Chapter of the Wisconsin Deerhunters Inc., inquired about using the Crawford Center for a sportsman's expo and banquet. Dreher noted such uses require the renter to provide all tables and chairs, the catering in of food, and getting appropriate liquor licensing from the city of Shawano.

He said the Shawano County, if it got into the business of hosting such events, would have to decide whether to invest in a large commercial kitchen or continue to have renters cater all events.

Just to add another twist, Dreher noted he recently received a cold call from someone inquiring about purchasing the Crawford Center.

"The word had gotten out somehow that the county was interested in selling this facility," he said. "This guy who is interested runs a multinational security service business, doing a lot of things for military bases and stuff like that. He's got offices in Iraq, Afghanistan, stuff like that, an armored car leasing business, some other stuff."

The business CEO is local, Dreher said.

Committee members said it wouldn't hurt to follow up and get more details.

Regardless, nothing could happen until 2025 due to the commitments already made for 2024.

Turn in unused, expired medication April 27

Sheriff's Department now accepting used syringes

BY KEVIN PASSON
Editor-in-chief

Shawano County residents are always encouraged to turn in their unused or expired medication, but it's emphasized even more during the twice-yearly national Drug Take Back Day.

The first such day in 2024 will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. April 27.

Prescription drugs are accepted 24 hours a day, seven days a week, in the drop box in the front lobby of the sheriff's department, 405 N. Main St., Shawano.

"We've been one of the biggest locations for drug take back in the state of Wisconsin," Sheriff George Lenzner said. "We have a lot of meds that comes in here. Every six months, we average about 450-460 pounds of medication that we take to Wausau (for disposal). It's a program that's doing very good."

During Drug Take Back Day, other locations also accept the unused and expired medications. Lenzner said the locations are in other parts of the county so residents don't have to drive to Shawano.

There will be three other sites April 27. They are the Bonduel Police Department, 207 S. First St., Bonduel; Stockbridge-Munsee Public Safety, W13445 Camp 14 Road, Bowler; and Siga Funmaker Community Center, W17634 Radke Road, Wittenberg.

The drop box at the sheriff's department also has fentanyl test strips and related information.

"Out by our drug box, we have free fentanyl strips for the public, so they can test their stuff," Lenzner said.

Fentanyl test strips can help prevent drug overdoses. These small strips of paper can detect the presence of fentanyl in all different kinds of drugs (cocaine, methamphetamine, heroin, etc.) and drug forms (pills, powder and injectables).

The test strips provide people who use drugs and the general public with information about fentanyl in the illicit drug supply so they can take steps to reduce risk of overdose.

"We don't take liquids even though people throw them in there," Lenzner said about the drop box. "We get all kinds of stuff."

One item people are not supposed to put in the drop box is a used syringe. "We're working on a program where we're taking syringes," Lenzner said. "We figure since people are throwing them in our drug box anyway — and they're not supposed to — we are collecting syringes now, and we are disposing of them."

There is a different protocol for turning in syringes.

Syringes are only accepted at the evidence building, 201 W. Second St. Use the door with the sign that reads "Enter here."

Syringes are only accepted Mondays and Wednesdays from 8 a.m. to noon and 1-4 p.m. They must be in a hard container or can that is sealed or with a cover.

"We are trying to prevent the public from throwing syringes into the drug box, which makes it dangerous for us to empty," Lenzner said.

Council OKs water shows continuing at Smalley

Ski Sharks leader hopeful solution can be found to equipment issue

BY LEE PULASKI
City Editor

The Shawano Common Council signed off on a five-year use agreement with the Shawano Ski Sharks on April 10 to allow their summer water skiing shows to continue at Smalley Park.

Council members received appreciation from Ski Sharks leader Dave Passehl, who also indicated a solution to the equipment storage situation could be coming next month. This revelation came weeks after a contentious meeting of the Shawano Parks and Recreation Commission where longtime Shawano residents criticized the view from their homes of the equipment the Ski Sharks use to put on their shows.

The Ski Sharks have performed for 40 years at the area that is now called Smalley Park, with another eight years before that elsewhere in Shawano. In a letter from the group's board of directors, it was reiterated how much the organization has given to the creation and upkeep of the park.

"At this time, we are being asked to risk damage and increase our operational costs to move and store items that are not made to be moved down a road," according to the letter. "We are being asked to move things that are not visible by the majority of the public, and we feel that the way they are stored is in line with how other public spaces like Judd Park and Huckleberry Harbor and all other waterfront owners store their equipment during the winter months."

Passehl noted that the complaints are not coming from any of the newer homeowners, although they're getting the heat for those who feel the equipment storage in the park is an eyesore.

"I think it's important to recognize that it's long-term neighbors, not any of the neighbors part of that beautiful development that's been built over the last year at Smalley Park," Passehl said.

In spite of the equipment, Smalley is a beautiful park, according to Passehl, in part because of the time his organization takes to tend to its upkeep.

"This is an effort to show our pride in exchange for the ability to use that park," he said. "I think it's important for you to know that we're grateful for the ability to use the site. We don't take it for granted. We take our responsibilities very seriously."

Passehl credited Matt Hendricks, Shawano's park and recreation director, for being a driving force to make the park what it is today. The park was developed after ThedaCare moved its hospital from the northwest corner of Shawano down to County Road B.

"It was an overlooked park for years and years," Passehl said, noting he's been with the Ski Sharks for over 35 years. He added that former park and recreation director "Judy Judd was a great woman, but Smalley was a park that they didn't really want to enhance. The beach wasn't even a beach."

Now, Smalley is a gem in the city, according to Passehl, and he noted that the social media support flooding in after news broke about the equipment complaints proves that.

"I think the overwhelming and resounding support of our community is quite evident," Passehl said. "If you guys are on Facebook, you can see all of those comments. I have personally received many, many letters, many messages and many personal phone calls of support — including today at my office, people stopping in just to express their support. I tell them that I don't feel threatened.

I just feel like the meeting got a little out of hand from some people that have some personal issues that we're trying to take care of."

Passehl noted the complaints are being addressed by the Ski Sharks board, and he was hopeful that some solutions could be brought forward to the city as early as next month. He also expressed optimism that the group was going to have its best season yet, with opening night about two months away.

"This year is going to be awesome," Passehl said. "It's going to be the biggest crowds you've ever seen. We're bringing Division 2 Nationals back to Shawano, and we're going to break another Guinness World Record."

Trial date set in Noriega-Avila case

Trial expected to last three days as defendant faces sexual assault charges

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

A trial date has been set for a Pulaski man originally arrested in 2016 on charges that he'd sexually assaulted his then-stepdaughter. Pedro Noriega-Avila was back in court April 10 for a pre-trial conference, at which time defense attorney Joe Furnstahl requested to go to trial. A plea deal had been offered in February by the Shawano-Menominee County District Attorney's Office, but there was no resolution, according to Furnstahl.

The trial, which is expected to last three days, will begin at 8:15 a.m. July 17 in Branch II of the Shawano County Courthouse. A final pre-trial was scheduled for 10 a.m. June 24.

This is the second time a jury trial has been scheduled in Noriega-Avila's case. He was originally scheduled to stand trial in August 2023 on one count of sexual assault of a child under age 13, two counts of sexual assault of a child and two counts of incest with a child by stepparent. The trial was halted after his attorney at the time stepped down due to being in the late stages of pregnancy and disagreement with her client on defense strategies.

Since then, Noriega-Avila had been without representation. Court records show James Schoenecker was appointed Jan. 4 to represent the defendant, and Furnstahl was also appointed on Feb. 1.

The criminal complaint states that Noriega-Avila allegedly went into his stepdaughter's room between September 2009 and June 2010 and assaulted her. It goes on to say that additional incidents occurred in 2014 and 2015. Noriega-Avila married the victim's mother on July 9, 2010.

Noriega-Avila initially appeared before Kussel on June 10, 2016, and subsequently posted a $5,000 cash bond. Noriega-Avila was then ordered to appear on June 20, 2016, but he did not show up, and a warrant was issued for his arrest.

Noriega-Avila faces a maximum of 40 years in prison and $100,000 fine for each of the incest counts and the latter two sexual assault counts. For the child sexual assault in 2010, he faces up to 60 years in prison.

Noriega-Avila was missing from the court for almost five years until his arrest in Arizona in 2021. Law enforcement responded to a U.S. Border Patrol station on March 13, 2021, regarding the warrant issued by the Shawano-Menominee County Circuit Court for Noriega-Avila, and the defendant was already in custody when officers arrived.

In April 2021, extradition documents were issued by the county for Noriega-Avila, who was brought back to Shawano County in July 2021.

Noriega-Avila remains in the Shawano County Jail on a $500,000 cash bond. He has been incarcerated for over 2 1/2 years, mainly because of the difficulty in finding an attorney the first time around. It took until late 2022 before Stertz was found to handle the case.

Board to try referendum again in November

Public input sought to ensure package something voters will sign off on

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

The Shawano School Board is going back to the drawing board as the $54.5 million referendum failed by 75 votes earlier this month.

Representatives from Hoffman Planning and Design, which has been working with the school district for over a year to plan and sell the referendum to voters, spoke to board members about the loss and what needs to be done to present a revised proposal to voters when the November election comes around. Jody Anders, Hoffman's school specialist, noted that there was lower voter turnout than expected on April 2 in the area, blamed on two key factors — a winter storm that started on the afternoon of Election Day and the fact that the schools were on spring break the week of the election.

"That was tough. We knew it was going to be close, but obviously we were hoping it would be the other way," Anders said.

During the last presidential primary, the turnout at the polls was around 45%, according to Anders. The two biggest voter strongholds, the city of Shawano and the Town of Wescott, had voter turnout hovering this month on either side of 36%. District-wide, the voter turnout in April was about 40%.

"If you'd been in that 40% range for Shawano and Wescott, you would have had another 200-300 votes," Anders said. "You can safely say there were some people impacted by the timing of the referendum."

More voter turnout is a definite in the November elections, with some municipalities seeing voter turnout as high as 90%, according to Anders, who suggested that brings a better likelihood that a second kick at the can would be successful. To do that, however, he recommended taking another look at the proposed projects that could be paid for under the referendum and making sure voters understand exactly why those projects are designated as needs and not wants.

"Having the message out there and getting people to the polls and help them to make an informed decision becomes a little bigger task," Anders said. "Statistics have shown that the more people you have show up, like at a presidential election, the higher your odds for being successful."

To do that is going to require a lot of information gathering, Anders noted. The district has three listening sessions this month to get public input on what needs to be altered to make the next referendum a successful one. There are at least two workshops planned between Hoffman and the school board to fine tune things, and another survey is planned to go out in mid-June to gauge what the public will support.

Board member John Arens dismissed the idea that the listening sessions would move the needle on the district's plans for the future.

"I think they're going to be a total waste of time," Arens said. "What we're going to see here is the same outcome seen in Shiocton. There's a silent majority out there. They're not coming to these listening sessions. They're not going to give us their opinions, and they're not going to tell us why."

He also criticized Hoffman's marketing efforts, which didn't include making sure that department heads at the schools had all the information on the individual projects and mailings that didn't reach everyone in the district.

"We did not consult the department heads that were affected by the changes we were going to make, or the additions. They had nothing to tell people," Arens said. "The community really looks to them. They should have been in the know."

"We hired a company who was supposed to be able to do this, who said they are going to help us with marketing, and the best that we get is a half-sheet of paper when we call for a postcard."

Board member Jeana Winslow disagreed that Hoffman's marketing efforts fell short of expectations.

"All of the information I received in the mail, my husband was very happy with it," Winslow said. "I felt it was very well written, and it was timely. There was enough space in between the information coming out."

Board member Bobbi Lemerond noted that one flaw in the marketing was that some of the postcards were sent to Gresham addresses, even though Shawano and Gresham have had separate school districts for more than a decade. She suggested that the next information campaign should explain why projects are needed.

"People were saying, 'You should focus on the needs, not the wants,'" Lemerond said. "People didn't realize that the addition for the performing arts wasn't a want. It was a completion of a project that was never finished. The way it was presented, it looked like we were asking for something extra."

Airport Drive under construction

Menominee tribal crime victims program earns FBI award

By KEVIN PASSON
Editor-in-chief

North Airport Drive (County Road HHH) from East Green Bay Street north to Gumaer Road is closed to through traffic weekdays for the next five weeks.

Reconstruction of the roadway began April 17 and is expected to run through May 24. The road will be reconstructed within the existing road right-of-way.

It will be closed to through traffic from 6 a.m. Mondays through 4:30 p.m. Fridays. It will be open weekends.

During the project, the road will be open to local traffic to access businesses and residences. However, access will vary from the north or south side depending on the stage in which construction crews are operating.

Also, state Highway 47 from Bonduel south to the Outagamie County line is under construction.

During daylight hours, traffic will be reduced down to a single lane. The roadway is anticipated to be open for normal travel at the end of each workday. Side roads should remain open.

The Menominee Tribal Crime Victims Program has been named the 2023 recipient of the Director's Community Leadership Award (DCLA) for the FBI Milwaukee Field Office.

The Menominee Tribal Crime Victims Program is a partner with the FBI's Victim Assistance Program in Wisconsin. The Menominee Tribal Crime Victims Program addresses the unique challenges faced by tribal members, working with the FBI and the U.S. Attorney's Office in the Eastern District of Wisconsin to combat crime and seek justice for victims on the Menominee Indian Reservation.

The local DCLA certificate presentation last month preceded the national ceremony, which takes place at FBI Headquarters in Washington, D.C., on April 19.

Established in 1990, the DCLA honors individuals and organizations for their efforts in preventing federal crimes and enhancing law enforcement efforts in their communities. This award is given annually on behalf of FBI Director Christopher Wray.

SCHS honoring missing, murdered with walk

Event to remember Native Americans lost to violence

BY LEE PULASKI
City Editor

The number of unsolved cases involving missing and murdered Indigenous people continues to grow, and Shawano Community High School is doing its part to shine a light on the issue.

The high school will be observing Missing and Murdered Indigenous People's Day on May 3 with a walk starting at the school at 8:30 a.m. and anticipated to end at Shawano Community Middle School. The day of remembrance is traditionally May 5 in the United States and Canada, but since that day is a Sunday this year, officials with the school's Title VI program are conducting the event on a regular school day.

Title VI tribal liaison Joel Duxtator noted that Native Americans are at a higher risk of suffering violence and death than many other ethnicities. FBI statistics show 84% of women and 82% of men have experienced violence and victimization, he said, and the Congressional Research Service found that Native Americans have 3½ times a higher percentage of going missing than those who are non-Native.

"Being Native, because we're such a small population, we're all very much interconnected," Duxtator said during a presentation April 8 to the Shawano School Board. "That's part of what makes this such a big day. When we lose one person, two people, it's a big deal."

Duxtator said the walk is not meant to be any kind of political statement, but instead is a day to honor those who are missing or have been killed. He said the public is invited to participate, as long as the community doesn't try to turn the event political.

"There is to be no advocacy, no statements saying we want this or that," Duxtator said. "We're just there to honor them."

Another measure Duxtator has in place to keep the event from being political is that students will not be able to do interviews with media outlets.

Students will be wearing shirts commemorating

MMIP Day, and female students will also be wearing ribbon skirts, a common piece of attire for Indigenous tribes in the area, as they walk. Duxtator said that students have to get approval from teachers and the principal showing they're passing classes before they can participate.

Duxtator noted that an honor song will be part of the event.

"We'll be telling the kids in an assembly beforehand, this is not something we can joke about. This is not something where we're getting selfies," he said. "It's almost like a funeral procession, in a way. We want them to be solemn and remember those we have lost."

After the board meeting, Duxtator said that SCHS has done other events in previous years to honor MMIP Day, such as bringing in guest speakers, but this is the first year it has done a walk.

"There are not many of us," Duxtator said. "When we lose one, it affects all of us."

Hard Hat Party for future information center May 2

Shawano Pathways and the Shawano County Friends of the Mountain Bay Trail will host a Hard Hat pre-opening party from 5-8 p.m. May 2 at the almost-complete Mountain-Bay Trail Information Center, 620 S. Main St., Shawano.

The event will include gourmet hors d'oeuvres, beer, wine, signature mocktails and special behind-the-scenes tours of the center. The event is a fundraiser for the new center and for trail maintenance projects.

The center is housed in the middle section of the former Chicago and North Western train depot next to the trail in downtown Shawano connected to All Aboard Nutrition. The center is a gateway to the Shawano community, which is midway on the Mountain-Bay State Trail. If final funds are raised in time, the groups hope to open the information center for peak biking and walking season.

Party admission is $50. To register, visit www.shawanopathways.org, click on the Events tab and go to "Trail Information Center Fundraiser." Walk-ins are also welcome.

The center will offer restrooms, Wi-Fi, a trail map, bottle-filling station, bike repair station, and information on food, lodging, and other area amenities. It will also feature displays about the history of rail service in Shawano County.

"Our goal is to raise funds to help improve trail conditions," said Pathways president Nancy Brown-Koeller. "Better trail conditions benefit all trail users and put Shawano County on the map as a destination for outdoor enthusiasts, and a trail information center is a key part of that."

The 83-mile trail built in 1996 runs through from Wausau to Green Bay, with 53 miles running through Shawano County from Eland to Pulaski.

"We're going to dedicate one of the walls to train memorabilia to highlight the impact the railroad had in Shawano County," said Friends president Doreen Dudek, "and we're working with historians and train enthusiasts to create an engaging display."

The center is being funded in part by a matching grant from the Harold Pevonka Healthy Hearts Fund, part of the Shawano Area Community Foundation. The fund will match up to $20,000 for every dollar donated by July 2024.

Pathways and Friends of the Mountain Bay Trail members have been working since last fall with Shawano Park Director Matt Hendricks and staff, Radtke-Reuter Electric, and many volunteers to design and remodel the former bike shop space.

Getting ready for summer

Warm temperatures on April 14 didn't go to waste as crews spent part of the day installing docks at Shawano Lake County Park. Dozens of others showed up to have picnics, bask in the sun, jump in the water and play with their dogs.

Postal Service raising prices in July

The U.S. Postal Service filed notice with the Postal Regulatory Commission of mailing services price changes to take effect July 14.

The new rates include a 5-cent increase in the price of a First-Class Mail Forever stamp from 68 cents to 73 cents.

The proposed adjustments, approved by the governors of the postal service, would raise mailing services product prices approximately 7.8%. If favorably reviewed by the commission, the price changes would include:

- Letters, 1 ounce, from 68 cents to 73 cents.
- Letters, metered, 1 ounce, from 64 cents to 69 cents.
- Domestic postcards, from 53 cents to 56 cents.
- International postcards, from $1.55 to $1.65.
- International letter, 1 ounces, from $1.55 to $1.65.

The additional-ounce price for single-piece letters will increase from 24 cents to 28 cents. The postal service is also seeking price adjustments for special services products, including certified mail and money order fees. Notably, there will be no price increase for post office box rental fees, and the postal service will apply a price reduction of 10% for postal insurance when mailing an item.

As changes in the mailing and shipping marketplace continue, these price adjustments are being invoked to achieve the financial stability sought by the organization's Delivering for America 10-year plan.

Cheesy melodrama shows how the West was fun

‘Holder Posey the Felonious Photographer’ coming to Pulaski High School

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Cheers and boos will be more pronounced as Pulaski High School presents the melodrama “Holder Posey the Felonious Photographer” the last weekend in April.

If you hear the local gossips, nothing really happens in Holeinroad, a town way out west. That changes when Holder Posey, a traveling photographer, appears in town with his novice assistant, Candide Cameron, and plans to rob the vault in the Golden Spittoon Saloon. Getting in his way is the hero of the saga, sketch artist Drew Deline, who is hopelessly smitten by a schoolteacher from Atlanta named Ida Claire Yawl. Holder wants Ida for his own, however, and when she gives him the no-means-no response, she winds up tied to the vault door with dynamite threatening to blow her to smithereens.

Director Amy Tubbs believes the farcical melodrama, which includes a stop-motion fight in the saloon, will leave audiences laughing all the way out to their vehicles.

“They’re always these cheesy things where all the character names are ridiculous,” Tubbs said. “The names already give you a flavor for what we’re doing. You have Sheriff Freddy Katt, who is afraid and terrified but he ends up finding his voice and doing good. It’s very standard melodrama fare where you’ve got the bad guys and the good guys, and of course the good guys are going to win in the end because that’s what we want to see.”

While most theater performances only see audiences applauding at the end of a scene or a song, those who attend should be prepared to get into the act. “Holder Posey” has theme music for the characters whenever they arrive or take certain actions, according to Tubbs, with audiences cheering for hero Drew, booing and hissing at Holder the villain, and sighing “Aaaaww” when Ida Claire comes on the stage.

“Every time they come on the stage, that little theme music plays, and it’s just kind of cute to interact with the crowd,” Tubbs said. “It’s fun.”

Melodramas are standard spring fare at PHS, but one tradition attached to the shows are variety acts students participate in with themes connecting with the show. With “Holder Posey” set as a Western, students wrote brief pieces that show photography and the funny side of the Old West, including one that parodies the classic computer game “Oregon Trail.”

“They took that old computer game from way back when, and they created a little scenario skit because, of course, the whole family dies because they never make it to Oregon,” Tubbs said, noting that one part indicates a participant has dysentery.

While finding props for a Western piece can be difficult at times, Tubbs said that one piece was hidden away in the high school’s prop room — an antique spittoon.

“We’ve had it forever,” Tubbs said. “It has a tobacco company name on it. I don’t know the history of it. It’s been here since I’ve been here. I would love to know. It just hides in the prop room and comes out when we need it.”

Dahlia Maroszek, who plays Ida Claire, enjoys when the melodramas take place, noting that they’re the funniest shows she’s seen. This will be the last melodrama she participates in a student, as she graduates high school in a few weeks.

“It’s always so fun to be part of it and see which kind of new humor we’re going to play with,” Maroszek said. “It’s super exciting. I’m normally a villain person myself, so being the hero is a little fun.”

Wisconsin Public Radio reorganizing its services

‘Wisconsin Today’ program covering state issues among changes listeners can expect

Following two years of analysis, audience research and planning, WPR is reorganizing its statewide service to help listeners more easily find and enjoy news and music on the radio and on wpr.org.

Beginning May 20, WPR’s two current networks — NPR News and Music and The Ideas Network — will become WPR News and WPR Music. The Ideas Network name will be retired, and its staff and many of its programs will be part of WPR News.

“With WPR reporters in eight local bureaus across the state, plus NPR and BBC national and global coverage, WPR News will offer an unparalleled mix of journalism from Wisconsin, the nation and the world,” WPR Director Sarah Ashworth said.

WPR News will feature news and information programs throughout the week, including “Morning Edition,” “All Things Considered,” “The Larry Meiller Show,” “Marketplace,” “IA,” “Science Friday,” “Fresh Air” and more. Popular programs like “BETA,” “The People’s Pharmacy,” “Zorba Paster On Your Health,” “To the Best of Our Knowledge,” and “Wait, Wait ... Don’t Tell Me!,” among others, will be heard on the weekend.

“The Larry Meiller Show” will expand to two hours, and WPR will launch a new morning news and culture program called “Wisconsin Today” airing weekdays at 9 a.m. WPR hosts Kate Archer Kent and Rob Ferrett will co-host the new program. “Wisconsin Today” will cover current and emerging issues with a decidedly Wisconsin point of view. In addition to the radio program, “Wisconsin Today” will offer the latest news and cultural conversations on wpr.org.

WPR’s “Wisconsin Today” morning news podcast will continue to bring listeners top stories from around the state in less than 15 minutes each weekday morning.

WPR Music will offer an expanded, Wisconsin-hosted classical music schedule seven days a week, and will continue to offer jazz, world and folk music each weekend.

“Music brings people together and opens hearts like nothing else,” Ashworth said. “WPR Music will be a welcoming place for Wisconsinites looking for local voices and beautiful, expertly curated and inspiring music to keep them company day and night.”

Beloved WPR classical hosts Stephanie Elkins, Norman Gilliland, Lori Skelton and Ruthanne Bessman are all part of the new service, as are Dr. Jonathan Øverby, host of the award-winning world music program “The Road to Higher Ground,” and Sile Shigely, host of “Simply Folk.” WPR will continue to host its statewide broadcast of “Morning Edition” from Milwaukee with Alex Crowe each weekday.

As part of the changes, “The Morning Show” and “Central Time” will end so that Kent and Ferrett can focus on “Wisconsin Today.” Syndicated programs “LA Plus,” “As It Happens,” “Q” and “Milk Street Radio” are among a handful of national programs that will no longer be heard on WPR stations after May 20.

Some regional programs, including WPR’s three regional news programs “Route 51,” “Simply Superior” and “Newsmakers” will also end. Hosts of those three shows will produce and host weekly regional news segments that will air during “Morning Edition” beginning this summer.

“We are constantly evaluating our service to the people of Wisconsin and, like others in public media, WPR saw changes in broadcast and digital audience behavior during and after the pandemic,” Ashworth said. “No other medium is as accessible and affordable as radio and we want to make sure the news, music, information and entertainment senior who plays the irksome assistant to Holder, Candide Cameron. However, she said she’s embracing the opportunity to play a villainess.

“This is only my second year doing this, and I wish I would have done it sooner,” Busche said. “It’s just fun being a character and seeing how I can bring that character to life in my own way. I never saw myself as being evil. It’s a challenge for me, because I don’t know how Wisconsinites rely on is available to more people, in more places, for decades to come. WPR News and WPR Music will help make that possible.”

All of WPR’s 38 stations will shift format to either WPR News or WPR Music.

“Most listeners will continue to hear both services, but they may need to reset their radio dials to get the programs they are used to hearing,” said Marta Bechtol, executive director of the Educational Communications Board, the partner with UW-Madison in operating WPR and PBS Wisconsin.

To help listeners explore the changes and prepare for the new service on May 20, WPR is rolling out an extensive communications campaign on air, online and in the media. A dedicated web portal, wpr.org/new, includes new station maps, schedules for the new networks and other details about the changes.

Audiences can email feedback@wpr.org or call 844-266-7724 to ask questions and share comments. Ashworth will hold “learn more” sessions in eight locations around Wisconsin between April 23 and May 17.

“WPR’s remarkable 107-year history was made possible by people in the past who responded to changes in media and the needs of our state,” Ashworth said. “All of us — hosts, reporters, producers and staff — are stewards of WPR today. We take that responsibility to heart and with these changes we can ensure a bright future for WPR and continue our service to the people of Wisconsin.”

to be mean, but I think I’m getting the hang of it.”

Tubbs noted the melodramas in spring have always been successful, and she hopes the run of “Holder Posey” continues the Pulaski tradition.

“The audience members will say they come out, and their stomachs hurt from laughing,” Tubbs said. “If we can do that, we’ve had a successful show.”

FARM LIFE FROM A FARM WIFE

Cow care an emotional occupation

After getting removed from the cow barn, the downed cow was lying in back yard. Ears drooping, eyes sunken in their sockets, large and unseeing — she was breathing, but barely.

My heart broke for her. Such a good cow. Sadly, she had fallen and split herself and consequently had to be put out of her misery when the rendering truck drove in. As soon as she had been brought into the yard, I hauled a pail of water out to her. I knew in just a little while she’d be in no more pain, but in the meantime I wanted to give her some relief.

That day when the rendering truck arrived, I got busy with things deep inside the house. I didn’t want to see or hear what he did. Oh, I knew. I just didn’t want to witness it. This truck always looked like the grim reaper to me. An ugly, boxy thing, it filled me with dread whenever it came down the driveway. The guys (bless their heart, somebody had to do it) wore blank, withdrawn expressions. Like get in, get out, get it over with.

Back in those days when we’d lose a cow, I’d literally cry. I know my husband felt bad, but I was the one who was visibly shaken. These cows, we gave so much of ourselves to them. They were literally our bread and butter, and when they did well, we did well. So it was in our best interest to keep them as healthy as we could.

This particular cow I remember had come down with milk fever after giving birth, which happens sometimes and can usually be treated with calcium if given intravenously right away. This cow had gone down and split herself, which meant she wasn’t able to get up. Calcium has to get into them before they get injured.

My husband intuitively knows cows, but it happened occasionally, no matter how careful we were, that we’d lose a couple. He always kept meticulous records when we were dairying so we knew when the cow was bred, if she stuck (didn’t come back in heat in her next cycle) and when she was supposed to give birth.

Many times after night chores we’d bed down a pregnant cow in the birthing pen — the back of the barn by the big double doors going out to the cow yard. We’d clean and lime the floor so it wouldn’t be slippery (less chance of splitting/injuring herself), and then shake out a couple wafers from a straw bale. It was fresh and comfy.

He’d stuck a gate in front of the doors so she had room to be restless. Normally in the morning, we’d find momma and her fuzzy, fresh-licked, brand-new calf lying by her side, her swollen udder harboring nutritious colostrum. Normally, but not always.

One predawn morning as we walked into the barn, we knew momma had given birth, evidenced by a round pile of steamy afterbirth in a corner of the birthing pen. What wasn’t there was the calf. Looking all over we discovered it had somehow slid outside the pen, gotten through the doors and was lying shivering, but alive, out in the cow yard.

As soon as the weather warmed, we’d let cows out overnight in the pasture. No cleaning barn every day, no bedding cows, it was all just so liberating. The only con to the whole outside-overnight gigs was if a cow calved, we’d have to find the cow and calf. Out there somewhere.

In the mornings, the rest of the herd would instinctively trod their way into the barn right away and wouldn’t you know, the new momma would be missing-in-action.

Because he’d have to start milking, he told me with a half-smirk, “You’ll have to go get that cow.” He knew I hated going out in the cow pasture in the predawn dark to try to find a cow and her calf.

While tending cows was an intricate part of our life, my husband had never allowed them to take priority over supporting our kids’ events. He’d get up at 3:30 a.m. to start milking, and I’d come a bit later. He did all the milking and I’d feed the milk-bottle-fed and pail-fed calves, clean calf pens and feed outside heifers. Back in the day, we’d had an open skidder with no heat. In the dead of winter, I’d warm up an old blanket in the milk house and, just before feeding, lay it across my lap. It helped.

After milking, I’d wash up milkers while he fed cows. It was an arrangement that worked for us. Evening came and we’d do it all over again. Because we’d started at 3:30 a.m. we could start late afternoons, getting to all our kids’ events on time.

Our job was to keep the cows in our care healthy and comfortable. While working around our kids’ schedules and despite a few drop-ins from the grim reaper, we did the best we could.

“For every beast of the forest is Mine, the cattle on a thousand hills. I know all the birds of the hills and all that moves in the field is Mine.” Psalm 50:10-11)

Kay Reminger was born and raised on a dairy farm, and she married her high school sweetheart, who happened to farm for a living in Leopolis. Writing for quite a few years, she remains focused on the blessings of living the ups and downs of rural life from a farm wife’s perspective.

New England Aster is a must-have, late blooming perennial that is vital for late season bumblebees and migrating monarchs. ROB ZIMMER

Backyard pollinator projects help out bees, butterflies

As I've mentioned several times over the past few months, gardening for pollinators has become more popular than ever with recent bad news surrounding bumblebees, monarch butterflies and other pollinators. We simply must do more to help these amazing and necessary creatures.

This week, here are some tips and projects you can take on at home to help pollinators locally, right in your own backyard.

One of the easiest things you can do is make or purchase a few native bee houses to mount throughout your property on fence posts, trees, outbuildings or other structures.

Mason bee houses often contain a variety of different sized hollow objects in which native bees of different varieties can create nest space. Each different species is drawn to a different sized object, making those houses with various sized tubular shaped objects — often twigs, hollow stems, drilled concrete blocks and other items — a valuable commodity for our native bees.

Planting native plants, of course, is a great way to help benefit pollinators and help rebuild their numbers. Bees, butterflies and hummingbirds all enjoy the nectar and pollen of native plants. Because these plants are indigenous to our area, they are better suited to the native bees and butterflies found here.

Specifically for bumblebees, notably the endangered rusty-patched bumblebee, a few native wildflowers are especially important. Wild bergamot, or wild bee balm, has been shown to be one of the most important nectar sources and pollen sources for rusty-patched bumblebees.

Another native wildflower, Culver's Root, is equally important during its bloom season.

Of course, for monarchs, we simply must plant more milkweed in our yards and properties to create sufficient supplies of host plants for monarchs, which are currently at their second lowest population point ever on record.

By providing milkweed in our gardens and yards, we can help monarchs quickly rebuild their numbers during the summer breeding season.

Don't forget the trees. Many species of trees are important host plants for pollinating butterflies. Weeping willow, oak, birches, basswood, black cherry, cottonwood and others are excellent host plants for numerous species of butterflies.

One of the most important things we can do to help pollinators is to encourage children and youngsters to learn to identify these creatures, as well as their importance in our food chain and life cycle.

Teaching young children to garden and grow and nurture plants specifically for pollinators is the key to their future — both their own, as well as the pollinators they are assisting.

JR Machine expands complex part size

JR Machine, manufacturer of complex machined parts, can now produce complex parts up to 18 inches in diameter after the installation of two DMG MORI NLX 4000 CNC turning centers.

With a previous 10-inch diameter limit, the ability to machine parts with larger diameters is important to JR Machine's growing list of customers in industries including space exploration, green energy, medical devices and others.

The NLX 4000 is a powerful and versatile machine that is well suited to making a wide range of complex parts. In addition to the larger diameter, the new DMG MORI NLX 4000s expands JR Machine's production capacity, while its CELOS controls help increase production efficiency and quality by providing data that supports JR Machine's Industry 4.0 efforts.

The NLX 4000s also feature high rigidity for improved accuracy; the largest through spindle hole diameter in its class for larger diameter parts; improved milling power; high precision through coolant circulation that controls thermal displacement, allowing for greater accuracy; reduced energy consumption; and nickel-based superalloys expertise.

In recent years, JR Machine has perfected its ability to machine complex parts from nickel-based superalloys such as Inconel, Monel, Hastelloy, and others. These materials are extremely difficult to machine but are required by many emerging industries due to their strength, durability, and resistance to high-temperatures and corrosion. JR Machine is committed to replacing its CNC machines once they are 10 years old, ensuring the company is working with modern, efficient technology.

"The ability to machine complex parts up to 18-inches in diameter, and possibly larger, allows us to better serve our existing customers and opens doors to working with new companies," said Parker Tumanic, JR Machine president. "Our shop is exclusively DMG MORI equipment so our staff can be more efficient. The accuracy of the equipment combined with the skill of our technicians makes us the perfect partner for companies looking for high-mix, low-volume parts made from nickel-based superalloys."

The company recently announced the additions of David Verhoff as executive vice president and Matt Shambeau as operations manager to support the company's growth. Both have extensive backgrounds in manufacturing and share JR Machine's commitment to customer service.

JR Machine has also made physical updates to its facility, opening an engineering center to help further streamline production, while building out a state-of-the-art tooling storage room. The room allows machine operators to quickly check out the necessary tooling, while automatically updating inventory records. The inventory information is shared with JR Machine's tooling partner, Badger Mills Supply, who restocks necessary tooling twice per week, to ensure production doesn't slow or stop due to out-of-stock tooling.

Are you at risk for prediabetes or diabetes?

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), more than 133 million people in the U.S. have diabetes or prediabetes. Of those adults, one in five did not even know they had the condition.

Diabetes is a chronic medical condition characterized by high levels of glucose (sugar) in the blood and can cause a heart attack, stroke, blindness, kidney failure or loss of feet or legs.

Prediabetes, on the other hand, is when your blood sugar levels are higher than normal but not quite at the diabetes level yet.

"If we don't catch prediabetes early or manage it properly, it can progress into type 2 diabetes," says Johnathon Justice, MD, Aspirus Family Medicine physician. "I would encourage people to understand the risks of and be screened for prediabetes and diabetes."

Justice said the good news is that type 2 diabetes can be delayed or prevented in people with prediabetes or diabetes risk factors through effective lifestyle programs.

"Modest lifestyle modifications, such as dietary changes and increased physical activity, people can decrease the likelihood of developing type 2 diabetes,"

Dr. Johnathon Justice with Aspirus Fsaaid making small, sustainable lifestyle changes can have a significant impact on reducing your risk of developing diabetes and improving your overall health and well-being. CONTRIBUTED

AT A GLANCE

- Diabetes risk factors include:
- Being overweight.
 - Having a parent or sibling who has type 2 diabetes.
 - Lack of physical activity (fewer than three times per week).
 - Some ethnic groups are at a higher risk for type 2 diabetes.

he said.

Here is a checklist of recommendations to help reduce the risk of diabetes or prediabetes:

- Increase your physical activity. Before you jump into a rigorous exercise routine, talk to your doctor about what physical activities are most beneficial for your body. Start slowly to avoid injury and work your way up to 30 minutes of exercise five days per week. Things like walking, swimming and dancing could help keep your blood sugar from spiking.

- Choose foods wisely. Carbohydrates like bread, grains, starches, milk and fruits have the biggest effect on blood sugars. Focus heavily on controlling portion sizes of those foods and balance them with foods like vegetables, lean proteins and heart healthy fats. A registered dietitian can help you customize a meal plan.
- Check blood sugar regularly. Keep an eye on what you eat and how it affects you by testing your blood sugar. The American Diabetes Association's guidelines say between 80-130 mg/dl before you eat and under 180 mg/dl about two hours after you eat is ideal. But everyone is different, so talk to your doctor about what range is best for you.

- Get in the know. Talk to a certified diabetes educator to learn how to self-manage type 2 diabetes, including ongoing treatment. Diabetes educators provide information about how exercise and food choices affect blood sugar and preventing things like eye or kidney damage. The more you know, the easier it is to make healthy choices.

- Check in with your doctor regularly. Treatment needs to change depending on your blood sugar levels. Make appointments for regular checkups with your doctor to ensure you are up to date on your regimen.

"Remember, the best time to start preventing type 2 diabetes is now," Justice said. "Making small, sustainable lifestyle changes can have a significant impact on reducing your risk of developing diabetes and improving your overall health and well-being."

Bowler/Gresham 17, Marion 2

Bowler/Gresham won both ends of a doubleheader against Marion, first by a score of 9-3 and then 17-2.

Shiocton 19, Menominee Indian 9

The Eagles jumped out a 3-0 first-inning lead against Shiocton only to see the hosts come back with nine runs of their own to take a 9-3 lead.

Each team scored once more in the third inning. Menominee Indian tied the game at 8-8 after scoring four runs in the fourth inning, but Shiocton pummeled the ball for eight runs in the bottom of the inning to total a 16-8 advantage.

Menominee Indian added another run in the fifth inning, but Shiocton added three and won 19-9.

Denmark 5, Oconto Falls 1

Oconto Falls' one-run lead at the bottom of the first inning lasted until Denmark tied the game at the top of the second.

The Vikings added a pair of runs in each of the fourth and sixth innings to secure the 5-1 North Eastern Conference win.

Pulaski 16, Sheboygan South 0

The Red Raiders shut out Sheboygan South 16-0 to improve to 2-0 in the Fox River Classic Conference and 4-0 overall.

Mishicot 1, Shawano 0

Mishicot scored one run in the top of the fourth inning, and that was all that was needed for a 1-0 win over Shawano.

Port Edwards 9, Tigerton 6

Maycee Carlson and McKenzie Hoffman each had a hit for Tigerton in the team's 9-6 loss to Port Edwards. Hoffman's hit was a double.

Danika Tiller took the loss on the mound for the Tigers.

April 11

Bonduel 9, Weyauwega-Fremont 5

Bonduel kept chipping away at Weyauwega-Fremont to emerge with a 9-5 CWC-East win.

The Bears jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Both team scored twice in the second, and Weyauwega-Fremont added two in the third to tie the game at 4-4.

Bonduel had two runs cross the plate in the fourth inning and then one more in each of the fifth, sixth and seventh innings.

Oconto Falls 5, Marinette 1

The Panthers jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the third inning and held on for the 5-1 North Eastern Conference win over Marinette.

Oconto Falls added two more runs in the sixth inning to lead 4-0, before Marinette scored its only run in the bottom of the sixth. Oconto Falls added another run in the top of the seventh to end the scoring.

Shawano 19, Green Bay East/West 0

The Hawks wasted little time in pounding Green Bay East/West, winning the Bay Conference game 19-0.

Abby Wachtel was 1-for-2 with four RBIs. Macey Krueger hit 1-for-2 with three RBIs, and Ella Stuber hit 2-for-2 with three RBIs.

Abby Bystol pitched two innings, gave up a hit, walked one and struck out three.

Marathon 21, Tigerton 1

A solid first two innings gave way to a disastrous last three innings as Tigerton was defeated 21-1 in a non-conference match against Marathon.

Down 1-0 after two innings, Tigerton gave up six runs in the third, another six in the fourth and eight in the fifth.

Tigerton's only run came in the fourth inning.

Maybe Carlson hit 1-for-3 to record the only hit for the Tigers.

Danika Tiller took the loss, giving up three hits and seven runs, while walking six and striking out four. Ancel Welch pitched the final two innings.

Pulaski lacrosse teams roughed up

It was another rough outing for the Pulaski boys lacrosse team April 11, losing 21-3 to the Oneida Nation Thunderhawks.

The game was scoreless through the first three quarters, only to see all 24 goals come in the final stanza.

April 9
Appleton United jumped all over Pulaski's boys lacrosse team from the beginning and didn't let up, winning the non-conference game 22-2.

While the Red Raiders connected on two goals in the first quarter, Appleton

United scored eight times in each of the first two quarters, added four in the third and two more in the fourth.

April 8
The Pulaski girls lacrosse team was shut out in its debut game. Bay Port won 15-0.

Springborn gets first-ever feature win

Mullen crowned king of WABAM Dirt Kings Late Model Tour 2024 season opener

BY DON ROUSE
Special to NEW Media

The 2024 Shawano Speedway (powered by Auto Select) kicked off the season April 13 with hot racing action and cooler temps than one would like.

A total of 106 cars checked into the legendary half-mile to do battle, and fans witnessed a local driver pick up the first feature win of his career.

First on the track was the IMCA Modifieds with Jerry Muenster and Lucas Lamberies starting on the front row. At the drop of the green flag, Muenster and Lamberies would head through corners 1-2 as Lamberies was starting to pull in front of the “youngster” Jerry Muenster (82 years old) as the field behind them was starting to take shape.

Mike Schmidt, Marcus Yarie, Kevin Feck and Jason Ebert were all chasing the leaders. But the man on the move was defending track champion Johnny Whitman moving up six spots from his eighth-place starting spot. After a few cautions for spins and debris, Lamberies found himself in the company of Whitman, Yarie, Mike Schmidt and Jayden Schmidt. Whitman would gain a bit on Lamberies in the corner but was running out of laps. When the final checker flew, it was Lamberies holding off his competitors to pick up his first feature win at Shawano Speedway in 2024.

The class “To Tough to Tame” IMCA Stock Cars was next to do battle on the dusty half mile. By the luck of the draw/redraw format that is used on opening night, Travis VanStaten drew the pole position with his dancing partner on the outside, Trent Nolan, sure to make for a great start of the race.

Row 2 had Mitch Stankowski and Shawn “Lunchbox” Wagner. Row 3 was occupied by Dylan

Stedjee and Jerry Wilinski who will be doing double duty this year of sorts with his modified and stock car.

When the green flag twirled in the air, VanStaten and Nolan did not disappoint with a great side-by-side battle. Through the next several laps, the pair would surrender the lead for a bit to each other. But after several cautions, time was not on the stock cars’ side, so that eventually would have to start single file and end up being a green, white, checkered dash for the win.

On the last restart, it was bound to be a great finish.

The “Horicon Hurricane” Jeremy Christians picked up eight spots through all the cautions and found himself on the back bumper of the leaders. In the end, it was VanStaten picking up right where left off last year’s campaign in Victory Lane.

The IMCA Northern Sport Mods saw history being made in their feature.

Dustin Wudstrack and A.J. Springborn led the field of 24 to the green flag.

Springborn and Wudstrack would duke it out for four laps before Brad Miller, Jeffery Teske, Tommy Rindt and Andy Klosterman began applying pressure to the leaders. Cole Magnin was on an absolute mission as he moved his machine up 15 spots and was looking for more.

Unfortunately, this feature was also plagued with several cautions for debris or spins. The final caution would put Springborn, Teske, Magnin, JJ Vanderloop and Travis Rhodes sitting inside of the top five. As the checkered flag flew Springborn got a slice of victory, picking up his first ever feature win.

Mighty 4 division would wrap up the night with 12 laps of racing action.

Brad Wedde and Casey Gross would be in the

The IMCA Northern Sport Mods saw history being made in its feature race April 13 at the Shawano Speedway. Dustin Wudstrack and A.J. Springborn led the field of 24 to the green flag, with Springborn collecting the checkered flag, his first feature win.

Wedde wasted no time proving why he is the defending track champion as he and Gross would exchange paint a few times down the backstretch.

Wedde began to have a slight advantage but Gross, Bailey Tate, Justin Haufe, Nathan Lisowe and Dalton Nelson weren’t about to just let Wedde go without a fight. However, nobody was strong enough to get by the 37 machine of Wedde as he cruised to victory lane.

Mike Mullen was crowned king of WABAM Dirt Kings Late Model

Tour 2024 season opener, The Lumberyard Bar and Grill Spring Thaw at Shawano Speedway in BMRE Electric Carts Victory Lane.

Mullen started third in the 25-lap A-Main as Chris Oertel and Andy Karl led the field to the green flag.

Karl took the lead as Oertel and Gunner Frank battled for position behind him. Karl stretched his lead to 4.518 seconds before the caution came out on lap 7. On the restart, Karl maintained his lead as Mullen battled with him. On the next lap, Mullen raced to the inside of Karl in turn two and took the lead, earning the Autoworx Clean Move of the Race. Caution slowed the field on the next lap, erasing the 0.749 second lead that Mullen had. On the restart, Mullen continued to pace the field as Frank and Karl battled for second place.

At the halfway point, Mullen held a 2.385 second advantage over Frank. Mullen’s advantage continued to increase as Frank, Karl, Nick Anvelink and Justin Ritchie followed behind.

Mullen went on to win his fifth WABAM Dirt Kings Late Model Tour race by 4.648 seconds over Frank, Karl, Anvelink and Ritchie.

Troy Springborn was The Pues Family Hard Charger, passing 10 cars in The Lumberyard Bar and Grill Spring Thaw, earning an additional $200.

Wied jumps into 8th Congressional District election

Tony Wied has announced he is officially running for Congress in Wisconsin's 8th Congressional District, a seat vacated by Rep. Mike Gallagher after over seven years representing Northeast Wisconsin.

“Wisconsin's 8th Congressional District is hungry for an America First outsider,” Wied said in a press release. “For too long, career politicians have failed to deliver the results we desperately need. I'm humbled by the outpouring of support from family and friends and the support and endorsement of President Donald J. Trump. I look forward to earning the trust of Wisconsin voters and taking the lessons I've learned from three decades of operating businesses in Northeast Wisconsin to Washington, D.C.”

Wied is an America First businessman and political outsider who was endorsed by Trump on April 7. He has spent three decades successfully starting, building, and operating businesses in Northeast Wisconsin. He owned and operated Dino Stop, a chain of gas stations and convenience stores, which he sold in 2022.

Wied is a lifelong Wisconsinite. He resides in De Pere with his wife of 23 years, Angela, four sons and dog Baker.

Wied is joining state Sen. Andre Jacque and former Sen. Roger Roth in a Republican primary in August. Kristin Lyerly, a Democrat, has also entered the Congressional race.

Cowles opting out on another Senate term

Sen. Rob Cowles, R-Green Bay, has announced that he will not seek reelection to the Wisconsin State Senate.

Cowles, who represented the 2nd Senate District until new legislative maps came out this year, sent out a press release expressing his gratitude to some of the people he has worked with, noting that they helping him to do his job better.

“Few people have the chance to get to know the elected officials representing Wisconsinites at the state and local level on a professional and personal level like I have over the years,” Cowles said. “Despite policy disagreements at times, I've met some outstanding individuals who serve their constituents with honor and respect. I wish my colleagues all the best in their efforts to serve the people of Wisconsin in the coming sessions.”

ROB COWLES

Cowles also acknowledged his staff, past and present, and wished them well in their future endeavors.

“The people of Northeast Wisconsin have been endlessly kind to me,” Cowles said. “From entrusting me with an amazing responsibility to serve them, the civility they've largely showed even in disagreement, and the countless times I've been welcomed into events, meetings and tours, I've met so many exceptional people that always reminded me what the work of a legislator is truly all about.”

If Cowles had planned to run for reelection, he would have faced a primary with Sen. Eric Wimberger, who is also seeking another term.

introduced as the Menominee Eagles, they were introduced as the Menominee Indians. Having mascots with the Indian name has been a subject of contention across the state and nation, and Denny recalled how degrading it felt to be called an Indian at a sporting event.

“It was a problem for a long time, but I'm glad we finally fixed it,” Denny said.

For Guzman, who graduates next month, changing the name is a crowning achievement for his four years in high school.

“I feel good knowing I'm leaving behind something good and that other kids might pick up on it and follow the footsteps,” Guzman said.

Taking Indian out of the high school's name is not a recent concept, according to Wendell Waukau, Menominee Indian School District superintendent. He noted that folks have wanted the name to change for at least 25 years, when he was the high school principal.

“It's not something we haven't discussed,” Waukau said. “The way I have felt about it was, if it was ever going to come up, it would need to come from the students. Because of the work that was done by the human rights club, it just lined up perfectly. The students had to research. They were out there educating the community, the state, the nation.”

The high school name change could only be the beginning, though. Plans are in the works to change the name of the elementary and middle schools, with the latter still having Indian in the name. After that, it's possible the district's name will change, as well, to take Indian out.

Megan Willard, adviser for the human rights club, noted that the club's focus originally was on changing the high school's name without regard to the other entities bearing the Indian name, but when it was realized the name of the high school would differ from the name of the middle school and the district itself, the scope expanded.

“We surveyed later once the school board asked us to come up with a name,” Willard said.

She noted that middle school officials are in favor of removing Indian from the school's name, and she believes staff will take steps to change the name.

“It's a logical step to have the school board to follow through with the middle school,” Willard said. “The school board is in charge of the district, so whatever path they take; we engaged the community with this survey, and the community gave a lot of feedback to them at various meetings.”

Waukau noted that the school board tasked the club with engaging with the middle and elementary schools first to gauge interest in a name change. He said once that was done, then the board would take up whether to change the district's name.

“The board told them to get more input from the community on the high school, and they did that,” Waukau said. “What the board wants them to do is to follow that same process with the other two schools.”

Guzman is hopeful that the other schools can get new names, as well, even though he won't be part of it because of graduation.

“I'm really hoping other kids will come and join this club and take over what we started,” Guzman said.

Matthew Zahringer

Matthew Zahringer, of Antigo, died unexpectedly on April 12, 2024, at his home. He was 42 years old.

He was born on Feb. 18, 1982, in Highland Park, Illinois, a son of Laurie (Herman) Tackett of Elton and James Zahringer of Gresham.

From the ages of 12-18, Matt was a caddy at a golf course in Highland Park where his grandfather and uncles also worked as young men. He graduated from Stevenson High School in Buffalo Grove, Illinois, and then attended the University of Wisconsin-Madison for computer science. Following the events of 9/11, Matt gave up a scholarship and moved to Antigo to be closer to family. He then attended North Central Technical College and Nicolet Technical College for criminal justice.

Shortly after moving, he met Jacilyn Augustyn, and they were married on June 5, 2004, at Faith Center in Antigo.

For nearly 18 years Matt has been employed at Amron in Antigo. He was a proud and loving husband and father. He enjoyed playing table top games with his wife, kids and other family members. He loved being able to teach his sons and pass on his love of gaming to them.

In addition to his parents, Matt will be deeply missed by his wife, Jacilyn; seven children, Benjamin, Jacob, Timothy, Micah, Ian, Adeline and baby boy Zahringer expected in June; three sisters, Sarah (Paul) Bostwick, of Antigo, Angelica (Bob) Meydam, of Birnamwood, and Hannah (Chet) Tackett, of Antigo; father- and mother-in-law, Pete and Pam Augustyn, of Antigo; and special uncle and aunt, Donald and Paulette Colo. He is also survived by step-siblings, brothers and sisters-in-law, nieces, nephews, other relatives and friends.

A funeral service will be held on Friday, April 19, 2024, at 11 a.m. at Homestead Church in Antigo with the Rev. Dustin Dieke officiating. Burial will take place in Elmwood Cemetery in Antigo.

Visitation will be Friday, April 19, from 9-11 a.m. at Homestead Church.

In lieu of flowers, memorials may be directed to the family.
