

School district voters reject land purchase

Residents wanted to know purpose of additional 20 acres

By KEVIN PASSON Editor-in-Chief

Shawano School District residents voted Dec. 9 against purchasing 20 acres of land east of Shawano Community High School. The vote was 15-10 and was held at a special meeting of the electorate as required by state law. The only designation for the land was a statement that it would be considered for "future use," and that's what residents questioned. "I've heard in the community that you want to build a new middle school," said resident Linda Vandeloo. "Where the middle school is now you have plenty of property to keep the school open that's there now, rebuild the school there. You've got the woods there. You've got property that runs from the middle school to Olga Brenner that's never used. There's plenty of room to rebuild a school there and reconfigure that whole thing." She also questioned, if the district did build a new middle school near the high school, what would become of the middle school site. "What are you going to do when the middle school is gone and that whole big huge property there is not used?" she asked.

Superintendent Kurt Krizan clarified that the district had no specific use in mind for the land. He also said the district had a first right of refusal, meaning that when the seller agrees to a purchase price with a buyer, the district has the opportunity to buy the land for the same amount. The 20 acres is owned by Mike Zingler and his siblings. The purchase price is $531,000. "It does give us options," board member John Arens said about the land purchase. "We put a date out there of 2032 when we were going to sunset the middle school. "It's a great investment. There's only so much land in the world. Property does not decrease in value. "It would not be prudent on our part to just pass on our first right of refusal on this." Fellow board member Karen Houston pointed out the district is land-

Unsure about Santa Claus

Michael Walby, who turns 3 in January, of Shawano, is not sure what to make of Santa Claus as he stands next to his father, Tyler, Dec. 14 at the Naberhood Plaza. The afternoon session with Santa saw few visitors as the windy and cloudy weather caused many to duck for cover, but the morning session geared toward children with sensory needs saw plenty of kids come with their lists.

City to follow county's lead on laws governing ORVs on roads

Shawano reacting to complaints, concerns from community

By LEE PULASKI City Editor

The city of Shawano plans to emulate what Shawano County does when it comes to off-road vehicles. The Shawano Common Council discussed what to do about vehicles when it comes to licensing, insurance and what age is appropriate for drivers during its Dec. 11 meeting. Members ultimately felt that city rules should mirror the county's so that Shawano is not an island.

The push is coming from Alderman Jim Hauer. He is also a deputy with the Shawano County Sheriff's Department, which is seeking change from the county board in how off-road vehicles are allowed to traverse the roads. There have been complaints about the vehicles racing through residential neighborhoods, operators driving drunk and more. "A lot of people are confused," Hauer said. "They thought that a license was already a requirement to drive on the roadways in the city of Shawano." Police Chief Bradley Rabideau recommended three big changes to the existing city law. Drivers should have a valid driver's license, the vehicle should have insurance like motor vehicles are required to have, and no open intoxicants should be present in the vehicle. The changes would be different from the current state regulations through the Department of Natural Resources. "I think those are common sense changes," Rabideau said. "I think that the city would do well to pay attention to whatever Shawano County is doing. According to the sheriff, they are bringing these changes to the county in February, and I think the city should pay attention to how the county reacts to this." Rabideau expressed concern that if the county takes action and the city does nothing, or vice versa, it could present complications for Shawano. "You want the rules to be the same," he said. "If the county decides not to go that route, my suggestion would be to follow what the county does." The current rules unfairly allow ORVs

New policy would break Wisconsin Guarantee ties

Top grade-point average students assured entrance to state colleges

By KEVIN PASSON
Editor-in-Chief

Wisconsin students with the highest grade-point averages in their graduating classes are guaranteed admission to UW schools, according to a state law passed earlier this year.

“This statute will have a significant impact on which Shawano students are automatically granted admission to UW-Madison and all other University of Wisconsin schools,” Shawano Community High School principal Matthew Raduechel said.

One of the vague parts of the law was addressed by the Shawano School Board on Dec. 9. Raduechel explained the process local officials hope to use if students have GPA ties.

“The top 5% of a graduating class is guaranteed admission to UW-Madison. That’s based purely on GPA,” Raduechel said. “Students that are identified in the top 10% of the graduating class are granted admission to all other UW System schools.”

Schools must round down to the nearest whole student to be within the allowable percentage.

“We’re not allowed to designate students more than 5 and 10%,” Raduechel said. “In a graduating class very similar to here in Shawano of say 170 students, that’s 8.5 designated as 5%. So, we have to take eight students and not nine students.”

It is up to individual districts to have a process for making determinations when students have the same GPA at the 5% and 10% marks.

Raduechel and his team identified the tiebreakers Shawano will use.

If there is a tie within the 5% or 10% marks, students participating in university-level courses will receive one point, and those enrolled in all other dual-credit courses will receive a half point. The student with the most points wins the tie.

If students are still tied after considering the weighted courses, the student with the highest overall ACT score will win. A final tiebreaker would be to consider the highest ACT sub-score.

Raduechel noted had the law and tie breaking rules been in effect the past few years, the weighted courses tie-breaker would have successfully broken at least three GPA ties.

Students must still apply to the UW school, even if they are guaranteed enrollment.

The guaranteed designation is for the student, not the number of students. So, if a top GPA student chooses an option other than a UW school, his or her guaranteed enrollment does not transfer down the list to the next student.

The policy is expected to be back in front of the school board for approval in January.

2 die in 1-vehicle crash

Two men in their 20s died in a one-vehicle crash in the Town of Lessor on Dec. 14, according to the Shawano County Sheriff’s Department.

At about 4:16 a.m., a caller notified the sheriff’s office of a crash on Landstad Road near Frazer Corner. Deputies found the pickup truck severely damaged with two deceased men. The men were identified as Bailey Kolaske, 26, of Bonduel, and Anthony Ferron, 26, of Pulaski.

Both men were ejected from the truck.

The exact time or cause of the crash remains under investigation.

Anyone with information about the accident can call the sheriff’s dispatch at 715-526-3111.

The Navarino-Lessor Fire Department and Shawano County Coroner’s Office assisted at the scene.

Giving community puts clerk in tutu

City Clerk Lesley Nemetz, right, addresses the Shawano Common Council on Dec. 11 in brighter attire than usual after getting her friend, Lucas Hartwig with Tatted Dad Co., to raise money for Toys for Tots. Nemetz said she challenged Hartwig to collect $200 for the program, and if he did, she would wear her tutu to the council meeting. “What started as a joke ended up in over $1,200 worth of donations coming from our amazing community and businesses,” Nemetz said, noting that most of the items collected were for teenage boys ages 14-17, who can often be overlooked by Toys for Tots shoppers. She added that her parents also donated, just to see her in the tutu.

Ingold still waits for attorney

Homicide case on hold until counsel can be found

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Michael Ingold is still waiting on a new attorney after his last attorney stepped down just before a four-week trial was scheduled to begin in his homicide case.

Two status conferences on Dec. 5 and Dec. 11 yielded no results, so another conference was scheduled for Dec. 23 in Branch II of the Shawano County Courthouse. Ingold has filed a speedy trial demand.

This is the third time an attorney has needed to be found for Ingold. Lennon took on the case for Christopher Froehlich, who withdrew May 9, 2023, after being appointed Oct. 18, 2022.

This is the third time a scheduled jury trial has been called off for the case involving a charge of first-degree homicide with a domestic abuse modifier. Ingold was originally scheduled to stand trial Jan. 8, but then the trial was rescheduled for May 14 before having to be rescheduled again for Nov. 18.

The criminal complaint against Ingold states that at 4:13 a.m. June 25, 2022, the Shawano County Sheriff’s Department received a 911 call from Ingold, where he stated that he woke up and checked on his girlfriend, only to find her deceased.

An autopsy showed that Sheila A. Laudon, who was 59 at the time, was strangled to death.

Ingold told the deputies that he got home at 6:30 p.m., talked with the victim, turned on the television and fell asleep on the couch, the complaint said. He stated he woke up around 2:30 a.m. and heard the victim in the kitchen saying that she was getting a beer. He then claimed that he woke up again at 4:01 a.m. and found her deceased in the bedroom.

Detectives received the autopsy report of the victim’s death on July 21, 2022, stating that the cause of death was manual strangulation.

On July 27, 2022, two detectives interviewed Ingold at the sheriff’s department, told Ingold that the victim died from strangulation and that they believed that he caused it. Ingold responded, saying, “No it’s not, no it’s not, I didn’t touch her,” according to the complaint. Ingold acknowledged he and Laudon were the only two people in the house but continued to deny touching her, according to the complaint.

If convicted, Ingold faces life in prison if convicted of first-degree intentional homicide with a domestic abuse modifier.

County will seek bids for new building designs

By KEVIN PASSON
Editor-in-Chief

The new year will begin with a new push by Shawano County officials to build new facilities for several county operations.

That project could begin as soon as the Jan. 9 meeting of the public property committee, which will be tasked with seeking bids from companies to begin planning the designs of new or renovated buildings.

“I imagine the first thing we’ll have to do then is start with requests for proposals from various companies that design and lay out a new building,” Tom Kautza, chairman of the county board, told the executive committee at its Dec. 11 meeting.

An ad hoc building committee agreed Dec. 2 the county should construct new buildings rather than continue to invest money in repairs to the existing courthouse. The building project could also include a justice center attached to a new or renovated sheriff’s department and jail, as well as a campus that is also home to a new public library.

Kautza said he would assume the procedure will be for the committee to meet individually with each firm before one is chosen.

He said the consultant would then provide a tentative square footage and budget based on specifications set forth by the public property committee. Building projects could be done all at once or in phases, a decision to be made after initial plans and budgets are discussed.

Supervisor Randy Young expressed concern about gathering all this information and material without first getting the consent of the county board.

“The funding for the project will come much later,” he said. “I know that in the past, the board has gone through the motions ...”

Kautza finished Young’s thought, noting that in the past, the proposals were drawn up, but the county board neglected to make a final decision on funding, so the plans never materialized.

Supervisor Kathy Luebke said it’s important the county remain transparent with taxpayers about all decisions.

Runion pleads not guilty to attacking family

Defendant waives his preliminary hearing, moves forward to trial

BY LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Zachary Runion, of the Town of Belle Plaine, opted to waive his right to a preliminary hearing and pleaded not guilty Dec. 11 to charges that include two counts of strangulation and suffocation, two counts of aggravated battery, two counts of felony intimidation of a victim and one count of false imprisonment.

With plans for this case to potentially go to trial, Shawano-Menominee County Circuit Court Judge Katherine Sloma scheduled a pre-trial hearing for 9 a.m. Feb. 5 as prosecutors seek to prove that he attacked his aunt and uncle shortly after the three of them moved from De Pere to Belle Plaine.

According to the criminal complaint, the Shawano County Sheriff's Department received a call from a woman at 2:27 a.m. Sept. 14 claiming that her nephew was attacking her husband, reporting that "everyone is bleeding, and someone is bleeding from the head."

When deputies arrived, Runion was found on the deck of the house smoking a cigarette. He was placed into custody without incident, according to the complaint.

Deputies found Runion's uncle in a bedroom unconscious with both eyes swollen shut, his nose broken and the side of his face fractured. The man's airway was obstructed by blood and fluid, according to the complaint. Blood stains were found on the carpet, walls and hallway floor. Holes had been punched in the wall, and there were broken food bowls, picture frames and mirrors.

The uncle, once regaining consciousness, told a deputy that Runion allegedly attacked his wife first and then him, according to the complaint.

The aunt told deputies that she, her husband and Runion had recently moved into the home in Belle Plaine from De Pere a few days before the incident, with most items still waiting to be unpacked. She claimed that arguing started around 8 p.m. Sept. 13 over whose stuff was going where. She also claimed everyone was drinking alcohol but said she saw Runion mixing in some prescription medication and later told deputies some of her prescriptions were missing.

Things turned physical shortly after midnight when the aunt had gone to her bedroom to get some sleep. She said Runion allegedly came into her bedroom and began hitting her and pushing her around. Runion allegedly shoved her into a closet and would not allow her to leave before turning the power off via the breaker box. The woman's cell phone was taken so she could not call for help, according to the complaint.

The aunt said Runion stopped his attack for a while, giving her time to shower and wash the blood off of her, but then Runion allegedly attacked her again. The uncle intervened, according to the complaint, and that's when Runion allegedly attacked him, repeatedly punching him in the face, even after he lost consciousness, until law enforcement arrived. The aunt had been able to retrieve her phone and called the sheriff's department after running outside.

One deputy reported in the criminal complaint that, while escorting Runion to a squad car, Runion allegedly told his aunt "I'll see you in 10 years." The deputy also reported that Runion claimed the cause of the assault "was kind of a build up."

Both victims were transported to ThedaCare Medical Center-Shawano. The woman was released later that day, while the man went to Green Bay and later Madison, where he had to undergo surgery for both of his eyes, with an emergency room official telling a deputy the man had a ruptured globe, according to the complaint.

If convicted, Runion faces a maximum of six years in prison for each of the strangulation counts and the false imprisonment charge, 15 years for each of the aggravated battery counts and 10 years for each of the intimidation counts.

First round of bonds issued for school referendum projects

In-house meetings with Shawano staff already underway

BY KEVIN PASSON
Editor-in-Chief

Shawano School District officials aren't wasting any time in moving forward after voters agreed in November to a $51.23 million building project.

School board members agreed Dec. 9 to the issuance of $14 million in bonds to get the ball rolling.

Appearing by video conference, Erik Kass, a director, public finance, with PMA Securities LLC, said that morning's bond sale drew five bidders, with Robert W. Baird and Co. providing the best interest rate of 3.84% for the 20-year issue.

The district will get the money Dec. 30, with the first principal and interest payment of $3.4 million scheduled for March. After that, the money will be invested and will most likely be the last money spent on the project.

Kass said this is allowable because the borrowing is less than $15 million, which will not be the case with the two future bond issuances.

"The second two issues are still a little bit up in the air," Kass said. "Bryan (Kadlec, director of finance, business and operations with the school district) and I have begun discussions where we're going to start aligning some of those to the draw schedule that we just recently received."

Kass said the additional interest earned on the first set of bonds can be used for one of two purposes. It can be for eligible expenses that are part of the project (for example, furniture upgrades or higher construction costs due to inflation) or it can be used for principal and interest payments to decrease the levy for those purposes in any given year.

Kass also noted the AA3 bond rating for this issue and said there probably isn't much to be done to improve that.

"The first (way for an upgrade) is economic expansion that would raise resident income," he said. "Certainly something that's not necessarily in control for the school board but definitely on the radar for the credit agency."

The available fund balance ratio was also a factor.

"An available fund balance ratio of 45% (could increase the rating)," he said. "That's extremely high, but if you continue to maintain the existing reserves and continue to have positive additions to the fund balance — if you get to that level — that could lead to an upgrade."

Enrollment stabilization can also help.

Downgrades would also be possible if the available fund balance ratio dips to less than 20% or if the district borrows more money than already anticipated.

In a related matter, Superintendent Kurt Krizan, said the administration held the first of 50 planned meetings with different staff groups regarding the building plans. That meeting was held earlier that day.

In addition to marketing and communications regarding the project, officials are also working on the school calendars for 2025-26 and 2026-27 that are expected to be adjusted in conjunction with projects that will be underway in the summer of 2026.

"The agenda that we had tonight was to bring representatives from all four of the buildings together to talk about how this is all going to work moving forward, what work has been done so far and what's going to be the next steps," Krizan said.

Next is to meet with staff from each building separately to go through the scope of the projects.

Meetings with high school departments will follow, as some maintenance projects will be let out for bids in February.

Knights of Columbus give to nonprofits

The Knights of Columbus Bishop Fox Council 2836 spread a little holiday cheer just before Christmas.

Members of the Shawano chapter presented checks to Safe Haven Domestic Abuse Support Center in Shawano, Shawano Area Food Pantry and Resource Center (SAFARC) and Shawano Area Matthew 25 (SAM25) for its program to help the homeless of Shawano.

Safe Haven received $250 for the services it offers. SAFARC received $250 for needs for the food pantry to assist those who use its services. SAM25, which recently received 135 coats from the Coats for Kids drive, received $400 for its programs, including a clinic, resource center and Clothes Closet.

The Knights of Columbus donated the money that came in from their fundraising campaign such as the porky pancake breakfast held twice annually in the basement of Sacred Heart Catholic Church. The next pancake event will be March 16, 2025.

Online survey now available to community members

Community health needs assessments enable local health care systems and public health departments to learn more about the true needs community members are facing. The assessments are traditionally done every three years and provide a roadmap for health organizations to focus their resources and talents on the greatest needs of communities. This year, partners are working together to gather community data and insights through a well-being survey.

The survey takes about 10 minutes to complete. Anyone 18 or older living in Shawano County is asked to take the survey between now and Jan. 17. To access the survey, visit surveymonkey.com/r/RZDZKSB. The answers will help shape future community health plans, which can help improve a person's life and make communities a better place to live. "The goals of this well-being survey are to identify trends in well-being and to learn how local not-for-profit hospitals, public health agencies, and other partners could make the lives of people in our communities better," said Paula Morgen, ThedaCare director of community health improvement. "Well-being is a person's perception of to what extent they are living their best possible life. Are they able to do the things they want to do? Do they feel safe in their community? Do they have the social supports needed for both physical and mental well-being?" In past surveys, issues like mental health, substance abuse, early childhood needs and social needs, such as food insecurity and transportation, came to the forefront. "The information we gather will help us determine where we should focus our resources and energy to get upstream of critical health challenges in our communities," she said. "It will help us to better understand what community health improvement strategies we can provide for populations who might need additional support." Numerous local non-profit organizations are involved.

Final-four voting reforms kept in Alaska

Another push planned in Wisconsin

By PETER CAMERON
The Badger Project

By the tightest of margins, the only state in the U.S. that uses a final-four voting system decided to keep it. By fewer than 800 votes, or about 0.25% of all voters in the state, Alaska elected to continue using the innovative voting system, which proponents say promotes compromise, action and civility in politics. Opponents say the system is too complicated and confusing for voters to understand. An attempt to enact a similar system in Wisconsin is being planned again, though it faces a steep climb in the state legislature in the next couple years. Final-four or final-five voting eliminates partisan primary elections — no more ballots for only Democratic or Republican candidates. Instead, it requires all candidates from all parties to run on the same "jungle primary" ballot. All voters then select their one favorite candidate from the ballot.

The top four or five vote winners from that jungle primary move on to the general election, where voters rank the candidates first up through last. It's a process known as ranked-choice voting. If one candidate earns a majority after the first-choice votes are counted, then that candidate wins, just as it works now. If no candidate gets a majority after the first count, the last-place candidate is removed from the race. Voters who made that candidate their original top choice then have their votes distributed to their second choice. The process continues in a series of instant run-offs until one candidate has a majority of the vote. Proponents generally include centrists, moderates and independents. Opponents often include the political parties themselves, which stand to lose influence in the system. Alaska State Senate Majority Leader Cathy Giessel, a Republican from Anchorage, traveled to Wisconsin earlier this year to promote final-five voting at a public hearing at the state capitol. "It has very much changed how governing is occurring in the (Alaska) Senate," Giessel said of final-four voting at the hearing in Wisconsin. "We're getting a lot done." Most elections across the country are decided before the majority of voters get a chance to have their say, said Sara Eskrich, executive director of Democracy Found, a Wisconsin-based organization that advocates for final-five voting. Because only one political party is dominant in many states and districts, most elections are decided in the partisan primary. That system allows the most extreme voters — the few who show up to vote in partisan primaries — to choose many elected officials. And those elected officials fear offending that group of extreme voters, who usually just want to see their side win or make the other side lose, rather than compromise and take action, Eskrich noted. Final-Five Voting aims to fix that. Last year, a bipartisan group of five state legislators — three Republicans and two Democrats — co-authored a bill that would have launched final-five voting in Wisconsin for congressional elections only. It didn't move far in the Republican-controlled legislature. State Sen. Jeff Smith, D-Eau Claire, one of the five, said, "I can't speak for the others, but I absolutely plan to reintroduce final-five." His Republican co-authors are less enthusiastic. Aides for state Reps. Tony Kurtz from Waukegan in Juneau County and Ron Tusler of Menasha in the Fox Valley said neither has plans to introduce the bill again. Tusler "thought it could be a good idea to try something different so that voters would have more than two viable options to choose from," his staffer, Joe Romenesko, wrote in an email. "It's an idea to try to decrease partisanship (and party politics)," he continued. "Fear of losing support from voters often prevents legislators from being able to come to an agreement. Ron thought final-five could help with that significantly. "That being said, the appetite for it does not seem to be there at the moment." Other insiders agree. "I don't know if there's going to be much appetite for electoral reform in the 2025-26 legislative session," Eskrich said. Democrats might be more open to the reforms than Republicans but won't be able to reclaim majorities in the Wisconsin State Legislature until after the 2026 elections, at the very earliest. Across the country, and despite a lot of financial backing that paid for a promotional advertising blitz, results for voting reformers were mixed to bad in the 2024 election. Measures to enact ranked choice voting or jungle primaries lost on almost every statewide ballot. Nevada voters, who had passed the enactment of final-five vote once in 2022, failed to pass it a second time in the 2024 election, as required by the state to change its constitution. "It seems like people were just skeptical. It wasn't that they didn't like it, it's that they weren't sure. And when you're not sure, you vote no," Eskrich said. "But people are committed to the long-term. I don't think the movement goes away." Voting reformers did score some major victories in 2024. Along with Alaska, Washington, D.C. and Oak Park, Illinois, approved ranked-choice voting. Washington, D.C. also enacted semi-open primaries, meaning voters no longer need to be registered with a political party to vote in its primary election. Versions of ranked-choice voting exist in Maine's federal elections and in about 50 counties and cities, including New York City, San Francisco and Minneapolis. Unlike in some states, in which advocates can get voting changes put on ballots and thus brought directly to voters, cities in Wisconsin cannot pass voting reforms without an exemption from the state legislature, Eskrich noted.

The Badger Project is a nonpartisan, citizen-supported journalism nonprofit in Wisconsin.

Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over enforcement campaign underway

The Wisconsin State Patrol is joined by law enforcement agencies throughout the state stepping up patrols to stop impaired driving during the Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over campaign, which is underway now through

New Year's Day. With the holiday season approaching and celebrations in the works, drivers are urged to plan for a sober ride ahead of time. Impairment can cloud judgement, so designate a sober driver prior to celebrating. If you are the designated driver, take that responsibility seriously. If you're hosting a gathering, consider how your guests will get home. Identify rideshare options before you get to the celebration. During the last holiday season (Dec. 15, 2023, through Jan. 1, 2024), there were 393 crashes involving impaired drivers in Wisconsin. Those incidents killed 12 people and injured 197 others. The Wisconsin State Patrol works to assist local law enforcement agencies with obtaining specialty training to detect impairment and get dangerous drivers off the road. More than 7,500 officers in Wisconsin are trained in Advanced Roadside Impaired Driving Enforcement, and the state has among the most Drug Recognition Experts (DRE) in the nation, with nearly 400 officers who have completed DRE training. Impaired driving has many consequences for a driver in addition to the potential for a crash.

ACTION: Notice of Availability of an Environmental Assessment

SUMMARY: Notice is hereby given that RD, as required by the National Environmental Policy Act, is issuing an environmental assessment (EA) in connection with possible impacts related to a project proposed by Krueger Riverside Project LLC for Krueger Dairy and Krueger Dairy Site 2 (Riverside) Farms, in the Town of Richmond, Shawano County, WI. The proposal is for the construction of a renewable natural gas (RNG) facility, including agricultural anaerobic digesters and buildings to house renewable natural gas (RNG) equipment and an underground pipeline to transport generated RNG to an interstate pipeline. Krueger Riverside Project LLC has applied to RD for funding of the proposal.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION: To obtain copies of the EA, or for further information, contact: Scott A. Schatschneider, State Environmental Coordinator, 5417 Clem's Way, Stevens Point WI 54482, 715-899-0332, scott.schatschneider@usda.gov. The EA is also available for public review at Shawano County Library – Shawano Branch: 128 South Sawyer Street, Shawano, WI 54166.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Krueger Farm: Krueger Riverside Project LLC proposes to construct two anaerobic digester tanks, hydrolysis, Renewable Natural Gas (RNG) process equipment, and operations buildings with an access road. A sand separation building is proposed at the Krueger Dairy to beneficially reuse sand entering the system from bedding materials at the farm. The total footprint area for Krueger Farm is approximately 9 acres in size and is located at W8371 Oak Ave Shawano (Shawano County). Riverside Farm: Krueger Riverside Project LLC proposes to construct one anaerobic digester tank, hydrolysis tank, RNG process equipment and operations building with an access road. This would permanently impact approximately 7.5 acres of land. The total footprint area for Riverside Farm is approximately 7.5 acres and is located at N6446 Hickory Road Shawano (Shawano County). Transmission line: Krueger Riverside Project LLC proposes to construct an approximately 3-mile-long transmission line. A transmission line is needed to distribute RNG generated at the two farm locations to a proposed meter station for distribution. The transmission line would be installed through primarily open trench and some horizontal directional drilling to avoid/minimize wetland impacts. The work between the two farm locations and the transmission line consists of Sec.21,T27N,R15E & Sec.28,T27N,R15E & Sec.20,T27N,E15E & Sec.27,T27N,R15E & Sec.17,T27N,R15E

Burns McDonnell, an environmental consultant, prepared an environmental assessment for RD that describes the project, assesses the proposed project's environmental impacts, and summarizes as applicable any mitigation measures used to minimize environmental effects.

RD has conducted an independent evaluation of the environmental assessment and believes that it accurately assesses the impacts of the proposed project. No significant impacts are expected as a result of the construction of the project.

Questions and comments should be sent to RD at the address provided. RD will accept questions and comments on the environmental assessment for 14 days from the date of publication of this notice.

Any final action by RD related to the proposed project will be subject to, and contingent upon, compliance with all relevant Federal environmental laws and regulations and completion of environmental review procedures as prescribed by 7 CFR Part 1970, Environmental Policies and Procedures.

Gift cards favored tool for fraudsters

Gift cards are a convenient way to celebrate special occasions, but they are also a favored tool for fraudsters.

When someone asks you to pay for a product, service or debt with a gift card, it's a major red flag for fraud.

Fraudsters often pressure victims to purchase gift cards, claiming it's the quickest way to settle a debt, pay a fine or avoid legal trouble. Once you share the card numbers and PIN, the scammer drains the funds, and recovering the money becomes nearly impossible.

"I was standing in line at a local retailer behind someone who was requesting a very large amount of their gift cards to make a payment," said Chris Mueller, vice president and compliance officer at Forward Bank. "The service desk staff did their best to persuade them not to send out the cards, and I did my best to help them get this across. It's not easy to stop this from happening."

One common scam is the "imposter scam," where fraudsters pretend to be someone you trust — a government official, family member or even a tech support representative. They claim an urgent situation, such as unpaid taxes or a loved one in need, then demand immediate payment through gift cards.

According to the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), scammers most commonly requested cards from major retailers like Target, Amazon and Google Play.

"Many of these scams are targeting our senior population," said Natalyn Jannene, assistant vice president of marketing at AbbyBank. "They are playing on an individual's love for their family members or lack of confidence in technology issues. Family can pull together and watch out for each other to prevent the scam itself or the gift cards from being sent."

If anyone asks for payment via gift cards, it's almost certainly a scam. Report such instances to the FTC immediately and contact the retailer to see if they can freeze the card's funds before they're used. Be skeptical of urgent requests involving gift cards, and always double-check with trusted sources.

Other common scams occurring throughout the year are tech support scams. These could lead to gift cards being requested as payment.

If a caller says your computer has a problem, hang up. A tech support call you don't expect is a scam — even if the number is local or looks legitimate. These scammers use fake caller ID information to look like local businesses or trusted companies.

If you get a pop-up message on your device to call tech support, ignore it. Some pop-up messages about computer issues are legitimate, but do not call a number or click on a link that appears in a pop-up message warning you of a computer problem.

"By raising awareness, we can help prevent more people from falling victim to this growing form of fraud," said Andrew Henning, Northwestern Bank. "Stay informed, stay vigilant, and protect your money."

For more information on how to avoid scams, visit the Federal Trade Commission's Consumer Protection website (<https://www.consumer.ftc.gov>).

FARM LIFE FROM A FARM WIFE

Traditions abound during Christmas season

Rising early I have a morning routine that suits my getting-up-before-the-crack-of-dawn-gets-pants-on farming background. Drinking a glass of water to hydrate after the night, I don warm clothes and head outside to fire up.

In our house we have a rule — the first one up fires up. This farmer man of mine, for years too numerous to count, arose every morning at 3:30 a.m. to trek out to the barn to begin yet another day of chores. Now that we have animals on the farm that need only feeding and cleaning, my husband gets the luxury of sleeping in.

All this being said — I'm usually the first one up.

Starting my coffee, I head to the back room for stretching exercises, trying to accommodate an aging body that bucks these stretches every chance it gets. That done, I hydrate with yet another eight ounces before pouring a hot cup of coffee and heading to my quiet corner, where I meet with Jesus for our morning talk/listen/read session. He's very detailed, guiding me specifically as I meditate on his word.

With our tree up, lamps are hushed for a time as I sip my coffee and sit with the gentle lights of Christmas. One morning after inviting him in, as time went by I noticed he produced a magnificent sunrise. The morning quietly yawning its way in, the season's dawn was especially lovely as it reflected the lights of the tree.

Sitting just before daybreak with only the tree lights on is just one of many Christmas traditions held dear to me through the years. My mind took an adventure down memory lane, pausing at high school.

Playing clarinet for my entire school career, I learned much from Larry Schuster. He was the greatest, and talented. Grabbing any one of our instruments and with a flick of his thumb to clear the reed, as an example, played the measure to perfection. His no-nonsense persona as he taught was clear. As a result we didn't mess around and as a by-product, had tons of fun while we learned.

My fondest memories were the Christmas programs we put on with everyone slicked up in their concert dress and posture and ready to go as a result of endless, productive rehearsals. My favorite? "Sleigh Ride." I loved the expertise of the percussionists as they reproduced a horse's clop-clop-clopping.

With all the traditions of Christmas, attending church is at the top of my memory bank. Way back when I was a kid going to St. John's in Marion, we had candlelight services where all lights were out save for the flickering candles held by each one, young and old, while we sang "Silent Night." So tender to my heart.

Watching our own little ones open our gifts to them was better than opening anything I was given. When all three were snug in their beds on Christmas Eve, my husband and I went out to our porch room and hauled Dawn comes to the Reminger home with the lights from the Christmas tree offering a gentle glow before the sun comes up.

in anything that needed to be assembled or tucked under the tree, giggling quietly with each other (or arguing quietly, depending on the difficulty of assembly — just keeping it real here) so no little body would wake up.

One year during the church's Christmas program, our middle one dressed the part and sang "Little Drummer Boy" as he made his way down the aisle, tapping on a snare drum held by a string around his neck. He could not carry a tune — it was brutal. He did it.

My husband recalls serving at Midnight Mass back in the day when he was a small boy. They wore black garments with white vestment overlays and a big red bow fastened around their necks. They'd go up to the manger after and gaze in wonder at the nativity set — the same one there to this day, which is at least 80 years old.

My husband and I were brought up with a knowledge of the reason we celebrate Christmas, and we instilled that while raising our own family. Jesus had a birthday. That's why we rejoice.

God left everything comfortable, put skin on and came to earth — a barn destination — on a mission to save his beloved children from certain death. During creation, he created everything for us and had a right relationship with humans. Then Adam chose sin. Because God is a loving God, he gives us a choice, whether to follow our way or his way.

God in his infinite agape love, fashioned a way back to him through his Son. He conquered death by rising on the third day and has gone on ahead of us, seated again at the right hand of the Father. He not only saved me from death but showed me how to live. The blood of Jesus makes me so clean I squeak. His gift of everlasting life is offered to all. It's a choice.

Christmas traditions are heartwarming, but the reason for this blessed season is the best tradition of all.

("And what is God's living message? It is the revelation of faith for salvation, which is the message that we preach. For if you publicly declare with your mouth that Jesus is Lord and believe in your heart that God raised Him from the dead, you will experience salvation." Romans 10:9, Passion Translation)

Kay Reminger was born and raised on a dairy farm, and she married her high school sweetheart, who happened to farm for a living in Leopold. Writing for quite a few years, she remains focused on the blessings of living the ups and downs of rural life from a farm wife's perspective.

Milkweed designated as Perennial of the Year

As the 2024 gardening season winds down, preparations are already made for a vibrant, fun and festive 2025.

Several gardening organizations and plant marketing agencies have announced Plants of the Year for 2025, as well as hot gardening trends and more.

Today, we'll talk about one of the perennial plants of the year for 2025.

The National Garden Bureau, in its annual showcase of plants of the year, has selected the milkweed family as its chosen featured perennial.

That's right, it's the Year of the Milkweed, according to the bureau.

Rather than selecting just one variety, the group has chosen to spotlight the entire milkweed family, including all of those native to our area.

Here in our area, a number of native milkweed species grow well. This group of perennial native plants is highly prized by gardeners and property owners for the benefits it provides, most notably for monarch butterflies.

Monarchs use milkweeds as the host plant for their caterpillars. The only plants monarch caterpillars will feed upon are members of the milkweed family.

Orange milkweed, often sold commercially as "butterfly weed," grows well here in our area, especially in areas with sandy soil. This is a nice, compact and well-behaved milkweed species featuring bright, neon orange flowers.

Swamp milkweed, sometimes called red milkweed, grows best in moist soils, especially along area waterways. It is quite prevalent at areas such as Navarino Wildlife Area, on the many flowages. Its beautiful, two-toned blooms in light and dark pink, are prized by just about every pollinator species.

Common milkweed is well known by most in our area for its large, ball-shaped bloom clusters, heavily fragrance and large, broad leaves. For smaller landscaped areas, common milkweed can be a bit aggressive and needs to be kept in check.

However, for those who have plenty of space to let it spread, it is a wonderful plant, attracting monarchs, bumblebees, hummingbirds and many more.

In deciduous woodlands,

Native orange milkweed is one of the most beautiful members of the milkweed family in glowing, neon orange.

ROB ZIMMER

poke milkweed is found. This is the only milkweed that grows well in the shade. Its unique, green and white fireworks blooms are elegant in the shade.

Many other milkweed species can be found throughout the area, as well.

Enjoy exploring the many different varieties of plants in this family as the Year of the Milkweed gets underway in 2025.

Thanksgiving rekindles memories of food storage counting

At Hilrose Dairy Farm in Sherwood back in the 1950s, the Christmas holidays began in earnest the day after Thanksgiving.

I loved that time of year. The harvest was over; life took on a slower pace. The coal and wood room that would keep the furnace going was filled to the brim. Food to carry us through winter was preserved and stored.

The house was clean from top to bottom. But that didn't mean there wasn't work to do.

My mother's philosophy was that as long as the work had to be done, why not try to make it fun? That made sense to me. In fact, that attitude is deeply embedded in my psyche. As a teenager, I tweaked it a little by adding that if you can't make work fun, you should at least try to learn something from it.

Case in point. It was the Friday after Turkey Day in 1952 when one of those no-fun tasks I was assigned in my seventh year of life on earth became a perfect opportunity to practice my arithmetic and writing skills. On a much-anticipated day off from school, I planned to spend the afternoon reading Little Golden picture books, playing with my nun doll and scanning the Sears catalog toy section to start my Christmas wish list.

Kathleen Marsh
Columnist

I was just settling in when my mother directed me to fetch a pencil and tablet and follow her down to the basement. I moaned and groaned, loathing even the thought of going down there. But I had learned years earlier that saying no to Mom was not an option.

In the winter months, our basement was dark but dry, staying slightly above freezing. In other words, it was the perfect place to store perishable foodstuffs. By the time I reached my teens, I thought it would have been the perfect place to film an Alfred Hitchcock horror film. I'm convinced that basement is the reason why I'm severely claustrophobic.

As I cautiously descended the old cement stairway, I forced my short chubby legs to navigate the steps in order to stay right behind my mother. When we reached the landing, Mom explained our mission. We were going to compile a list of all the food stored down there. She would be the counter; I would be the recorder.

As we tallied the sausages, hams and sides of bacon hanging from hooks in the ceiling, their sweet smokehouse smell conveyed delicious promise. For some reason, it reminded me of a recent visit to Pfund's Cheese Factory where Dad hauled his milk. But this had been a special trip to check our rented freezer locker. After inspecting the large compartment bursting with freezer-wrapped packages of beef, pork and chicken, Dad locked the frosty door and pocketed his key. I was all smiles when he bought a gallon of butter pecan ice cream before heading home.

My attention was drawn back to the present when my nose puckered. Mom was digging around with a large fork in two crocks that held Dad's famous sauerkraut. Yuk! How could anybody eat that? Moving on, she checked a nearby medium-size crock that held carrots packed in sand, then several smaller ones containing rendered lard.

Lastly, she examined the burlap sacks of potatoes, rutabagas and apples stacked high on the sidewall. Seeing no signs of spoilage, she paused while I catalogued each entry.

Mom then opened the door to one of two floor-to-ceiling cupboards. Its shelves held rows and rows of vegetables, packed and pressure-cooked in Mason jars. There were green and yellow beans, peas, sweet corn, beets and pickles; all grown in our half-acre garden and preserved over the summer.

The other cupboard contained fruit: strawberries and raspberries picked in our patches; applesauce from fruit grown in our orchard; cherries picked on our annual outing to Door County. I volunteered to count my favorites: peaches and pears purchased in crates at Mueller's Grocery Store a half-block away. All were beautifully "put up" in a light sugar syrup. After I'd recorded everything, we went back upstairs to start supper. I'm not sure why that memory lingers. Was it because seeing all that food made me feel safe, that I had what is now called food security? Was it because I'd helped with the gardening, gathering and canning and felt pride in accomplishment? Was it because Mom made me feel grown up by trusting me with an important job?

I think it's all that, and something more important. Helping her made me feel needed, doing my part to ensure we had enough food to see us through to spring. The satisfaction in knowing that I was contributing was just as important as the satisfaction from eating all the meals Mom would serve that winter. How delicious is that?

Kathleen Marsh is a lifelong educator, writer and community advocate. She has published eight books, four on the history of Townsend, where she and husband Jon are happily retired on the beautiful Townsend Flowage.

Shop on Main, chamber planning visit from Santa

The Shop on Main and the Oconto Area Chamber of Commerce is inviting families to join the festive fun at its Santa's Visit event Dec. 21 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

One of Santa's jolly helpers will greet visitors at The Shop on Main, 821 Main St., Oconto, with a special number, ensuring everyone gets their turn to meet the one and only Santa Claus. In partnership with the chamber, families can enjoy a hands-on holiday experience with free make-and-take crafts at the chamber's festive craft station.

As an extra treat, every child will receive a free LED Christmas Wand, perfect for lighting up the season. Supplies are limited. "This event is all about spreading joy and creating lasting memories for families in our community," said Samantha Routheau, chamber president. "From meeting Santa to the excitement of crafting and giveaways, it's a perfect way to celebrate the season together." For information, contact ocontoareachamberofcommerce@gmail.com or call 920-604-0074.

Cowden takes first place in round-robin wrestling format

BY NEW MEDIA STAFF

Brillion, the site of a Dec. 13 girls wrestling tournament, was one of the first such tournaments when it was held four years ago. There were 23 participants that year; on Dec. 13, there were 171.

Among the wrestlers were 18 from Shawano Community High School.

Jacey Cowden placed first in a four-person round robin bracket.

Adalyn Barkley and Vivian Waldburger each place third in their weight divisions. Lily Tomas placed fourth, and Jenna Moede was fifth.

"I was proud of the fight they all had. Even though the girls are not placing, they are doing some really good things and are improving with each match," coach Mike Homan said. "Adalyn and Vivian continue to work hard, and that hard work has paid off. They both ran into some very stiff competition on Friday night. This was Jacey's first week of wrestling and she did a great job winning her four-person bracket."

Wittenberg-Birnamwood

Brooke Hoffman captured first place at 185 pounds to score 26 points for the Chargers.

Overall, the team placed 14th with 44 points.

Andrea Powell took sixth place scoring 12 points for the team. Brendan Resch and Faith Weso each scored three points for the team.

Dec. 12

Shawano's girls wrestling team hosted Menasha and Pulaski, coming up short in both matches.

Menasha 48, Shawano 16

Shawano wrestlers getting wins were Kendall Knope, Jozlyn Bocker and Vivian Waldburger.

"The girls wrestled tough and just came up short," coach Mike Homan said. "Kendall has been doing a great job this season, and she is learning quick."

Knope pinned Bryn Keberlein in 30 seconds.

Waldburger finished on top with an 8-0 major decision.

"Vivian controlled the match from the start and wrestled well," Homan said.

Pulaski 33, Shawano 30

Despite the team losing by three points, Shawano had several wins. They were from Knope, Bocker, Jenna Moede, Maddie Miller and Lily Tomas.

Bocker had a quick pin in 23 seconds.

"She is aggressive, and it really paid off in this match," Homan said.

Tomas secured a pin in 1:41.

"There were some other tight matches that we just came out on the other end of," Homan said. "The girls are working hard to get better and will continue that."

Wittenberg-Birnamwood's Brooke Hoffman won first place in the 185-pound weight division at a tournament in Brillion on Dec. 13. CONTRIBUTED

Shawano Community High School junior Leah Nordin has broken the girls basketball all-time scoring record of 1,168 points, which was held by Christi Burden since 1989. A recognition ceremony was held at the Dec. 13 game against Xavier. Nordin still has the rest of this season and all of next year to continue scoring. CONTRIBUTED

Nordin breaks all-time scoring record in Shawano

BY NEW MEDIA STAFF

Shawano Community High School junior Leah Nordin is the new all-time scoring leader for girls basketball.

Last week, she topped the record of 1,168 points, which was held by Christi Burden since 1989.

"She is very competitive and works on her skills year-round," coach Ryan Koenig said. "It's been a pleasure to coach her and see her development through our Hoops Wisconsin program in third grade until now."

A special recognition ceremony was held the

Dec. 13 home game against Xavier, which Shawano won 56-43.

Nordin also announced her commitment to Wisconsin, which beat out four other teams in her final five, Marquette, Butler, Illinois State and Belmont.

The scoring record is another of many accomplishments for the 6-foot-2 guard and forward.

As a sophomore in the 2023-24 school year, she was ranked third among 2026 graduates by Prep Hoops Wisconsin and fourth by the Wisconsin Junior All-Stars.

She was named to the WIAA second team all-state and was a unanimous selection to the Bay Conference first-team all-conference.

Nordin was named to the Wisconsin Basketball Coaches Association (WBCA) Division 2 all-state team as a sophomore and the academic all-state team as a freshman and sophomore.

She led the Bay Conference in scoring both of her seasons.

In her freshman year, she was awarded honorable mention status all-state, was named to the Bay Conference first team all-conference, was co-defensive player of the year, earned honorable mention status by the WBCA Division 2 and led the Bay Conference in points per game, rebounds per game and steals per game. Nordin has the SCHS records for the most rebounds in a season (228), most steals in a season (91), most points in a game (40) and most points in a season (554 in her sophomore year, which broke the record of 477 she set in her freshman year).

"We are happy for her accomplishments as an individual and teammate and look forward to many more in her last two seasons," Koenig said.

Shawano 56, Xavier 43

In a night that focused a lot of attention on star player Leah Nordin, the junior stayed true to lead the Hawks to a 56-43 win over Xavier.

Nordin led Shawano with 23 points. Ella Stubbier, Trinity Popelka and Anna Dreier each scored eight.

Wittenberg-Birnamwood 66, Shiocton 29

Melaina Granquist led the Chargers with 16 points and 11 rebounds in a 66-29 win over Shiocton.

"I'm very proud of this group tonight," coach Nick Mechelke said. "We played great defensively and kept extending our lead. My shoutout goes to Kylee Beversdorf tonight. She played extremely great defensive. She had that lockdown mentality on their best shooter."

Beversdorf contributed seven rebounds, an assist and three steals. Rory Salvesen was the assist leader with six, while Harper Rogowski led with four steals.

Oneida Nation 66, Marion/Tigerton 20

Heidi Krueger's eight points led Marion/Tigerton in their 66-20 loss to Oneida Nation.

The hosts were out-matched throughout the night, trailing 32-9 at the half and then outscored 34-11 after the break.

Shawano encounters tough day on the mats

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

Shawano’s boys wrestlers competed in Bay Port on Dec. 14 in one of its largest tournaments of the year.

“It was a tough day of wrestling with many great wrestlers at this tournament,” coach Mike Homan said.

There were 32 teams competing at the tournament.

Bright spots for the Hawks included a 12th-place finish by Kian Morstad, Kody Popelka placed 13th, and Austin Stickney placed 14th.

After a Dec. 19 match in West De Pere, Shawano will host multiple schools at this weekend’s Holiday Classic.

Dec. 12

Shawano hosted Menasha for a conference dual and then took on Pulaski in a nonconference matchup.

Shawano 39, Menasha 33

Shawano started the dual at 285 pounds, then picked up forfeits at 113, 120 and 126.

The Hawks’ first win was at 132 by Dane Hokie-wicz with a fall in 3:42.

Shawano lost at 138 and 144 but got back on the board at 150 with a fall by Kody Popelka in 2:54.

“Dane and Kody wrestled great matches that were back and forth,” coach Mike Homan said.

The Hawks were up 25-16 at halftime, and a dominant second half led to the 32-point victory.

Wittenberg-Birnamwood 69, Weyauwega-Fremont 55

Rory Salvesen scored 26 points and Melaina Granquist added 21 as Wittenberg-Birnamwood topped Weyauwega-Fremont 69-55.

“We shot very well tonight from the floor, just struggled defensively tonight,” coach Nick Mechelke said. “I was very proud of how well Melaina (Granquist) played tonight on both sides of the floor.”

The Chargers led by seven at halftime and added another seven to their margin of victory in the second half.

Harper Rogowski scored 12 points for Wittenberg-Birnamwood. Granquist had four 3-pointers, while Salvesen connected on three of them.

Granquist led with 12 rebounds. Salvesen had seven assists, and Rogowski had five steals.

Pulaski 44, New London 31

A strong second half powered the Red Raiders to a 44-31 win over New London.

Pulaski was trailing by a point at halftime but used a 22-8 second half to collect its second win of the season.

Olivia Sprangers led Pulaski with 15 points, while Lydia Gwidt scored 11.

Dickman scores six goals against Medford

Dec. 12
Shawano/Bonduel 2, Stevens Point Pacelli 1
Blake Swedberg's goal halfway through the third period was the game winner as Shawano/Bonduel topped the Stevens Point Pacelli Cardinals 2-1.
Blake Knope kicked off the scoring with a power play goal at 12:01 in the first period. Jeremy Helmuth and Cameron Schroeder assisted.
The Cardinals tied the game at 16:47 in the second period, which is where it stayed until Swedberg's goal with help from Grace Lammers.

Shawano/Bonduel had 35 shots on goal compared to Pacelli's 29. Kaiden Thornborrow recorded 28 saves.
Antigo 7, Medford 3
It was Owen Dickman's night as he scored six goals in Antigo's 7-3 win over Medford.
He started the scoring out 54 seconds into the first period with an even strength goal. At 4:50, Liam Burt scored with a Dickman assisting to put Antigo up 2-0. Medford scored about four minutes later to close out the first-period scores.

Dickman, with assists by Burt and Alex Brittenham, scored at 15:17 in the second period to put Antigo on top 3-1.
That goal late in the second opened the floodgates for Dickman who scored four times in fewer than five minutes in the third period.

Burt and Brittenham assisted on the even strength goal at 2:31. Brittenham helped again at 2:53. At 6:32, Dickman scored again, with help from Carson Rhode. Finally, at 7:02, Rhode and Brittenham assisted Dickman on his sixth goal.
Medford scored twice after that.
Richie Veriha had 24 saves for Antigo, while Jacob Doyle had 18 for Medford.

Dec. 10
Waupaca 6, Shawano/Bonduel 3
The Shawano/Bonduel boys hockey team hung close to Waupaca through most of the first two periods, but a flurry of three goals at the end of the second period and in the third period sealed a 6-3 win for the Comets.
The teams were close in overall shots on goal, with Waupaca having 36 and Shawano/Bonduel at 31. Kaiden Thornborrow had 30 saves for Shawano/Bonduel.

Shawano/Bonduel was down 2-0 when Waylon Snider scored with a Blake Swedberg assist at 6:52. Waupaca got the goal back two minutes later, but a goal Gavin Hundt goal (with a Michael Dillenburg assist) at 16:05 made it 3-2 Waupaca's favor as the period ended.
Dillenburg assisted Max Huntington on a goal at 2:28 in the second period to tie the score at 3-3.

"It was huge that they both ended up securing falls."
Next, Shawano sent freshman Kian Morstad out at 157, and he secured a fall in 1:55.
"Kian has been doing such a good job for us on the mat," Homan said. "He always moves forward and continues to attack his opponents. There is a lot to be learned from the way Kian wrestles."

At 165, Marcus Brezgel won 9-5 in a tough back-and-forth match. Shawano dropped the final three matches, but the damage had already been done, and the Hawks managed to escape with a win.

"The kids wrestled hard, but we have a lot of work to do to get ready for the rest of the season," Homan said.

Pulaski 64, Shawano 14
Shawano was simply outmatched when it came to wrestling Pulaski.
"We had some good matches but were not able to gain any footing after the first few matches," Homan said.

Cash Panske started Shawano off well by earning a technical fall with a score of 18-3 at 113.
"Cash has been doing a good job this season, and we look for him to keep it going," Homan said.

Dylan Gartner won his match 6-4. He gave up an early takedown but came back with two takedowns of his own and controlled the last 30 seconds of the match to earn the win.
Kian Morstad also won by fall in 2:00.

locked to the east of the high school.

“We would lose that opportunity, and we’re probably never going to get that back,” said board member Bobbi Lemerond.

Board member Tim Renard said rarely does a piece of property this size become available that is also contiguous to an existing school.

“It’s an extension of where we’re at,” he said. “There are so many advantages to us having that property that give us flexibility in the future as to what we want to do. It’s important to keep that in front of us.”

He acknowledged Vandeloo’s concerns about what would happen to the existing middle school land, but he said it’s hard to turn away from this opportunity.

Zingler said the 20 acres includes a house, barn and outbuildings as well as agriculture land and agricultural forest.

Board member Christine McKinnies, speaking as a resident and not a board member, read a letter from the other buyer, which Zingler earlier said was Dan Hartwig.

The Hartwig family intends to use it as a residence.

Shawano County adds 409th barn quilt

Earlier this year, the 409th barn quilt was added to the Shawano County barn quilt trail, the largest trail of 8-foot by 8-foot barn quilts in the United States.

The quilt, named Bridge Over Quiet Waters, is on display at Iron Bridge Farm, N3776 County Road C, near Pulaski, and is owned by Eugene and Lucille Przybylski.

It was sponsored by their children, Brian, Bruce, Brent and Brenda, and their spouses, Tina Przybylski and Jeff Tebon, and grandchildren, Dylan, Dawson and Madysen Przybylski and Chloe and Carter Tebon.

The quilt was painted and designed by the Shawano County barn quilt committee and was put on display by Leroy and Keenan Raddant, who work for Raddant Electric in Shawano.

The iron bridge, built in 1893 by Milwaukee Iron Works, was used to cross the Pensaukee River.

Loren Wilson owned the 87-acre farm when County Road C was widened to two lanes. Wilson purchased the bridge and moved it to make a driveway to the farm. Wilson sold the farm to a Thiel family, who sold it to Albert Reinke in 1956.

Eugene Przybylski, who was working at Proctor and Gamble, purchased the farm from Reinke in 1971 and initially purchased calves and a few hogs from local farmers to keep the barn warm.

to operate in ways that motor vehicles and other forms of transportation can’t, according to Hauer.

“You need a driver’s license to drive a golf cart down the road, but if you step out in a UTV (utility terrain vehicle), they don’t need a license,” he said.

“I think bringing our code up to what people already assume is a reality.”

Alderman Kevin Barkow noted the vote on ORVs operating on Shawano streets occurred prior to his coming on the council, and he was concerned then about there not being a licensing requirement for the vehicles.

“My big issue is, if you’re going to be on the road, you need a driver’s license,” Barkow said.

Rabideau noted that some ORV owners have had driver’s licenses suspended or revoked and are using their vehicles to circumvent the law, which he believes was never the intention of the DNR legalizing ORVs on paved roads. Bartlett Street, in particular, is a problem Przybylski decided to begin milking cows in addition to Eugene Przybylski continuing to work at the mill. The milk was originally transported in milk cans to Krakow Cheese Factory.

Eventually the cheese factory stopped accepting milk in cans and decided to go to milk haulers, which forced the Przybylskis to remodel the milk house by adding a bulk tank and increasing their milking herd.

Eugene and Lucille Przybylski decided to stop milking cows and transitioned to raising springing heifers and steers, which they continue to do today. Through the years, many changes occurred on the farm, including removing a pig barn, adding a machine shed, installing tin on the barn, adding a 16-foot 60-foot silo and Quonset shed. Iron Bridge Farm still continues to grow crops and raise animals.

Shawano Police Chief Bradley Rabideau, right, issues his recommendations for altering the city’s off-road vehicles law Dec. 11 in the council chambers at Shawano City Hall as Alderman Jim Hauer, who is pushing for the changes, listens.

area in the city, he said.

“Those are end-arounds, work-arounds,” Rabideau said. “We have an opportunity to change that with an ordinance — both at the city level and the county level.”

City Attorney Keith Steckbauer noted that Clintonville and New London already have rules similar to what the city and county are proposing, but at the time those two cities wanted to make changes, the city wasn’t interested in changing what it had.

“I’m of the opinion that, until someone tells us we can’t, you have the right to protect your people on the streets,” Steckbauer said.

Steckbauer noted that one of Rabideau’s recommendations is moot, specifically the open intoxicants in any vehicle, as the state already passed a law in June making that a crime.

Newcap grant to be used for revolving loan program

An Oconto-based company will kick off a new loan program from funds received from a U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) grant.

A $323,263 Household Water and Well System grant will be used by Newcap Inc. to establish a revolving loan program for homeowners in Florence, Forest, Langlade, Marinette, Menominee, Oconto, Oneida, Shawano and Vilas counties, including six tribal nations.

“These projects are just a few of many examples of how the Rural Partners Network has helped strengthen community ties so underserved rural communities and families in Wisconsin can access the resources they need now and into the future,” said Julie Lassa, Rural Development Wisconsin state director. “These projects will help keep rural and tribal communities in Wisconsin thriving for generations to come.”

Nationally, USDA awarded more than $194 million in grants and loans to support 118 projects that will help rural and tribal communities address immediate needs and create sustainable economic growth. Many of these projects are the direct result of collaboration between community networks and federal staff living and working in the communities.

FAIL SAFE: PACKERS RUN OVER SEATTLE

GREEN BAY IMPROVES TO 10-4 WITH A WIRE-TO-WIRE, 30-13 DRUBBING OF INFAMOUS FOE

BY LUKE REIMER
Green & Gold Express

The Green Bay Packers completed the season sweep over the NFC West with a 30-13 win against the Seattle Seahawks on Dec. 15 in Seattle.

With four wins over the NFC West, Green Bay has now defeated two entire divisions this season, including the AFC South, with wins over the Tennessee Titans, Indianapolis Colts, Houston Texans and Jacksonville Jaguars.

The Seahawks have often had one of the best home-field advantages in the NFL due to the overwhelming crowd noise. That home-field advantage seemed to quickly dissipate in this game, as Green Bay opened the game with a 10-play, 63-yard drive. For the majority of the drive, Josh Jacobs carried the team, recording 44 total yards and capping it off with a touchdown.

As has been the theme in recent weeks, Jacobs continued to be the catalyst in the offense, as the former Raider logged 94 rushing yards and the aforementioned touchdown on 26 carries. Through the passing game, he added 42 receiving yards on four receptions.

Jayden Reed recorded 27 yards on three touches, Emanuel Wilson nine yards on three touches and Chris Brooks six yards on one touch.

Like we saw last season, Jordan Love continued to bring his game to the next level as the winter months have come around. In this game, Love completed 20-of-27 passes for 229 yards and two touchdowns.

Assisting him in the passing game was Romeo Doubs. Doubs, in his first game back since being diagnosed with a concussion on Nov. 24, caught three balls, totaling 40 yards and both of Love's touchdown passes. Christian Watson added another 56 yards on three receptions. Rounding out the pass game was Tucker Kraft (two receptions for 34 yards), Reed (five receptions for 34 yards) and Dontayvion Wicks (two receptions for 14 yards).

While the offense was certainly rolling for Green Bay in this game, the defense was just as good, if not better. Holding the Seahawks to just 13 points, Green Bay came away with seven sacks and two interceptions.

Linebacker Kingsley Enagbare led the team with two sacks, while Edgerin Cooper, Rashan Gary, Brenton Cox, Devonte Wyatt and Karl Brooks each added one. Cooper also added an interception, along with Carrington Valentine, who played in relief of Jaire Alexander.

Top, running back Josh Jacobs rushed for 94 yards and a touchdown - his ninth in the last five games - while the defense came up big when it mattered. Above, cornerback Carrington Valentine picked off a pass deep in his own end zone, one of two Packer interceptions on the day, to preserve a 17-3 halftime lead, while quarterback Jordan Love (left) threw for 229 yards and two TDs with a passer rating of 123.8.

Saints looking to be spoiler for Packers

By JACOB WESTENDORF
Green & Gold Express

The Green Bay Packers are back at home after a two-week road trip in which they split between Detroit and Seattle. The Packers made a statement with a big win over the Seahawks on Sunday Night Football, winning 30-13 and controlling most of the game. The New Orleans Saints are invading Lambeau Field now, with the Packers having a chance to get to 11 wins and clinch a playoff berth with a victory on Monday Night Football. If they're going to do that, here are three things they need to ensure they win. Jordan Love vs. Saints' defense

The last time the Packers played the Saints was just over a year ago; Jordan Love was probably swimming upstream. The Packers were 1-1, and Love was set to make his first home start for the team. Now? He's firmly entrenched as the starter and one of the top players in the league at his position. Last year's start had him tied up in knots for three quarters. New Orleans' defense, which Matt LaFleur called "salty," was pitching a shutout through three quarters. Love and the offense responded with 18 unanswered points, including a touchdown pass to Romeo Doubs, to give them an 18-17 lead late in the fourth quarter. A missed field goal by the Saints ensured that the Lambeau faithful would walk away happy. This time around, the Saints' defense is not what it used to be, but they still have shown plenty of fight. Jayden Daniels is likely to win offensive rookie of the year, and the Saints just held Washington's offense to 20 points. Love has been excellent since the bye week in taking care of the ball; he will need that to continue in Monday night's game as a way to not give the Saints any momentum toward stealing a win.

Special teams When the Saints fired Dennis Allen, they turned to their special teams' coordinator Darren Rizzi to be the interim head coach. Rizzi, to his credit, has gotten his team to play hard for him in what has otherwise been a lost season. Rizzi's team came within mere yards of beating the Washington Commanders on Sunday, losing on a failed two-point conversion. Rizzi was New Orleans' special teams coordinator when the Saints marched into Lambeau Field a year ago and, frankly, took it to Green Bay's special teams. They returned a punt for a touchdown and held Green Bay's return unit in check. The Packers' special teams showed some cracks in their armor in Sunday's win over Seattle. It was a poor performance from Daniel Whelan. They struggled in kick coverage. Jayden Reed muffed a punt. Simply put, the way to beat inferior teams is to not give them any hope. Edgerrin Cooper Edgerrin Cooper is coming off a big performance against the Seattle Seahawks. He was all over the field with countless big plays, including an interception that all but sealed Sunday night's win over Seattle. The key for Cooper now is whether he can stack big performances. Sunday was his first game back after a brief absence with a hamstring injury. As Cooper got back into the lineup, Quay Walker exited with a high-ankle sprain. It remains to be seen how the Packers will deploy their linebackers later in the season without Walker. Earlier in the year when Walker was injured, Eric Wilson and Isaiah McDuffie were the primary players on the field, with Cooper playing spot duty. This week against the Saints, however, Cooper should be getting more time on the field. Cooper will still have opportunities to make plays on running backs coming out of the backfield like Alvin Kamara and Kendre Miller. He's also shown an ability to make plays down the field in coverage, and the Saints are likely to want to push the ball into the middle of the field.

2024 RECORDS: Packers 10-4, Saints 5-9.
HISTORY: The Saints and Packers used to be must-see TV when Aaron Rodgers and Drew Brees were at the controls. Those two met five times, with Rodgers holding a 3-2 edge in that series. Overall, Green Bay leads the series 18-10, with the most famous meeting likely coming in September 2011. The Packers had just won the Super Bowl and won a 42-34 shootout against the Saints at Lambeau Field that was decided on a late goal line stand. The Saints were the team that Jordan Love got his first start at home against last year. They looked like they were going to spoil the party, leading 17-0 in the fourth quarter before Love and the offense found its sea legs. The Packers scored 18 unanswered points, and the Saints missed a field goal late, giving the Packers an 18-17 victory in their home opener.

COACHES: Packers — Matt LaFleur, fifth season, 66-31. Saints — Darren Rizzi, interim, 3-2.

WEEK 15/OFFENSE

THE MOMENT

PACKERS 30 vs. SEATTLE 13

Romeo Doubs scored two touchdowns against Seattle, his first game back after missing two due to a concussion he suffered against San Francisco. The first came on Green Bay’s second drive, when the 6-foot-2, 204-pound receiver pushed through two Seattle defenders for a 13-yard touchdown. It gave the Packers a 14-0 lead after the first quarter. Later, he snagged a 22-yard pass at the back of the end zone to help put away the Seattle Seahawks 30-13 at Lumen Field.

WEEK 15/OFFENSE

THE MOMENT

PACKERS 30 vs. SEATTLE 13

Green Bay wide receiver Jayden Reed evades Seattle cornerback Josh Jobe. Reed collected 61 yards from scrimmage against the Seahawks, 27 rushing on three carries and 34 receiving yards on five catches. Reed has had three 100-yard games this season, the last being in Week 9 against the Detroit Lions. But, in the last four weeks, Reed's usage has been minimal. He has only totaled eight catches for 73 yards and two touchdowns.

THE MOMENT

PACKERS 30 vs. SEATTLE 13

Josh Jacobs carried the ball 26 times for 94 yards and caught four passes for 42 yards as Green Bay dominated Seattle 30-13 in a Sunday Night Football game. The Packers improved to 10-4, while Seattle dropped to 8-6. Both teams remain in the hunt for the playoffs, the Packers most likely as a wild card team and the Seahawks possibly as division champions or another wild card team. “Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus”

The most beloved editorial of the season

Francis Pharcellus Church was working the editorial desk of the New York Sun one day in September 1897 when a forlorn letter arrived from a little girl named Virginia O’Hanlon — not a letter to Santa Claus, but a letter just as important.

“Dear Editor, I am 8 years old. Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus,” she wrote. “Papa says, ‘If you see it in The Sun it’s so.’ Please tell me the truth; is there a Santa Claus?” Church went right to work on a response, and the unsigned editorial has become one of the most beloved and often-reprinted newspaper editorials of all time: Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men’s or children’s, are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge. Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! how dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus. It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished. Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in fairies! You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas Eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that’s no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are unseen and unseeable in the world. You may tear apart the baby’s rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, nor even the united strength of all the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart. Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance, can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernal beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding. No Santa Claus! Thank God! he lives, and he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood.

To Our Readers:

Nothing is as touching or colorful as a child’s thoughts at Christmas. Within these pages you will find the Christmas messages of many children in our community. Their poignant thoughts and heartfelt wishes have been reproduced as submitted (spelling errors included) to most accurately express the thoughts and personalities of the writers. Many will bring a chuckle, a tear or perhaps a long lost memory of your own to mind. Whichever it is, we are certain you will enjoy the following pages.

Dear Santa, Ho! Ho! Ho! I hope that you are healthy and happy. I really enjoyed last Christmas with my family and students. Thanks for our gifts! We try really hard to Be Kind at Bonduel Elementary School. Our first graders read fables and learned lessons, especially not to be greedy like Cinderella's sisters, the farmer with the golden goose and Medio Polito (little half-chicken) who was turned into a weathervane for not being kind. If you can Santa, can you please send my students the gifts on their lists? They are good kids who sometimes make mistakes, but always say they are sorry and try to do better. Of course they will be happy with whatever you bring them. We all wish you and Mrs. Claus a happy holiday and safe travels. Mrs. Lela Schwitzer

Dear Santa,
I think I was good this year. How are you? I really want a stitch stuffed animal. I am really excited for Christmas this year. Are you? I really want a dog. What kind of Christmas cookies do you want this year? I also want a squish mellow. Hope you have a jolly Christmas!

Love,
Ashlynn

Dear: Santa
I like what you do. We would not have Christmas if you didn't exist! Without Christmas, we would not like Winter, maybe.
Love,
Elliott

Dear Santa,
I've been nice. Will you give me 100,000 vbucks to my account at my Mom's, and every NFL mini helmet. I also like football cards.
From
Skyler to Santa

Dear Santa,
I went to the Nutcracker. I got to see some of the people. In my opinion I have been very good. Is Snowflake a girl name? For Christmas, I want an Manchin, a pool, and a fence. Please make my godmother's wedding good.
From
Lily

Dear Santa,
Hi Santa, hope you and Mrs. Clause have been fantastic. I have been good this year, and I am really excited for Christmas. I have been wanting some stuff. Here is my list: Socks, nail polish, phone case (flower one please) And I want squishmallows, color pencils, leggings, and jala-peño Cheetos. I would love these things.
Love,
Kenna

Dear Santa,
I have been good. How are you doing? I can't wait for Christmas. I would really like a long suit coat and dress suit for Christmas, so I can
